GENERAL HECTOR MACDONALD TO BE TRIED ON VERY SERIOUS CHARGES.

"Fighting Mac" Under a Cloud and Will Have to Face His Accusers Superiors Do Not Believe Charges But Urge Him to Clear Honor of British Army

CAUSES A GREAT SENSATION IN ENGLAND

Sir Hector was One the Most Brilliant Generals in the Soudan Campaign

And was Regarded as one of Britain's Greatest Soldiers

WAS EXTREMELY POPULAR IN THE ARMY AND IN CIVIL LIFE

Has Been Called Upon to Return to Ceylon at Once to Face His Accusers

London, March 25.--Charges of the most serious nature have been brought against Major-General Sir Hector Macdonald, commanding the British forces in Ceylon. In consequence, the Governor of that island, Sir Joseph West Ridgeway, has been authorized to convene a court-martial to try General Macdonald. The latter, when the charges were filed some months ago, came to England to confer with his friends and superior officers, and now, it is understood, he will return and face the charges, which, it is alleged, are based on immoral acts.

The case will prove to be the greatest sensation in British military circles since Col. Valentine Baker was sentenced on Aug. 2, 1875, to pay a fine of $2,500 and to undergo 12 months' imprisonment for assaulting a lady in a railroad carriage.

Gen. Macdonald was regarded as one of Britain's greatest soldiers. He rose from the ranks in the Gordon Highlanders to his present position, and the service list shows no more honorable war record than that of Macdonald, while few officers possess more hard-won decorations. He was extremely popular in the army and in civil life.

While the army officials and many of his brother officers were aware that charges were pending against General Macdonald, no intimation of their nature leaked out until the dinner of the officers of a Highland regiment, March 21, at which Macdonald was not present. Lord Roberts, the commander-in-chief, paid tribute in a speech to the Highland officers who had served with distinction, but he did not mention Macdonald. This attracted considerable notice, and the sensation was increased when another speaker, who was aware of the facts in the case, lauded Macdonald as a typical Highland soldier, and found that his remarks were received in cold silence by the majority of the officers present.

WEATHER NOTES

Probs: Thursday—Fresh to strong westerly to northwesterly winds, fair and moderately cold, with snow flurries in parts of Ontario.

Cold weather still prevails in North-West Territories.

The Trent Valley Canal Outlet

Port Hope has suggested a new idea: Why should we not have both outlets—one at Trenton and one at Port Hope? If there is anything in being at "the first", that is where we then would be. Let the Board of Trade look into this matter. If we are to have only one terminus it must of course, be at Trenton. But why not be secured a second Manchester?

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Mr. W. T. E. Jobe, Town, to Miss Grace Williams, North Monaghan

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday afternoon last, at the Park street Baptist church, when Miss Grace, youngest daughter of Mr. Thos. Williams, of North Monaghan, was united in the holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. William T. E. Jobe, Weir street, town. At four o'clock the bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, the nuptial knot being tied by the Rev. Mr. Bastow, in the presence of relatives and many friends of the contracting parties.

The bride was prettily attired in a gown of pearl cashmere, trimmed with white silk, and carried in her hand a boquet of white carnations. Miss Nellie Gibson assisted the bride, and was dressed in navy blue and white, and also carried a boquet of white carnations. Mr. John Williams supported the groom.

After the ceremony the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served, about forty partaking of it. Rev. Mr. Bastow, who presided, in fitting terms, on behalf of those present, wished the happy couple a long and happy life.

The presents were both numerous and costly, shewing the high esteem in which the young people are held by their many friends. Amongst them was a magnificent extension table of oak, and a beautiful lamp, from the employees of the Trent Valley Canal.

Guests were present from New York, Toronto, Warkworth, Michigan and Fenelon.

The guests were delightfully entertained with a fine programme of high class music, games, etc., until a late hour, when they separated, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Jobe a long, happy and prosperous life, a sentiment in which The Times heartily joins.

MILLINERY OPENINGS

An Immense Display of Spring Novelties This Season.

THE LATEST CREATIONS.

A Column of Interesting Matter Concerning Millinery

The Times Sends Its Lady Reporter Through the Local Show Rooms—Gorgeous Display of Novelties for the Fair Sex

Not until the different millinery establishments in Peterborough have been visited, and some time spent in each, can anyone have any adequate conception of the beauty and artistic work displayed therein, and having seen them, the difficulty is realized of doing even scanty justice in describing it and conveying a correct idea of what is revealed to the eye. Yesterda'a openings were in every respect successful, and during the afternoon the ladies of the beau monde thronged the stores in search of the Easter headgear. Never in the history of millinery have the styles been more generally becoming and capable of suiting the most fastidious taste.

Messrs. Richard Hall and Sons.

The show room is filled with the daintiest creations imaginable for feminine headwear. The geranium hat is a novelty for this season. It has a folded chiffon facing with entire wreath of geranium leaves and foliage crown. A large bow of ribbon caught up with two buckles, adds the dainty finishing touch to the back. A hat that has called forth a great deal of admiration is a large black chip trimmed with plumes and appligue inserted in the brim, giving a most becoming effect. Another is an exquisite toque of chrysanthemum straw of tuscan and white. An exceedingly pretty hat of large rolling shape, had white straw facing and green top with a large green and white silk bow and linen medallions. The new champagne shades from cream to brown are much in evidence as trimming; also the drop jet and coin jet which is a distinct feature of this season. From 7.30 to 9.30 last evening a magnificent electrical display was given, and the building was crowded to the doors. Those who had the pleasure of visiting the millinery show rooms yesterday could not fail to be impressed with the artistic and elegant decorations of the Carpet Department, which is on the same floor. This department is capably presided over by Mr. Ross, who is especially adapted for this most important branch of furnishing. Among all the rest a magnificent rug for a drawing room was shown of German Axminster, in blue and green. Also a two-toned effect Axminster with illuminated border. Among the rugs the Egyptian is the newest of this season. In the line of curtains the latest is the Arabian Point and the Bonne Femme in Battenburg. A dainty little pair of bobbinett curtains, to be used with a double rod, must not be omitted, as they are sure to become very popular.

Great credit is due Mr. Ross for his [illegible] ing of the goods.

Miss Delaney's Exhibition.

On entering the visitor is at once attracted by two magnificent show cases, one on each side. On the right one is filled with dainty small fruit, which is used in such dainty combinations this spring, and in the other are Easter violets, which rival nature in delicacy of coloring and perfection of form. The hats are arranged most artistically, and it is apparent to all are especially designed for beauty and harmonious blending of colors. All colors are fashionable, but the prevailing shades are black and white, relieved with dashes of [illegible] green, burnt orange, pretty tans and browns, also grays. Flowers of great variety and natural coloring in conjunction with foliage are much in vogue, also small fruit and plumes. Black hats are as popular as ever, although colored are coming in for costumes. Miss Delaney's hats are selected specially in New York and are designed with the object of having them both becoming and prettily finished.

The ready-to-wears are a special feature of this season, as they are of superior quality and neat shapes. For early spring wear the toreador turban is becoming very popular, trimmed with the new brush ornament. The most attractive hat is the Parisian, which is most graceful and unsurpassed for elegance in every detail. Miss Delaney makes a distinct specialty of millinery, and it is her desire to place before her patrons the most up-to-date styles and best quality obtainable.

Messrs. J. C. Turnbull & Co.

whose show rooms have recently been remodelled and finished in the latest style, was in gala attire. The walls and ceiling have been papered in rich shades of buff and gold. The decorations were well carried out in reseda green and rose pink. To the right a large green plush portiere, headed with artistic gilt and tinted scroll work, completely covered the wall. Spaces between the windows were filled with panels in green, festooned with daisies. The handsome mirrors to the left were draped with velvet, silk and flowers combined, and altogether the effect was charming as a dream of fairyland. Among the many beautiful hats to be found here a few claim special mention. A dainty turban of old rose and reseda, with facing of rose malins, festooned with satin beads to match. The placque crown of the straw was finished on edge with velvet and shaded ribbon. Two clusters of olives complete the back.

A very novel mortar board hat in fluted net of cherry red, with large knotted bow on crown, high back band, banked in with cherries and foliage, was much admired.

Also a picture hat composed of shirred malins, in champagne and white, brim appliqued with white ribbon lovers' knots, and a trail of champagne locus completes this model.

Among the many black hats much admired was a large graceful shape, rolling at left side, with a crown of good height. The foundation of the hat is Japanese straw braid, scarf of ecru and black, and a long fox-tail plume falling at the back.

Among the fashionable combinations are champagne and brown, black and white, shades of old rose and blue. Also the new shades of green. Some of the small bud and cherry clusters display the Scotch coloring, red, blue, green and white, all appearing in the one bunch. The backs of the hats are trimmed in many different ways, fringes of roses or daisy buds finished with blossom clusters being exceptionally stylish.

Messrs. Sutcliffe and Sons.

Green and white were the predominating colors that lent a most artistic and pleasing effect to the show room of Messrs. Sutcliffe & Sons yesterday. Palms were pleasingly arranged on small oak tables, while baskets of flowers were suspended from the ceiling. The draping was of varied tints and shades and combined harmoniously with the rest of the furnishings. The show room is replete with everything in the line of headwear. To Miss Prescott, milliner, and Miss Dury, trimmer, a great deal of praise is due for their successful management of this department. The hats are all very stylish and pretty, but special attention might be drawn to the Floradamie composed of black sequins and a long fox-tail leather clasped with beautiful medallions. Also the Champagne, prettily made of malines with clouded ospreys and champagne effect down the back. The clouded effect is being carried out in ribbons and other material also this season.

Messrs. R. Fair & Co.

The millinery display at this popular store yesterday was well patronized and presented an appearance bright and fresh as the breath of spring. Pattern hats of every description are shown, also the very latest Parisian effects. A hat that was universally admired was composed of rose petals, with a lace drape and black ostrich mount. Also a New York hat with a new long front and fancy fluted crown trimmed with straw medallions and one long plume caught with a long buckle. A picture hat of white malines, and fancy braid trimmed with pink poppies and ostrich feathers seemed to be a general favorite. A delightful variety is here that cannot fail to suit all tastes.

WILL COST JOHN BULL MILLIONS TO BUY OUT IRISH LANDLORDS

The Land Purchase Bill Introduced at Westminister Mr. Wyndham Explains.

LOAN OF $500,000,000 TO BE GIVEN

And Free Grant of Sixty Million Dollars to be Made

Irish Tenants to be Given Opportunity to Pur chase Their Hold ings on Easy Terms

London, March 25.—Not since Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill was up for its second reading in June, 1886, has there been so much interest in any measure in the House of Commons, as was manifested over the Government's Irish Land Bill, which was introduced to-day by the Chief Secretary, Mr. George Wyndham.

Applications for tickets were phenomenal. There is accomodation in the Members' Gallery for only about 400, and hundreds had to be refused. Many visitors came from Dublin and other parts of Ireland specially to hear Mr. Wyndham explain his bill, and the Dublin press made special arrangements to give the speech full sale on the streets this evening.

The Freeman's Journal says that unless the bill is clearly and hopelessly bad beyond power of amendment, no definite decision will be arrived at by the Irish leaders to-day, as the measure will immediately be submitted to the unrestricted consideration and discussion of the Irish people and its fate at least provisionally decided by a national council summoned for the purpose.

Replying to a resolution from Ulster Unionists on the Land Bill, Mr. Wyndham expresses his deep personal sense of the importance of the present opportunity for effecting a great and lasting improvement in the social and economic condition of Ireland.

WILL SAVE IRELAND MONEY.

The Irish Secretary explained that while the maximum charge on the English treasury would not exceed $1,975,000 in a single year, the reduction in the cost of administration of Ireland would amount to $1,250,000.

Against this charge on the British Treasury, the Irish Government proposes forthwith to commence reductions in the cost of administration amounting to $1,250,000 per annum forever.

Proceeding, Mr. Wyndham dealt with the points of the bill, which contains a bewildering mass of figures, showing how advances will be made and the terms of repayment, but it seems, in the main, to be on the lines laid down by the Land Conference report, and will be satisfactory to the landlords and tenants. In the course of his speech, which was punctuated by cheers, Mr. Wyndham said the landlords of Ireland were being ruined financially, and that the tenants were being ruined morally, and the taxpayers of England were paying $700,000 per annum to the Land Commission and $7,000,000 to the Irish police, which largely was needed to deal with illegalities arising from the land question.

AN UNACOUNTABLE MODESTY

An Interesting Article on a Matter that Concerns Women

The Times has received the following from a lady reader, with a request that it might appear in the columns of this great family journal. The article in question was taken from a Toronto paper, and tells its own story:

It is a curious thing that one of the most important matters that has come before our local aediles, the members of the Board of Health, should have been slurred over, blinked, evaded, disregarded and passed over by those who should be highly interested in a subject that is fraught with interest to the men and women of this fair city.

We are told by the reporters who attended the meeting of the Board of Health the other day that one of the gentlemen composing that body expressing his belief, arrived at after mature thought, that Dr. Sheard, the Medical Health Officer, should take into his consideration, in conjunction with the City Solicitor, the drafting of a by-law to regulate the length of skirts worn by our Toronto women. This gentleman had evidently noticed, as have some thousands of other gentlemen, how the long dress-skirt gathers up all sorts of mud and filth, and he thought it was time for a change.

We admire this Toronto Hampden; this earnest lover of his fellow-beings, but it is painful to regret that he had not the courage of his convictions. He galloped merrily through the flat—to use sporting language—but he refused the water-jump. In other, and perhaps plainer words, the philanthropist besought the reporters to withhold his name. Undoubtedly an earnest philanthropist; an altruistic philanthropist, but, we grieve to fear, a verecund philanthropist. Why should he ask the reporters—courageous young men, who, of course, granted his request—to keep his name "dark." There could be one, and only one, valid excuse for his refusal of publicity—bachelorhood. It is easy to understand that a bachelor, belonging to a class notoriously far from the medidian of clarified common-sense and good judgment, might fear the consequences in some suit, which, as he hoped, would make him a bachelor no longer, if he came out as an opponent of the trailing skirt. But according to all information, there [illegible] Health. Why, then, this secrecy? Why this desire for anonymity? Why this failure to acquire the reward in the shape of thanks and admiration which a gratefully community would be glad to accord? We confess that we are unable to solve this riddle.

But, nevertheless, this gentleman was on the right track. The rainy-day, or short-walking skirt, we consider to be an invention far transcending in importance any piffling contrivance of Mr. Marconi, or any discovery of men who are eternally fooling with evil-smelling chemicals. The originator of the rainy-day skirt is worthy to rank with Gutenberg, Stephenson, Edison, or any of those fellows. It cannot become popular too soon—for it is inexpensive. We may be permitted to wink knowingly the other eye at our male readers when we also remark that none but women possessing excellent figures and symmetrical ankles can wear it.

If that does not do the business nothing will.

PRINCESS LOUISE VERY ILL

Her Health Breaks Down Under the Disgrace of Her Elopement

Saltsburg, March 26.—The report that the health of the former Crown Princess of Saxony, who eloped with Andre Giron, has broken down, owing to distress and excitement, is confirmed. It is expected that owing to her condition complications may set in.

Her attendants are doing their utmost to prevent her from replying to the King of Saxony's letter to his people, in which he said she had long secretly fallen, before her elopement with Giron. Her enforced silence on this matter has made her condition worse.

THANKS MR. BORDEN

The Territorial Leader Looking for an Increased Subsidy

Ottawa, March 25.—Premier Haultain, who has been in Ottawa pressing the claims of the North-West Territories, has left for home. He has not secured any settlement, but hopes that before Mr. Sifton leaves for England, matters may be finally arranged. Though the estimates contain no provision for a larger subsidy to be paid to the Territories, [illegible] plemental main estimates come down.

SMALLPOX AT BURLEIGH

A Case Developed at Mount Julien, Stony Lake

News was received yesterday from Burleigh to the effect that Mr. Israel Church, who resided at Mount Julien, Stony Lake, had contracted small-pox. The news, it appears, is confirmed, a physician who visited Church, having pronounced the disease small-pox.

It appears that Church was in Warsaw at the time the traveller, who was suffering from the disease, went through, the particulars of which appeared in The Times at the time, and this accounts for the outbreak.

Every precaution is being taken to prevent the spread of the contagion. A member of the Provincial Board of Health staff has been sent for, and the patient is isolated, as are also others with whom he may have come of his departure. We wish him great in contact.

Draw Your Own Conclusions After Reading This Letter

Mr. T. W. Dobbie, a popular citizen and Provincial Land Surveyor and Conveyancer, of Tilsonburg, Ont., writes as follows:

"I have been a constant user of your Malt Breakfast Food since last spring. Now, I never take a breakfast without it when I am at home. It is a grand food for promoting good digestion. I find that I am not troubled with dizziness or biliousness when using Malt Breakfast Food."

If you have doubts about the virtues of Malt Breakfast Food, ask your grocer for his opinion. Physicians and food experts say, it is the only true health food in the world. Try it and be convinced.

GENERAL MACDONALD SUICIDES AT PARIS

BRITISH GENERAL SHOT HIMSELF YESTERDAY

Result of Charges of Immoral Conduct Preferred Against Him

SPECIAL DISPATCH, 3 a.m.

London, March 26, 3 a.m.—The Evening News of this city announces that Major-General Sir Hector Macdonald, commanding the British forces in Ceylon, against whom charges based on immoral acts were filed some time ago, committed suicide by shooting in a hotel in Paris.

WIVES OF SOLDIERS

Severely Censured in British Court for Misconduct During the War

London, March 26.—In the Divorce Court the other day Sir Francis Jeune had some very severe remarks to make regarding the great number of cases he had heard in the Divorce Court during the last few months of soldiers whose wives had misconducted themselves while their husbands were engaged in the war in South Africa.

The case which drew the remarks from His Lordship was one in which a Sergeant of the Royal Fusiliers petitioned for a divorce on the ground of his wife's misconduct with another soldier of the same corps during the Sergeant's absence at front.

His Lordship said it gave him very deep regret to find so many wives had been guilty of misconduct while their husbands were fighting battles for their country. He did not know whether such a state of things had existed during previous wars. Perhaps, he thought, it might have been that there did not exist the same facilities for finding out what the wife had been doing during the absence of the husband.

GOVERNMENT BILL UNFAIR TO RAILWAYS

To Exempt Intercolonial is to Discriminate Against Others

IS NOT CAUSING UNEASINESS

No Particular Objection to Measure But Some Clauses are Considered Peculiar

Montreal, March 20.—The proposed railway commission, to take the place of the railway committee of the Privy Council, which was introduced into the House of Commons yesterday, is not causing railroad men very much uneasiness.

"The Canadian Pacific," said Mr. D. McNicoll, second vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Pacific to-day, "has no objection to such a commission, but at the same time it appears to me strange that private corporations should be discriminated against by the Intercolonial, in other words that the Intercolonial should be exempt from the provision of the act, and I suppose the law as applied to the Intercolonial is that the King's property cannot be taxed, but, when applied out here in America, where every one and every corporation is striving to work on its own merits, such a discrimination does not appear fair."

Sir William Van Horne has already expressed his opinion that the commission would be a useless expense to the country, and other railroad men seen to-day are of the same opinion.

Mr. C. M. Hays, second vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk, is still out West and none of the officials in town care to discuss the matter.

A railroad man, who has resigned from active service and who was long in the freight department of a leading road, said to-day:

"I think the commission, if composed of practical men, may be of great use to the country. The railroads of Canada are becoming such wealthy corporations and have so much influence that they are practically masters of the situation. In so far as the rates are concerned, when they are considered exorbitant, there is no redress, and I think all independent commissions might be of great use in defining fair and equitable rates. The people of the North-West have long demanded it and it will be received with great satisfaction west of Winnipeg."

LINDSAY BREWERY BURNED

An Old Landmark Erected by Commodore Calcutt

The Victoria Spring Brewery, owned and operated by Mr. Fred Cornell, was destroyed, together with the contents, by fire at an early hour Tuesday morning. The fire started soon after 3 o'clock in about the centre of the building and spread with such rapidity that before the brigade arrived it was a mass of flames and beyond saving, so they turned their attention to protecting other property nearby. The loss will be about $8,000, and insurance $2,000.

The Victoria Spring Brewery was one of Lindsay's old landmarks, having been built about thirty years ago by Mr. Calcutt, of Peterborough. After Mr. Calcutt had operated it for several years it passed into the hands of Messrs. Lloyd & Goldie, after which the late Mr. Haslam got possession and ran it for seven years. After the death his son carried on the business for over ten years, selling out to Mr. Cornell three years ago. The business never paid very well until Mr. Cornell got possession, but the latter's reputation as a first-class brewer soon spread throughout the country, and as a result his goods always found a ready sale.

RUSSIANS AGGRESSIVE IN CHINA

They Open a Custom House at Dalny, which is a Free Port

London, March 25.—Chinese advices received to-day bring the details of the expulsion of a German trader from Mukden, Manchuria, by the Russian Governor. The German protested that he was a German subject with a passport, and presumed that he could do as he pleased in Chinese territory.

"Not so," replied the Governor, smiling. He added that he had the power to escort an intruder by Cossacks across the border. So much for the open door in China. Moreover, notwithstanding Sir Robert Hart's authority as Chief of Chinese Customs, the Russians are preparing to open a Russian custom-house at Dalny, the so-called free port.

In the Summer Time

London, Mach. 25. — The Times Vienna correspondent says that the best opinion does not regard the Macedonian situation as essentially changed by the Austro-Russian programme. Prince Ferdinand's relationship to the committee is still considered the pivot of the position, and officials and diplomats are still watching for any indication that he is determined to defy the committees threats. It is belived that Ferdinand is in a difficult predicament, which may become dangerous later. The present disturbances in Macedonia are not considered as the final flickerings of a dying flame, but rather as discharges from a crater which will develop into full activity when the summer comes and the revolutionary bands can camp in the open. The next six months are thought to be critical, both for the peace of Macedonia and for Ferdinand.

Mr. Ball of Chatham, Ont. Was Told that He Would Never Walk Again

Paine's Celery Compound

The Great Spring Cleanser and Life Giver Saved the Popular Auctioneer's Life When All Other Agencies Failed

Paine's Celery Compound is to-day the most reliable and most successful spring medicine in the world. The present enormous demand is the best proof of its popularity. It has almost entirely displaced the common remedies in pill and liquid forms once so common, and in many respects so dangerous to health and life.

Paine's Celery Compound has been marvellously successful for the simple reason that, in every instance it accomplishes more than is claimed for it. It is the one spring remedy that physicians and the best people inform. Men and women of wealth and high social position, able to command the services of the most eminent medical men, use Paine's Celery Compound in springtime, having full confidence in its virtues. Paine's Celery Compound is, par excellence, the great blood purifier; it increases the constructive capacity of the vital fluid, nourishes the tissues and builds up the body. It is the only remedy that copes successfully with all forms of kidney troubles. Mr. H. Ball, a prominent citizen of Chatham, Ont., says:

"I was so seriously ill I was obliged to take to my bed, where I lay fort four months. The doctors here and in Toronto, said my trouble was Addison's disease of the kidneys, and told me I would never walk again. I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and after the use of a number of bottles was enabled to attend to business, and felt like a new man. Before using the compound I was very much reduced in flesh; to-day I weigh over 200 pounds. I can affirm that Paine's Celery Compound saved my life."

FARM LABOURERS WANTED

The London Post complains that Canada is attracting its immigrants from the rural and not exclusively from the urban population of the United Kingdom.

We sincerely hope so. The opportunities we have in this country to offer to immigrants are almost entirely agricultural. Our factories and our shops are not calling for labor to any large extent. We have plenty of people in our cities and towns as it is. But we are very glad to see British families come over and farm our excellent agricultural lands.

Obviously the sort of folk who should come for this purpose, are those who know something about farming. At a pinch, we can teach a Londoner to farm, but sometimes he is not too teachable; and then he is very likely to suffer a good deal and grumble more while learning how. The British farm hand will take more kindly to the cultivation of his prairie section than the output of Whitechapel, and even the British farm hand will find new conditions and unexpected obstacles which will keep him busy for awhile. But if the man who has farmed all his life in England cannot succeed on a Canadian farm, certainly the chances are much greater against the Cockney, who never did any planting or reaping in his life.

The English side of the question we perfectly understand. Like the rest of the world, England has suffered from the movement out of the country to the [illegible] and naturally prefers that we should take from her overcrowded city "unemployed" than from her already too scarce farm laborers. But if we have anything to do with the choosing, we naturally prefer the men most likely to make a success of life in the colony. Then there is surely a silver lining on the British crowd. If we drain the rural districts, this will create a demand there for labor which will soon become so insistent and open-handed that many of those who are now crowding up to the cities will consent to stay where they can get sure work and good wages [illegible] the villes of other days may return. Anyway, it is a cheaper and more promising experiment to try to teach the Londoner to farm in Kent or Devon than to bring him away out here to face entirely novel conditions on a Canadian prairie.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Now if Hon. Mr. Chamberlain succeed in settling the Irish question, his claim to be considered the greatest peace and war maker that Britain has produced will be universally admitted.

The latest invention in fire apparatus is an automobile hose cart and chemical engine capable of running 30 miles an hour. It carries 1,000 feet of hose, weighs 7,000 pounds and costs $5,000. Of course their employment would effect a large saving in horses, harness, stable room, feed, etc. They are said to run as well on snow, in winter as on the streets in summer, except when the snow is so abnormally deep as to impede a sleigh.

MATHERS CORNERS, OTONABEE.

Miss Minnie E. Howson, who has been taking charge of S. S. No. 7 Otonabee, for the past two months, and who has been appointed assistant teacher in the town of Rosthern, Saskatchewan, was presented with the following address, to which Miss Howson made a suitable reply:—

Miss M. Howson:

Dear Teacher,—We, the pupils of S. S. No. 7, desire in a very small manner to express our feelings of the kindness and sympathy shown us, by you, during your short stay amongst us, and we ask you to accept our very hearty thanks for all the instruction received at your hands.

We know your place will be very hard to fill, but we can truly say with an unselfish heart, that what is our loss is others' gain, and we trust that your prayers and blessings shall always fall upon us, and we beg you to remember that ours shall always follow you, no matter where you shall travel.

We would ask you to overlook and forget our many shortcomings and to remember only that which pleased you most.

We trust when you enter into your new school in the far West, that you will have very great success in all your undertakings and that you may prepare for yourself a home eternal, and we can say now, "God be with you till we meet again."

JENA OR SEDAN

Prediction of the Overthrow of the Germans

Berlin, March 25.—Under the title "Jena or Sedan," Franz Adam Beyerlein, a retired Prussian officer, has written a sensational book, which in the disguise of a novel severely criticizes the modern German military system, and contends that sweeping changes are demanded to save the army from ignominious defeat at the hands of some firstclass power. He also urges that the present system of training kills initiative in the individual soldier and that the disaster at Jena will certainly be repeated whenever this mechanical army comes in contact with forces, the units of which are permitted some degree of self-reliance. Beyerlein's novel, depicts the cruelties which recruits suffer at the hands of non-commissioned officers. The author's conclusion is, that between the infliction of brutality and the complete subjection of their individuality, the German soldiers are deprived of the qualities of good fighting men. The book is exciting widespread comment.

RUSSIA AND CHINA

Muscovite Interest in Chinese Situation

St. Petersburg, March 25.—In view of the threatened Chinese uprising against foreigners, the Russian authorities in Manchuria have requested the Government to straighten the military position in the far East. They state that the prospective trouble looks more dangerous than that which culminated in the attack on the Pekin legations.

Close connection with the Boxers of North and Central China has been established by the Khunhuz, a semi-political semi-criminal and unconquered tribe of Manchuria, which is the real master of the North China industrial and commercial situation. The Russian movement has determined to reinforce the garrisons of South Manchuria and the Maritime Provinces.

BRITISH CAPITAL IN CUBA

They Have a Rich Light, Power and Transportation Contract.

Havana, March 24.—A syndicate of British and Colonial capitalists of Kingston, Jamaica, has the contract to give the city of Santiago de Cuba a system of electric tram line, and to, at the same time, light the town and all public edifices by electricity, besides supplying motive power for small manufactures and minor industries in which the use of machinery is made.

Bad Complexion

Has Its Cause in Impure or Impoverished Blood

To have a soft, smooth skin, free from eruptions and unsightly blemishes, the blood must be maintained in a healthy condition.

Face powders, lotions and other toilet preparations may, for a short time cover up a multitude of wrongs in the blood, but they cannot remove these red, disfiguring pimples that are the bane of so many young ladies' lives.

Why not use Ferrozone? It is an unfailing cure for the worst kind of skin disease, the most effective of all blood purifiers, and cures bad complexion by removing its cause.

Ferrozone invigorates and purifies enfeebled blood. Makes it strong rich and red. Ferrozone puts power into the blood to nourish the body and all its organs. It is a regulator of acknowledged merit, and is quite unrivalled as a remedy for Female disorders.

Mrs. Shanly, of Pittsburg, Ont., says: "For five years my face was disfigured by raw, bleeding eruptions that resisted all treatment.

"Three Kingston doctors did their best for me and when they acknowledged themselves beaten, I tried Ferrozone. The first box helped me quite a little, and by the time I had used six boxes I was cured. Ferrozone is a fine remedy for womanly disorders of all kinds and I can highly recommend it." (Signed), Mary Shanly.

Growing girls, women, men, in fact everybody can derive untold benefit from Ferrozone. It is a tonic for the blood, brain and nerves and worth its price ten times over to everyone who uses it.

Three weeks' treatment contained in a box of sixty-three chocolate coated tablets, cost 50c., or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all Druggists, and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,980.35
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,713 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,687.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $77,368.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deductions for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of this machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Noestyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for [illegible] for the machine and [illegible] supplies, and intends to [illegible] at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 30 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc., will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view this Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 6 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale.). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Thunder Mountain !

is the richest gold producing camp in the United States, and also the largest. The Thunder Mountain district, in central Idaho, is twenty miles wide and forty miles long. In comparison with this we have Cripple Creek, four miles wide and seven miles long. In many of the Thunder Mountain mines ore has already been reached that carries ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN GOLD TO THE TON. All of the Thunder Mountain ore is free milling, which means that it can be treated by the cheapest extraction process known—the ordinary stamp mill. It can be both mined and milled at a cost not to exceed $2 a ton. The past years operations in the several working mines have opened up millions of tons of ore that will give a net profit of from $10 to $30 a ton, enabling the respective companies to pay dividends at a rate never before equalled. Such is the showing and the prospect of the which unless all indications are at fault, will become the largest producer in the district. The EAST DEWEY mine, which it owns outright, is located directly on Thunder Mountain, just east of the famous "Dewey" mine, which already has $20,000,000 of ore in sight. The surface area of the East Dewey mine is one hundred and twenty acres—six full quartz claims. The company has also secured the big GOLDEN GATE mine, in the Big Creek section of the Thunder Mountain district—which has been so aptly termed "The Pot of Gold"—and is now developing the mine with all possible speed. For a distance of 9,000 feet, nearly two miles, the Golden Gate mines cover a mineralised ledge that is 900 feet wide, with an average height above the tunnel level of 500 feet, thus giving it the largest exposed tonnage of any mine in the west.

If you would share in the enormous profits which these figures indicate and which these developments promise, invest your money in "East Dewey" Stock. It can be bought to-day for 10 Cents a Share. Its par value is $1.

If the East Dewey mines are what they appear to be, and there is absolutely no reason to doubt or question these indications, this stock will eventually be worth at least $10 a share, and to-day you can buy it for ten cents. PRICE ADVANCES TO FIFTEEN CENTS ON FEBRUARY 28th. 5% discount allowed for cash. Stock sold at flat price of 10 cents on deferred payments, 10% with application, and 10% monthly until paid. STOCK MARKETS

AFTER THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC ELECTION

New York, March 26—The Harriman Keene embroglio has to a certain extent quieted speculation. People in many instances await the outcome before extending their operations, while many folks now even on the market won't venture until the result of the Southern Pacific election is known. With the matter as it is even the bargains now offering fail to tempt such people; they prefer to pay better prices for stocks with the matter settled. People remember the now famous Northern Pacific controversy and fear a repitition of same such episode in the present argument. A repitition of such a condition will not come, however. The matter comes up on April 3rd, and after that speculation will be more lively with every indication that it will be bullish. It is consequently a good plan to buy some stocks before it comes off in preference to waiting until the matter is settled. Compromises between the two factions will be the logical outcome. If the Union Pacific people have their way in the management, continuing the policy of charging improvements to operating expenses they will only have two more years of it at the same rate, when the job is finished. They have already in two years' time spent $25,000,000 in this manner charging same to operating account, at the same time they will have finished spending the $50,000,000 contemplated. Then Southern Pacific will be well worth 125, as it will be able to pay six per cent. and lay up almost an equivalent surplus every year. Southern Pacific showed net earnings of five per cent upon its capital stock in the last twelve months, despite the fact that about $12,000,000 of its earnings had been expended in improvements and charged off. It is therefore reasonable to say that the stock is cheap in the sixties, even if present policy be continued. Bear in mind, the Union Pacific will be the greatest beneficiary when dividends are commenced on Southern Pacific, as it is the largest Southern Pacific holder. When dividends are commenced they will be continued and Union Pacific is sure to get a greater return for the common shareholders and the stock will advance correspondingly. Both are good. Fears of a fight out of the way, prices will improve all around. These fears have done more to restrict the market than monetary conditions. There will be no fight. Prices will go higher.

NO PROSPECT—ORE IN PLAIN SIGHT. TRUE FISSURE VEINS NEVER GIVE OUT.

No other line of human endeavor can show greater profits and fewer losses than modern mining. Our success helps all and robs none.

The Little Kingdom Mining Co.

Owns or controls more than 100 acres in Gilpin County, the richest mining district in Colorado, if not in the world. This county has produced over one hundred millions of dollars and continues to yield up great wealth.

The Little Kingdom Mining Company's property has passed the prospective stage and has enough low-grade ore in sight to keep a mill running steadily. As soon as the company has sufficient funds, a mill will be erected, assuring a steady income, which will enable it to push developments and place the property on a dividend-paying basis.

BIG DEVELOPMENT FUND.—The capital stock of the Company is $100,000 (divided in shares of one cent each); more than half of this amount was set aside as a treasury or development fund. Few mining companies possess such a large development fund according to their capital.

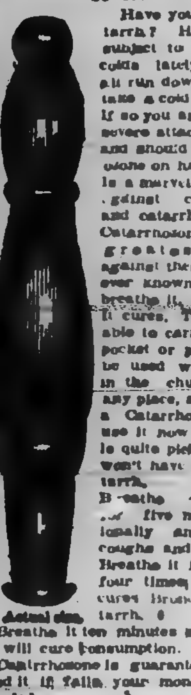
Fatal Catarrh

Pneumonia, Consumption and kindred evils follow in its trail.

Catarrhozone

The Great Inhaler treatment, cures and prevents catarrh and should be used now.



Actual size.

Have you ever had Catarrh? Have you been subject to coughs, and colds lately? Are you all run down? Do you take a cold easily? If so you are liable to a severe attack at any time and should have Catarrhozone on hand, because it is a marvelous safeguard against coughs, colds and catarrh.

Catarrhozone is the greatest protection against these complaints ever known. You just breathe it, that's all, and it cures. The Inhaler is able to carry in the vest pocket or purse, and can be used while at work, in the church, theatre, any place, any time. Carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler, use it now and again, it is quite pleasant and you won't have colds or catarrh.

Breathe Catarrhozone five minutes occasionally and it cures coughs and colds.

Breathe it five minutes four times a day and it cures Bronchitis and catarrh.

Breathe it ten minutes every hour and it will cure consumption.

Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this and if it fails your money will be refunded.

It is highly endorsed by doctors and druggists as the most reliable and surest cure for bronchitis, colds and catarrh, and no case is recorded where it failed to give satisfaction.

Don't let your cold run on any farther. Cure it now by Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for three months' use costs but one dollar; small size 25 cents. At druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Buy it to-day.

If You are Loosing Weight or your appetite and digestion need stimulating, or are convalescing after an illness, ask your druggist for

Boarders Wanted

Comfortable quarters for a couple of boarders at 490, Bethune street.

The Late Joseph G. Huston

The body of the late Joseph G. Huston arrived last night from Chicago, where he died, and was taken to the undertaking establishment of Mr. D. Belleghem.

The Late Mrs. W. H. O'Neil

The many friends of Mrs. W. H. O'Neil, whose sudden death on Tuesday night was recorded in these columns yesterday, deeply sympathize with the family in their sad bereavement. The deceased was a daughter of the late Wellington Boyce, of Smith, and was married about 30 years ago to her late husband. She leaves two sons and two daughters. The sons are Messrs. Hilmer and Wilbert, both of town. A funeral service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, was held at the home of her son, Mr. H. O'Neil, 155 Stewart street, last night, and the remains will be conveyed to Uxbridge this morning for interment.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. F. D. Moore, of Lindsay, who is a brother of our esteemed townsman Mr. W. H. Moore, was in town yesterday on business.

—Mr. A. J. Gough is down from Toronto for a day or two inspecting the local branch of that progressive firm.

—Mr. and Mrs. William Irwin and Miss Eva, have returned to town, after spending the winter at Espanola.

—Mr. Fred Davidson leaves to-day for the Saskatchewan Valley, accompanied by Messrs. F. Clark, Cavan; R. Franklin, Otonabee, and J. Hutchison, town.

—We are pleased to say that Mr. H. Fair's hand, which was so severely hurt a few weeks ago, is gradually healing. It was feared at first that some of his fingers would have to be amputated.

—Mr. Joseph Hutchison, who was a valued employee of Mr. H. P. Kennedy for so many years, leaves to-day for the North-West. Joe has very many friends in town and country who will be sorry to hear of his departure. We wish him great prosperity.

—Scott's Chinook coal is the best for grates. For sale by R. Hicks & Co., Murray street.

THE PROTESTANT HOME

Complaints of Trouble Among the Inmates Have Been Made

Complaints have reached us of biting, scratching and general disorder amongst the inmates of the Protestant Home. We would be glad of a report from the directors on the subject. In these days charitable and curative institutions are the subject of so much comment and complaint that it is wise to go slowly, yet a word of explanation would go far to silence both.

THE STREET RAILWAY

A Proposition is Said to be About Ready for Council

The Times is informed that the proposition of the Street Railway is likely to be submitted to the Council in a day or two. We are not at liberty to disclose the nature of the proposal, which is to be made, but it is hoped that it will be acceptable to the Council and the ratepayers.

The Times, however, is in a position to state that the gentlemen who are back of the present movement are in a position to carry the matter through, should terms be agreed upon.

THE MUD LAKE BRIDGE

Badly Damaged by Tuesday Night's High Winds

Owing to the damage done the floating bridge over Chemung Lake by the storm on Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, traffic has been temporarily suspended. County Engineer Belcher was at once notified, and will lose no time in having the bridge repaired.

It appears that the high winds drove the ice with great force against the bridge, and the structure from the centre pier to the Smith shore gave way.

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION

A Safe Investment Offered by the United Typewriter Co.

We direct the attention of investors to the prospectus of the United Typewriter Co., Limited, which is to be found elsewhere in this issue of The Times. The proposition is one that will commend itself to the favorable consideration of those who are seeking a safe and paying investment. The success of the company is assured. It is officered by gentlemen of known probity and high financial standing. Mr. J. F. Seitz, the Managing Director of the Company, will be pleased to supply any information desired. The offices of the Company are located at 15 Adelaide street east, Toronto.

Wanted

A good, smart solicitor (lady or gentleman) to take orders for Enlarged Portraits in Crayons, India Ink, Pastel, Oilettes, Sepia and Oils. A good salary will be paid to the right person. Apply at 434 George street or address The Peterborough Supply and Art Company, P. O. Box 322 Peterborough.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The water in the river shows no sign of abatement.

—Canon McNabb lectured in St. John's church last night to a delighted audience.

—A meeting of the Market committee was booked to take place last night.

—Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons received an order from Providence, R.I., yesterday.

—Seven cars of cattle are being shipped by the G.T.R. to-day for the West, for ranching purposes, by Mr. Davidson.

—The Rev. John McDougal speaks in the George Street Methodist church this evening. The Times predicts a large and delighted audience.

—The Ladies' Reading Circle of St. Peter's T.A.S. will hold a literary evening to-night. A paper on Dante will be read by Miss Kate McGrath.

—A social meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will be held this afternoon at 3.30. All ladies interested are invited to attend.

—Farmers in general say that fall wheat has stood the winter very well, and is in good condition. This means very much to both town and county's welfare.

—Notwithstanding the rain and snow of the last few days, the country roads are said to be in a better condition than on Saturday last.

—The Cereal Company has shut down for a week, on account of high water interfering with the wheels of their generating plant.

—When fuel is high and rents are higher it behooves every economical householder to see that every dollar does its duty, and brings back one hundred cents worth into the home. Shoppers will find that groceries can be purchased from Hawley, at 161 Hunter street, at a lower price than any where else in town. Be convinced by calling and getting prices.

FOOLED THE HOSPITAL

Was Pronounced Incurable But Got Well on Pure Food

Sometimes in a case of disease resulting from the use of improper food the symptoms are so complex that medical science cannot find the seat of trouble, and even the most careful hospital treatment fails to benefit. A gentleman of Lee, Mass. says: "On April 1st, 1900, I was sent home by one of our Massachusetts hospitals, saying nothing more could be done for me. I have been a great sufferer from nervous diseases and rheumatism and nervous prostration and had previously been treated at Sharon Springs and by a number of doctors without getting much assistance.

"One day I was feeling worse than usual when I read an article about your Grape-Nuts that impressed me so that I sent for a package. I commenced using it at breakfast the next day.

"For fifteen months I never missed one day. If you ever saw anyone grow strong and improve it was I. I gained from 125 pounds to my old weight of 165. I will always be a cripple from rheumatism, but otherwise I am so much improved that I now feel as well as any man in this country." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There is a recipe book in each package of Grape-Nuts that will interest the housekeeper.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Irish Landlords

cumstances," asked the Irish Secretary, "if the landlords and tenants come together?"

FEATURES OF THE IRISH LAND BILL.

A free grant of $60,000,000 from the British Treasury to buy out the Irish landlords.

A new stock to be issued to the value of $500,000,000, if necessary at the rate of $25,000,000 yearly, to be given to Irish tenants as loans.

Tenants to pay 3 1-4 per cent. interest on loans secured from the Government.

Untenanted farms and grazing lands to be sold to neighboring tenants. The Act to be administered by three commissioners.

Amended Obituaries.

Mark Twain has addressed the following letter to the press:

Sir — I am approaching seventy; it is in sight; it is only three years away. Necessarily, I must go soon. It is but matter-of-course wisdom, then, that I should begin to set my worldly house in order now, so that it may be done calmly and with thoroughness, in place of waiting until the last day, when, as we have often seen, the attempt to set both houses in order at the same time has been marred by the necessity for haste and by the confusion and waste of time arising from the inability of the notary and the ecclesiastic to work together harmoniously, taking turn about and giving each other friendly assistance—not perhaps in fielding, which could hardly be expected, but at least in the minor offices of keeping game and umpiring; by consequence of which conflict of interests and absence of harmonious action a draw has frequently resulted where this ill-fortune could not have happened if the houses had been set in order one at a time and hurry avoided by beginning in season, and giving to each the amount of time fairly and justly proper to it.

In setting my earthly house in order I find it of moment that I should attend in person to one or two matters which men in my position have long had the habit of leaving wholly to others, with consequences often most regrettable. I wish to speak of only one of these matters at this time: Obituaries. Of necessity, an Obituary is a thing which cannot be so judiciously edited by any hand as by that of the subject of it. In such a work it is not the Facts that are of chief importance, but the light which the obituarist shall throw upon them, the meaning which he shall dress them in, the conclusions which he shall draw from them, and the judgments which he shall deliver upon them. The Verdicts, you understand: that is the danger-line.

In considering this matter, in view of my approaching change, it has seemed to me wise to take such measures as may be feasible, to acquire, by courtesy of the press, access to my standing obituaries, with the privilege—if this is not asking too much—of editing, not their Facts, but their Verdicts. This, not for present profit, further than as concerns my family, but as a favorable influence usable on the Other Side, where there are some who are not friendly to me.

With this explanation of my motives I will now ask you of your courtesy to make an appeal for me to the public press. It is my desire that such journals and periodicals as have obituaries of me lying in their pigeon-holes, with a view to sudden use some day, will not wait longer, but will publish them now and kindly send me a marked copy. My address is simply New York City—I have no other that is permanent and not transient.

I will correct them—not the Facts but the Verdicts—striking out such clauses as could have a deleterious influence on the Other Side, and replacing them with clauses of a more judicious character. I should, of course, expect to pay double rates for both the omissions and the substitutions; and I should also expect to pay quadruple rates for all obituaries which proved to be rightly and wisely worded in the originals, thus requiring no emendations at all.

It is my desire to leave these Amended Obituaries neatly bound behind me as a perennial consolation and entertainment to my family, and as an heirloom which shall have a mournful but definite commercial value for my remote posterity.

I beg, sir, that you will insert this Advertisement (it-sow, agate, inside), and send the bill to

Yours very respectfully,
Mark Twain.

P. S.—For the best Obituary—one suitable for me to read in public, and calculated to inspire regret—I desire to offer a Prize, consisting of a Portrait of me done entirely by myself in pen and ink without previous instruction. The ink warranted to be the kind used by the very best artists.

Preferred Self-Destruction to Facing Dishonor

PEOPLE OF LONDON MUCH MOVED

London, March 26.—Rarely has the English public been so shocked as by the awful end of General Sir Hector Macdonald. Regret is everywhere expressed that so brilliant a career should have ended in disgrace and self-destruction. The newspapers all contain appreciative tributes to the character as a soldier, who never knew fear, and discreetly brief references to the alleged horrible cause which led him to end his great career by his own hand.

His popularity with those who served under him is a general topic at the clubs, hotels, and on the streets.

I learn from an intimate friend of General Macdonald that at their recent interview Earl Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, and Sir Hector Macdonald both shed tears. Lord Roberts had the greatest affection for the General, and gave him his first sword.

HIS HEALTH HAD BROKEN.

London, March 26.—The news of General Sir Hector Macdonald's death at Paris caused in military circles last evening a sensation of keen surprise and deep sorrow, although some of those who knew "Fighting Mac" added to their expression of keen regret the words; "Better die thus than face dishonor."

A general officer in the British army said last night at the Imperial Service club: "Hector Macdonald is a victim of the war. He has faced death for the last time, and he has died that quick death which in life he had wished might be his fate at the hands of an enemy, but the final act was his own."

According to Macdonald's friends dysentery and the sun had left their well known marks upon him, and although robust in appearance his nervous ailments were intensified on the veldt of South Africa, and completed the breaking down of his health which commenced in the fetid camps of the Egyptian Soudan. Latterly the General was not the sound physical man of old days, nor had he that brain which saved Omdurman at the eleventh hour. After the touch of sunstroke which he contracted at Paardeberg, Major-General Macdonald was always more or less ailing and despondent. In Ceylon General Macdonald's health grew much worse, and depression marked him for its own.

Sir Hector was separated from his wife many years ago, and before he got his commission. He has not lived with her since. He leaves a son who is being educated in an English Public School.

The newspapers comment sympathetically on the inexpressibly pitiful end of a brave man, and say that his countrymen will remember him best as the man to whom, on his return from Omdurman, King Edward, then Prince of Wales, greeting him, said "In 1875 you were doing sentry in India, and now you are a general in the British army. I am proud to have met you."

Mr. A. Geoffrion Chosen as One of Canada's Lawyers

Is Thirty Years of Age—He Has Already Been Successful in Several Cases Before Privy Council

Montreal, March 27.—Mr. Aime Geoffrion, one of the brightest young lawyers of the Dominion, has been chosen as one of the lawyers for Canada and England in the Alaskan Commission.

He is only thirty years of age, but has had a remarkable success at the Bar. He inherits his legal talent, as he is the son of the late Hon. C. A. Geoffrion, while his mother is the daughter of the late Chief Justice Sir Aime A. Dorion.

The young lawyer has already carried half a dozen cases or more to the Privy Council, and has won his point on each and every occasion. He is a graduate of McGill University, and carried off the gold medal of his year. At the present time he is a professor at that institution.

HIDING IN THE HILLSIDES IN MACEDONIA MOUNTAINS

History Hardly Records Any such Scenes as Macedonia Suffers

MANY WOMEN AND CHILDREN SUFFER

Revolutionists Raid Villages and Drive Out People

Constantinople, March 27.—Terrible distress is being experienced by some thousand of refugees whom the revolutionists have driven to the mountains of Macedonia. During the recent fine weather roving bands of insurrectionists passed from one village to another among the foothills, pillaging the unfortunate inhabitants' property and burning their houses. In every township they posted warnings threatening death to all who proved themselves traitors to Macedonia by acquiescing in the Austro-Russian reforms.

As a result of these raids, men, women and children fled to the mountains carrying such food as they could hastily collect, but scantily clad and ill-prepared for the hardships of an open air life. A heavy fall of snow has imprisoned the outcasts in the mountain hiding places, and they are in imminent danger of perishing.

The storm has also momentarily paralysed the movements of the roving bands of Macedonian murderers, and this accounts for the temporary aspect of tranquility throughout Macedonia. Russia, however, is keenly alive to the increasing seriousness of the general outlook. This is the secret of the impatience with which M. I. A. Zinovieff, the Russian Ambassador, is daily urging the Sultan to hasten the promised reforms in Macedonia.

It was reported this morning that relief parties had started to the mountains in search of the refugees. The hope is expressed that a speedy break in the serverity of the weather may make relief possible.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
720 Albert St., London.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) E. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

CHEMONG LAKE BRIDGE

Yesterday The Times interviewed Mr. J. E. Belcher, the efficient County Engineer, regarding the condition of the bridge over Chemong Lake. Mr. Belcher says that the damage has been over estimated. He thinks one hundred dollars will repair the structure.

The bridge has been closed until the repairs are completed, which will be in about a week.

"H" COMPANY ENTERTAINED

Capt. McPherson and Lieut. Glover Enter tain the Men

Last night the non-commissioned officers and men of Company H., 57th Regiment, were entertained to an oyster supper at Long's Palm Parlors. This is one of the companies which has just been organized.

About thirty sat down, and after doing justice to the good things provided, the remainder of the evening was spent in toasts and speech making.

The chair was occupied by Capt. McPherson, who ably filled the position.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Four Young Men from Lakefield Charged with Assault

Four young men belonging to Lakefield appeared before County Police Magistrate Edmison, charged with entering a Chinese laundry at that place and assaulting the proprietor.

It appears the young men were returning from a banquet, after midnight, and seeing a light burning, entered to have some fun with the celestial.

After hearing the evidence the Magistrate imposed a fine, which, with expenses, will amount to about $100.

Crown Attorney R. E. Wood and Col. E. B Edwards, K.C. appeared for the prosecution, while Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun, and O. A. Langley, of Lakefield, defended the accused.

AN INTERESTING MEETING

Of Ladies Golf Club Held in Y.M.C.A. Parlor on Wednesday Afternoon

The attendance on Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Ladies' Golf Club was very good, and a keen interest was taken by all present in the proceedings. Mrs. Campbell occupied the chair in the absence of the president, Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun. Favorable reports for the year were presented, and the following officers elected for 1903:

Hon. President—Mrs. J. F Dennistoun.

President—Mrs. W. H. Hill.

Captain—Miss Clementi.

Sec.-Treasurer—Miss Jessie Dennistoun.

House Committee—Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Richard Hall, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. Stanley, and Mrs. McClellan.

Match Committee—Mrs. Campbell, Miss Kingan and Mrs. Sanderson.

Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring officers, the press, and the Y.M.C.A. for the use of parlor.

THE PROTESTANT HOME

The Rumor of Trouble Among the Inmates not True

In yesterday's issue appeared a paragraph regarding the Protestant Home, which does that very worthy institution a grave injustice. The information reached The Times from what it regarded as a reliable source and the item went through in the regular way. Yesterday we were called up by 'phone by at least twenty persons, who wanted to know details.

Mrs. Vernon, President, and Mrs. McWilliams, Secretary of the Board of Managers, called on The Times, and assured us that there was no discord whatever among the inmates of the Home. They had closely questioned the matron and inmates, and were assured that no discord existed.

We are pleased to know this, and assure the ladies, to whose noble charity and unselfish labors the institution is maintained, that the splendid record of the Home will in no way be marred by this incident. The matron, who has the confidence and good will not only of the Board of Managers, but of all contributors to the Home as well, will, we hope, feel that the slander has been set at naught.

A PRESENTATION

To Lady Cheverille by the Members of Lady Maccabees

A very pleasing affair took place at the residence of Mrs. C. H. Cheverille, 394 George street, on Wednesday evening, when a number of the members of the Lady Maccabees assembled to show their regret at the loss of a member, who is leaving town. On behalf of the members Lady Wharton made the presentation, while the following address was read by Lady Titterson:

Dear Lady Cheverille,—We, the Lady Maccabees, members of the Queen of Canada Hive, No. 336, desire on this occasion to tender you and yours our individual and collective good wishes for your future home.

Our relations as a fraternal society have always been of a sociable and friendly nature. Your unvaried kindness towards us and your earnest devotion in advancing our society have won our deepest gratitude and we therefore ask before departing from us to accept this gift as a slight token of your efforts.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Hive

Peterborough, Ontario, March 25th, 1903.

Lady Cheverille was taken much by surprise but made a very pleasing and feeling reply in a few words.

WAR FOOTING OF THE MILITIA

Lord Dundonald is Planning to Bring the Force Up to 100,000 Men

Ottawa, March 25.—Lord Dundonald is at work upon plans for increasing the available strength of the militia at war time to 100,000 men. This could be done by incorporating the members of the rifle clubs throughout the country whenever the need arises for mobilizing a defensive force.

With respect to this year's camps of instruction, it is believed that the method followed last autumn will again be adopted, viz.; calling out the officers and non-commissioned officers of the rural corps, and giving them instruction in military work of useful and practical kind.

MINE OWNERS DEFENDED

Chamberlain Declares the Future of South Africa Depends on Them

London, March 25.—In the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Sir Chas. Dilke raised the question of the Imperial Government's control over the mining laws of the Transvaal and the regulation of native labor.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, in replying, declared that unnecessarily offensive language had been used against the South African mine owners. All that could be said against them was that, like all other capitalists, they had sought their own interests and endeavored to get the most possible profit from their expenditure. The whole future of South Africa depended on the gold mines. He thought the mine owners should be treated like other capitalists.

The Government, Mr. Chamberlain said, desired to see agriculture developed in South Africa as well as the mining industry. In regard to native labor, the Government was opposed to compulsion. There was no question of introducing forced or Asiatic labor in South Africa.

DANCE PARTNERS FOR LIEUTENANTS

Photographs of Pretty Girls Move German Reichstag to Build a Barracks

Berlin, March 25.—The photographs of twenty of the prettiest girls in Crefeld have become part of the Reichstag records, as a tangible argument why Parliament should appropriate funds for the erection of a barracks at Crefeld, so as to enable the girls to have lieutenants as dance partners. War Minister von Gossler put the item in the military budget at Emperor William's request, which explained the now well know story in connection with his Majesty's visit to Crefeld last summer.

The Emperor at a party one night was surrounded by a number of girls and said to them;

"You like to dance with my lieutenants, don't you?"

"Alas, your Majesty," replied one of the girls, "there are no lieutenants."

"No lieutenants!" exclaimed the Emperor. "Then I will send you a regiment."

Thereupon the Emperor directed that a Hussar regiment be transferred from Dusseldorf as soon as barracks could be built for the soldiers.

Miss Jones' Voice Greatly Improved

A startling improvement is noticeable in Miss Jones' singing. Her voice is stronger and sounds clearer and sweeter than before using Catarrhozone, which is a wonderful aid to singers, speakers and ministers. Catarrhozone Inhaler insures absolute freedom from Colds, Coughs and Catarrh, clears the nose and throat, and prevents hoarseness and huskiness. Catarrhozone makes the voice brilliant and enduring, and is uncommonly well recommended by Prima Donnas, members of Parliament, Lawyers, Doctors and thousands that use it daily. Better try Catarrhozone. Price $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A PROSPEROUS COMPANY

The London Life have had a Prosperous Year

We heartily congratulate the management of the London Life Insurance Company on the result of the year's operations, as set forth in the report which is to be found in this issue of The Times. For twenty-eight years this progressive company has been working its way upward and onward, until the present time it takes rank among the foremost financial institutions of the country. The financial report, submitted at the annual meeting, showed the acceptance during the year of 10,621 applications for insurance, amounting to $1,579,911 30. The net receipts for the year from all sources were $355,108.11, exceeding those of the previous year by $33,063.52. The surplus on policy-holders' account, exclusive of uncalled but subscribed capital, is $114,953.15, and there is a net surplus over all liabilities and capital of $40,030.84. The company is thus in what may be called a giltedged position.

In this district the company has become very popular. Mr. George Lee, the assistant superintendent, has contributed much to this end. He is assisted in his efforts by Mr. A. Campbell, town, and Mr. W. F. Begley, agent at Lindsay. The London Life has been fortunate in the selection of its staff, and to this, in a great measure, is due the phenomenal success which has attended the operations of the Company from the beginning. Mr. A. Jrets, Toronto, the superintendent, is well known to many of our citizens, and all have a good word to say of him. Mr. George Lee, who has been with the Company over nine years, has not an enemy in existence, and is esteemed, respected and popular with everybody; Mr. Campbell is also a most efficient and popular officer, as is also Mr. Begley, of Lindsay. The happy combination thus afforded of a first-class company, offering the best and safest insurance on earth at the minimum of cost, and obliging, painstaking and efficient officers, makes the London Life strong indeed in Eastern Ontario.

THE PACIFICATION OF IRELAND SEEMS TO BE IN SIGHT AT LAST

Gamey Threatens More Serious Trouble

Toronto, March 26.—The Manitoulin Conservator, which is in the confidence of Mr. R. R. Gamey, has the following. It bears the earmarks of a cold bluff, and is so regarded by leading Liberals of this city:

"Gamey has said much, but only a fraction of what there is to say. His statement in the House, while being clear enough in itself, was only a synopsis of what there is to be told. Ontario itself will yet shake to the centre, and more than one member of the Legislature will most likely be involved. There are other stories to be told, if it is found necessary to relate them, as startling as those we have had."

"Gamey is in a position to prove his statements beyond the question of a doubt. He consulted with McGregor, but it does not follow that there are not others on the ground floor who refuse to have their names appear until it is absolutely necessary."

"There is one man on the Government side of the House, a personal friend, that Gamey may try to save. Will he be able to save him?

"If the Government had one ounce of sense it would promptly resign, for the family honor of three Senators is said to be at stake, and the most prominent Liberal lawyer in the city of Toronto is said to be implicated."

"The evidence is conclusive. The $3,000 first paid was deposited one of the security vaults in Toronto, and done so jointly by Gamey and Sullivan, and it cannot be drawn by one of them. They both must be present. When this package is produced by order of the Court, it will be found to contain the exact amount of money, as stated by Gamey."

SOUTH AFRICA HAS COPIED CANADA

Preferential Tariff on British Goods Decided Upon

GERMANY WILL NOT RETALIATE.

London, March 26.—The Morning Post and The Times both contain despatches from their Berlin correspondents to the effect that Germany has been disagreeably surprised by the news that the customs convention signed at Bloemfontein provides for preferential treatment of British goods imported into the South African colonies.

The Morning Post correspondent says; For two or three years the German press has exulted in the belief that the example of the Canadian Government would fail to find imitators in other colonies. It was even anticipated that Canada, taught by the retaliatory measures applied by Germany, would reverse her policy. German newspapers adopt the line that the South African colonies will speedily tire of according Great Britain advantages for which they can receive no compensation owing to the free trade principles of the Mother Country, and that their conversion will be aided by a retaliatory policy by Germany.

The preferential policy is attributed to Mr. Chamberlain as one of the most significant results of his visit.

CANADA WILL BENEFIT.

Mr. Griffiths, secretary of the Canadian High Commissioner's office, points out to a correspondent that the South African preference will apply to Canada, as is provided by statute that Canada is open to reciprocate with other colonies under prescribed conditions.

THE VENEZUELAN MESS

London Times Would Have United States Take Hold of the Affair

London, March 25.—The Times, in an editorial commenting on the resignation of President Castro of Venezuela, says that whatever be his international obligations, Americans know Venezuelans better than the motives, it is manifest that the event cannot in any way affect Venezuela's English, says The Times, but even Americans seem a good deal puzzled regarding the true inwardness of this remarkable message. Castro is undoubtedly capable of any act of bad faith which he might fancy would save him from the abhorrent necessity of having to pay. The note which Mr. Bowen is said to have delivered to Ambassador Herbert rather suggests that Castro would like to resort to dilatory tactics. Venezuela, the editorial continues, cannot look for countenance or support from the Washington Government or the people of the United States in any attempts to evade by trickery any legal obligations she has assumed. Were she to make such attempts she would place on President Roosevelt and his Government the moral duty of assisting the Allied Powers to obtain their rights.

"If American feelings forbid European States policing the lawless South and Central American States in the most effective way," the editorial concludes, "American sense of justice must induce America to join in the responsibility of policing them herself." She cannot otherwise expect those suffering by the misdeeds of these States to abate their right to redress, because the vindication of that right may create uneasiness among some of her citizens."

THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE ARE GREATLY PERPLEXED

The Czar's Manifests Not Being Carried Out

St. Petersburg, March 27.—Perplexing developments are following on the heels of the Czar's manifesto. The Russian Government, while making small concessions to labourers and peasants, is enforcing strict restraints on the advanced and educated elements in the cities.

M. Von Plehwe, Minister of the Interior; M. S. J. Witte, Minister of Finance; and Gen. Kouropatkin, Minister of War, have introduced the eight-hour day for workers in their departments. On the other hand, warnings have been served on severe prominent lawyers, professors and journalists, whose eulogiums on freedom are ill-advised from the point of view of public policy.

These seemingly contradictory methods on the part of the Government are doubtless designed to check the spread of discontent and disorder, by conciliating the workers, and at the same time smothering the voice of intelligent agitation.

Constantinople, March 27.—Terrible distress is being experienced by some thousands of refugees whom the revolutionists have driven to the mountains of Macedonia. During the recent fine weather roving bands of insurrectionists passed from one village to another among the foothills, pillaging the unfortunate inhabitants property and burning their houses. Zinovieff, the Russian Ambassador, is daily urging the Sultan to hasten the promised reforms in Macedonia.

It was reported this morning that relief parties had started to the mountains in search of the refugees. The hope is expressed that a speedy break in the severity of the weather may make relief possible.

Land Purchase Bill Meets With General Approval

And Nationalists Promise Give the Measure Fair Play

London And Irish Press Regard the Measure as a Statemanlike Attempt at Solution

London, March 26.—The first reading of the Irish Land Bill yesterday was followed by one of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed within the precincts of Parliament at Westminster. The tall form of the Earl of Dudley, the Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, could be seen amidst a crowd of Nationalists, who scarcely a year ago would rather have suffered every penalty than associate with the official head of the Irish Government. Beside Lord Dudley stood the grizzled little Sir Anthony MacDonnell, the first National Assistant Irish Secretary, who drafted the bill. Right Hon. Horace Plunkett Lord Iveagh, Lord Ashburne and many Unionist members joined the group. The Duke of Abercorn, the most powerful landlord in Ireland, asked to be introduced to John Redmond, and a mutual friend brought the Duke to the leader of the Nationalist party, with whom the leader of the Irish landlords heartily shook hands, and they patched up the peace of Ireland over the House of Commons refreshment bar.

The comments on the speech heard among members of the House were favorable. The bonus from the treasury was larger than had been generally expected, but the method of financing the purchase of the estates was approved as sound, economic and businesslike. The subject was too intricate to be mastered at a single sitting, but there was a general feeling that when there could be leisure for a critical examination, the Government will be strengthened by its land policy. This was confirmed by the cautious speeches of John Redmond, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, W. T. Russell and Col. Sanderson. It seemed little less than a miracle of political grace that John Redmond and Col. Sanderson, old-time antagonists, should agree in an expression of qualified but sincere approval of the measure. Mr. Wyndham's admirers contend that by the lucidity of his exposition of the financial arrangements he has shown full equipment for the post of Chancellor of the Exchequer in some future Cabinet.

[illegible]

Considerable excitement prevailed at the corner of George and Hunter streets last night when an elderly gentleman appeared selling the Toronto News. The news boys claimed that it was an infringement on their rights, and thronged around the News vendor and molested him considerably. It appears one of the newsboys, who is a sort of a "King" of the newsys, and has a number of youths selling papers on commission, had a contract with the Toronto News to sell their paper at 1 cent per copy, but the News was informed that the youths had been selling the paper for 2 cents a copy, contrary to the agreement, and, therefore, took the agency from the boys, giving it to Mr. Helliwell, of the Metropole, 144 Hunter street.

On account of the boycott last night the public found it difficult to purchase the paper, but The Times is informed that no trouble will exist hereafter, and the News can be had at the Metropole, 144 Hunter street, for 1 cent a copy.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The Medical Men Meet and Elect Their Officers for the Year

A largely attended meeting of the Central Ontario Medical Association met in the council chamber last night. A number of very interesting and instructive papers pertaining to the everyday practice of medicine were read and discussed. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—Dr. Boucher.

1st Vice-President—Dr. Halliday.

2nd Vice-President—Dr. McNulty.

Secretary—Dr. Morgan.

Treasurer—Dr. Caldwell.

Auditors—Dr. Amyot and Dr. Scott.

Executive Committee and Committee on Program to consist of the above officers.

The next meeting of the Association will be held in Peterborough some time in June.

A SPLENDID LECTURE

Given by Rev. John McDougall in George Street Methodist Church

Last evening in the George street church a good sized audience listened with much pleasure to Rev. John McDougall, who gave a thrilling account of his life and labors as a missionary in the great North-West. Since childhood Mr. McDougall has resided among the redmen, and is the son of Rev. George McDougall, who met his death on the plains of the west. The interest and attention of all was held by the speaker throughout the entire evening, and the information given was both useful and instructive.

At the conclusion of the lecture a vote of thanks was moved and carried unanimously, thanking the reverend lecturer for his able, interesting and instructive address.

—The Rev. O. C. Elliott, the former pastor of the Park street Baptist church, was in town yesterday.

THE LONDON LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Twenty-eighth Annual Report

At the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the London Life Insurance Company, held at the Company's offices, London, Canada, March 9th, 1903 the following report was presented:—

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The Directors of the Company beg to submit annual report and duly audited Financial Statement for year ending December 31st, 1902.

During the year 10,621 applications for insurance amounting to $1,579,911.30, were accepted and policies issued therefor.

The net premium and interest receipts of the year were respectively $291,902.66 and $63,200.45 totalling $355,103.11, an increase of $33,063.52 over the previous year.

The sum of $62,939.72 was paid for death claims, $6,960.00 for matured endowments, and $6,420.25 for surrendered policies and cash profits, a total of $75,319.97 paid policy-holders or their heirs during the year.

The insurance in force on the Company's books at the close of the year after deducting all re-insurances amounted to $6,827,834.37, under 3,419 "ordinary" and 45,638 "industrial," or a total of 49,057 policies—an increase of 2,470 policies for insurance of $338,769.75 for the year.

The assets of the Company, exclusive of uncalled but subscribed capital amount to $1,302,063.86 an increase of $176,873.46 for the year. The interest and other payments falling due during the year were in the main satisfactorily met. No losses in respect of investments were incurred during the year.

The liabilities of the Company, under existing policies and in all other respects, have been provided for in the most ample manner, the whole amounting to $1,187,110.71. The surplus on policy-holders' account, exclusive of uncalled, but subscribed capital, is $114,953.15, and after deducting paid-up capital, accumulating profits and contingent fund, there remains a net surplus over all liabilites and capital of $40,090.64.

JOHN McCLARY,
President.

Surplus over all liabilities and capital	$ 40,090 64

To the Shareholders of the London Life Insurance Company:

Gentlemen,—This is to certify that I have carefully audited your Company's books for the year ending December 31st, 1902, and find them correctly and neatly kept. The annexed statement is in accordance with the books, and gives a true showing of the Company's affairs.

I have also examined the securities covering loans, and find them in order.

JAMES McMILLAN, Auditor.

London, February 6th, 1903.

The Vice-President in moving the adoption of the report, said:—

Gentlemen,—The business of the Company is being conducted on eminently safe lines, and that it is being conducted with due regard to economy as well is evidenced by the very favorable profits which are being paid participating policy-holders and the continuous increase in the surplus over capital and all other liabilities.

The funds of the Company are being kept well invested.

The various securities which go to make up the total sum of the assets are without exception good interest-bearing securities of a high class, not likely to depreciate in value or result in any other loss to the Company.

The liabilities of the Company under its various outstanding obligations have been computed on a more than ordinarily stringent basis, and nothing has been omitted that ought to be taken into account in this connection.

The surplus of assets over all liabilities and capital which now amounts to over $40,000, shows the company to be in an exceptionally strong financial position.

With these remarks I beg to move the adoption of the report.

Judge Bell, in seconding the adoption of the report, said:

The report for the year must be considered very satisfactory when the general conditions at present existing are taken into consideration. The number of companies operating in Canada is so very much out of proportion to the extent of the field that the cost of obtaining business is assuming a very serious aspect.

The Company has however, been enabled to write about the same amount of business as in the previous year, and at the same time strengthen its financial position very materially.

The net surplus shows an improvement of $6,622.64 over the previous year, and in addition nearly $6,000 has been added to the contingent and special reserve accounts. This has been done without incorporating in the statement any of the items frequently used to swell the amount of the assets, such as agents' advances, office furniture, subscribed capital, etc., some of which may have very little actual value.

The surplus shown by the London Life is unique in that no part of it consists of unapportioned profits. The sound basis upon which the Company's affairs are placed must prove very gratifying to the policy holders as well as the stockholders.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the agents and other employes of the Company for the satisfactory manner in which they discharged their several duties during the year.

The election of Directors resulted in the re-election of Messrs. John McClary, President; A. O. Jeffery, Vice-President; Wm. Bowman, Geo. C. Gibbons, W. F. Bullen, A. S Emery, Judge Bell and T. H. Smallman for the ensuing year.

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

asked Norma, in a hard voice.

"Yes, undoubtedly it was. I do think she has probably fretted and frightened herself into ill-health. But I couldn't help thinking—Heaven forgive me if I am doing her an injustice—that she was acting a little, too. At least I noticed that, though she spoke in a whisper as if too weak to make herself properly heard, she looked at me very keenly, and shrewdly and coldly, as, if she had been really dying or very seriously ill, she would hardly have done. Perhaps I'm judging her more harshly than I ought to do!" added poor Astley, as he passed his hand over his forehead with a weary sigh, "but when I remembered all the suffering she'd caused, and the levity with which she'd acted, it made me hard!"

There was more of despair than of hardness, though, about the unhappy young fellow, as, after stopping for a few moments in front of Norma, and gazing at her with an expression of mingled pity and affection, he turned abruptly away, and threw himself into the deep-seated red morocco chair by the fire.

The lawyer's voice, calm and incisive, broke in upon the thoughts of the two unhappy young people:

"And now, Lady Darwen, about this Tom Rogerson, whom you saw yesterday."

Norma started.

"I'm sure it was he," cried she. "You got my telegram?"

Her words were addressed to Astley, but it was Mr. Capper who answered:

"Oh dear, yes, we got it, and acted upon it without delay. I wired to the police superintendent here at Blackdale, and this morning, as soon as we got out of the train, we went straight to his office and made enquiries."

"And did you learn anything?"

"Well, don't be disappointed if I tell you the little we did hear was not very satisfactory. Such a man as I described was seen about here yesterday afternoon—"

"Afternoon!" exclaimed Norma. "That was later than his call here then?"

"Yes," said Mr. Capper. "He was seen coming out of the house of—Dr. Wharles."

Norma could scarcely repress a sigh. Her fears had come true then: the doctor had got hold of this important witness first.

"That, unfortunately, is all we have been able to learn," went on Mr. Capper. "The man has not been seen about since, but he may be traced. I have wired to London for someone to help us in tracking him down. Of course it is not a criminal matter, so we have to rely upon our own efforts to find him."

The sigh which escaped at the same moment from the lips of both the young people showed that they did not underrate the difficulties in the way. There was a long silence, and then Astley came over to the chair in which Norma was sitting.

"You must go away," said he, with a peremptoriness in which there was a world of suppressed, yet pleading affection. "This business is breaking your heart; it's not good for you to be here. And the people are talking: and we must not let them talk. We must make an excuse for you, that you have broken down with the anxiety of my illness, as indeed you might have done, my dear." And he smiled at her tenderly. "Then Capper and I will go on with this, and we'll never rest till we get the tangle straightened out. I'll not despair," cried he in a louder tone, drawing himself up and clenching his fists with a sudden burst of fierce energy. "These people are such knaves that they'll overreach themselves: besides, there are so many in the plot that, if we only wait long enough, one or other of them will give the rest away. Eh, Capper, what do you think?"

"It's not unlikely," said the lawyer drily. "In the meantime you're undoubtedly right: Lady Darwen should go back to her friends for a few days at least."

Norma was standing with her head bent, in an attitude of deep dejection. Astley looked at her doubtfully: he felt sure there would be a passionate outburst, an indignant protest from the impulsive woman. It was with a stare of blank astonishment that he met her eyes, when, raising her head very quietly, she lisped out, in the most submissive manner in the world: "Yes. When shall I go?"

Astley was too much bewildered to answer. It was Mr. Capper, who, greatly relieved by her ready submission, said briskly:

"There's a wise, kind lady! You're doing the best possible thing for your husband in relieving him, as much as you can, from his anxiety about you. If it is quite convenient to you, I should strongly advise you to leave this place without delay."

"Yes, yes," assented Norma, even as she spoke beginning to walk to the door.

Astley could scarcely believe his eyes and ears. With a gasp he sprang after her, with he knew not what words of wistful kindness, of surprised interrogation, on his lips. But she turned upon him quickly, with a little timid restraining gesture; and he saw the light of a strong determination blazing in her great black eyes.

"Yes, yes, let me go. He's quite right," she said breathlessly, in a low voice. "You ought to be free from every anxiety, free to give your mind, your whole mind, to this. Don't—" A wan little smile flickered over her face—"Don't forget me. And remember—I shall always be thinking of you, always, always."

Mr. Capper began to rustle some papers at the table by which he was sitting. But he had no need; the farewell was over. With one look only, one touch of the hand; with no kiss, no word, they had had their parting, and the door had closed between them, leaving Astley, dejected, shaken, stupefied, alone with the lawyer.

Norma, when she acted upon strong impulse, could be surpassingly energetic. Within a quarter of an hour she had slipped out of the house, quietly, noiselessly; and when, half an hour later, Astley went in search of her, in order to make arrangements for her journey to Oxford, and to tell her the time of the next train, he found that she had disappeared.

He was distracted. He was for rushing off to the station, knowing, as he told Mr. Capper, that she could not have started yet: there was no train. But the old lawyer restrained him, telling him with dry shrewdness that the lady was wiser than he, and that, as she had evidently wished to go away quietly, there was nothing to be done but to respect her desires.

And to this heartbreaking counsel the unhappy man was fain to listen.

WEDDED IN SMITH

Nuptials of Mr. John Mordue of Brantford and Miss Edith L. Middleton

The home of Mr. William Middleton on the second line of Smith, was the scene of a very interesting wedding on Wednesday, March 18th, when his second daughter, Miss Edith Lillian, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John Mordue, of Brantford

The bride entered the drawing room at 7.30 o'clock, leaning on the arm of her father and took her place under an arch composed of evergreens as Miss Gertie Hewett played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of George street Methodist church, in the presence of about fifty guests.

The bride was charmingly attired in cream tafetta silk trimmed with chiffon and ribbon and wore the customary veil or orange blossoms. Her boquet was of roses. She was attended by her sister Miss Clara Middleton who wore a becoming gown of white organdie over pink and carried a boquet of carnations. Little Miss Hazel Middleton, neice of the bride, was maid of honor and looked very winsome dressed in cream silk trimmed with pink and carried a basket of flowers containing the ring. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. George Mordue.

A large number of elegant presents were received by the bride, which in a small degree indicates the high regard in which she is held by her many friends. A lovely brooch was the groom's gift to the bride and to the bridesmaid a pretty gold ring.

After the ceremony the guests partook of an elaborate wedding dejeuner after which the evening was pleasantly spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Mordue left on the early morning train for Toronto and other western points. They will reside in Brantford.

The Times extends its most hearty congratulations and best wishes for the future happiness and prosperity of this popular young couple.

BODILY WEAKNESS

A DISTRACTING CONDITION THAT IS PERMANENTLY CURED BY FERROZONE A PLEASANT REMEDY IN TABLET FORM TO BE TAKEN AFTER EACH MEAL.

All fagged out ideas come as slow as molasses in January. You think of things just a minute or so too late. Snap is gone and the bouyancy and strength that makes life a pleasure, that's gone too.

The doctor would say that you are run down, and you don't eat or digest enough. Your stomach requires some aid, and probably your digestion needs a bracer. The blood should have phosphorus and iron to strengthen and purify it.

Now Ferrozone is a wonderful blood maker and nerve stimulant. It is really a food for the blood, nerves and vital energies and will improve your run down condition in a very short time.

Ferrozone will make you strong and capable of doing a heavy day's work without fatigue. It is a marvellous remedy and does marvellous things as the following testimonial proves.

"After my baby was born I was left in a weak, sickly condition, totally unfit for a mother's household duties. I was excitable and nervous, and trifling things bothered me very much. I somehow would not gain strength, although I took malt extracts and tonics all the time. A lady friend recommended Ferrozone which I used with splendid results. The first box helped quite a little, and when I had taken six boxes my former health, ruddy cheeks and good spirits were fully restored."

You can't spend 50c. to a better advantage than on a box of Ferrozone and the moment you get Ferrozone the moment you will get well. Don't accept a substitute, but insist on your druggist supplying the genuine Ferrozone which sells for 50c. a box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head offices in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.35
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,713 82
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,187.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $7.,366.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 30 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 80,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of the Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J Seitz, General Manager of the Company from its inception will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE.

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

- British American Business College, Toronto.
- Canada Business College, Hamilton.
- Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
- Forest City Business College, London.
- Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
- Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
- St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
- Brantford Business College, Brantford.
- Galt Business College, Galt.
- Berlin Business College, Berlin.
- Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 13 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 6 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale.). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Great Fortunes Are Made

FROM INVESTMENTS IN GOOD MINING PROPERTIES—HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

The Electric Spark GOLD MINING COMPANY

Stock was placed on the market eighteen months ago and sold for SIX CENTS per share. In less than six months the stock was selling at FIFTEEN CENTS, and a few months ago rose to TWENTY CENTS, at which price it is now being bought and sold. $100 00 invested eighteen months ago would bring you today $333 33. CAN YOU FIND A BETTER INVESTMENT? Do you know that mining affords about the only opportunity for people of small means to make a large amount of money? Why? Because everything except mining is controlled by the trusts and combines, and the small dealer is soon frozen out. We have left to sell

20,000 Shares at 20c. per share

Inside of twelve months this stock will be worth $1.00 per share and paying a dividend. We refer you to any mining man in Gilpin County, Colorado, and, by permission, to the Rocky Mountain National Bank of Central City, Colorado. NOW IS YOUR GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY. We are ready and willing to give any further information asked for. Address

STOCK MARKETS

MISSOURI-PACIFIC

New York, March 26—Mo. Pacific ought speedily to do better in the market. It has been above 125 and there is much more reason for its commanding that price today than there was when it was selling there. When the full importance of what Mo. Pacific is accomplishing, is realized, it will advance. The gains now being made by the company are simply enormous and they give promise of proving yet greater. February will without doubt equal January, which month the Company made a net gain amounting to $680,000 and on top of a phenomenal gain for that month in 1902 over the same month for 1901. There is also a high total of expenses both in January 1902 and 1903, which makes the net showing consequently more remarkable. This month was the best January in the existence of the road, if not the best month it ever had. Opinions are being hazarded as to the probable wheat crop in the Missouri Pacific territory for this year. It will also be of interest to Atchison and other roads similarly located. The reports are most enthusiastic and most rightfully so. The section has been fortunate as well as prosperous and bullish opinion is not to be wondered at, with anticipation as to winter wheat running so high. Kansas which possesses as good facilities as any state for gathering information, is contemplating anywhere from 100,000,000 to 125,000,000 bush. in one of the forecasts already made. So much for the bullish possibilities as to Mo. Pacific. Officials of various western roads state there is some improvement in car situation. All say, however, they have not nearly enough cars to handle the immense traffic immediately offering. Grain shippers cannot secure enough cars to make their shipments. The roads will be literally swamped with traffic the balance of the year; the requirements of the country will keep the railways busy far longer than most people anticipate. Eastern merchandise is demanded everywhere and there is plenty of cash in the west to continue the demand in large volume. It is a time when the freight cars are running full to overflowing in both directions, save one way only, as used to be the case.

PRINCESS LOUISE VERY ILL

Saltsburg, March 26.—The report that the health of the former Crown Princess of Saxony, who eloped with Andre Giron, has broken down, owing to distress and excitement, is confirmed. It is expected that owing to her condition complications may set in.

Her attendants are doing their utmost to prevent her from replying to the King of Saxony's letter to his people, in which he said she had long secretly fallen, before her elopement with Giron. Her enforced silence on this matter has made her condition worse.

RUSSIANS AGGRESSIVE IN CHINA

They Open a Custom House at Dalmy, which is a Free Port

London, March 25.—Chinese advices received to-day bring the details of the expulsion of a German trader from Mukden, Manchuria, by the Russian Governor. The German protested that he was a German subject with a passport, and presumed that he could do as he pleased in Chinese territory.

"Not so," replied the Governor, smiling. He added that he had the power to escort an intruder by Cossacks across the border. So much for the open door in China. Moreover, notwithstanding Sir Robert Hart's authority as Chief of Chinese Customs, the Russians are preparing to open a Russian custom-house at Dalmy, the so-called free port.

A NEW OIL FIELD

controls 6,400 acres of oil producing land in an entirely new field, only a few miles from two railroads.

The Oil is found within 200 feet of the surface and it is of the very highest grade.

Producing Wells can be sunk at a cost of a few hundred dollars each.

The Capitalization of the Company is very small comparing its enormous holdings with those of other companies being only 600,000 with shares of par value of one dollar each.

That the company's capacity for earning dividends is almost unlimited can be demonstrated to any party wishing to make an investment.

The Officers of the company have agreed to give their services without charge until the company has reached an established paying basis.

The Company offers for a short time only, a limited amount of its TREASURY STOCK AT 10 CENTS PER SHARE.

This price of 10 cents per share pertains only to a small allotment of treasury stock; when this is subscribed for the price will be raised without notice.

All Money received from sales of stock is to be used for working capital for the purpose of sinking wells, establishing pumping stations, tanks, &c.

Large Returns may be expected soon from the leasing and selling of the company's land.

Successfully Rescued

Mr. Harry Gibson of Kingston, was rescued from an enemy that relentlessly pursued him for years

Mr. Gibson was born and brought up in Kingston. By profession he is a school teacher. He received his training in Queen's University, where he took a course in arts and medicine that well befits him to talk on almost any subject.

The enemy that for 25 years relentlessly pursued Mr. Gibson is a menace to our entire population—it is the demon, Catarrh.

Mr. Gibson says:—"For years I was never free from Catarrh of the nose and throat. It bothered me winter and summer and kept me so continually coughing and hawking that I found it a great impediment to the proper performance of my duties at school. I used every available means of obtaining a cure, took bottle after bottle of medicine prescribed by local doctors, but never got more than temporary relief. I consulted a well-known specialist in the States, but after spending a considerable amount of money with him to no advantage, was forced to look elsewhere for relief, which I first received from Catarrhozone.

I consider Catarrhozone a genuine cure for Catarrh. It drove the loathsome disease completely out of my system, and to-day I am as well as if I never knew what the word Catarrh implied."

A straightforward proof of cure, coming from a well known gentleman like Mr. Gibson carries conviction of the fact with it that Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it. As a cure for Catarrh and Bronchitis it positively has no equal. All druggists, price $1.00; small size, 25 cents. By mail from Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

SMALLPOX AT WARSAW

It is Feared That the Dreaded Disease Has Broken Out at Warsaw.

The people of Warsaw are becoming somewhat alarmed at the appearance in their midst of a disease which closely resembles smallpox. As the traveller who was infected with the above disease a few weeks ago stayed there, there can be little doubt but what it is. One of the unfortunate victims is Mr. Clunte, the postmaster. In order to ascertain the true nature of the disease it is understood the Provincial Health Department will be communicated with.

CARE OF INFECTIOUS DISEASES

To The Editor of The Times:

Sir,—My attention has been called to the dilemma of the local Board of Health caused by their inability to provide sufficient accommodation for persons in our midst suffering from infectious diseases.

The existing Infectious Ward at the Nicholls Hospital has been during the prevailing epidemic entirely inadequate and of course can only furnish room for one disease at a time.

Scarlet fever having established itself in the Ward, all cases of measles and diphtheria had to be declined as well as some cases of scarlet fever for lack of room.

Now, in a place of the size and growing importance of Peterborough such things ought not to be. Think for a moment of the expense and inconvenience forced upon citizens whether well-to-do or not, through accidental infection by one or other of said diseases.

First—A medical attendant makes daily visits for one or two weeks, and orders certain medicines, medical comforts and possibly appliances for the proper treatment of the disease.

Second.—A professional nurse must be secured if possible.

Third.—The other occupants of the house must either give up their business or employment, to say nothing of entire retirement from social life of all kinds or live at additional expense some place else.

Fourth.—After the five or six weeks required by law have elapsed, the house and contents (including such of the clothing as has not been destroyed in the process of treating the disease) must be fumigated, and the much dreaded house cleaning campaign begun.

Now contrast the condition of affairs if the patient is sent to the Hospital.

There a physician, nurse (day and night) medicines and nourishment suitable for the patients' requirements from stage to stage may all be provided for 40c. per day, or for six weeks, $16.80, a sum equal to what a nurse alone would cost for one week in a private family. Then in addition the home life goes along as usual and the friends are not wearied with attendance upon the sick and extra household duties.

Let me state here by way of parenthesis that in view of all the advantages derived from the use of the infectious ward, 40c. per day is altogether too small a charge. This ward should be made at the least self-sustaining.

But the point I wish to make just now is that for the above reasons an Isolation Hospital for the Town and county of Peterborough open to all creeds and nationalities is an absolute necessity. I think it should have a wing each for diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, tuberculosis, and possibly small-pox,—the whole being under control of a resident physician giving his entire time to the treatment of infectious diseases. The result would be that the general practitioner would be relieved from all possibility of infecting his patients, through non-attendance upon infectious cases.

It seems to me such a Hospital could be made largely self-sustaining. Should not the question be seriously considered by the proper authorities before the epidemic of another winter overtakes us?

Perhaps at some future time you may be good enough to again place some space at my disposal for the purpose of discussing the treatment of tuberculosis than which there is no disease so widespread and yet so easily controlled and cured by timely intelligent supervision.

Your obedient servant.
J. W. BENNET.

Peterborough March 26, 1903.

WON A BEAU

Plumped up and was advanced $10 per month

Not everyone has the sound, sturdy strength of character to tell the honest truth about themselves. The following was written by a lady who calls herself an "old maid" and the way coffee treated her is certainly interesting.

She says, "I was a coffee drinker and gradually became more and more irritable and nervous in the school room. My complexion was sallow and sickly, and as I look back now I know I developed into a very unpopular and disagreeable person. In fact I had little prospect of keeping my position last year. Not only that but I failed to pass the required examinations. This latter fact aroused me to the knowledge that coffee was deadening my brain and slowly destroying memory and reason.

My sister had quit the use of coffee in her family and adopted Postum and had been strongly urging that I do likewise. One day I started in, that was a red letter day for me. I began sleeping sound at night instead of lying awake half the time, and the change in my feelings from nervousness and irritability to comfort, peace and content cannot be told in words.

I had been a trembling, broken-down, nervous, and I felt an ugly, old maid, but after my restful sleep, increased strength of brain and body instead of weakness and illness. I slowly changed in my whole appearance. Began to plump up, my complexion changed from a sallow, muddy looking skin to a fresh pink and white as nice as when I was 18.

I took another examination and passed it easily. My high grades together with the improved work in the school and my changed character, caused the Trustees to raise my salary ten dollars a month and I will tell you a secret. Whether it was an increased reputation for good sense or for some other reason, one of the best citizens of the town, a widower, has made a little contract with me that will be carried out some of these days, I shan't tell when.

Don't you think I ought to say good things about Postum and do you think I will ever go back to coffee again?

Name of this lady will be given on application to Postum Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The Mud Lake bridge will be ready for business again in a few days.

—The Rev. W. C. Allen, M.A. of Millbrook, preached in All Saints' last night to a good congregation.

—The water in the river has reached its highest point. It is now slowly receding.

—The remains of Mr. J. G. Huston were interred yesterday morning, on the arrival of the train from the west.

—Prof. Wrong, of Toronto University, will lecture in the Y.M.C.A. this evening on "The Study of History."

—At a meeting of the Ladies' Reading Circle of St. Peter's T.A.S. last night, Miss Kate McGrath read a paper on "Dante."

—Miss Florence Hall, one of Peterborough's best vocalists, will sing at the opera house meeting on Sunday afternoon.

—Mr. Gibson, of Ingersoll, who speaks on Sunday, will be remembered as meeting Mr. E. King Dodds here on the temperance question, about sixteen years ago.

—The Lady Maccabees will hold a pie social on Tuesday evening in the Maccabee's Hall. The social functions under their auspices are always well worth attending.

—Mr. Peter Campbell, local manager of the Bank of Toronto, suffered the dislocation of his left shoulder the other evening. He was on his knees indulging with his son, Gordon, in a boxing contest, when, to avoid a heavy swing, he dodged, and in so doing fell backwards upon his shoulder, causing the accident. Mr. Campbell is able to be at his office and in a few days will feel no inconvenience.

County Auditors Wm. O'Brien, of Douro, and W. Sterin, of Lakefield, will complete the audit of last year's accounts to-morrow. Mr. Geo. W. Bennett has been appointed auditor in Mr. Sterin's place for 1903.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. Herb. Kemiry, who has been the guest of his aunt, Mrs. John Craig, has left for the North-West, where he intends to reside in future.

—Mr. George Gowland, Toronto, is in town for a few days, the guest of Mrs. J. H. McClellan, Gilmour street.

OMINOUS SIGNS FROM BALKANS.

Refugees are Flocking from Macedonia—Murders Occur Daily by Order of the Revolutionary Societies State of Affairs in the Vilayet of Monastir Considered Serious

London, March 27.—Lord and Lady Strathcona met Premier Balfour at dinner last night as guests of Dixon Harland.

Deputy Minister Smart left yesterday. Hon. Clifford Sifton is expected here shortly as British agent for the Alaska commission.

Canadian Railways.

British comment on the completion of arrangements between the Canadian Northern and the Great Northern indicate that the belief is still prevalent that the roads will ultimately form part of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme, notwithstanding denials.

A letter from Lord Strathcona appears in leading English journals to-day, urging Canada's peculiar advantages for British settlers, where they can maintain their birthright and allegiance to the flag—remain British subjects in every sense of the term. The letter is designed to divert part of the stream now going towards the United States. It especially urges 100,000 British who emigrate yearly to remember that Canada is unequalled by any other emigrant-receiving country in the world.

London, March 27.—A Times despatch from Sofia states that the continued arrival of Macedonian refugees is an ominous symptom. Hundreds of women and children having crossed the frontier on Wednesday night. The state of affairs in the Vilayet of Monastir is regarded as extremely serious. Murders committed by order of the revolutionary societies are of almost daily occurrence.

The Older Part of the Province will Lose Eight But Algoma District will Gain Two

TWO RIDINGS FROM TORONTO

Ottawa, March 27.—There will be increased representation provided for the city of Toronto by the redistribution bill now in course of preparation. The three York ridings will be drawn without including any of the city wards.

There will be no constituency left with two members. West Toronto, therefore will have to be wiped out and new divisions created, electing one member each.

Hamilton and Ottawa will each be cut into two districts. There will be a member for Wentworth County by itself.

Throughout the whole Province county boundaries will be observed. This cannot be stated as a partisan arrangement, because in some constituencies it will mean the certain election of Conservative members. Through the wiping out of Cardwell a member will be given to Dufferin County, and the normal majority of the constituency is largely Conservative.

There will be a reduction of eight members altogether in the older part of the Province. Two more members, however, will be given to Algoma. The population of Algoma District, according to the census, was was 63,000, but to this must be added 7,000 more of a population which was gerrymandered into Nipissing years ago. This population of about 70,000 souls will warrant the granting of two more members, particularly as the district is one in which there has been a considerable growth ever since the 1901 census was taken.

An Attractive Meeting

The speaker at the last of the series of Y.M.C.A. Sunday afternoon meetings to be held next Sunday in the opera house, is Mr. Joseph Gibson, of Ingersoll. The exceeding popularity of these meetings has been evidenced by the large attendance and deepening interest that is being taken in them. Those who attend next Sunday are promised a rare treat. The speaker, Mr. Gibson, is in everyway calculated to hold the attention of an audience. Full of fire and pathos, his addresses prove a marvellous power for good. The music promised is exceptionally fine; Miss Florence Carolyn Hall will sing and several selections will be given by the All Saints' Male Quartette. The meeting will begin at 4 o'clock sharp. All men are cordially invited.

Will act, not so much directly upon the nerves as upon the digestive functions and the abundant formation of red, vitalizing blood. Nerves can't be fed on medicine. They can, however, be restored and strengthened by assimilated food. The marvelous action of Ferrozone arises from its action over the digestive and assimilative processes. When you take Ferrozone the blood is purified, strengthened and grows rich and red. Then you grow vigorous, healthy and beautiful, ready for work, because you have the strength to do it. No tonic for the brain, blood or nerves, compares with Ferrozone. Price 50c, at Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Do You Eat to Live?

Sensible people of all classes "eat to live." It should be borne in mind that the ordinary prepared breakfast foods contain too much insoluble starch and blood irritating ingredients. Oatmeal and other cereal foods produce skin troubles and dangerous stomach difficulties.

Malt Breakfast Food keeps the blood pure and clean and always at proper temperature; it builds up solid, clean flesh, strengthens the nerves and clears the brain. Those who "eat to live" should always use health-giving Malt Breakfast Food at the morning meal. It gives to young and old a sustaining energy and vim that no other food can bestow. Ask your grocer for it.

Toronto, Ont., March 26—Premier Ross has given notice of motion to adjourn the Legislature till April 21st, instead of April 2nd, as stated in his original motion to appoint the commission of enquiry. This change of dates is rendered necessary by the time taken up in debate on the bribery charges.

MAPLE SUGAR SCARE

There Has Not Been Sufficient Frost to Start the Sap

Maple syrup will be a luxury this year. Indications point in that direction. The season is a total failure. Not for many years has the succulent sap of the maple tree been so fickle. Reports from all over the province tell the same tale—nothing doing in the sugar line.

Why is it? Experts bring forward numerous reasons of a more or less plausible character. They blame the warm weather. With the assurance that comes of a certain knowledge of what they are saying, the farmer that has tapped his sugar bush for years, points to the absence of frost as the reason. His theory is that warm days and cold, frosty nights are necessary to enable the sap to run freely. The warm days have been on hand in abundance, but the frosty nights have shown a remarkable coyness in handing out their still goods.

Spring came on with too much of a rush. The sap had merely begun to stir when along happened a warm spell, that set the buds thinking of bursting. The sap didn't like it at all It was offended. It retired into the recesses of the tree and sulked. No frosty nights came to woo it back to good humor. Bright, sunny days were succeeded by equally warm nights. The fickle sap grew more and more offended, until at length sap positively refused to run at all, and there you are.

It is not thought, however, that the public will realize the failure of the sugar crop. Be it far from thus. The unsuspecting citizen of Peterborough that smacks his lips over the succulent fluid, called by the grocer maple syrup, will not appreciate the failure. He has probably never tasted the pure thing. Ninety per cent. of the sticky, amber-colored fluid that he takes with his porridge, is unworthy of the name. It never saw the maple. The nearest approach it ever came to the real thing was when when the packer put the label on its little tin stomach "Maple Syrup Made in Canada." Maple, forsooth! What fools these mortals be!

The crop is a failure. That fact is evident. The sugaring off party will not hold its revels this year. The taffy-pulling crowd of merry youngsters will have to omit their usual March exercises. But the citizen of Peterborough will find that his tooth is supplied freely with the substitute that made the maple infamous. But, oh! for a taste of the ambrosial brew fresh from the veins of the national tree! It is a vain wish.

TRANSFERRED TO ROSSLAND

Mr. F. A. Paddon, the Popular Teller of the Local Branch of the Bank of Montreal

Another change has taken place in the Bank of Montreal, and one that is greatly regretted in town. Mr. F. A. Paddon, who has been a resident of Peterborough for several years and has become a general favorite, has been transferred to Rossland, B.C., where he will fill the position of assistant accountant. During his stay in Peterborough he has been connected with No. 4 Company of the 57th Regiment, in the affairs of which he has taken a great interest. Mr. Paddon's successor is Mr. Watson, ledger keeper, of the local branch, while Mr. Watson's successor will be Mr. Clarke, late of the Chatham branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The Rossland Miner has the following to say in regard to the changes: "The vacancy in the management at the Greenwood branch has been filled temporarily by the appointment of A. W. Strickland, accountant at the Rossland branch, and formerly of Greenwood. It is generally believed that the appointment will be confirmed in the course of the next month or two. Mr. Strickland will leave for Greenwood this week. The local vacancy will, it is understood, be filled by the promotion of Edgar Duthrie, who has been assistant accountant here for some time. Mr. C. Walker, of the local branch, will go to Spokane to take a position in the bank under Mr. Finucane."

Mr. Strickland is a former resident of Lakefield and at one time was connected with the Bank of Montreal in Peterborough.

THE NEW SAW-MILL

The Work Progressing Most Satisfactorily at Burnham's Point

The frame work of the new saw mill, which is being erected by the Dickson Company at Burnham's Point, is approaching completion. Yesterday the rafters to support the roof were placed in position. It is expected that the mill will be ready for work early in July.

The company is also improving their Lakefield mill, increasing its capacity by the addition of a second band saw.

STUCK IN THE MUD

Yesterday the Toronto Express Got Fast in in Lindsay

The condition of Lindsay just now is deplorable on account of the mud and blue clay. Yesterday morning the Toronto Express, which leaves Peterborough at 8.20 a.m., while passing through the town came to a standstill on account of the slippery blue clay getting on the rails, causing the wheels to slip.

The streets are so bad that the busses have been taken off between the railway station and the hotels. Our informant says that five team of horses were hitched to a wagon load of coal, and were unable to drag it through the mud. The worst of Lindsay mud is that it sticks closer than a poor relation.

SMALLPOX AT LINDSAY

A Second Case Developed in the Town Yesterday

Yesterday Mr. J. R. O'Neil, who keeps a grocery store in Lindsay, was taken to the smallpox tent (where Mr. Metheral, the traveller who is ill with the disease, was isolated) suffering from smallpox. Mr. O'Neil has no idea how he contracted the disease. Yesterday his temperature was slightly above 100.

Metheral is nearly well again, but will be kept isolated for some time yet.

With a dozen cases in Midland and the disease in Lindsay, Burleigh, and probably Warsaw, Peterborough should be well on her guard and be prepared to meet any emergency.

LECTURE LAST NIGHT

Prof. Wrong's Address on "The Study of History."

Prof. Wrong's lecture on "The Study of History," delivered last night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, under the auspices of the Fortnightly Club, was not as largely attended as it should have been.

The lecture was a delightful one, and those who attended were well repaid for their trouble. The lecturer is a member of the professional class of the Toronto University, and a most eloquent and convincing speaker.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was tendered Prof. Wrong for his able address.

THE FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE

Britain Still Urges Only a 21-Knot Service

Lord Strathcona Interviewed

London, March 26—Details for the advertisement in the English press for tenders for the fast Atlantic Service, have been received in London from Ottawa. It is still widely regretted here that the tenders are not for a twenty-one knot service only.

London, March 26.—Lord Strathcona [illegible] receives to-morrow, deputations from Cork to urge the claims of Queenstown for fast Atlantic mail service terminus.

The Cause of Deafness

Deafness and impaired hearing are due almost entirely to catarrhal inflammation of the eustachian tubes. Permanent cure is guaranteed to all who inhale Catarrhozone as directed. This vegetable antiseptic is inhaled at the mouth, and after traversing all the air passages of the respiratory organs is exhaled through the nostrils; it completely eradicates catarrh from any part of the system, clears the ears, nose and throat, allays inflammation, congestion and soreness. For Deafness, Earache, Ringing in the Ears, Head Noises, Catarrh, Asthma and Bronchitis, medical science can devise nothing as beneficial as Catarrhozone. LITIGATION COSTS HEAVY IN ENGLAND

Planchette Case Expenditure of of $35,000 Calls Attention to the Subject

$100,000.00 FOR A LIBEL SUIT

$60,000 for Hartopp Divorce, $7,500 for Lady Granville Gordon's Application

London, March 27.—The long contest known as the Planchette case, which is now practically ended, has called attention to the magnitude of the costs which have been incurred in the recent great trials, both civil and criminal. The case just closed occupied twenty days, and about thirty-five thousand dollars' costs have been spent on it.

Among other recent cases, the sensational Hartopp divorce trial cost $60,000. The Labouchere-Cowen libel suits reached the immense sum of nearly one hundred thousand dollars, and the Penrhyn libel $20,000 more. The recent application by Lady Granville Gordon for the custody of her child, which ended so dramatically with Lady Gordon's flight with the child, required an expenditure of $7,500. But all these are exceeded by the Historical Commission, over which $200,000 went into the pockets of the lawyers.

Turning to famous criminal charges the Dr. Krause treason trial cost the crown $15,000, and the recent trial of Edgar Edwards $10,000. The costs in Earl Russell's trial for bigamy were $25,000.

THE GREEKS OF SALSONIKA ASK FOR PROTECTION FROM RUSSIA

An Appeal Made for Help to Great Britain

Their National Heritage is "Being Crushed" by Russian Influence

London, March 27.—The Sofia correspondent of The Times says that the continual arrival of Macedonian refugees at the Bulgarian capital is an ominous symptom. Several women and children crossed the frontier on Wednesday night. The state of affairs in the Monastir Vilayet is regarded as extremely serious. Murders committed by order of the revolutionary authorities are almost of daily occurrence.

Archbishop Firmilian, of Uskub, whose appointment at the instance of Russia created great indignation in Bulgaria, is now engaged in a lively conflict with Greek members of his flock who expelled him last Sunday, together with the Servian consul-general, from the church at Sveti Pass.

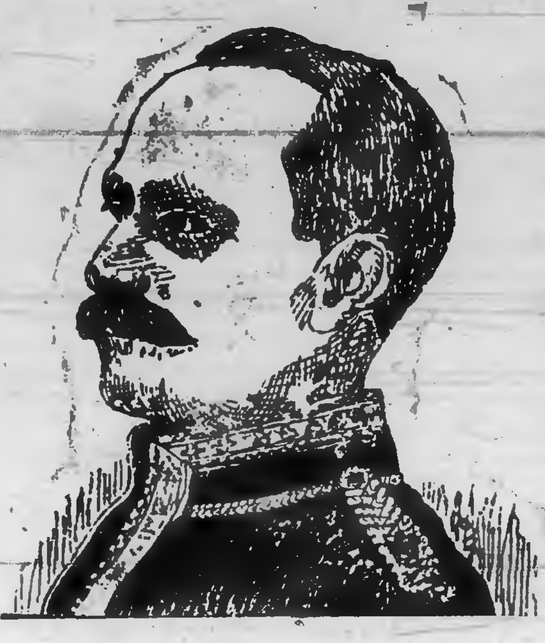
The Times announces that the president of the Byron Society has received a letter from Salonika signed by members of the Greek community there on behalf of the Greeks of Macedonia. The letter complains that after waiting for centuries for deliverance from Ottoman yoke, "we are now scourged by heavier oppression by brigand bands aided by Bulgarian committees who not only rob, but do not stop at murder, cruelty to women, and arson." The writers appeal to the British people, the House of Commons, and King Edward, to protect their national heritage which is being crushed by "the great power of the north."

BRITISH OPINION.

It is gratifying to find that Canadian matters are attracting more attention than ever in the Mother Country. The newspapers, weekly journals, and magazines are constantly publishing articles on colonial subjects, showing that at last the home Englishman is beginning to wake up and look around the Empire with some interest. A very vigorous and able article appears in the current number of the United Service Magazine from Major-General T. Bland Strange, R.A., formerly of the Canadian service, and commander of one of our columns in the North-West rebellion of 1885. The general is evidently as powerful a writer as he is an energetic fighter, and he has placed some home truths before the British people in a spirit most friendly to Canada.

After some pungent remarks on the high newspaper postage between the United Kingdom and Canada, he touches upon Canadian contribution for defence and reciprocal tariffs and says: "If the United States offer it (reciprocity), how long do you suppose sentiment will fight against profit? As it is, Newfoundland is clamoring for reciprocity with the United States. What are you doing to prevent her entering a commercial union which must end in political union?" He then goes on to speak of Imperial Federation by means of representation of the colonies in the Imperial Parliament, and deals with the question in these words:

"The Canadian soldiers who fought in South Africa have returned to their homes with an unsullied military record, as did their colonial comrades. Both no doubt admired the much enduring British Tommy and his officer. They are shrewd enough to have taken the measure of the staff and the generals. They could not possibly admire the unpreparedness of the British Government or its method of making war or peace. Therefore, they would not advise their fellow-countrymen to face themselves and their destinies unreservedly in the power of a Parliament—Imperial only in name—in which they fortunately have no voice, as it would be overwhelmed in the babel of parish politicians—full of gas and waterworks and ecclesiastical school squabbles." When that assembly is relegated to its proper functions as a Parliament or Parliaments for these islands and we have a federal council presided over by an emperor, we shall have an effective Empire. The colonies will never part with any portion of their autonomy except as federated states in such an empire. We are doing exactly what we did to the thirteen colonies, now United States, demanding taxation before giving representation. We shall enforce neither."



GENERAL HECTOR MACDONALD,
Who Shot Himself in a Hotel in Paris, Rather Than Face Dishonor

MACDONALD WAS ADVISED TO VANISH

The Governor of Ceylon Told Him to Disappear During the Voyage

London, March 27.—The news of the suicide of Gen. Hector Macdonald has caused the most intense sorrow all over Great Britain. The undefined charges, which drove him to death, are forgotten by the British people in the remembrance of his remarkable career and his services to the country.

The statement that the King received Gen. Macdonald in a special audience only this month is wholly untrue. Gen. Macdonald saw no one in London beyond the heads of the military departments. When Gen. Macdonald was ordered to return at once to Ceylon he begged to be allowed to remain, and after a painful interview burst into tears. He left London with the knowledge that as far as the military authorities were concerned there could be no end to the charges brought against him except the verdict of the court-martial, for the holding of which be knew arrangements even then were practically completed. Arrangements had been made to call no fewer than 70 witnesses.

A gentleman who has a nephew in one of the regiments stationed in Ceylon says he received a letter from his relative recently, stating that reports reflecting upon Gen. Macdonald's private life had been current for some months, that the principal accuser was the vicar of an English church out there, and that when the Governor of Ceylon bade Gen. Macdonald good-bye he said to him: "The best thing you can do is to disappear during the voyage."

At the War Office the theory is generally held that Gen. Macdonald was insane for some time.

EXTENT OF THE ART FRAUDS IN FRANCE

Some of the Greatest Ancient French Art Treasures are Pronounced Spurious

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ORDERED INVESTIGATION

The Empress of Germany J. Pierpont Morgan and Many Others Victimized

Paris, March 26.—Through the announcement this morning that the Ministry of Public Instruction intends to thoroughly investigate the Art forgeries, that scandal takes on alarming proportions. At the same time the removal of the famous Saitaphernes tiara from the Louvre is practically official confirmation of its spurious origin.

According to one of the best known art dealers of the Rue Lafitte, who has also establishments in New York and Chicago, humiliating revelations are about to be made relative to the Louvre collection of archaeological treasures, unless the magistrate charged with the investigation stifles the truth.

Speaking to a correspondent this morning the above-mentioned dealer said: "The false pieces sold to Mr. Morgan, Mr. Gates and the Metropolitan Museum of New York by no means reflect on the judgment of these gentlemen, or on that of the curators of the Museum, but rather on the corruption and lack of good faith of those with whom they dealt. All the reputable dealers of Paris are ready to help the Government to hunt out and punish the offenders."

Another person, the editor of one of the largest daily papers in the city, said that he had indubitable evidence that two prominent connaisseurs had made fortunes by conniving at the frauds in question. A French expert says that many of the choicest objects of art purchased by J. P. Morgan were manufactured at Olbia, Russia, where a flourishing plant turns out ancient relics by the hundred.

The Empress of Germany recently purchased a Marie Antoinette piano which is known to have been manufactured two years ago in the Montmarte quarters, for four thousand three hundred dollars. Clocks that belonged to Marie Antoinette exist in England and the United States [illegible] French public [illegible] easily humbugged.

Paine's Celery Compound Used in Springtime Will Give That Strength, Vim and Bodily Activity That All So Eager to Possess

Pure Blood and Well Nourished Nerves Are Essentials to True Health

Pure blood and well nourished nerves are the great requisites at this season for every man, woman and child. Too many of our people enter the spring season with systems charged with deadly impurities. The blood is foul and stagnant; the liver and kidneys work imperfectly, and are very often diseased. With many, rheumatism, neuralgia and dyspepsia are daily tormentors. Life is not safe when such ailments are permitted to run unchecked.

If you, dear reader, find yourself burdened with any of the forms of disease referred to, do not fail to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial. It is your only safety—your one true and certain deliverer from perils that end in death. Paine's Celery Compound has cured tens of thousands every springtime; it will do the same blessed work for you. One bottle will cost you less than a visit to consult a physician, and will convince you of its power to cure. Mr. John Y. Gourley, Halifax, N.S., gratefully writes as follows:

"Overwork, care and worry during the winter season almost made me a physical wreck. My blood was impure and stagnant, my digestion was bad and I slept little. I became so weak that I felt I was nearing the grave, especially when my doctor could not give me any relief. I was advised to try your Paine's Celery Compound, and I thank Heaven it was brought to my notice. After using five bottles I am quite restored to health and strength and attend to my work with increased interest attention. Paine's Celery Compound is a true life saver. I recommend it with all heart."

A Sure Cure for Constipation

Some remedies cure this distressing complaint in a day, some in a month, but Nerviline never fails to cure in a few minutes. Just ten drops of Nerviline in sweetened water—that's enough, and away goes the dysentery, cured to stay cured. Nerviline also cures Cramps, Colic, Pain in the Stomach, and Sick Headache. It has five times the strength and curative properties of ordinary remedies, and should be in every household. Better buy a 25c. bottle and try it. Nerviline is all right.

"BRUMMAGEM JOE"

Joseph Chamberlain was for many years the best hated man in the British Empire. He has still many enemies who delight in calling him a turncoat, a renegade and "Brummagem Joe," this term, which is a corruption of Birmingham, meaning almost anything that is cheap, pinchbeck, and despicable. There are also many who make Mr. Chamberlain largely responsible for the South African war. Ex-President Kruger in his Memories calls Chamberlain, Rhodes and Lord Milner the three evil geniuses of the Boer republics.

But amid the torrents of abuse that have long beat upon him, Mr. Chamberlain [illegible] rock lashed by the ocean waves. What most strikes the observer, is the trim, dapper, healthful appearance of the man, whose dandyish attire is always accentuated by a monocle and an orchid in his button hole. His look and air of youthfulness often cause him to be mistaken for his son, Austen, now postmaster general, and said to be the best groomed man in England. When this young man was making his canvass for parliament, one of the harangues was interrupted by hoots and jeers from a hostile audience, and the derisive cry "Get out, old Joe! Let the young 'un speak for himself."

From Red Radicalism to Conservatism, from the status of a little Englander to that of a rabid Imperialist, is a long journey, but Mr. Chamberlain has taken it. While his enemies denounce him in the bitterest terms, his admirers say that he has risen year by year on stepping stones from his radical self to higher things. Among his admirers was the late historian Froude, who praises his sincerity and unselfishness, his contempt for titles and decorations, and who regarded his sudden rise to power as one of the most encouraging signs of the times.

Chalmers Roberts, the latest of Mr. Chamberlain's biographers, admits that as a politician he is cold, reserved, bitter and cynical as one who for many years has lived in a fierce glare of publicity and hatred. But as a man he is credited with many atoning virtues, loyalty to family and friends, sympathy for the poor, a love for flowers and little children. Among the reformatory measures he is urging in the British parliament, is an extension of the suffrage, government housing of the poor, and old age pensions. He always has a good word for our country and often mentions his marriage as a dear tie that binds him to our people. His recent successful visit to South Africa has somewhat softened the malignity of those who have been wont to declare the Boer war the result of his blundering diplomacy.

WAR FOOTING OF THE MILITIA

Lord Dundonald is Planning to Bring the Force Up to 100,000 Men

Ottawa, March 25.—Lord Dundonald is at work upon plans for increasing the available strength of the militia at war time to 100,000 men. This could be done by incorporating the members of the rifle clubs throughout the country whenever the need arises for mobilizing a defensive force.

SLOPEVILLE.

Anvil McCann, our enterprising and popular blacksmith, delivered a stirring and very able address to his brother blacksmiths of town and county, on Thursday night. Mr. McCann opened the meeting with the following remarks:— "Mr. President and gentlemen,—I am very happy to meet you here to-night, and while not in accord with the object of the meeting, I will, I can assure you, do all I can to further the cause of the Union. Gentlemen, if I live till the 1st April next I will be 79 years of age, and am the father of 19 children, and I can assure you, gentlemen, that not one of them had to go to bed supperless, and I have a snug little nest egg laid by for a rainy day."

The roads are in bad shape at present.

MINE OWNERS DEFENDED

Chamberlain Declares the Future of South Africa Depends on Them

[illegible] of Commons yesterday afternoon Sir Chas. Dilke raised the question of the Imperial Government's control over the mining laws of the Transvaal and the regulation of native labor.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, in replying, declared that unnecessarily offensive language had been used against the South African mine owners. All that could be said against them was that, like all other capitalists, they had sought their own interests and endeavored to get the most possible profit from their expenditure. The whole future of South Africa depended on the gold mines. He thought the mine owners should be treated like other capitalists.

The Government, Mr. Chamberlain said, desired to see agriculture developed in South Africa as well as the mining industry. In regard to native labor, the Government was opposed to compulsion. There was no question of introducing forced or Asiatic labor in South Africa.

BRAIN POWER

HOW IT MAY BE STRENGTHENED AND INCREASED

The brain is a great nerve battery that presides over all the powers and impulses of the human body.

Very frequently as a result of poor blood, it becomes enfeebled, and a general weakness of the entire system follows.

No remedy possesses the marvelous brain strengthening power that Ferrozone has demonstrated in thousands of cases.

It contains an abundance of phosphates and iron which are essential in the formation of red, vitalizing blood, and in this way supplies the brain with extra power to perform its numerous and important duties.

Ferrozone is the best preparation for brain workers, and those inclined to a sedentary life. It improves the appetite, insures good digestion, regulates the bowels, and helps the stomach to do its work.

Lawyers, ministers, and those whose occupation entails much thinking and brain labor, will find Ferrozone of immense value, because of its power to stimulate mental activity. Students who take Ferrozone regularly, find it not only clears the brain and makes it more receptive, but makes them strong in body as well as mind.

A medical student of Toronto University, who has proved the good qualities of Ferrozone says: "On my study table there is always a place for Ferrozone. I find by keeping my digestion in perfect order, and maintaining a splendid appetite, it enables me to accomplish a great deal of hard work. I consider Ferrozone at the same time food for the brain, the blood and the nerves and can highly recommend it."

Very few are so strong and healthy that a course of Ferrozone would not benefit. It is good for the young and old alike, and is prepared in convenient tablet form, price per box 50cts., sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

"Poor Health"

Is the worst kind of poverty. However rich a woman may be, if her health is "poor" she is poor indeed. She has no appetite for food and the choicest dishes cannot tempt her. She turns and tosses through a restless night on a couch which might woo an empress to slumber. She has no strength for household cares, no delight in social pleasure. She sits "perked up in a glistering grief wearing a golden sorrow." She is a wife and mother. But she has no happiness in either relation. She knows her husband's life is set in tune and time to the minor music of her own misery. If her child laughs or cries her nerves quiver with pain.

Ask such a woman if she would like to be well; to be her husband's comrade, her child's playmate. Could there be but one answer?

Such a woman can get well if she will. All her symptoms indicate a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organism. Cure that condition and the woman will be lifted up to the full enjoyment of health.

In ninety-eight cases out of every hundred Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure womanly diseases, will restore the womanly health. It has cured tens of thousands of women many of whom had been given up by physicians and friends. It is essentially a medicine for woman's ills. It dries enfeebling drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration. It cures female weakness and bearing down pains. It tranquilizes the nerves, restores the appetite and gives refreshing sleep.

"Favorite Prescription" differs from almost all other medicines put up for woman's use in that it contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is in the truest sense of the term a temperance medicine.

A Constant Sufferer.

"I had been a constant sufferer from uterine disease for five years," writes J. A. Steorts, of Yankee Dam, Clay Co., West Virginia, "and for six months previous to taking your medicine I was not out of my room. Could not walk or stand, as there was such pain and drawing in left side and bearing down weight in region of uterus, accompanied with soreness. I suffered constantly with headache, pain in back, shoulders, arms and chest; had palpitation, nervous prostration, constipation, dizziness, ringing in ears; could not sleep, and breathing was so difficult at times I could not lie down. Words fail to describe my sufferings when I wrote to you for advice. In a short time I received a kind letter from you telling me I would be greatly benefited, if not entirely cured, by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I had taken one bottle of the 'Prescription,' together with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and the local treatment which you advised, I could walk (with the support of a cane), the drawing and pain in side and bearing down weight were not so bad, and when I had taken three bottles of the medicine the periods were regulated, I was not so nervous, could sleep well, and the pain in side and bearing down had vanished. I have taken six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' two of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of 'Pellets,' and my health is better at this time than it has been in five years.

"With grateful thanks for your kind advice, and with best wishes."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a most effective laxative for women. They cure biliousness and sick headache.

Photographs of Pretty Girls Move German Reichstag to Build a Barracks

Berlin, March 25.—The photographs of twenty of the prettiest girls in Crefeld have become part of the Reichstag records, as a tangible argument why Parliament should appropriate funds for the erection of a barracks at Crefeld, so as to enable the girls to have lieutenants as dance partners. War Minister von Gossler put the item in the military budget at Emperor William's request, which explained the now well know history in connection with his Majesty's visit to Crefeld last summer.

The Emperor at a party one night was surrounded by a number of girls and said to them;

"You like to dance with my lieutenants, don't you?"

"Alas, your Majesty," replied one of the girls, "there are no lieutenants."

"No lieutenants!" exclaimed the Emperor. "Then I will send you a regiment."

Thereupon the Emperor directed that a Hussar regiment be transferred from Dusseldorf as soon as barracks could be built for the soldiers.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.35
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.64
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,713 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,587.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $7[illegible],266.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 30,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines as it may control. With this end in view this Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 8 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 5 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

To Set Her Free

(COPYRIGHTED

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

Norma did not go to Oxford: nothing was further from her thoughts than to re-enter her aunt's household, and subject herself to the irritating questions of the estimable Robert. Nobody knew where she had gone: and she had been such a short time at Darwen Haigh, and had confined herself so entirely to the house and grounds, that a widow who lived in one of a row of small cottages up a lane between Sir Astley's place and Lord Wyerdale's, had no idea that the respectable-looking young woman who came there late that afternoon seeking lodgings, and representing herself to be a lady's maid out of a place, was the lady who had been that morning the mistress of Darwen Haigh.

Norma had made up her mind to remain as near Astley as she dared. She was exceedingly uneasy about his health and she wished to be near enough at hand to satisfy herself, day by day, of his condition.

The cottage in which she had engaged two modest rooms was one of a row of three of those cold-looking stone dwellings she disliked, and was situated in a lane off the main road, with the trees of the Darwen Haigh plantation in front, and a wide stretch of fields behind. Beyond these fields was the park which surrounded Blackdale Hall, the residence of Lord Wyerdale. There was a short cut from the town of Blackdale over the fields and through the plantation to Darwen Haigh.

It was already dusk when Norma made her arrangements with the widow; but the hours seemed long that she spent alone in her room, which was on the upper story of the cottage. The parlor downstairs, which opened directly on to the road, was also to be devoted to her use: but Norma was too much afraid of an incursion from her landlady from the kitchen behind, not to prefer the safe seclusion of her bedroom. So she sat by the window, looking out at the bare trees in front, and at the chimneys of Astley's home, which had been her home that morning.

It was past seven o'clock, and quite dark, when her heart gave a great leap at the sight of a figure in the road below, and by the light of the one street lamp in the lane she distinguished Astley, whose gait was easily recognizable on account of the slight limp which he had not yet got rid of.

He had just crossed the stile which led from the town, and was making for the plantation. If she had had any doubt as to who he was, it would have been dispelled when she saw him take a key from his pocket and open the private gate which led into the plantation.

He had gone through, and was on the point of closing the gate, when Norma saw another man run hastily across the road, and enter the plantation in his turn, not by the gate, but by scaling the wall a little lower down.

Norma threw open the window. Astley was locking the gate behind him: the second man had disappeared. She had thoughts of calling out to Astley, of putting him on his guard; but she was doubtful whether her voice would carry so far. The better plan seemed to be to go out, to run up the lane as far as the gate, and to speak to him over the wall.

So she turned, put on her hat as she ran downstairs, and slipped out of the cottage.

By the time she reached the gate, however, Astley had disappeared, and there was not a sound to be heard suggestive of any human presence near.

Who was the second man? Norma lingered near the gate, tried to look over the wall; then she went further up the lane, to the spot where the second man had got over.

A little further still there was a heap of road-mending stones under the wall, and she got on the top of this and looked over. In the darkness she fancied she could make out that there were human figures moving about among the leafless trees and undergrowth at a little distance. Should she cry out? Should she—

Before she had made up her mind what to do Norma suddenly saw, to her horror, a little flash in the darkness before her; and then the report of a pistol reached her ears. She uttered a cry, and leapt up, scrambling to the top of the wall in a moment.

Before she could get down to the ground on the other side a second flash was followed by a second report, and then by a horrible cry.

This was all she knew, all she heard. There were figures moving in the obscurity; there were sounds of crackling brushwood; but of these things she took no heed.

Like a hare she sped over the uneven ground, leaping over bushes, and scrambling through the obstacles in her path. Her whole heart was filled with that one agonizing thought: Was Astley wounded, dead?

She came upon an open space, and felt something heavy, yielding, under her feet. In the deadly, solemn silence, all alone in the wood, she knelt down, and touched the body of a man, lying prone, with one arm doubled under him, on the short grass.

CHAPTER XVI.

For the first few minutes after her awful discovery, Norma believed that the man lying motionless, bleeding on the ground, was Astley himself, the man she loved, the man she would have given her life for. With difficulty she raised the inert form, and summoning all her strength, turned him so that he lay with upturned face, resting on her knee.

The darkness under the trees, leafless as they still were, was almost complete: her eyes were dim with scalding tears. In spite of these things, however, Norma quickly began to have doubts as to the man's identity; she felt his features, with trembling hand, passed her fingers over his hair, his moustache. Then a subdued cry rose to her lips, a cry of awful, frightened, self-reproachful thankfulness. More by instinct than by sight or touch she assured herself that, whoever the dead man might be, it was not Astley. And then there followed another discovery, so strange, so weird, that it sent a shudder through her from head to foot. The dead man's coat and waistcoat had been torn open, no doubt by the unknown murderer.

Whether the object of the murder had been robbery she could not tell: but that another hand than hers had already touched the body and then flung it down again, face to the earth, she felt sure.

Even while she remained quite still for a moment, petrified with horror at what she had found out, Norma heard certain slight sounds in her neighborhood which told her she was not so entirely alone as she had supposed.

Fearing that the murderer was at hand, she laid the dead man down, got up and listened.

The sounds had ceased. Seized with fright, Norma called aloud:

"Help! Help!"

She found that she was too far away from the cottages for her cries to be heard; but she thought that, in any case, they might alarm the unseen murderer if it were he whose stealthy movements she heard, and cause him to take to flight.

After a few moments, during which she had begun to make her way towards the outer wall of the plantation, not very certain of the direction in the darkness, she again heard sounds; and felt suddenly sure that they proceeded from above her.

Looking up, she made out against the dark night sky that there was a human being perched in the fork of one of the trees.

Again she uttered a cry, convinced that it was the murderer who had taken refuge up there: but as she ran towards the wall, a rough boy's voice called out to her:

"Hey, missis, doan't be afeard! I'll not hurt thee!"

Perceiving that the voice betrayed at least as much terror as she was feeling herself, Norma stopped, and looked up again.

"Who are you?" cried she. "Come down, come down, and run for help."

"Doan't go, doan't tha go," cried the lad fearfully, as he began to descend. "Doan't go and leave me aloan wi' that."

She gathered that he meant the dead body, which was lying a few paces away.

"No, no, I'll wait, I'll wait for you to come down," answered she, in a hoarse and tremulous voice.

The lad was already making his way down, and she had scarcely finished speaking when his feet touched the ground. Little as she could see of him, Norma, whose eyes were by this time less dim and more accustomed to the gloom, perceived that he was a thickset lad whom she judged to be about fifteen or sixteen years of age, and she had little doubt, from the agitation which possessed him, that he had been a witness of the tragedy.

"You must run for help, run to the cottages outside," said she at once.

But the lad shook his head.

"T'woan't be na good," said he. "He's dead, stoan dead. T'chap felt him, and threw him down like as if he'd been a log. Leave him and cooe away!"

He showed signs of an intention to run away at once on his own account. But Norma seized his arm with hysterical strength.

"No, no," she said. "We've got a duty to do, we've got to do our best for the poor—poor man." Her voice sank; she felt how useless such efforts must be. Even as she spoke she was leading her rough companion quickly towards the wall in the direction of the group of cottages. "We must send for a doctor, and for the police."

The lad began to tremble more violently than ever.

"I tell thee it's noa use," he said roughly, but not loudly, looking nervously about him as he spoke. "And if we do owt to bring the police on him, maybe he'll coom back and treat us same way as he treated yon chap."

Eczema

Physicians pronounce Eczema one of the most stubborn diseases they have to contend with. To effect a permanent cure the disease germs, to which Eczema is due, must be destroyed. There is only one remedy that will do this without injury, and that is Powley's Liquified Ozone. It will eradicate every trace of the disease, leaving the skin as clean and smooth as that of a child. It has worked wonders for others and will work wonders for you. The following are a few of the many persons who have been cured :—

J. B. BANKS,
787 West Queen Street, Toronto, writes: "For twenty years I was troubled with eczema in my left leg, which was swollen three times its natural size and apparently mortification had set in. The skin had broken in several places and matter was oozing from the ulcers. The leg was black and rawish-red in parts right up to my hip and the itching was frightful.
My wife had been much benefited by Powley's Ozone, so I decided to give it a trial. It was not long before I noticed an improvement in my blood. The humors began to disappear and soon my leg had resumed its natural healthy tone and I was perfectly well in every way."

MRS. F. SCULTHORPE,
72 Cobourg St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "I was terribly afflicted with eczema, which broke out on nearly every part of the body. The irritation was almost unbearable and my life was a misery. I commenced to use Powley's Liquified Ozone, and after using nine fifty cent bottles there is no trace of the disease left."

RODGER PILSON,
Downsview P.O., Ont., says: "For eight years I suffered with eczema and spent hundreds of dollars in medicines, but could get nothing to help me until a friend advised me to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I did so and before I had entirely used three large bottles I was completely cured."

MRS. H. J. WISE,
corner Barton Street and Smith Avenue, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My daughter had been afflicted with eczema for over two years, and we had tried all the different remedies known for eczema—various patent medicines and also doctors' prescriptions, but nothing that we tried did her good.
We finally tried your Powley's Liquified Ozone and we are happy to tell you that after using four bottles our little one is entirely cured and is in perfect health."

W. DORSEY,
22 Sultan Street, Toronto, writes: "I had a very severe attack of eczema in my left leg. It became very angry and sore, and seemed to eat right into the flesh. This gave me such great pain that I was nearly out of my mind. Different friends advised me to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I bought three bottles and by the time I had taken them every trace of the disease had gone."

Dr. MECKLENBURG,
corner Craig and Bleury Streets, Montreal, writes: "For over twelve years I was a great sufferer from eczema. My hands and limbs were so bad that blood would ooze out of my skin, and I had a very bad sore on my right leg at the knee. It was so painful that I was unable to walk and at times my hands were so bad I could not attend to my practice and I was compelled to wear silk rubber gloves. I was treated by leading specialists on skin disease, but got no relief. With hope almost gone I finally decided to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I noticed an improvement almost immediately and continued until I had used eleven bottles, when I was completely cured. My skin is as clean and smooth as a baby's."

Powley's Ozone Ointment is advised for external use in cases of Eczema and all skin diseases, where a more speedy cure is desired. With Powley's Liquified Ozone taken internally and the Ointment applied externally all germ life is soon destroyed, when a speedy and permanent cure becomes a certainty. Both remedies are sold by leading druggists, Powley's Liquified Ozone at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle, and Powley's Ozone Ointment at 50 cents per box.

Great Fortunes Are Made

FROM INVESTMENTS IN GOOD MINING PROPERTIES—HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

The Electric Spark GOLD MINING COMPANY

Stock was placed on the market eighteen months ago and sold for SIX CENTS per share. In less than six months the stock was selling at FIFTEEN CENTS, and a few months ago rose to TWENTY CENTS, at which price it is now being bought and sold. $100 00 invested eighteen months ago would bring you today $333 33. CAN YOU FIND A BETTER INVESTMENT? Do you know that mining affords about the only opportunity for people of small means to make a large amount of money? Why? Because everything except mining is controlled by the trusts and combines, and the small dealer is soon frozen out. We have left to sell

20,000 Shares at 20c. per share

Inside of twelve months this stock will be worth $1.00 per share and paying a dividend. We refer you to any mining man in Gilpin County, Colorado, and, by permission, to the Rocky Mountain National Bank of Central City, Colorado. NOW IS YOUR GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY. We are ready and willing to give any further information asked for. Address

STOCK MARKETS

LONDON BARE OF AMERICANS

New York, March 27—Creditable advices from the other side state the London market has absolutely been been drained of American stocks and that quotations from that point are today simply an interchange of contract orders emanating from this side of the water. In the New York market we have reached a point where there is an absolute lack of genuine liquidation. Prices are down and the short interests, though alternately diminishing or increasing from day to day with the fluctuation of prices, is on the whole a fairly large one. Bears are laying great stress on the additional cash requirements of the Penna. system due to its new stock issues. They overlook the fact that it is to be paid for one half down not until June next; 25 per cent. the coming October, and balance not until June, 1904. The coming June payment will not disarrange the money market as intimated, as the company will undoubtedly pay off some outstanding loans, made anticipatory of the stock increase in order to go on with the work in hand without cessation. This will make a net reduction of the loan account of the local banks when Penna. sells ex-rights and one sees the shares paying six per cent. of practically the best railroad in the world, selling now at an equivalent of 132 rights off; he cannot consider otherwise than a gilt-edged bargain of the first magnitude. The very large borrowing demand for all the active stocks at present writing indicates the existence of a very short extensive interest. Stocks have been sold very heavily by the bears the past two days and the market is consequently in a condition to turn very suddenly in an upward direction. Unless all signs fail and precedent is of no account, this will prove to be the upshot of the matter. We anticipate such a result. Bears have become bold through continued successive success, consequently less cautious. It may be they will speedily awaken to find they have walked deliberately into a trap from which there is no escape save at a loss. We deem it particularly wise to caution our clients at present against too free committments upon the short side of the market and consider it a wise policy to purchase long stocks moderately at present writing, being prepared to take on more should the market sell lower, or in case the turn comes soon to buy freely upon the advance.

"Your dad ain't near as strong as mine," announced the first boy.

"How do you know?" demanded the other.

"I've listened, an' you don't holler anythin' like as loud as I do when he takes you out to the woodshed."—Chicago Post.

"Pure!" exclaimed the brewer, proudly. "Say! Do you know, we actually sterilize the land which the hops we use are raised on?"—Puck.

"Yes," said the methodical housekeeper, "that's a list of the names of all the cooks we have had since we've been married."

"The idea! By the way, I notice each name has either the letter 'c' or 'w' after it. Does that mean 'colored' and 'white'?"

"No; that means 'couldn't' or 'wouldn't.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Gentleman to grave-diggers hard at his work: "Well, John, how's the world using you?"

"Oh! pretty weel, sir; 'deed, I've nae reason to complain, for Ive plenty of work to dae. Ye see, we've gotten twa doctors here noo."—Scottish Paper.

The King Verde Gold and Copper Co. OF Quartzsite Arizona.

Incorporated under the laws of Arizona.

Stock full paid and forever non-assessable. Par value $1.00 per share. Owning and operating Gold and Copper properties in the rich Plomosa District, Yuma County, Arizona.

Development work began several months ago, shows rich values at shallow depth. Gold values assaying $143.00 per ton and Copper values assaying $46.08 per ton. Our full equipment of machinery was safely unloaded at our mine on Nov. 28th, 1902.

Properly managed and controlled by Iowa men of the highest standing and ability.

OUR STOCK HAS BEEN UNDERWRITTEN BY A LARGE AND RESPONSIBLE TRUST COMPANY. This means that they guarantee our stock with a fully paid up Gold Bond placed in your hands for the entire amount you invest and both Gold Bond and Stock belong to you, and the Gold Bond pays you back all your money and you have the Stock left, and in addition they pay you interest semi-annually on every dollar you invest from the very start. In this way you get interest on every dollar you invest, from the very start. No lost time earning interest on your money and no possibility of losing your money, being as safe as first mortgages on good real estate and the management feel sure that an investment made now will make you comfortably rich in old age, should all else fail you.

The Little Kingdom Mining Co.

Owns or controls more than 100 acres in Gilpin County, the richest mining district in Colorado, if not in the world. This county has produced over one hundred millions of dollars and continues to yield up great wealth.

The Little Kingdom Mining Company's property has passed the prospective stage and has enough low-grade ore in sight to keep a mill running steadily. As soon as the company has sufficient funds, a mill will be erected, assuring a steady income, which will enable it to push developments and place the property on a dividend-paying basis.

BIG DEVELOPMENT FUND.—The capital stock of the Company is $100,000 (divided in shares of one cent each); more than half of this amount was set aside as a treasury or development fund. Few mining companies possess such a large development fund according to their capital.

BY SIMPLY INHALING

Catarrhozone

This simple inhaler is a wonderful cure for coughs, cold in the head, catarrh and lung trouble. The agreeable penetrating vapor traverses every air cell and passage of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. In one breath it carries death to the million of germs infesting the respiratory organs, and breaks up a cold in ten minutes.

A trial will convince you that Catarrhozone is the most potent, pleasant and satisfactory remedy. The inhaler can be conveniently carried in the vest pocket and is suitable to use in church, in the street car, theatre, at work—any place—at any time of day or night.

Catarrhozone is a new scientific method of a cure that is endorsed by ministers, doctors and thousands it has benefited. Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Small trial size 25c. —Capt. Garrett, representing the North American Life Assurance Company, is in town for a few days.

—Miss Staunton, trained nurse, has returned to town after spending a few weeks at Cornell Infirmary, Ithaca, New York.

—Mr. R. Clarke, the representative of the Sanitaris Water Company, is in town in the interests of the company.

—Mr. Holmes, of the Detroit Construction Company, is in town in connection with the proposed beet sugar factory, which it is proposed to erect in Peterborough.

—Mr. Joe Halpany, Peterborough's clever entertainer, recently assisted at a concert in Omemee. This is what The Mirror says: "The Dying Captain,"—an incident of the Battle of San Juan,—and his songs, "When the Lady Leads the Band" and "Nancy Brown," delighted the audience. Mr. Halpany is a whole concert in himself, and he is always sure of an appreciative audience in Omemee.

—The Marmora Herald says: Preparations are being made for the commencement of work on the Marmora Railway northward from Cordova. It is only proposed to build some six or seven miles this season but eventually the road is to connect with the Bay of Quinte Railway and tap the mining and timber lands in the northern end of Hastings and Peterborough counties.

THE WHOLE FAMILY

Benefits by Pure Food

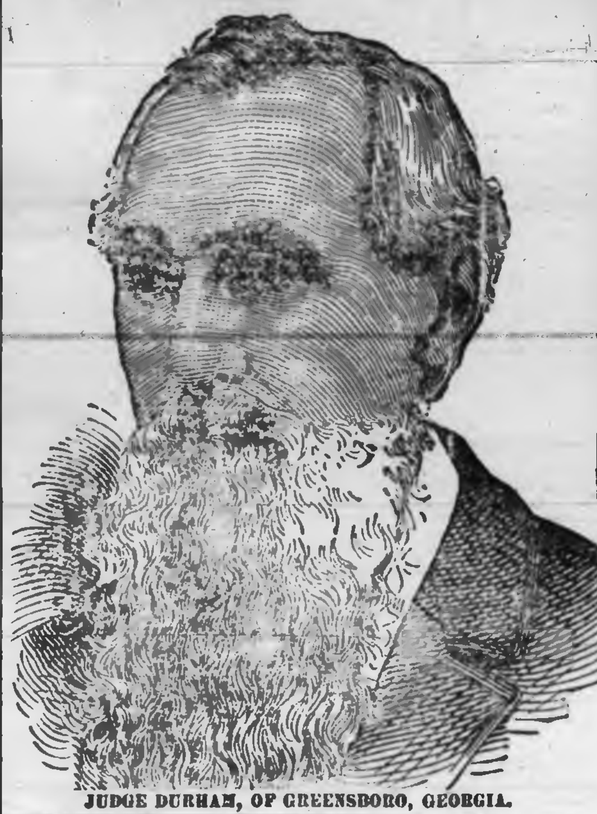
It has happened in a great many cases that one member of a family has begun the use of the scientific food Grape-Nuts and some of the other members have taken up the food and while enjoying its delicious flavor have been cured of various ailments and diseases which had sprung from the use of improper food. A lady of St. Paul, Minn., gives an instance of this. She says: "Our year and a half old baby has been changed by Grape-Nuts from an illnourished child, suffering constantly from colds and general weakness to a fit subject for a baby food picture.

"When we began to give her Grape-Nuts and milk we stopped all other foods and the improvement was so rapid that we could note the change from week to week. Baby was made well and strong.

"But when I suggested it to my husband who had chronic dyspepsia terribly he said, 'I have dieted enough. A man may as well die as to live on health foods.' But I persisted and one morning I served Grape-Nuts and cream to him. When he tasted it he was most agreeably surprised. For the first time in months his stomach and food agreed with each other and since that time he has improved until he is a staunch advocate of this delicious food.

"From our family the use of Grape-Nuts spread to our friends and one in particular was very delicate and always sick. One day our physician, Dr. Ball, said to her, 'Go home and make it your business to eat Grape-Nuts. Eat it morning, noon and night.' She followed the doctor's order literally and frequently made Grape-Nuts into puddings and other dishes. The results have been a surprising gain in flesh and she is now entirely free of any illness, nervousness and is rapidly getting strong again." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There are scientific reasons why this food is as valuable to one member of the family as to another. It is perfect for athletes yet at the same time is pre-digested and no stomach is so weak it will not relish the food.



A GEORGIA JUDGE
WAS ALARMINGLY AFFLICTED WITH CATARRH OF THE LUNGS.
CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

JUDGE DURHAM, OF GREENSBORO, GEORGIA.

Catarrh of the Lungs the First Stage of Consumption.

So All Medical Authorities Agree.

Judge Durham, a well-known local Judge of Greensboro, Ga., had an experience with Peruna well worth reciting. A report had become current among the judge's friends that he was threatened with consumption. It was feared for a time that Georgia was to lose one of its most prominent and influential citizens.

It was also reported that the judge had failed to get any relief from any of the medical aid at his command, that he had made use of the now world famous remedy, Peruna, and made a prompt recovery. The affair created quite a sensation in medical circles especially, and the many friends of Judge Durham were not only exceedingly gratified at his recovery, but were enthusiastic in their praises of the remedy that had brought him relief.

The following written statement from the judge himself set forth the facts:

Greensboro, Ga., March 3, 1900.

"Some time ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and in my head. I tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. I concluded that my case was catarrh of the head and lungs, and seeing Peruna so highly recommended I began using it, experiencing the very best results from the first bottle.

"I continued using Peruna for a short while, and have never felt the least symptoms of catarrh since. Peruna is certainly a good medicine, and deserves the highest praise which is given it by the general public."

Judge Durham has been Secretary and Treasurer of the city of Greensboro, Ga., for the past three years, and has been a local judge for ten years.

Dread Consumption.

There are three roads which lead from health to consumption. Over one of these roads pass all of that great multitude of people who die every year of consumption. Each route begins with health and happiness and ends with disease and death.

First road: a slight cold—neglected—settles in the head or throat—chronic catarrh—extends to the lungs—consumption—death.

Second road: a slight cold—neglected cough—settles in the lungs—cough gradually growing worse—consumption—death.

Third road: a cold—neglected—settles in the throat—hoarseness—short breath—consumption—death.

Thousands have just started on one of these roads, all of whom could be easily cured by Peruna. Thousands more are half way to the fatal end of one of these roads who are still curable by a course of treatment by Peruna. Yet other thousands are near the end whose last days could be made bearable and hope of recovery more probable by commencing Peruna without delay.

A reward of $10,000 has been deposited in the Market Exchange Bank, Columbus, Ohio, as a guarantee that the above testimonial is genuine; that we hold in our possession authentic letters certifying to the same. Every one of our testimonials are genuine and in the words of the one whose name is appended.

A FORTUNE IN MAY CORN—May corn is now selling 25 cents per bushel less than it was last year at this time. On account of the great demand for export and manufacturing purposes, it should be selling considerably above. You never saw such a situation in your life, and those who take advantage of the opportunity offered by the low price of May corn at this time, should soon double their money. We predict that May corn will sell for 60c. in March and 75c. in May. Our former predictions have been verified in every respect. Large capital is not necessary to take advantage of this opportunity. Buy now and stand to make a fortune. $25.00 will margin 1,200 bushels, 2 cents, $50.00 will margin 2,500 bushels, and $100.00 will margin 5,000 bushels. Every two cent rise in price means a profit of of 100%. We made $2,082.50 for a customer in six weeks from an investment of $500. Experience on your part is unnecessary. APPEAL TO COLONIES FOR NAVAL AID

Denounced by Admiral Hopkins, Lord Brassey Advocates Representation of Canada

London, March 28—Admiral Hopkins, writing to the Spectator to-day, denounces the appeals to the colonies for "miserable money contributions to the navy, which at best would hardly provide a third-class cruiser, and only tend to wound the pride of young and rising nations. Let each contribute in its own way and be encouraged to provide reserves if we want Imperialism."

The Spectator strongly endorses Admiral Hopkins.

Lord Brassey, speaking in the House of Lords last night, advocated representation of Canada and Australia on the new Council of Defence, over which Premier Balfour will preside.

London, March 27.—The text of the Irish Land Purchase Bill, which Art forgeries, that scandal takes an was introduced in the House of Commons by the Irish Secretary. Mr. Wyndham, on Wednesday last, was given out today.

It occupies thirty-nine pages of a parliamentary paper and bristles with technicalities.

The full wording reveals many important features which were not mentioned in Mr. Wyndham's speech when the bill was introduced.

All arrears of rent due at the time of the purchase of land are recoverable by the land commission, and not the arrears for a year only, as previously cabled. The land commissioners however, are given power in special cases to remit part, or all of the arrears.

The Commissioners are not permitted to purchase estates which are not mainly agricultural or pastoral. Thus Killarney is exempt under this clause.

In cases of untenanted estates purchased by the Commissioners, they are empowered to excute the necessary works of improvement, which tremendously enlarges the scope of the Commission's expenditure.

London, March 28—In the lobbies of Parliament last night the opinion regarding the Irish Land bill was rather less enthusiastic. It was recognized to be a measure of such complexity that its only chance of existence lies in the rather doubtful possibility of its parties consenting to accept it in a generous spirit, and that an active opposition from any quarter must inevitably wreck it.

The Nationalists are already displaying restiveness. Lately they have rather consistently supported the Government in the divisions, but last night, on a private member's bill of little consequence, they voted against the Government, with the result that the Ministry only escaped defeat by the narrow majority of thirteen. Had the Irishmen been present in their full strength instead of only fifty-five of them being in the House, the Government would have been defeated.

The uncertain attitude of John Redmond's supporters is giving the Government great anxiety and it is believed that if the Irishmen show a carping spirit towards the land bill, many Unionist supporters of the Government will counsel its withdrawal, on the ground of its unpopularity among the British electors, who already are smarting under the burden of heavy war taxation.

MAN SHEDS HIS SKIN ONCE A YEAR

S. O. Buskirk of Oregon Seeks Relief from Odd Affliction

THE DOCTORS ARE MYSTIFIED

They Say His Trouble is "Keratolysis" also Known as Dermatitis Exfoliativa

Indianapolis, Ind., March 29.—S. O. Buskirk, who recently arrived in this city from Oregon, claims to be a kind of "snake man," and he gives every indication of eligibility to that distinction, though the distinction is obtained at great inconvenience to him.

In the first place he has to shed his skin each year, after the nature of a snake, and in the second place he has to remember the word "keratolysis," so that he may tell inquisitive folk what is the matter with him. The skin disease from which he suffers, however, is known in a simpler manner under the term of deciduous skin.

It seems that the name is about all that is known about the disease by physicians. They know that there are a few persons who lose their entire skin at regular intervals, but they are completely mystified as to the cause, and can suggest no effective remedy. Occasional cases have been reported in medical books, but the disease is rare.

Physicians Mystified.

Mr. Buskirk has a letter from Dr. R. M. Stone, of Omaha, formerly a surgeon in the regular army, in regard to his case, and says that he was examined by a number of physicians, including Dr. Stone, in Omaha, recently, but none of them could offer any suggestion for his proper treatment. The skin is now coming from his hands, though he says that this is the first time that he has lost his skin before July or August.

In telling of himself, he says, "My home is in Wood River, Oregon, and I have come East in the hope of finding some relief. I am in the timber business at present, but over ten years of my life, beginning with 1870, were spent in the United States cavalry. Six months after my enlistment I was discharged from the service at the Jefferson barracks.

"I have had this peculiar disease since I was an infant, and each year I have lost all of my skin and the nails of my fingers and toes. There is no pain connected with this, though my temperature rises to about 104. Usually about three weeks are spent in shedding my skin, and generally the skin on my hands and feet comes off entirely.

Wants To Be Cured.

"None of my people is afflicted with this disease. My father died at the age of ninety-one years, last year, and I have three daughters and a son in the West. My son, C. F. Buskirk, is an engineer on the Rock Island, running out of Kansas City. If I could only find some one who could cure me, I would be willing to give everything I own."

Dr. A. W. Brayton, who examined the case, says the disease is known technically as dermatitis exfoliativa. The cause of the disease, which is an exceedingly rare affliction, is unknown. The disease is usually restricted to adults, and is more common in men than in women. Mr. Buskirk says that each year he loses his hair, as well as his nails, the former coming out in great tufts, but being speedily restored.

One case in Northern Indiana is reported to have been cured by the patient lying nude in a tepid bath for several weeks.

HE FASTED FOR TWENTY-ONE DAYS

Prof. F. E. Woodward Claims that Starvation Plan Cured Him

THIS IS A PAINLESS PROCESS

Fifteen People Now Fasting Who Say they Enjoy the Experience

Minneapolis, Minn., March 30.—Prof. F. E. Woodward, one of the best known professional men in Minneapolis and leader of the chorus at the First Baptist church, has just come out of a fast lasting twenty-one days.

As Dr. Tanner fasted only twenty-one days and secured a worldwide reputation, Prof. Woodward is satisfied with his [illegible]

Prof. Woodward has been for years a victim of diabetes and he has tried every sort of treatment known to medicine without receiving perceptible benefit, until the fast cure idea occurred to him. After consulting several of his friends who had fasted from ten to sixty days for all sorts of ailments, Prof. Woodward determined to try the process, and he began fasting on Feb. 16. He ate nothing from that time to March 6, when, believing himself cured, he opened up with a light breakfast.

"There is no trace of the disease remaining," said Prof. Woodward, in speaking of his recovery. "I was not satisfied with my own convictions on the matter, but since I began eating again I have been to the doctors who were treating me before I began fasting, and they have made tests which show to their satisfaction that I have no disease left."

There are now fifteen people in the city who have not eaten a mouthful for from ten to forty days. One of these is Thos. Burns, man of 60 years, who has liver complaint, and is said to have been given up by the doctors. Burns began fasting on March 1, and is due to go without food until April 13. He is a very heavy man, weighing at his normal figure about 210. He now weighs 180, and expects to lose a great deal more flesh before his fast ends.

Mrs. Mary Reitz, a woman of 40, suffering from partial paralysis, has been fasting fifteen days. She has twenty days more to go. The paralysis is leaving her. For two years she was unable to use her left hand at all. Now she can raise a cup of water to her mouth with the formerly useless hand.

The most curious feature of the fasting fad is that its devotees declare starvation is a totally painless process, after the first three days' have passed. During that period there is a more or less constant craving for food, but after that no thought of eating is entertained.

THE TRENT ROUTE PREFERABLE

Reasons that Induce the Peterborough People to Support It

The reasons that induce the Peterborough people to support the Trent route in preference to the Port Hope route for the canal are briefly stated as follows:—

1.—From a common point, say the mouth of the Otonabee River to Trenton is some miles shorter by the river route than by Port Hope and Lake Ontario.

2.—It is cheaper to build.

3.—It is quicker in time, for the lockage is the same and there would be no waiting for storms to blow over.

4.—It requires less capital in boats. The Ontario Lake route would call for stronger, heavier boats, and every pound of weight in the boat displaces a pound of freight.

5.—Insurance rates by the lake would be heavier.

6.—The water powers on the Trent would be developed, thus encouraging growth of manufactures, population, etc., along the route. There would be no water power developed by the Port Hope route.

7.—The Government revenue from the water powers at the price charged at Peterborough—$2 per horse power—would pay interest on two millions of dollars.

8.—Barge navigation with Oswego could be carried on, and coal got there for Canadian consumption. The coal could be bought in special boats built for the purpose, and run in the calm water season.

9.—Barge navigation from Cleveland to Buffalo was tried and proved a failure—and the steel barges built for the purpose were sold. Skilled testimony taken before the New York State Canal Commission lead the Americans to abandon the Lake Ontario route from Alcot to Oswego as part of their great ship canal project, just adopted by the State Senate at Albany. This canal will cost $100,000,000.

Owing to the large proportion of open natural lake and river waters the Trent waterway will have unlimited capacity in carrying grain to Montreal and the return boats, besides bringing heavy freight for local ports, will bring immense quantities of freight to Midland to be forwarded in the empty grain vessels at nominal rates to Port Arthur in route for Manitoba and the Territories.

D. W. DUMBLE.

THE MEETING FOR MEN

The Last of the Series Held in the Opera House Sunday Afternoon

The meeting was opened by singing, prayer and the reading of Scripture, after which a male quartette from All Saints' composed of Rev. W. L. Armitage, Messrs. J. Legg, W. Moore and R. Shepherd, sang "Tarry With Me," with taste, expression, and feeling.

After the offering had been made Miss Florence Hall sang, "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth," in full, clear tones, every syllable being distinctly heard. Miss Hall needed no introduction to a Peterborough audience, as her sweet, cultivated voice has been heard in almost every church and hall in town. We believe she is recognized as one of the best, if not the very best, soloist in this community. She has been the leader of the Murray street Baptist choir and has delighted the congregation of that church by her sweet singing, for nearly two years, and she is now more thoroughly entrenched in the affection of her hearers than ever. Therefore it was not surprising that much was expected of her yesterday afternoon, and it must indeed be gratifying to her, and a source of pride and pleasure to her many friends that she did not in the least disappoint the most fastidious listener. While she sang her friend, Miss Agar, the well known pianist, and best of accompanists, presided at the piano in her usual fine style, and whose kindly, unassuming manner always gives pleasure to those who listen to her brilliant playing.

Mr. Williamson's strong hand was noticeably felt in the meeting, and his manly, earnest request at the close for men and boys to forsake their sinful ways and turn to Christ, was an inspiration that could not fail to have a beneficial effect on those who were present. It is to be regretted that he could not find it convenient to have presided at all these meetings and to have conducted these religious services in his own felicitous manner, thereby adding interest to the cause, and confidence in its management.

Mr. Joseph Gibson, who is postmaster at Ingersoll, and Grand Master of the A.O.U.W was the speaker, and had it been known, that [illegible] in store for those who wished to hear him, there would not have been any vacant seats or even standing room to spare yesterday afternoon in the Opera House.

He commenced by saying that he was very sorry that the two ladies had left the room, because there was no earthly influence so great as that of beautiful, pure womanhood, whose noble character and inventive genius was the gift of the living God. That woman was God's best gift to the race. He gave many instances of the purifying and uplifting character of woman's influences.

He deplored the tendency of the present age to seek in the newspapers for sensational gush and gave as an instance the eagerness with which people sought after the sweeping accusations that were brought against the late General Hector Macdonald, and accepted as truth everything that could be said against the dead hero, whose mind had evidently become unbalanced. Continuing, he said that as an Englishman he protested against such charges being laid against the great Scotchman, who in the heat of the battle of Omdurman changed his tactics and in all probability saved an Empire. He believed in giving him British fair play and not to condemn a man before he is tried. We are sorry that we cannot here give his address on "Pictures From Life", in in full. His clear, modulated voice, was heard with pleasure by everyone. His teaching savored none of the cant, but was refined, elevating, and ennobling, the influence of which can not fail to have a beneficial effect on the whole audience. His kindly face and affable manner, combined with brilliant wit, make him one of the most popular speakers ever heard in this town.

The quartette then sang "The Wayside Cross," and while it is hardly fair to make comparisons or to individualize, yet it is conceded that Mr. Legg's singing was exceptionally good, and was much appreciated.

Mr. Williamson announced that the men's meeting would be continued each Sunday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. Hall.

THE HOUSE RAISES TAX ON CHINESE TO $500

Hereafter Every Oriental with a Queue Must Pay $500 to Enter Canada

Ottawa, March 28—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's resolution raising the tax on Chinese to $500 was passed by the House yesterday afternoon and Mr. Fitzpatrick's expropriation bill was passed through committee. In the evening most of the Ontario public buildings votes and the same votes for Manitoba were adopted. A couple of Toronto items stood over at Mr. Clancy's request. The Toronto Junction post office item passed.

In reply to Mr. Richardson, Hon. Jas. Sutherland said, in reference to the item for $60,000 in the estimates for a drill hall at London, that the building was to be 252x120 feet, constructed of brick, with stone dressings and stone facings. The frontage on Dundas street was 252 feet, and the cost of the building, furnished complete, including land, would be about $175,000. The site was purchased by the Government.

Mr. Osler said that Toronto was called upon to pay a large sum of money for the site required for the new Armories, and he thought there should be some principle laid down upon which the Government would act in erecting drill halls.

Hon. Mr. Sutherland in reply expressed the opinion that it would be better if the cost of these buildings was reduced, and modest headquarters erected in every county.

Toronto Armoires.

Mr. E. F. Clarke, while not objecting to the vote under discussion, pressed upon the Minister of Public Works the necessity of completing the Armory building in Toronto, in order to provide the proper accommodation for the Toronto garrison. At present in consequence of the inadequacy of the accommodation in the Armory building, a portion of the military equipment had to be stored in the St. Andrew's market building.

Hon. Mr. Sutherland made a note of Mr. Clarke's protest and promised to look into the matter.

Not Nice Companions.

Lieut.-Col. Hughes called the attention of the Government to the fact that when traveling from Edmonton last summer he saw four criminals, one of them a murderer, and two others being about as tough-looking citizens as could be found anywhere, en route to Regina jail, traveling first class, and in the same coach were about twenty young ladies who were going to college at Regina, and they were compelled to ride all the way in adjacent seats to those occupied by the criminals. Volunteers have to ride third-class in Ontario, and he did not think the people of Canada were prepared to pay first-class fare for criminals. He requested that "the coming Prime Minister" would make a note of it and see that the proper department took up the consideration of the matter.

Hon. W. S. Fielding promised to make a note of Mr. Hughes' request.

The Chinese Tax.

In moving his resolution increasing the tax on Chinese immigrants from $100 to $500, Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke of the strong feeling in British Columbia against Oriental immigration and said it had been found where Chinese immigration had settled amalgamation of the Mongolian and Circassian was not possible, nor did it seem desirable. This antagonism was based on ethnical and racial considerations. There was under present conditions little hope of China prohibiting emigration from her shores, and in the meantime the Government proposed to increase the tax to $500.

The same prejudices existed in British Columbia against Japanese as against Chinese immigration. He was sorry for this, as there was a wide difference between China and Japan. Japan was one of the rising nations; it had shown itself to be very progressive, and it was not to be doubted that within a very short time Japan would place itself in the forefront of the civilized nations of the world. While he looked upon the Japanese as a desirable immigrant and must confess to a prejudice in his favor, still there was no probability of being able to assimilate the Japanese immigrant to the standard of Canadian civilization. The ethnical differences were of such a character as to make it doubtful whether an amalgamation of the two races could take place. The problem had been solved by the Japanese Government, who had undertaken to prohibit Japanese immigration from their own country to Canada, except in the case of residents in Canada, and bona fide merchants and students.

In reply to Mr. Morrison, (New Westminster), Sir Wilfrid Laurier stated that there was not the slightest possibility of the Japanese Government receding from the position it had taken upon the question. The Japanese Consul had given assurance that his Government had not the slightest intention of revoking its previous action prohibiting Japanese immigration.

THE MYSTERY OF A RUSSIAN MONASTERY

English Girl's Awful Fate in a Russian Religious Establisment, Shockingly Ill-Used by Monks

TWO STUDENTS ALSO DISAPPEAR

St. Petersburg, March 28—Some time ago it was reported that two young girls—one of them an English girl named Rose Whalley, the daughter of an English mill manager, who lives near Moscow—had disappeared mysteriously from their homes. All sorts of rumors were afloat as to the fate of the missing girls, but no definite clue was obtained. Finally, Mr. Whalley offered the sum of £100 for information leading to the discovery of his daughter, whereupon a lay brother of the Danilov Monastery claimed the reward, stating that the girls had been decoyed into the monastery, and that his daughter was living there among the monks. The father went at once to the head of the police, and after great difficulty, succeeded in obtaining admission to the monastery. The girl was found on the premises, but she had been so shockingly maltreated by the monks that she survived only a few hours after her release.

Hush Money Offered.

It is reported that Mr. Whalley was at once offered a large sum of money by the Governor-General of Moscow to keep the affair quiet, but he refused, and laid the case before the British Ambassador at St. Petersburg, who without further delay made representations to the Russian Government.

Yielding to this pressure, the Russian government has ordered a strict enquiry into the outrage on the two young girls—the fate of the one being still in doubt—and the Most Holy Synod, the highest spiritual authority in Russia, has sent a commission to Moscow for the purpose.

Pending this investigation the newspapers have been ordered to publish an official statement to the effect that Mr. Whalley's version of the case is unfounded, that the girl is still missing, and that no clue to her whereabouts has yet been obtained, and so strict is the Russian censorship that only one newspaper has had the temerity to stick to the original version for which no doubt the editor will be promptly punished.

Since then another extraordinary affair has happened in Kieff, the great centre of orthodox religious fervor. [illegible]sity, a German and a Finn, were visiting the catacombs of the celebrated Petchersky Monastery, where lie the remains of some of Russia's oldest saints. With them was a boy from one of the intermediate schools of the city.

The German, on passing one of the holy relics, supposed to be the mummy of a saint formerly a monk in the monastery, observed, "I don't believe this is a man," and lifting the pall discovered a wooden dummy. Remarks of a similar incredulity were made as to the skull, out of which there is supposed to be a constant emission of holy chrism.

When the party left the caves the boy noticed that the backs of his companions were marked with chalk. They had scarcely emerged, when three monks approached them and asked the students to step inside for a moment.

The boy waited some time but as his friends did not return he went home without them. The inquiries of the university authorities have only elicited from the Kieff police that they do not know what has become of the two students.

It is asserted in Kieff that this is not the first time that such an incident has occurred.

Russian monks are not subject to the general law, being punishable only by their spiritual head. The result is that many of the worst characters have become monks to escape their crimes. The majority, however, are merely vagabonds, fond of an easy life.

A remarkable and typical case of a criminal avoiding the police by taking the cowl, has occurred in St. Petersburg. A German named Spohrer lately embezzled here £30,000 and then entered the Alexander Nevsky Monastery, which, in return for a share in the spoil, is now effectually protecting him from justice. He is to be seen daily walking in the streets of St. Petersburg in a monastic garb, but no one dares touch him.

Philaret, who was chaplain on board during the Czar's cruise to the far East, and since then had a free entry to the Imperial Palace, has fallen into disgrace. After numberless favors at the hands of the Czar, including a yearly visit for his health to the watering places of the Caucasus, he has been imprisoned in the Monastery of Kinove.

A man of huge frame and rubicund countenance, a Russian Falstaff, he was often to be seen drunk and brawling in public places.

THE CHINESE REVIEW WAS A MAGNIFICENT SUCCESS

So Much So That It Drove People into a Panic

Victoria, B.C., March 30.—According to advices received from the Orient the grand review of Chang Chih Tung's modern drilled soldiers in the Yangtse provinces together with the Nanyang and part of the Pei Yang navy squadrons, was a great naval and military display, but it was destruction to the population and a large number of lives were lost.

When the sham battle started a panic seized the whole populace, a report having been spread that an invasion was to take place. So great was the panic that suicide was resorted to and it is reported that many children were drowned in order to get rid of them to allow their parents to run the faster.

According to news from Pekin, Yung Lu's illness seems to be of serious nature. His recovery is doubtful. The Japan Mail says his final withdrawal from the political field would be an event of greater importance than even the death of Li Hung Chang.

A CEMENT BUILDING

Large Rubber Factory to be "Poured" at Berlin

Berlin, March 30.—The Berlin Rubber Co. is making a new departure in the material out of which factories are being built. They are going to erect a large building of cement instead of brick. It is to be 100 feet long, 60 feet wide and four storeys high. It will be put up near the overhead bridge, and will be used for offices and warehouse purposes. All the room in the present building will be devoted to the manufacturing process, and a two storey addition is to be added to the boiler house. In this the vulcanizer will be installed and the under room will be secured for the shoemaking. The building will be erected by the company which has the services of Mr. Schiee, a former contractor. There are now 116 employees in this factory and that number will be considerably increased when the enlargement is made.

OUR ANNUAL GRIEVANCE.

Editor of the Morning Times:

Sir,—Again we are confronted with the dust nuisance, and the annual excuse of our Council in not having the watering cart ready. We know how last year there was an epidemic of sore throat and sore eyes as there was in Chicago, where a scientific investigation was made, when it was discovered that the disease was owing to the microbes in the dust which had accumulated during the winter, and were brought to life by the vernal temperature. Let the Mayor get a hustle on before there is a recurrence of the epidemic.

CONSISTENCY.

WILL SUBMIT ALL BRIBERY EVIDENCE

Of the Charges Made by Gamey, Counsel Has Case Ready

PROMISES A SENSATIONAL TRIAL

No surprise was manifested by members of the Legislature over the voting on Friday night. No defections were expected on either side, and during the last few days of the tedious debates, it was apparent that both sides would present a solid front. The member for East York was taken from the hospital during the early stages of the debate, and forced to postpone a serious operation in order that the full strength of the government might be ascertained when the question was ready to go to a vote. It is not known whether his presence in the House will be longer demanded now that Mr. Ross has been able to show that he has a majority of five in a full house.

Ready for Trial.

Meanwhile counsel for accuser and accused have prepared their cases, and are ready for the opening of the inquiry, which will be begun this week, probably at the Parliament Buildings. There is much speculation as to the new evidence which Mr. Gamey will produce. It has been generally surmised that the half of the story has not been told. If he has any trump cards up his sleeve, the fact has been carefully concealed in the information bureau of Mr. Gamey and his advisors.

Promises Sensational Trial.

The whole case will be submitted to the tribunal and the opposition will do the best they can to have all the facts brought out. All the evidence the tribunal will admit will be offered and the full case may be made out. Altogether some sensational testimony will be given. The trial will last about three weeks.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 12 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMETT, Winnipeg, Man.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

THE BOER GENERAL ARRESTED AND DEEPENS MYSTERY

Real Officer Probably Commits Suicide

W. T. de Jongh or the wily Boer gentleman who assumed that name, is now under arrest in New York. The pseudo-Boer on the strength of his name and winning ways, persuaded the Walker House to cash a cheque for $65 and then took flight for fresh fields and pastures green.

The game worked by the smooth man is an interesting one. He registered at the Walker House one night as W. T. de Jongh.

The real Gen. W. T. de Jongh, whose name was assumed by the fradulent one, had been introduced to one of the clerks in the hotel by Col. Sam Hughes previously. The pseudo de Jogh knew of this fact and palmed himself off as the original general to such good affect as to enable him to cash a cheque.

The clerk in question was not present at the time the money passed, so the game was easy. The wily one had it all his own way. He got the coin and faded away.

Jailed in New York.

He is now in New York. The tendons of the law have curled around him. The authorities in that city are now waiting for word from Tornto as to what is to be done with the smooth gent that played the foxy game.

In the meantime much mysterry surrounds the movements of the original Boer general. He has been having troubles; and, according to a letter to Col. Hughes, he may have suicided. No news of him has been received since he wrote the letter to the man that was instrumental in his capture on the veldt. He faded away like his prototype, and real fears are entertained that he has killed himself.

Dying by Slow Degrees

Although not always aware of it yet thousands die by slow degrees of catarrh. It first attacks the nose or throat, then the lungs, and finally spreads all through the system. Catarrhozone is the only remedy that will immediately prevent the spread of this awful disease. Every breath from the inhaler kills thousands of germs, clears the throat and nose, aids expectoration and relieves the pain across the eyes. Catarrhozone eradicates every vestige of catarrh from the system, and is highly recommended also for Bronchitis, Asthma, Deafness and Lung Trouble. Price $1.00; trial size 25 cts., all druggists. THE CHICAGO DRAINAGE CANAL

Experiments with germs in the Chicago canal have given certain unscientific persons the idea that the canal is not what it should be, and also that the theory that sunlight and oxygen are not the effective agents they have hitherto been supposed to be, in rendering the work of microbes innocuous. Dr. Armand Ravold, bacteriologist of the Board of Health at St. Louis, imported a large quantity of bacilli prodigiosus and had 107 barrels of the germs dumped into the Chicago drainage canal at Lemont, Ill. This was done quietly on the night of Nov. 6, 1901. From subsequent examinations the officer was enabled to establish the fact that germs floated down to St. Louis. He is positive the bacilli were the same. Other scientific persons say it is hard to identify bacteria. If these came a distance of seventy or eighty miles, it was contrary to all the doctrines on which the drainage canal was based. As was explained on numberless occasions before the canal was opened, running water is supposed to discourage the microbes to such a degree that they "softly and suddenly vanish away" before the end of the twenty-fifth mile. It is unpleasant for St. Louis if they do not. But this is only one phase of the situation. The canal was not built for St. Louis, but for Chicago. If it does not purify Chicago's drinking water, it has failed of its purpose, whatever other things it may do. Now the Health Department continues to issue the daily "safe" or "unsafe" bulletins about the water supply as if the canal were still a mere matter of speculation. The water is pronounced "bad" almost as large a portion of the time as in the old, unregenerate days. Mayor Harrison recently asked the Comptroller's office for an opinion on the subject, and the Comptroller replied that until a branch is constructed to connect the canal with the Calumet district, Chicago will not get the benefits for which so much money has already been expended. Nine-tenths of Chicago's drainage has been diverted from Lake Michigan to the canal and thence to the Mississippi, but the remaining one-tenth is able to make almost as much trouble as the entire lot. The Calumet district, which has been increasing greatly in population, drains into the Calumet river, and it, in turn, empties into the lake. There is the whole trouble.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The price of coal in Peterborough is still $8 a ton, though coal is so plentiful now that the market is glutted and the miners have been put on four hours a day to reduce the output.

It is reported that the C.P.R. has ordered 23 locomotives in Germany. Canada's locomotive makers seem to have been too busy striking to attend to business.

The fact that nobody is sure who has got the best or the worst of it in connection with the finding of the coal commission is a highest compliment which could be paid to the fairness and justice of the findings of that tribunal.

By a regulation which has recently come into force on French railways, any first or second class passenger travelling with packages or money, valuable documents, or works of art may (says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail) have a compartment reserved for him by paying the price of a single ticket, or by the payment of a charge calculated on a weight ten times that of the actual weight of the packet. If the actual weight is superior to 10cwt., an entire wagon is placed at the disposal of the passenger who travels with the goods, and in consideration of the fact that he keeps a guard over his property and relieves the railway company of all responsibility, he is not required to pay his fare.

King Edward has been restricted by his physicians to five cigars a day. He has been an inveterate smoker almost since his boyhood. Some thirty years ago he was dining with the late Lord Derby, who regarded the use of tobacco as a vulgar and unpleasant habit. After dinner the Prince suggested a cigar, whereupon his lordship dryly expressed regret that his house did not contain a smoking room, adding that he could only suggest the stables as a suitable place for burning tobacco. Much to his surprise the Prince adjourned to the region indicated, and enjoyed his post-prandial cigar.

MAPLE SUGAR SCARE

There Has Not Been Sufficient Frost to Start the Sap

Maple syrup will be a luxury this year. Indications point in that direction. The season is a total failure. Not for many years has the succulent sap of the maple tree been so fickle. Reports from all over the province tell the same tale—nothing doing in the sugar line.

Why is it? Experts bring forward numerous reasons of a more or less plausible character. They blame the warm weather. With the assurance that comes of a certain knowledge of what they are saying, the farmer that has tapped his sugar bush for years, points to the absence of frost as the reason. His theory is that warm days and cold, frosty nights are necessary to enable the sap to run freely. The warm days have been on hand in abundance, but the frosty nights have shown a remarkable coyness in handing out their chill goods.

Spring came on with too much of a rush. The sap had merely begun to stir when along happened a warm spell that set the buds thinking of bursting. The sap didn't like it at all. It was offended. It retired into the recesses of the tree and sulked. No frosty nights came to woo it back to good humor. Bright, sunny days were succeeded by equally warm nights. The fickle sap grew more and more offended, until at length it positively refused to run at all, and there you are.

It is not thought, however, that the public will realize the failure of the sugar crop. Be it far from thus. The unsuspecting citizen of Peterborough that smacks his lips over the succulent fluid, called by the grocer maple syrup, will not appreciate the failure. He has probably never tasted the pure thing. Ninety per cent. of the sticky, amber-colored fluid that he takes with his porridge, is unworthy of the name. It never saw the maple. The nearest approach it ever came to the real thing was when the packer put the label on its little tin stomach "Maple Syrup Made in Canada." Maple, forsooth! What fools these mortals be!

A Woman's Friend

It's Because Ferrozone Brings Good Health That It Brings Good Looks and is Counted an Invaluable Friend by Millions of Women on this Account

Many women look old and lose their beauty, not through age, but through disease, ill health and suffering.

If you don't feel your best, of course you won't look your best and as long as your blood remains impure, your nerves unsteady, don't expect to feel tip-top.

If you have no appetite, poor digestion, are bilious and constipated, your skin will be sallow and pimply with an unnatural pallor about the cheeks.

Women without number who have suffered the mortifications of this run down condition, have made themselves healthy and well by taking Ferrozone. It is a wonderful remedy for the blood and nerves, and brings good looks because it brings good health.

Take Ferrozone for your beauty. It is a wonderful restorative, and strengthener for weak women, purifies and enriches the blood, and sends it circulating to all parts of the body. Then it builds up muscle and tissue, puts on fat and makes the action of the heart regular and strong.

Nothing can possibly do you so much lasting good as Ferrozone. It will enable you to go through life with pleasure and assurance, free from sickness and worry. We are quite sure you need Ferrozone, and know it will do you immeasurable good.

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

"What did you see?" asked Norma in a frightened whisper.

But the lad tried to pull himself away and got violent in his tone: "I didn't see nowt," said he, "I didn't see nowt whatever. And t'ain't no use for you to go for to say I did!"

"What's your name, and where do you live?" asked Norma sharply.

The lad hesitated, and then answered sturdily:

"My name's my business and none o' yourn. And I live miles away, reght away from here, at back o' yon hill."

And he jerked his thumb vaguely over his shoulder. They were at the edge of the plantation, with the wall in front of them, and the cottages in sight.

At that moment both heard the unmistakable sound of some creature making its way rapidly through the wood a little to their left. Deliberately the lad pulled Norma back from the wall.

"Let me go," cried she. "I want to get help, to have the man caught."

"And I doan't want to be in for noa scrape," said the lad doggedly.

And he deliberately held her fast by the arm until the sounds which indicated the presence of another person in the wood with them had died away.

When there was again dead silence around, the lad let her go, and crying abruptly: "Good-bye, missis!" he was over the wall, and across the road and over the stile into the fields on the other side before Norma had recovered her breath.

It was with considerable difficulty that she got over in her turn, having to find a spot where the irregularities in the surface of the stone wall enabled her to secure a footing. By the time she reached the cottages there was no sight or sound of any human being besides herself.

Having told her story in as few words as possible to her landlady, Norma was able to take breath while the old woman roused her neighbors. The second cottage of the group contained a working family, of whom the father and two growing-up sons were quickly on the alert. Norma begged that one of them would go for a doctor, but in the first place they all three, with a lantern, went into the plantation, guided by the best direction she could give, to see for themselves what had happened.

The women followed presently, in a body. And while they all went together in search of this gruesome sight, Norma went to the third cottage, in the hope of getting there a messenger who would go to the town for a doctor, and to the police-station to put the authorities on the alert.

But here she met with no response. The door was opened by a good-looking woman of three or four and twenty, who said her husband was asleep after a hard day's work, and she could not disturb him for such errands; and she shut the door curtly in Norma's face, being evidently in a great state of trepidation over the tragedy, which had apparently reached her ears already.

There was nothing to be done, therefore, but to wait until the three male members of the next household had satisfied their curiosity; and Norma stayed at the door of her lodging until one of the lads came out of the wood by way of the wall.

He said he was on his way to the town, but added that there was no need for any doctor to pronounce that the man was dead.

"Who is he?" asked Norma faintly.

"I doan't reghtly know, missis. He's a stranger as we all think. He's a well set-oop chap, wi' a fine head of hair and whiskers, and a mark over one eye like an owd cut."

Norma could scarcely repress a cry. She knew now who he was. The murdered man was Tom Rogerson, the witness Astley wanted!

She felt sick and faint at this discovery. She did not know clearly what vague foreboding of unexpected evil filled her mind and clouded her thoughts; but she crept indoors and up to her room, shaking with nervous dread.

Astley had been in the plantation only a few minutes before. Had he heard anything of the affair? What would he say when he learnt the news? Norma felt that she must seek him out and let him know the truth; and even as she decided on this, her heart sank, for she knew that now this man was dead, all hopes of happiness with Astley were further off than ever.

She had got down into the road again, and was hesitating by which way to approach the Haigh, whether to get someone to accompany her through the plantation, which was by far the shortest way, or to go round by the road and the long carriage-drive, when one of the men who had gone into the wood got over the wall again into the road.

He recognized the lady who had given the first alarm.

"Hey, missis," said he, "you poor chap's dead, for sure. We're going for to take him through to Sir Astley's yonder, and lay him in t' stables or in one of t' outhouses."

"You'd better wait till the doctor comes," said Norma quickly. "In the meantime I'll go and tell Sir Astley what has happened. Show me the way through the wood," she added nervously, "so that I may lose no time."

The man assented, helped her over the wall again, and accompanied her as far as the edge of the plantation on the other side. Norma thanked him breathlessly, and sped through the intervening trees and shrubs, starting at every slightest sound, until she came back to the house she had left that morning. A light was burning in the library, shining through the chinks of the old-fashioned shutters. She sprang forward and tapped at the window sharply.

"Hallo!" cried Astley's voice.

"It's I. Open, let me in," gasped she.

The next moment she heard his rapid, though halting, step across the floor, and he unbarred the shutters and opened the window with amazement and delight on his face.

"You! You! Have you come back to me already?" cried he in a low voice, as he held out his arms.

But Norma shook her head, trembling very much.

"No, no," she said hoarsely. "Something dreadful's happened, something I hardly like to tell you of; only you must know, oh, you must. Tom Rogerson, the man you were looking for, the man who came here, has been murdered. He is lying dead in the wood there."

And she pointed to the dark mass of trees behind her.

"Murdered! Murdered!" He kept repeating the word, staring at her as if he could not understand her.

"Yes. They've gone for a doctor and the police. Will you come? Will you come and see?"

He moved beside her like an automaton, only repeating the one word "Murdered!" to himself as if in a dream. Norma grew alarmed, and presently stopped short, and made him stop too.

"Why do you speak like that?" she [illegible]

RHEUMATISM

Mr. A. Shepherd, 46 Farley Ave., Toronto, Had Rheumatism So Bad He Had to Give Up Work—Was In a Very Bad Condition.

A Few Bottles of Powley's Liquified Ozone Destroyed the Disease Germs and He Was Cured to Stay Cured—Now Has Neither Ache Nor Pain.

About three years ago I contracted rheumatism. I at once put myself in my doctor's care and he relieved me. In a few months the rheumatism came back a great deal worse than it was before. I then tried different advertised cures, but I did not receive any benefit. By this time I was in a bad condition and was discouraged. I suffered intense pain and my wife put on hot water applications, which eased me a little. I was at this time recommended to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. In a short time I began to feel better and by the time I had taken a few bottles every symptom of pain and rheumatism had left my body. This was in January, 1901. I have not had the least symptom of this distressing disease since.

To Powley's Liquified Ozone is due this wonderful cure, and I can strongly advise other sufferers to try Ozone for their rheumatic troubles.

Yours truly,
A. SHEPHERD,
46 Farley ave.

Toronto, Jan. 29, 1903.

Ozone Cures Rheumatism Quickly and For All Time to Come.

Mr. Shepherd's case is simply one among hundreds. Every day cures of rheumatism are being effected by Powley's Liquified Ozone that you hear nothing of. It is two years since Mr. Shepherd was cured and the fact that he has had neither ache nor pain since proves that he was cured to stay cured. By destroying the germs that cause the disease Ozone effects cures of rheumatism when all drug preparations fail. It is sold by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

Our free book on rheumatism for the asking.

NOTICE

Take notice that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Peterborough intends, after one month after the last publication of this notice, to undertake the construction of Granolithic Sidewalks on the following streets and parts of streets, in the Town of Peterborough, as local improvements, under Section 678 of The Municipal Act, and the other provisions of the said act and the by-laws of the said town relating to local improvements and applicable thereto:—

WITH GRANOLITHIC FINISH

Hunter Street, south side, from Water Street, 55 feet east, 10 feet wide.

Hunter Street, south side, from 55 feet east of Water Street to Queen Street, 6 feet wide.

WITH SAND FINISH

Water Street, west side, from Smith Street to Victoria Avenue, 5 feet wide.

McDonnel Street, north side, from George Street, to Aylmer Street, 5 feet wide.

Dublin Street, both sides, from George Street to Aylmer Street, 5 feet wide.

Gilmour Street, north side, from Park Street to Monaghan Road, 5 feet wide.

Park Street, west side, from Hunter Street to Cedar Street, 5 feet wide.

Scott Street, south side, from Rubidge Street to Reid Street, 5 feet wide.

Rubidge Street, west side, from Brock Street to Kirk Street, 8 feet wide.

McDonnel Street, north side, from Stewart Street to Lownie Street, 5 feet wide.

Stewart Street, east side, from King Street to Dalhousie Street, 5 feet wide.

And to assess the final cost hereof, less the cost of that part of the work which is incurred in respect of street intersections, and opposite exempted properties, and less forty per cent. of the remaining cost of the work, to be provided by the Municipality, under section 678 of The Municipal Act, upon the properties abutting thereon and to be benefitted thereby.

Persons desiring to petition the said Council against undertaking any of the said proposed work must do so on or before the 6th day of May, 1903.

Dated the 21st day of March, 1903.

The Electric Spark GOLD MINING COMPANY

Stock was placed on the market eighteen months ago and sold for SIX CENTS per share. In less than six months the stock was selling at FIFTEEN CENTS, and a few months ago rose to TWENTY CENTS, at which price it is now being bought and sold. $100 00 invested eighteen months ago would bring you today $333 33. CAN YOU FIND A BETTER INVESTMENT? Do you know that mining affords about the only opportunity for people of small means to make a large amount of money? Why? Because everything except mining is controlled by the trusts and combines, and the small dealer is soon frozen out. We have left to sell

STOCK MARKETS

PRICES SCRAPING BOTTOM

New York, March 28.—The past few days' indications have been most marked that the market was rapidly approaching the turning point. A movement in the upward direction would appear to be directed before, so despite the fact of the incessant hammering of values and the apparent efforts to make the market look exceedingly unattractive to buyers, we feel it time to announce it as our opinion that prices are scraping upon bottom. We are fully aware of the general inadvisability of expressing such an opinion so strongly, yet we do so, as we really believe it to be the correct view of conditions. If you follow it, however, place a liberal margin back of your commitments, then you will be as certain to be safe as human proposition can possibly be. Market manipulations have kept the financial charm bust the past two or three days, demonstrations against prices during the period has been most rampant, yet values have not materially changed. During the time, however, a large quantity of stocks have changed hands. The drift has been from the weak to the strong. Every variety of bearish story has been trotted out and the pessimistic harp has been touched upon, every string, all sorts of reasons have been paraded to show the market should go lower. The reasons why it should go higher have all been relegated to the background. When the time comes they will come to the front with renewed vigor, owing to their previous slumber. In Wall Street prices usually follow conditions. This is an old truism, but sometimes they are a trifle ahead of conditions, or a bit behind, due to manipulation. Stocks are always largely in the right hands prior to a good rise. The right people have them now, and outside speculation is at low ebb, consequently it is fair to look for a considerable spring advance. There can be scarcely a doubt, but that it will come as said before, we believe prices upon rock bottom, and if bought now protected with a fair margin, most certain to speedily prove profitable.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 1 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

SURE INVESTMENT

NO PROSPECT—ORE IN PLAIN SIGHT. TRUE FISSURE VEINS NEVER GIVE OUT.

No other line of human endeavor can show greater profits and fewer losses than modern mining. Our success helps all and robs none.

The Little Kingdom Mining Co.

Owns or controls more than 100 acres in Gilpin County, the richest mining district in Colorado, if not in the world. This county has produced over one hundred millions of dollars and continues to yield up great wealth.

The Little Kingdom Mining Company's property has passed the prospective stage and has enough low-grade ore in sight to keep a mill running steadily. As soon as the company has sufficient funds, a mill will be erected, assuring a steady income, which will enable it to push developments and place the property on a dividend-paying basis.

BIG DEVELOPMENT FUND.—The capital stock of the Company is $100,000 (divided in shares of one cent each); more than half of this amount was set aside as a treasury or development fund. Few mining companies possess such a large development fund according to their capital.

CURED

In a Few Minutes

COLDS
That make you snuffle and sneeze

COUGHS
That inflame and irritate the bronchial tubes and the throat

CATARRH
That makes your head ache, causes deafness and dyspepsia

BY SIMPLY INHALING

Catarrhozone

This simple inhaler is a wonderful cure for coughs, cold in the head, catarrh and lung trouble. The agreeable penetrating vapor traverses every air cell and passage of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. In one breath it carries death to the million of germs infesting the respiratory organs, and breaks up a cold in ten minutes.

A trial will convince you that Catarrhozone is the most potent, pleasant and satisfactory remedy. The inhaler can be conveniently carried in the vest pocket and is suitable to use in church, in the street car, theatre, at work—any place—at any time of day or night.

Catarrhozone is a new scientific method of cure that is endorsed by ministers, doctors and thousands it has benefited. Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Small trial size 25c. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Manufacturing Chemists, Kingston, Ont.

A Fine Pen

The "Champion" Stylographic pen, guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, is just the pen that suits the requirements of everyone. The platinum point can't be spoiled; a child can use it, and the price is within the reach of everyone—only one dollar Times Bookstore.

Special Meeting

For the purpose of confirming the appointment of Mr. Harry Evans as street commissioner, a special meeting of the Town Council is called for this evening. A proposition made by Senator Cox and Mr. Robert Stuart, of the Cereal Company, regarding the street railway will also be under consideration.

A Beautiful Pair

Mr Thomas Brightman, our popular fur dealer, has in his possession, the skins of two beautiful black foxes. It is well known that the pelt of a black fox is very rare and consequently of great value, but to see two such beauties hanging carelessly at the door, is a sight that very few, if any, in Peterborough have ever been privileged to see. So seldom does one of these rare specimens come into the market that no one, outside the trade, could be found who would have sufficient confidence in himself to put a price upon one.

Easter Holiday Trip

The Grand Trunk will issue round trip tickets between all stations in Canada, at Single First Class Fare; good going Thursday Apr. 9th. to Monday, Apr. 13th, inclusive, and valid for return until Tuesday, Apr. 14th, 1903. Splendid trains and perfect comfort ensure a comfortable trip. Particulars and tickets from any Agent. W. BUNTON, C.P. & T.A. Peterborough.

WEDDED IN CHEDDAR

Nuptials of Mr. John S. Moore of Minden and Miss Bertha Southworth of Cheddar

"Beech Hill," Cheddar, the residence of Mr. A. Southworth, was the scene of an interesting event on Wednesday March 25th, when his eldest daughter, Miss Bertha, was united in marriage to Mr. John S. Moore, of Minden. Rev. J. M. Whyte, of Minden, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bride wore a handsome gown of white silk organdie and was attended by her sisters, Misses Maud and Maggie Southworth, who were becomingly attired in white organdie over pink.

The happy young couple received a large number of beautiful presents. A handsome gold watch was the groom's gift to the bride, and to the bridesmaids pretty gold brooches.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on the evening train for Toronto and other points west, previous to going to British Columbia, where they will reside.

Deaths from Scarlet Fever

The returns for Ontario for February shows a great number of deaths from scarlet fever. There were 104 deaths from this disease, as compared with 36 in the same month of last year. In January there were 94 deaths from scarlet fever, so that there have been over 200 already this year. The fever has been generally of a most malignant type. The deaths during February from other diseases were:—Smallpox, 4; diphtheria, 27; measles, 7; whooping cough, 6; typhoid, 19; tuberculosis, 160. The total deaths were 2,083.

Saturday's Market

There was more produce on the market on Saturday than there has been for some time. Prices were well maintained. Potatoes brought $1.40, notwithstanding the fact that several grocers were selling them at $1.25. Hay brought from $9 to $10 per ton. Honey 13c, butter 22c, eggs 11c, turkey 13c per lb, chickens 70c to $1.00 per pair. Hogs will bring $6.25 this week in Peterborough, but, as we predicted last week, the price is 1-8 lower in the open market. Fat cattle as we said, are worth more in Peterborough than in Toronto.

Student's Easter Rates

The Grand Trunk will issue to students and teachers of schools and colleges, on surrender of standard certificate, signed by the Principal, return tickets at Single Fare and One Third; going Apr. 4th to 11th, inclusive. Valid returning until Apr. 21st, 1903. Further particulars in another column of this paper, or at any Ticket Office. W. BUNTON, C. P. & T. A., Peterborough.

Death of Major-General Kerr

The Cheltenham (Eng.) Examiner has the following notice of the death of Major-Gen. Kerr, a brother-in-law of Mr. H. J. Daubuz, of town:

"The death is announced of Maj.-Gen. William Kerr, of Prestbury Court, which took place at his residence on Monday night. The son of Mr. R. Kerr, the deceased was born on January 26th, 1826, and had thus attained his 78th year. He joined the army as subaltern in the 13th Prince Albert's Light Infantry in 1846, was promoted lieutenant in 1847, and obtained his company in 1854. He saw active service in India during the Mutiny, being in command of the left wing of his regiment in the action at Amorah on April 17th, 1858, commanding 150 men in action before the same place eight days later, and on the 28th of the same month leading the whole left wing of his regiment in the attack and capture of the Fort of Nuggar. For his services on these occasions he was mentioned in despatches. He took part in the attack on the rebels' position at Amorah on June 9th, and on August 29th shared in the defence of Hurriah. He received the medal and also the brevet rank of major as a reward for these services. His promotion to lieutenant-colonel took place on March 26th, 1869; from 1873 to 1878 he held a post on the staff as assistant-adjutant and quarter-master-general in Nova Scotia; and on his return to this country took over the command of the 17th Brigade Depot. His retirement from the army took place in May, 1881, with the honorary rank of major-general. Coming then to reside at Prestbury Court, General Kerr at once took a kindly interest in the affairs of the parish and for nine years served in the office of parish warden. A Conservative in politics, he was one of the founders of the village Habituation of the Primrose League, of which he became first Ruling Councillor. He had also been, from its formation, one of the directors of the Cheltenham Theatre and Opera Company. The deceased officer married (in 1862) a daughter of Mr. Jas. Baril Daubuz, D.L. for Essex, who survives her husband. Deceased also leaves a son and two daughters to mourn his loss.

A Startling Revelation

The Friends of Miss May McKenzie of London were Astonished to hear that she had gone into Consumption

This sad intelligence came as a shock to Miss McKenzie's many friends. In the early fall she contracted a heavy cold which developed rapidly into Catarrh, and finally made such rapid advances that the bronchial tubes and lungs became affected.

Although the doctors said nothing short of a change of residence to the south would benefit, on the advice of a Dundas street druggist Miss McKenzie decided to thoroughly test Catarrhozone, which is warranted to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes.

Miss McKenzie says: "After my druggist had recommended Catarrhozone I spoke to my friends about it and they all said it was such a good remedy that I commenced forthwith to inhale it five or six times each day. I breathed it deeply into my lungs, and felt its beneficial action very quickly. It seemed to go where other remedies did not reach, and was so pleasant and convenient that I got to not mind using it very frequently, which, probably, was the cause of it curing my obstinate case so quickly. Certainly no case of Catarrh or Bronchitis should go uncured if the sufferer can get Catarrhozone, which is a sovereign remedy, worthy of the highest recommendations."

Miss McKenzie's case needs no enlargement. She was in a critical condition, apparently beyond the aid of doctors' medicines.

Catarrhozone has cured her, and others in her condition should no longer experiment with uncertain, untried treatments, but should turn at once to Catarrhozone, and in it they will find relief and cure unobtainable by other means. Remember the name, Catarrhozone. Complete outfit guaranteed to cure, Price $1.00. Small size 25 cents. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

Out of Plumb.

When the wall is out of plumb the building is more or less unsafe, and the higher the wall is carried out of the perpendicular the greater the danger of collapse. It's about so with the health; it is out of plumb when the digestion is impaired, when there is a dull, sluggish feeling, with nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness. Every day that these symptoms are neglected increases the liability to physical collapse.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It purifies the blood and cures nervousness, irritability and sleeplessness by curing the diseases in which they originate.

"For three years I suffered untold agony," writes Mrs. H. R. White, of Stanstead, Stanstead Co., Quebec. "I would have spells of trembling and being sick at my stomach, pain in right side all the time; then it would work up into my stomach and—such distress it is impossible to describe. I wrote to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, stating my case to them, and they very promptly answered and told me what to do. I took eight bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and five vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Thanks to Dr. Pierce and his medicine I am a well woman to-day. Dr. Pierce's medicines also cured my mother of liver complaint from which she has been a sufferer for fifteen years. We highly recommend these medicines to all suffering people."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 31 one-cent stamps for expense of customs and mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CEREAL CO. BID FOR THE STREET RAILWAY

Will Operate It If Given the Street Lighting Contract

COUNCIL NOT YET YET DECIDED

And Have Referred the Matter to a Committee of the Whole—Otonabee Power Co. Claim the Contract for Street Lighting will be Equivalent to a Bonus of $30,000 for Operating the Railway.

THE STREET RAILWAY.

The Council Chamber was filled with a representative audience last night, attracted by a report freely circulated that at last our underground street railway would have an opportunity of showing its rails above ground under the capable control of Mr. Stuart, of the American Cereal Company, and Senator Geo. A. Cox, providing the Council accepted a proposition about to be submitted them by these gentlemen through Mr. R. M. Dennistoun. The terms of this proposition are that the Town give the Cereal Company, which has taken over the Peterborough Light and Power Company, a ten years' extension of contract, from January next, for street lighting at $60 a year per lamp, together with a thirty years' franchise for operating the present defunct street railway.

R. M. DENNISTOUN.

Solicitor for Mr. Stuart and Senator Cox, introduced the subject by saying that he was present supported by a numerous and weighty delegation who to-day hope for a speedy equipment and operation of a modern and up-to-date street railway in Peterborough. Ten years ago a franchise was granted a company for this purpose, but it turned out that the Town was not sufficiently developed to make the road pay as then equipped; it did not prove even self-supporting. The gentlemen interested found it too large an undertaking to carry out the terms of their franchise under existing conditions, and they threw up the enterprise, which was practically one of local capital.

He himself (Mr. Dennistoun) also acted for Mr. Starr, an American promoter, who, had he filled his agreement, was to have received, providing the by-law met with the people's approval, a bonus of $25,000. Mr. Starr's bonds, however, did not command the attention of capitalists, and the scheme accordingly fell through. Only last year time and attention was devoted to this railway question, but financiers would not look at it because they recognised that a street railway in Peterborough would not be self-supporting for years to come, and that view was confirmed by experience. Mr. Robert Stuart, the treasurer of the Cereal Company, has taken a deep interest in the town, and he has been approached time and again by citizens to take hold of the street railway. He and his colleague have found it necessary to take hold of the Light and Power Company, and after due consideration had concluded that it might advantageously be operated in conjunction with the street railway. The office staff, linemen and power could be combined. Mr. Birch, Mr. Stuart's expert, has reported that for an indefinite length of time the railway must prove a heavy drag. The contract for street lighting expires in January next, and if the Town can see its way to renew that contract with the Cereal Company for ten years at $60 per lamp, they would have a margin of profit to offset in a measure the losses accruing from operating the railway during that time. The greatest difficulty hitherto experienced has always been in floating bonds; but Senator Cox has assured Mr. Stuart that if the railway and the Light and Power Company are amalgamated he had no doubt he would be able to float 5 per cent. bonds without much difficulty. Continuing, Mr. Dennistoun thought a $60 per lamp per year contract would be a very fair contract for street lighting as compared with other towns, and as to municipal lighting, the Town would experience considerable difficulty in the matter; there was no room in the water works power house for street lighting purposes, which would accordingly necessitate the construction of another power house at a cost of probably $30,000. Messrs. Stuart and Cox would expect a street railway franchise for 30 years, as granted other people, and they would not wish the Town to insert conditions, specifying outside places to which they must extend their lines. Such conditions would make it much more difficult for them to enter into agreements with outside municipalities, and place the company at a serious disadvantage. He thought the names of Messrs. Stuart and Cox a sufficient guarantee that the railway would be extended in every direction calculated to prove a paying investment in the course of time. At least five miles of tracks would be laid in town, reaching the Otonabee river to the south, with a loop line along Park [illegible] and a spur line to Jackson Park; Ashburnham would also be connected. A combination of the two franchises in question would meet the approval of Mr. Stuart, now in Chicago, and he would immediately send his experts here. The Town need not expect these two men, Mr. Stuart and Mr. Cox to go into this railway scheme, and allow it to go under for want of care and attention.

D. W. DUMBLE.

Spoke at length in favor of the proposition. He did not think the railway would pay for 10 or 15 years, and if we want it, in whom could we place greater confidence than Messrs. Stuart and Cox. As to the lighting problem he did not know of any town in Canada getting an all night service at $40, which it is figured the town could do its own lighting at.

D. HUGHES-CHARLES.

Thought it very advisable to get the street railway in shape in the interests of the town and county as a summer resort. The easier we make locomotion the more popular will the district become with summer tourists. Street railways in most small towns had proven an unprofitable investment and he thought Mr. Dennistoun's proposition a very fair one.

The Mayor here explained that the present contract for street lighting was at $65 per lamp per year for 65 lights and $60 for each additional one, of which there are 10. Mr. Dennistoun's offer at $60 per lamp would mean a saving of $400 a year.

Continuing, Mr. Hughes-Charles eulogises Mr. Stewart as having done in Peterborough everything he had promised and a good deal more. He thought it would be a great mistake to turn his proposition down, unless the Town has a better one in view. For a good many years the railway must prove a loss, but when extended to outside places it will eventually pay. Of course we must safeguard ourselves in the way of service. He had unbounded confidence in Mr. Stuart furnishing a thoroughly up-to-date system.

J. W. GARVIN.

Favored the proposition and thought the prospective number of employes of the Sugar Company would prove a valuable asset to the railway. 200 hands would need transportation to and from the factory at the locks. He characterized the letting of the street lighting contract to Messrs Stuart and Cox as equivalent to a bonus of $10,000.

ROBERT FAIR.

[illegible] street railway, and said the proposition should commend itself to every right-thinking citizen. The difference between the cost of street lighting under the proposed contract at $60 per light, and the cost if undertaken by the Town itself at $40 per light would only mean eight cents per head for every citizen during ten years.

ROBERT HALL,

Of the Otonabee Power Co., took exception to the proposition. He said, admitting that the street railway has proven a failure in town hitherto and will probably do so in the future, and that similar undertakings have invariably proven unsuccessful in all small towns, the question arises "how much are we prepared to contribute towards putting the Peterborough radial railway on a paying basis." This proposition will give the Cereal Company a cinch on the town in the way of pole rights and an established street light circuit; it must of necessity be an indirect benefit, in competition to any company holding the municipal light contract. On the other hand, he argued, with increased power and light competition, street lighting could be reduced to $32 per light for the street lighting at $60 per lamp. Taking this figure as a basis, a contract entered into with the Cereal Company would really mean giving them a bonus of upwards of $30,000 for the privilege of having in operation in town a railway which it is admitted will prove a failure. If the Town is prepared to give a bonus of $30,000 for this purpose, then it should be separated from any other contract, and submitted by by-law to the ratepayers. And if the Town is not going into municipal lighting, then they should call for tenders and permit of fair competition. The proposition is not one which should be entered into hastily by any means. The Otonabee Power Co. is prepared to tender for street lighting at a figure which would mean, if rejected in favor of Mr. Dennistoun's proposition, giving the Cereal Company a bonus of $30,000 and upwards. An amalgamation of the two franchises would also incur additional expenditure in the way of police protection, street repairs and increased lighting.

J. W. GARVIN

Remarked that the Otonabee Power Co. had no right to come here and endeavor to block the proposition when they had not yet submitted for street lighting.

W. H. MELDRUM.

Contended that his friend, Mr. Garvin was out of order. The Council were well aware that the Otonabee Power Co. are prepared to tender for street lighting, and at even less than $32 per light each year. They have already cut house lighting in town in half. They have no desire to block the street railway scheme, but simply wish it to stand on its own bottom, and to be allowed as citizens of the town, to enter into fair competition for public requirements.

His company is also willing to supply the Town with power for street lighting at $10 a horse power, should they go into business themselves.

D. HUGHES-CHARLES

Here remarked that if the railway was extended to Chemong Peterborough would secure all the trade from Bobcaygeon, which now goes to Lindsay. Similar advantages would accrue from an extension to Lakefield.

JOHN CARNEGIE

Was in favor of the general scheme submitted by Mr. Dennistoun, and would like to see the street railway resurrected at once.

MR. H. LeBRUN

Said he would like to see the [illegible] railway franchise in Mr. Stuart's hands, where he opined it would be perfectly safe.

ALD. BEST

Thought the matter should be referred to a Committee of the Whole Council, and that an expert's valuation of the proposed municipal light plant should be secured and the exact figures at which the Town could do its own lighting procured before deciding on the Cereal Company's proposition. The cost of lighting by contract should also be considered.

ALD. O'CONNELL

Agreed with Ald. Best. The difference between $60 per lamp, proposed by Mr. Dennistoun, and the price offered in competition should be taken into consideration. He did not think Mr. Hall overestimated the actual bonus the Cereal Co. would secure, in event of their securing the railway and light purchase and the Otonabee Power Co. tendering for street lighting at $32 a lamp, when he placed the figure at $32,000.

Taking into consideration the increased number of lights already applied for and the growing demand year by year for street illumination, he would say that the privileges awarded the Cereal Company would probably mean a bonus of $40,000.

ALD. MORRISON

Contended that the matter should be referred to a Committee of the Whole Council to either accept or reject the proposition. Should they not be able to come to a decision, then they could get an expert's valuation of a municipal lighting plant, which it seemed was going to be more expensive than at first anticipated. If the Otonabee Power Co. wished to submit a proposition, it could be considered at the same time as Mr. Dennistoun's.

ALD. McWILLIAMS

Suggested that there should be some compensation provided for the town at the time the railway became a paying concern in return for its helping the company out at the losing stage of its operations. While he thought the railway could not be in better hands than those of Mr. Stuart, still the Town should get all possible information as to cost of lighting by contract and municipal ownership before awarding the railway franchise.

$5,000 FORFEIT.

Referring to the Otonabee Power Co's offer of light at $32 per lamp, Mr. R. M. Dennistoun remarked that each party should put up $5,000 to be forfeited in case of failure to carry out their promises.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum replied that he was not going to be bluffed in that way. His Company were quite as capable of putting up $5,000 as the American Cereal Co. He came to the meeting to ask for fair play in the way of legitimate competition.

The proposition was finally referred to a Committee of the Whole Council, and council adjourned.

BROKE RECORD FOR BIGAMY NOW IN HANDS OF THE LAW

BACHELOR'S CRAZY QUILT

St. Louis, Mo., March 30.—Berry Richmond, a bachelor, a resident of Armstrong, Mo., has completed a quilt, on which he has been working for nearly twelve years.

This quilt is made of fine satin and silk and on every square is artistically worked the name of some resident of this State. Each name is worked in silk thread of various colors. There are thirty squares in the quilt.

This quilt will be exhibited at the world's fair next year.

Faker with Reputation on Two Continents is Caught

Budapest, March 29.—Joseph Spitzer, a Hungarian-American, is under arrest charged with bigamy and a vast number of swindling operations in Austria, Hungary, France, Germany, and other parts of the Continent.

Spitzer speaks twelve languages fluently, can make up as a Jew or a Christian as circumstances demand and for the last fifteen or twenty years has lived alternately in Europe and America.

He went to New York in 1871 and worked as a tailor. He returned at the outbreak of the Russian-Turkish war and acted as war correspondent for Hungarian papers, afterward visiting Budapest and other cities, marrying three rich girls in succession.

Each of the wives he robbed and deserted, whereupon they divorced him. Next he turned up in Vienna, calling himself "Yussuf Zia Bey, a distinguished Turk, on the Sultan's secret mission." In this capacity he married the Baroness Clar avon Ferenzi, and a few days later decamped with her very considerable portion and went to New York.

There he has three brides within one year and was locked up for twelve months. After his release he went to France, assuming the name of an American millionaire and capturing vast amounts of money at the swell clubs by cheating at cards. When things became too hot for him in Nice he again visited New York and married wife No. 6, who died two years later under symptoms of poisoning.

Spitzer was arrested, escaped on a technicality, went to Budapest and entered into a marriage contract with a lady of high birth, whose name is withheld. He succeeded in obtaining $37,500 from her family, and then told her the true story of his life, whereupon—as expected by him—she indignantly refused to see him again. Once more free, he married Mme Kavalsky, whom he swindled out of $36,000.

This lady heard by accident about Spitzer's other intended bride, and visiting her, learned how many kinds of a scoundrel he is. Thus armed, she managed to get back her money by threats of exposure. She procured his arrest on the charge of bigamy. This is now pending.

St Petersburg, March 30.—One result of the measures outlined for the relief of the peasants in the Czar's famous manifesto in that about $57,500,000 arrears of taxes have been cancelled, besides $15,000,000 owing to the district authorities being taken over by the Central Government.

SIR OLIVER SIGNED THE COMMISSION

Judges Have the Document and Will Make Arrangements for an Immediate Hearing

Toronto, March 30—Premier Ross states to a newspaper representative today that the commission to Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge to investigate the Gamey charges had received the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor, and would be in the hands of the judges today. What is termed the commission is the document containing the instructions to the commissioners, which was laid on the table of the House last week, and which was then published.

The judges will immediately proceed to make arrangements for the investigation. The choice of a room to hold the trial in and other minor arrangements will be in their hands. If a suitable room can be found unoccupied at Osgoode Hall or at the Court House, it will probably be chosen, otherwise the reception room, or the chamber at the Parliament buildings may be selected.

The Gamey charges fall naturally under three heading, which will without doubt be investigated: Was there bribery—1, by cash; 2, by patronage; 3, by withdrawal of the protest. The commission, it is understood, covers all the Gamey statement, whether the charges in it are directed against Mr. Stratton or other Ministers, because the Gamey statement is laid by a member, and in writing, according to the requirements of the commission. It is not known yet that any further charges will be preferred for investigation.

The commissioners will meet probably towards the end of the week, but it is not likely that any evidence will be taken before next week. The Legislature will not get through to-day. Mr. Whitney was quite definite upon that point this morning. There are four points to consider: 1, the address in reply to the speech from the throne, and it is understood that the Opposition will take the ground that this should be held over until after the investigation; 2, the evidence bill, which, Mr. Whitney states must not be passed hastily; 3, a supply bill, which the Opposition may or may not oppose; and 4, the adjournment of the House to April 21, upon which the House is bound to divide.

And, more than that, as Mr. Whitney said today: "You can't tell what a day or an hour is going to bring forth nowadays."

Permanent Cure for Neuralgia

Experienced sufferers state that no remedy relieves neuralgia so quickly as a hot application of Polson's Nerviline, the strongest liniment made. Nerviline is certainly very penetrating and has a powerful influence over neuralgic pains, which it destroys almost at once. Nerviline is highly recommended for Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, and Toothache. Better try a 25c. bottle, it's all right.

The Safety Valve of Europe

The steam which has been partly escaping through the Macedonian safety valve has been partly shut off, because all the powers of Europe are sitting on it. The Sultan is also helping to hold it down, and the lot of them are devoutly hoping the boiler won't blow up. It is a great many years, and people are beginning to think it will hold a while longer before letting loose.

The powers are in reality making the same arrangements they made before the Greek war; they have done now what they did then, that is, put a ring fence around the seat of trouble. The powers, especially Austria and Russia, know very well that if a general way got started they would certainly be embroiled, and no European statesmen are sure enough what would be the outcome to make them care for a war. They let Greece fight it out with Turkey and only stepped in in time to save Greece from actual annihilation. It will be the same way with Macedonia or even Bulgaria, if they really start trouble. The Sultan can easily take care of Macedonia, but Bulgaria would be a pretty warm handful. Whether or not Bulgaria will go to war is the chief problem the powers now have before them.

General Belief that It Will Come to This Soon

WOULD BE RESISMED BY GREAT BRITAIN

A Great World War Said to be In Sight

London, March 31, 4 a.m., — The Chronicle's Brussel's correspondent says: The general impression in the Netherlands is that Germany is only awaiting a favorable moment and excuse for annexing the country. This impression has been growing for several years, especially in view of the fact that if France should be placated by the suggestion to take Belgium, there would be no protector to whom Holland could appeal with any hope of a response. The railway trouble in Holland is causing uneasiness that Germany may look on this as a good chance to carry out her designs.

BRIATAIN WOULD RESIST.

London, March 31.—In the event of a war between France and Germany on one side, and Holland and Belgium on the other, for the acquisition of these countries, Great Britain could scarcely stand idly by. Her interests would demand active interference, and all her energies and power would be used to defend the little kingdoms. It is also likely that the United States would assequal struggle for right.

IT IS MUCH NEEDED

New Hall Admitted by the Department to be Necessary

In the annual report of the Militia Department, the Chief Engineer says:

"Peterborough Drill Hall.—General repairs were made to this building and arc lights installed on the drill grounds.

"A new drill hall is much required here."

This is a plain admission by the Militia Department that a drill hall should be built here at once. Last week Sir F. Borden, speaking in Toronto in reference to a new armory, said that the matter was being considered by the Department of Public Works. Evidently, then, the list for such improvements is not yet closed, and we may still hope that representations of our case may cause a grant for a drill shed in Peterborough to appear in the suplementary estimates.

MT. JULIEN HOTEL

Preparing for a Large Trade During the Coming Season

Chas. Armstrong, proprietor of Mount Julian hotel, has sold out to Messrs. Mann and Thompson. They have bought more land property, and are preparing for a large tourist trade. A kitchen 16x36 is going up, besides a ten room cottage. The new hotel will be quite up-to-date, having a water works system all through the rooms, supplied by a windmill. The new proprietors also intend building a tower on the Mountain which will be quite a feature. 25,000 feet of lumber is going to be used on the premises, and when this is used up the place will equal any resort on the famous Kawartha lakes. A livery barn, and barber shop will also be run in connection with the hotel.

UPHOLDS PLAN OF OF GOVERNMENT IN THE GAMEY CHARGES

London Chronicle Insists That a Judicial Commission is Proper Plan

PARTY OF ALL-BRITISH COLONY

London, March 30 — The Chronicle commenting on the Gamey bribery case, holds that the Ontario Government is right in insisting upon a judicial commission, [illegible] the Parnell commission.

UNFAIR TO CANADA.

London, March 30—The Times to-day published the first regular Marconigrams. They were despatched from its new York correspondent, and this is regarded as a red letter day in the history of journalism and telegraphy. Anglo-Canadians ask when the Canadian service will begin, and what benefit Canada gets for the Marconi subsidy when New York is thus given precedence.

SAILING FOR CANADA.

London March 30—The Lake Manitoba will sail from Liverpool to-morrow with 1,900 of the first contingent of the all-British colonials destined for Saskatoon. Mr. Barr accompanies them, and 200 already gone will await the present party in Winnipeg. The colonists themselves take everything necessary for the [illegible] ing transferred from the English to the Canadian banks. Not one foreigner is included in the first contingent, which consists of 920 single men and 250 families of agriculturists. Many are mechanics from the Midland counties, the Channel Islands, Yorkshire and Lancashire.

London, March 30 — The statement that Thomas Skinner is appointed first vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, with offices in London, is accepted as the natural sequel of the present position of affairs, Mr. Skinner having practically fulfilled the duties for some time past in supreme representation of the Canadian Pacific in Europe with great benefit to the company in financial and general affairs.

RRINCIPAL IN LONDON SCANDAL NOW EN ROUTE TO CANADA?

Lady Granville Gordon is Coming to This Country With Her Child

Paris, March 30—It is reported that Lady Granville Gordon, wife of Lord Granville Gordon, whose recent confessions on the witness stand in London in a suit brought by her former husband, Eric Gordon, to recover the custody of his child, caused a sensation and led to the cancellation of her presentation at court, after which she fled to France, is en route to the United States or Canada or is about to sail for there.

LORD G. GORDON'S BOAST.

London, March 30—Lord Granville Gordon has acquired a mania for being interviewed while shaving. Armed with a safety razor he announces that he is always willing to give the satisfaction one gentleman accords to another where some reflection has been made on the character of the latter. He includes in this category most of the parties in the notorious litigation between his wife and Eric Gordon and the judge who decided the case against Lady Granville Gordon.

Despite repeated applications for a writ of habeas corpus, Eric Gordon has been unable to recover his child.

St. Louis, March 31.—Judge Adams has placed no restriction upon the duration of the arguments offered by the attorneys in the Wabash injunction suit. Colonel Blodgett, who began his argument Wednesday, concluded yesterday.

In his speech Mr. Blodgett said: "There is in the laws of both organizations a rule providing that if any member declined to strike when an order was issued by the officers, he should forfeit his membership and pecuniary benefits, and action taken under the fear of losing these was, he declared, plainly coercion." He declared the strike was a conspiracy to tie up the road and injure its business. The railroad demanded federal protection because it was subject to the interstate commerce law.

Mr. Judson for the Wabash, who followed Colonel Blodgett, declared the right to resign is the chief right that labor has, but under the wording of the injunction the officers of the labor organizations are prohibited from insinuating or suggesting to an employe of the Wabash that he could better his condition by quitting work, and this, he said, was an interference with the rights of men to stop work when they chose.

"The charge of conspiracy brought against these defendants," said Mr. Judson, "consists only of the demand of the men that they be represented by a committee in their negotiations with the company. What they most desired was the right of recognition in behalf of their committee."

Mr. Judson denied that the intention was to tie up the Gould lines if the demands of the trainmen were not granted by the Wabash.

Revolution in Newfoundland

Since the introduction into Newfoundland of the new Inhaler Remedy, "Catarrhozone," the treatment of catarrhal diseases has been entirely revolutionized. The old-time snuff and internal medicine has been cast aside and everyone is inhaling Catarrhozone; it clears the head and throat in two minutes, and is very agreeable and pleasant to use. Catarrhozone is a wonderful cure for Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Asthma Bronchitis, Lung Troubles and Deafness. It relieves quickly and cures permanently. We advise our readers to try Catarrhozone. OBITUARY

Death of George Read, Ex-M. P. P. for East Peterborough

We exceedingly regret to chronicle the death of Geo. Read, ex-M.P.P. for East Peterborough. His death, which was caused by pneumonia, took place on Sunday at his home in Keene, where for many years he has been a most highly respected resident. He was well known throughout the country, and for many years has been actively identified in municipal and political matters. In 1867 he was elected Conservative representative for East Peterborough, in the Ontario Legislature and in 1872 he was again returned.

The following reference to the deceased is taken from the "History of the County of Peterborough," published in 1884:—"George Read, born in Grenville County, Ontario, 1818. He attended school in Brockville for a time and afterwards became a clerk in a store in the same town. He acted as clerk in the office of a contractor who built two locks of the Cornwall Canal and on its completion returned to Brockville, holding a clerk's position there. Having previously worked in Belleville, Kingston and Napanee, he finally settled in Keene village and commenced with the assistance of a partner, a business which proved so successful. Mr. Read has filled numerous offices, having been M.P. in two parliaments, township clerk and treasurer since 1850, and continuously clerk of Division Court twenty years. Mr. Read has been twice married, first to Miss Crawford Reid, of Brockville, of which union there are four surviving children. In 1861, the death of his wife occurred, and the year following he married again to Jane, sister of his deceased wife, the result of which marriage is one child —a son. The land owned by Mr. Read includes about 1,000 acres in the county. In politics he is a Conservative and in religion a Presbyterian."

The funeral will take place from the family residence to Keene cemetery to-morrow afternoon.

BOARD OF HEALTH MEETING

Held Yesterday Morning—Extra Precaution Necessary

The local Board of Health met yesterday morning. There were present Mr. R. Neill, chairman, Messrs. G. Schneider, A Parker, Wm. Eyres, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Burnham and Mayor Roger. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Mr. Eyres said that in view of the welcome information contained in a letter from Mr. G. Stevenson, Toronto, that Dr. Bingham would be able to resume his duties as Health Inspector about April 1st, no action had been taken in the matter regarding a supply. The Chief spoke at some length regarding the recent outbreak of scarlet fever at Kenneally's and said that as a second outbreak had taken place after the release of the children from the hospital, the precautions taken by the hospitals should be more strict.

The secretary was instructed to write to both hospitals requesting their immediate attention to this matter and also to the local physicians. The Board then adjourned.

OBITUARY

Death of Mr. Frederic D. Hewson Yesterday Morning

We regret to record the death of Mr. Frederick D. Hewson, at the residence of his mother-in-law Mrs. Thos. Bradburn yesterday morning. The deceased gentleman was born in Barrie and was connected for a number of years, with the Bank of Toronto of that place. About seven years ago he came to Peterborough for the benefit of his health. He was married to a daughter of Mrs. Thos Bradburn, who with an only child, is left to mourn his loss. Deceased was thirty nine years of age. His father died some twenty years ago, and his mother resides at Barrie.

The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from 290 London street and will proceed to Little Lake Cemetery.

RUSSIA IN CHINA

A returned missionary to China, the Rev. Dr. Potts, after an absence of seven years, has given some views on the eastern question, which derive importance from the fact that the rev. Dr. is married to an aristocratic Chinese woman, is the President of St. John's College, at Shanghai, and has had exceptional opportunities of knowing whereof he speaks:

"Russia," he says, "is the greatest obstacle to social and political reform in China. Her designs will best be furthered by keeping China ignorant and conservative. I believe that the Government was sincere in its attempts at the reform of education, but Russia is opposed to an educated China, and her influence has been sufficient to prevent the full carrying out of the educational edict of the autumn of 1901. Russia has adopted a flag for use in China. The significant feature of it is that the upper section contains the Russian eagle, the lower the Chinese dragon.

Dr. Potts says that the collection of indemnity from China on account of the Boxer troubles is having an unhappy effect. He declares that there would be no difficulty if the indemnity were honestly collected, but as every official who had anything to do with it felt it necessary to squeeze out something for himself, the people were compelled to pay the amount four or five times over. In order to justify themselves, the officials in turn assert that the rapacious foreigners are entirely to blame.

Despite many encouraging facts, however, there were hopeful features of Chinese life. The disposition of the various claims in China to regard the rest of their countrymen as foreigners is rapidly disappearing, and everywhere are evidences of the growth of a healthy national spirit.

CANADIAN GRAVES IN AFRICA

A noble work has been done in locating and arranging for memorials to mark 152 graves of Canadians who fell in South Africa.

There remain 80 graves of Canadians to be marked. We are sure that the needed money will be soon subscribed, in response to the appeal made by Lady Minto.

Canada should be able to say that no Canadian who died in the war but has been thought of by his countrymen, and his fate honored.

CHEESE AND BEER

The 12,000 saloonkeepers of Greater New York say that if Governor Odell does not drop his scheme to raise saloonkeepers licenses from $800 to $1,200 a year, they will stop using cheese on their free lunch counters. According to the saloonkeepers, nearly $16,000,000 worth of cheese made by farmers of the State is consumed in the saloons of Greater New York. If the farmers lose the sale of this profitable article, they may blame the governor for their misfortune.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now, go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
736 Albert St., London.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me, God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) J. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

GROWING SUGAR BEETS

Responsibility of the Grower to be Tested in Court

Galt, March 30. — The Ontario Beet Sugar Company has entered a suit against Mr. Walter Littler, of North Dumfries, claiming damages to the extent of $600. The company rented a portion of Mr. Littler's farm last year and put in a crop of beets. The crop was not very well attended to, and at last became completely hidden in a splendid growth of weeds. The rumor got abroad that the prospects were poor, and the company did not intend raising the beets. Mr. Littler's cattle got into the field. Maybe they were turn in and maybe they broke in for the fence was in a poor condition. Now the company claims damages, and the result will be awaited with interest.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

—One of Emily's old land marks, Thomas Wilson, was removed by death on the 18th inst. He will be missed in the family and social circles. For many years he filled the office of elder in the Presbyterian church, also superintendent of the Sunday school at Omemee. We feel deeply for those who are left to mourn his loss.

Hobbled Six Years

Cured in Six Weeks of Chronic Rheumatism by Ferrozone

Hundreds, aye thousands of cures have been put on the market for Rheumatism during the past few years, but a remedy with power to cure Chronic Rheumatism, Ferrozone excepted, in the estimation of Mr. Cullen, of Sturgeon Bay, does not exist.

Mr. Cullen says: "As everyone knows I have been simply tortured for years with Muscular Rheumatism, not the ordinary kind that bothers most people, but the kind that ties one up so tight they can't move.

"For six years I hobbled about like a cripple, unable to move without crutches and canes. I used quantities of medicines, special salts and so forth, but they didn't help me very much.

"On the advice of a Presbyterian minister I used Ferrozone, gave it a good trial at once and soon I saw it was helping. I bought six boxes and took one tablet at the close of each meal. I am perfectly cured and am today as spry as a youngster of ten. I am convinced that my recovery is entirely due to the marvellous action of Ferrozone."

Mr. Cullen's case is a fair example of the kind of cures that Ferrozone is effecting every day. In severe cases of Neuralgia, Sciatica, Rheumatism, and Lumbago, it acts with surprising alacrity, and no case is recorded where it failed.

Ferrozone cures these diseases because it is a solvent for uric acid in the blood. It removes all traces of it and other poisons from the blood in from two to ten days. Then it builds up and invigorates the system, and makes weak, sickly people strong and well enough to resist and ward off disease.

The best Rheumatism remedy that one can buy is Ferrozone. It relieves quickly and cures so perfectly that the disease never again returns. After all other remedies fail, it cures, and that is the sort of medicine you want. Ferrozone price 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to you address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

asked. "Do you know something? Guess something?"

He pulled himself together, and answered her gravely enough:

"It doesn't do to make guesses in a case like this. Come tell me, how did you come to know of it? Where have you been?"

Norma remembered, with an effort, that her hiding-place was a secret to him.

"Never mind. Don't ask," said she. "I don't wish you to know. Only you may be sure of this: If you should ever want me, I shall not be far off."

He advanced his face very near to her in the darkness.

"My little, passionate-hearted, wild girl," said he tenderly, "when it comes to an emergency you seem to be braver, more sure-witted than I!"

Norma gave a trembling sigh.

"I hope I am learning to be wiser, less foolish at least, less wicked, than I was before I knew you," said she softly. "And if I do learn the lesson, it will be from the teacher I have here."

And she pressed her hands upon her heart.

"My darling! My poor darling!" cried Astley.

And he would have kissed her, caressed her, but she would not let him.

"Wait! Wait," sighed she gently, as she held him away from her.

"And if we wait in vain," said he "what then? Will you always stay away? Will you always keep me off! When you know that there is nothing between us but a mountain of falsehood deception and lies?"

Norma waited a moment to be sure that her voice should be steady, and then she whispered:

"The lies will be found out, the deception will be punished. Oh, I do believe it, I will! And you must believe it too: and in the meantime you must be brave, and you must put yourself in Mr. Capper's hands, and be patient if you can."

"Capper's gone to London," said Astley. "I saw him off this evening."

"And did you walk back from the station over the fields?" asked Norma softly.

"Yes." He turned upon her quickly "How did you know?"

But she would not tell him. She did not want him to know exactly where her hiding-place was. So they walked in silence through the tangle of brushwood guided by the voices and moving lanterns of the group, which had now become a large one, to the place where the tragedy had happened.

They made way for the baronet and held their lanterns up for him to see the dead man, who was lying just where Norma had left him, on the short grass.

"A stranger, sir, I think," said a man who was kneeling on one knee beside the body, raising his lantern for the gentleman to see the dead man's face.

Astley said nothing, but he shuddered and turned away with a frown of perplexity on his face.

"Who was the first person who found this out?" asked he shortly, with a searching look round.

"I was," said Norma, in a hoarse voice. "I saw a flash and heard a report, and then another flash, and another report, and a cry, oh, a horrible cry!"

A shudder went round the group, and the women and girls gathered nearer together in the darkness.

"What!" cried he, aghast.

Norma went on: "I was outside, in the road; when I got over the wall, I could see no one, until—until I came upon this."

Her voice sank.

Everybody was crowding round, listening intently, when the noise of a horse's hoofs suddenly distracted their attention, and in another minute the cry of "The doctor!" went round.

All made way for the medical man, but Astley made a gesture of annoyance when he found that it was Dr. Wharles whom the messenger had brought.

The doctor was dashing through the plantation, and was among them all in a moment.

"Make way, my friends, make way," he cried in his hearty, cheery voice, which struck a strange contrast to the sickly horror which was in everybody's heart. "Dear, dear! This is a bad business! He's dead, quite dead. Poor fellow!"

With just such short pauses as were necessary between the phrases, while he made a rapid examination of the body, the doctor made this pronouncement, which everybody had expected, amid the awed silence of the little crowd. He appeared to be unaware of the presence of Astley, and devoted himself entirely to his duty, with the coolness and nerve begotten of experience.

"Poor fellow! Who is he?" he asked, as he took the nearest lantern, and held it close to the dead man's face.

Quite sharp and clear Norma's voice rang out: "Why, you ought to know, Dr. Wharles, for he called at your house yesterday."

Everybody was startled by these words, which caused the doctor to look up. Perhaps he had not noticed that Norma was among the crowd.

"Indeed, Lady Darwen," said he, very coolly, "I don't see how you should know who called upon me better than I do myself!"

There was a sort of feeling that the handsome doctor, whose quarrel with the lady's husband was the talk of the place, had "scored" against Norma, who remained silent for a space, while the doctor asked some further questions as to the person who had discovered the body. When he was told it was the lady whom all now knew for the first time to be Lady Darwen, the doctor turned to her with cool and dignified respectfulness.

"And may I ask, Lady Darwen," he said, "whether you did actually see the man shoot himself?"

"Shoot himself!" echoed she, in surprise.

"Yes. To me the position of the wound points to suicide," said Dr. Wharles.

"Then where's the pistol?" said Norma.

There was a sort of murmur in the crowd, and the fluent doctor said nothing for a moment. The men and women looked at each other and nodded silently. This time it was Norma, plainly, who had "scored" against the doctor.

For the ground had been searched all round the body, and no trace of any weapon had been found.

CHAPTER XVII.

The silence was broken by one of the men in the group round, who nodded first to the lady and then to the doctor.

"I've looked round and about, but there's no pistol nigh 'im, doctor," said he.

"The body has been moved, evidently," answered Dr. Wharles. "He certainly didn't fall on his side like this. It's impossible. The person who found him may have found the pistol also, and taken it away. Who was it? Come, speak out, some of you! Doesn't anybody know who it was found the poor fellow first? Who was in the wood at the time?"

"I was not in the wood, but I was just outside, and I saw two flashes, and I suppose I was the first to find the body," said Norma, in a low voice. "But I found no pistol. The coat and waistcoat had been torn open," she added steadily.

"Torn open? You mean they were open?" said the doctor with decision.

"I thought they had been torn open," she repeated firmly, "either to rob the poor man or to find out whether he was dead."

A thrill ran through the crowd. There seemed already to be a feeling abroad that among those present were some for one reason or another deeply interested in the case.

"And can nobody else give any information?" went on the doctor.

"Yes," said Norma. "I found a boy, a big, rough boy, perched in a tree, that tree."

And she pointed to an oak a few paces away from where they all stood

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE.

Some time ago a man got a curious present from a sea captain. It was a fine specimen of the bird which the sailors call the "laughing jackass," and he was not a little proud of it. As he was carrying it home he met a brawny Irish navvy, who stopped him and asked: "Phwat kind of burrd is that, sorr?" "That's a laughing jackass," explained the owner, genially. The Irishman, thinking he was being made fun of, was equal to the occasion, and responded, with a twinkle of the eye: "It's not yersilf, it's the burrd Oi mane, sorr!"

Rev. Mr. Greene, a preacher at Findley's Lake, Pa., took his congregation to task a few Sundays ago because the members were not, in his opinion, giving suitable support to church work. The reverend gentleman mentioned by name several of those whom he regarded as at fault, but was injudicious enough to include Editor Boerman among the lot. "Why," said the preacher, "Mr. Boerman only paid a dollar toward my support." The editor retorted: "It was dear at the price," and Mr. Greene thereupon learned that it is dangerous to monkey with a buzz-saw.

When David Graham Phillips, author of "Her Serene Highness," was a very young man he applied for work on a Cincinnati paper. "What can you do?" said the editor. "I can try anything," said the young man. Thinking to rid himself of the importunate lad by an assignment, the editor said, "Well, write an article on bread." It was a trying moment for the ambitious youngster, but he never flinched. All that night he spent in collecting material, and the next day reported to the somewhat surprised editor with a bright and newsy article on "The Bakeries of Cincinnati." He was immediately engaged.

Charles Wyndham, the actor, who has recently been knighted by King Edward, made his first appearance on any stage as an actor at Mrs. John Wood's Olympic Theater in New York. A story has been preserved showing that stage fright and inexperience combined to make his premiere a most discouraging occasion. In a certain love-scene he was expected to say: "Dearest, I am drunk with that enthusiasm of love which but once in a lifetime fills the soul of man." But the young actor, overwhelmed with nervousness, could only exclaim: "Dearest, I am drunk," and there stuck fast, to the great amusement of the audience.

Julian Ralph says that during the Diamond Jubilee, near the close of Queen Victoria's reign, a journalist of world-wide note was commissioned to seek an interview with the Marquis of Salisbury. He was promptly ushered into the great man's presence, and conducted his business without by word, hint, or tone suggesting that he remembered having worked upon the same newspaper staff with the Premier when he was Lord Robert Cecil. At the close of the interview the Premier called him by his surname, as in the old days, without the prefix "mister." "Cowper," said he (Mr. Ralph substitutes a false name for the true one), "I never paid that bet of sixpence which I lost to you one day in the office. Do you remember it?" "Yes, your Lordship." "Let me pay it now," said the Marquis, and handed over the small coin; "I have often thought of it."

FROM INVESTMENTS IN GOOD MINING PROPERTIES—HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

The Electric Spark GOLD MINING COMPANY

Stock was placed on the market eighteen months ago and sold for SIX CENTS per share. In less than six months the stock was selling at FIFTEEN CENTS, and a few months ago rose to TWENTY CENTS, at which price it is now being bought and sold. $100.00 invested eighteen months ago would bring you today $333.33. CAN YOU FIND A BETTER INVESTMENT? Do you know that mining affords about the only opportunity for people of small means to make a large amount of money? Why? Because everything except mining is controlled by the trusts and combines, and the small dealer is soon frozen out. We have left to sell

20,000 Shares at 20c. per share

Inside of twelve months this stock will be worth $1.00 per share and paying a dividend. PICKING UP MANHATTAN

New York, March 30.—Certain stocks in which bull pools exist, and which at times are comparatively low, are at times picked up by insiders at a time when adverse influences are effecting the general list. The bears the latter part of the week managed to create considerable uneasiness as to the immediate future; leading to considerable selling, the kind that usually clears up a congested atmosphere. In the process insiders picked up offerings in several issues under guise of the general selling movement. Saturday it was plainly noticeable in the case of Manhattan stocks, which was taken liberally as offered, actually at advancing figures when the general list was declining. A certain firm, for some time past identified with the market movement of Manhattan distributed literal buying orders. Taken at its present market price, considering the fact that it is a guaranteed 7 per cent. city property of the great metropolis, it is unduly cheap. It is certain to again sell well above 150. Its report of earnings allowing large increases with cost of operation decreasing, is most gratifying and satisfactory. The guarantors have a good thing also, as the company is earning considerably in excess of the seven per cent. now paid and guaranteed. The old saying electricity is life is wholly applicable to Manhattan. Change of motive power from steam to electricity is saving the company some 15 per cent. in operating expenses, which is fully as good as a net increase in earnings of a similar amount. Below 140 the stock is absolutely a meritorious bargain, double so when the bull clique see fit to absorb it at going prices. We strongly recommend picking up Manhattan at the present time. The best time to buy standard shares is when they are depressed. Pay no attention to the pessimistic stories now in circulation. Do you remember the bull stories in circulation when the market was at top prices last September. The bear stories now are probably as little worthy of attention as the bull stories were at the time when a certain great operators now alleged to be bearish issued a book extolling the great merits of so [illegible] 80.

SUMMARY.

Liquidation was again in evidence to-day, and the bear party had practically their own way. The market closed at a tempting buying level, and we would not be surprised to see a substantial rally without delay, as conditions for a rise were never better. In the interim an excellent trading market is ahead. Sales 617,000.

Oil Stocks

Mr. Norris P. Bryant, Dealer in Investment Securities, 84 St. Francois Xavier street, Montreal, has recently compiled what is said to be the most complete Price List of Oil, Mining and Industrial Securities issued great care having been exercised to make it as correct as possible.

Gleams from a recent examination in the San Francisco schools:

"Define fathom and form a sentence with it."

"A fathom is six feet. A fly has fathom."

"Define species."

"Species is kind. A boy must be species to his mother."

"Define odorless."

"Odorless is without scent. A man who is odorless cannot ride in the car."

Prospective Tenant—But there is a bowling alley next door. I thought you said it was so quiet you could hear a pin drop?

Landlord—I meant a ten-pin.—Philadelphia Record.

Bigg—Yes, sir. Sad case! Man who built this house of mine just got it finished, when he died.

Wigg—Well, it might have been worse. He might have had to live in it.
—Brooklyn Life.

"I haven't had a single call since I opened my office ten days ago," complained the newly-fledged M.D. "Here I sit day after day like Patience on a monument."

"Oh, well, don't get discouraged," rejoined the sympathetic friend. "It's only a matter of time until you have patients under monuments."—Chicago Daily News.

The boy's father—Madam, let me ask if your daughter knows how to run a house—can cook, for example, and nurse the sick, mend clothes, and, in fact, is familiar with all the multifarious details of domesticity?

The girl's mother—Certainly not, sir! Why, if she had learned all those things her education would have been neglected.—Judge.

Largest Surgical Fee Ever Paid.

J. Ogden Armour of Chicago recently persuaded Dr. Adolf Lorenz, one of the world's most famous surgeons, to come to America to perform an operation on the millionaire's little daughter, Lolita. Some children are so unlucky as to be born with their hip-joint out of its socket. Of course unless the joint can be put in place such children are cruelly crippled for life. This misfortune had happened to the little daughter of Mr. Armour. By orthopaedic surgery, without the shedding of blood, and by the use of hands and instruments that will move the dislocated bones and sinews into their proper place, Dr. Lorenz has effected many cures of such cases. After operating successfully on the little Armour girl, a service for which he is said to have received a fee of one hundred thousand dollars, the largest fee on record for a single operation, Dr. Lorenz gave a demonstration at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, where, with eight hundred doctors and students looking at him, he did for nine afflicted children the same service he had done for Mr. Armour's child. The newspaper account of how he did it describes the unconscious child brought to him, the "large projection at the hip-joint caused by the head of the dislocated femur," and the corresponding depression in the groin, "deep and discolored, with the surrounding flesh shrunken and unnatural in appearance," showing where the head of the bone belonged. Then the despatch says:

"The surgeon took the leg in his hands, drew it up at right angles to the body, and, holding it [illegible] manipulations I am about to make might with ease break the bones of the leg. It is not necessary to break bones, however. It is only necessary to know how to handle them.' A series of rapid, deft turns, twists, and pulls followed. Suddenly the surgeon paused. He held the leg in one hand and pointed with the other to the spot where the dislocation had been so apparent. The spectators then saw the culminating point of the operation. The ugly protrusion was gone; the depression beside it was gone too, and except for the discoloration of the flesh the entire hip appeared like the other. The eight hundred onlookers broke out in applause. No knife had been used; nothing had been done, as was formerly believed indispensable to prepare the socket for the presence of the dislocated femur. Knowledge, skill, a certain amount of daring and precision of movement, which showed a knowledge to a hair's-breadth of how far to move and twist, had wrought what medical men say will be a cure. It had taken five minutes."

BRONCHITIS

Scientifically Treated

The best authorities agree that bronchitis is treated most scientifically by Catarrhozone, which goes right to the root of the trouble

Bronchitis can be treated successfully only by a remedy carried direct to the affected parts along with the air breathed.

Catarrhozone is a vegetable antiseptic and is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through all the air passages of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, is exhaled through the nose.

The healing vapor of Catarrhozone goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and reaches every part that is affected. No matter how deep-seated the bronchial irritation may be, Catarrhozone is sure to reach it. Catarrhozone protects and heals the mucous membrane, stops the cough, heals up the sores, and is guaranteed to bring speedy relief and sure cure.

By means of the inhaler Catarrhozone treats the local symptoms of bronchial trouble very effectually. The poisons and impurities in the blood are driven off by Ferrozone, which is a wonderful tonic and stimulant for the entire system. Ferrozone is a muscle and tissue builder, increases the appetite aids digestion and makes the body so healthy and strong that bronchitis goes away for good.

A prominent steamboat owner, well known throughout Eastern Ontario, Captain Dunlop, of Kingston, was perfectly cured of Bronchitis by Catarrhozone. The Captain had suffered for more than 20 years, and says that Catarrhozone is the best cure for Bronchitis on the face of the globe.

Mr. A. J. Calhoun, a prominent citizen of Neepawa, Manitoba, speaks very appreciatively of Catarrhozone as a specific for Bronchitis, and states that his wife could not get along without it.

Everyone that has used Catarrhozone is satisfied that it is superior to all other remedies. It is delightful to inhale, simple and convenient to use, and relieves from the first breath taken through the inhaler.

Better try Catarrhozone. All druggists sell and recommend it. Complete outfit, price $1.00; trial size, 25c. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

From the American Cereal Company, enclosing a copy of a letter from John O'Toole, re Mr. J. H. Burnham's complaint of damages done his dwelling through a dynamite explosion at the Company's new dam at London street. Mr. O'Toole explained that on the date in question, he merely used 15lbs of dynamite, which is an unusually light charge, and he cannot understand how Mr. Burnham's house in particular was affected by the shock. There are several other houses within 300 feet of the work, also the power house, which is not more than 150 feet distant, and he had no complaints of any damage being done to any of those buildings. Mr. O'Toole also explained that in excavating sewers on public streets in towns and cities, more than twice the above quantity of dynamite is used in one blast, within 25 feet of houses, without doing any damage. In this connection Mr. MacDonald, superintendent of the Company asked to be informed of any further complaints of a similar nature to that made by Mr. Burnham.—Received.

From Geo H. Duncan, drawing council's attention to the bad condition of the road between King and Sherbrooke streets.—Board of Works.

From the National Sanitarium Association of Canada, giving a brief summary of the monies expended in, and the work accomplished by, the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst, and asking for financial assistance in carrying on the good work.—Received.

From the Otonabee Power Co., applying for the privilege of erecting poles and stringing wires on streets in town to enable them to carry out their contracts for current.—Referred to a Committee of the Whole Council.

From F. Bartlett, applying for a position as superintendent of all construction work, and denying that he is responsible for certain bad work done under his supervision.—Received.

From Wm. Yelland and R. J. Wolstenhilm, asking that a granolithic sidewalk be constructed on the north side of Murray street, from Aylmer street to Bethune street.—Board of Works.

From S. R. Armstrong saying that the Local Board of Health would like to have a conference with the Town Council and Water Commissioners in regard to the health of the Town and asking that such a conference be arranged.—Received.

From Llewellyn & Morrison saying that the Peterborough Old Boys of Toronto will visit Peterborough and Lakefield on July 25th next. Some will get off at Peterborough, the balance will go on direct to Lakefield for a trip up the lakes and scatter generally for a visit among friends for a rest over Sunday, to meet at Peterborough on Monday, from 11 to 12 a.m., to have a visit there, receive the hospitality of the Plate Glass City's citizens and enjoy themselves for the afternoon, say till 5 p.m. —Referred to a Committee of the Whole Council.

SILENCE!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of free consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Doctor R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Pfouts Valley, Perry Co., Pa., "I can truthfully recommend these medicines for all female weaknesses. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing to weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your kind advice for home treatment helped me wonderfully. Thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

WHEN THE KING VISITS CITY OF PARIS

He will Meet President Loubet---A Sign of the Improved Relations Between Britain and France.

London, March 31—The Times' Paris correspondent says the Echo de Paris announces that an interview has been arranged between King Edward and President Loubet. Well-informed diplomatic circles regard the news as correct, and expect the King's visit to Paris will have quite an official character. The Echo de Paris says M. Delcasse attaches great importance to the coming interview, and that the arrangement is due to M. Delcasse's initiative. The Times' correspondent says it is certain King Edward's presence in Paris will afford the utmost satisfaction to the French Government and to a large majority of the French people. It will testify to the undoubtedly improved relations between Great Britain and France.

OMDURMAN'S HERO NOW IN THE GRAVE

Sir Hector Macdonald's Funeral at Edinburgh

London, March 30—I met the body of General Sir Hector Macdonald at London Bridge on its arrival form Paris on Sunday morning. Save the pressman and the General's brother and cousin, not a soul was present. It was the cruellest reception ever accorded to a British General. The coffin was encased in pine and ticketed, "Macdonald, Edinboro'." The railway porters shoved it into an ordinary one-horse van, covered with advertisements, which drove across London to King's Cross, followed by two cabs. It was placed on the floor of a dirty luggage van of the Scotch express. Hundreds viewed it through the open door. Representatives of Scotch societies gathered and wreaths were deposited, while Lady Jeune, wife of Justice Jeune, placed roses on the coffin. Not a single officer or soldier visited the remains.

Two kilted pipers played the "Flowers of the Forest," as the train started.

Lady Macdonald, advised by the authorities, refused a public funeral at the General's native village and insisted upon burial at Edinboro'.

The funeral took place at 9 o'clock this morning in the presence of two hundred people. Doctor Whyte, a Presbyterian divine, officiated. Six old soldier comrades in mufti carried the casket. Major Romsay, of the Scotch volunteers, alone appeared in uniform. Dr. Rawlinson, of Toronto, was at the grave side.

A GYPSY HAUNT IN MONTREAL CITY

Disease and Suffering, But Plenty of Gold, Found Among Them, Strange Lot of People Unearthed

Montreal, March 31— Through the arrest of a Gypsy, named George Sterio, Montreal gets a peep into one of the strangest sights of its kind that either police or press have been called upon to investigate.

In a hovel twenty feet square from thirty-eight and fortyfive people have been living, and are now living in squalor and wretchedness beyond power of adequate description.

Complaints of clever "flim-flam" games reached the detective office towards the end of the week, and Chief of Detectives Carpenter, set Dan McLaughlin to catch the thieves.

Down on Craig street the officer found that the men had made a clean sweep of those keeping second-hand stores, and very few had escaped without losing all the way from a five-dollar bill to fifteen dollars. A description of the men led to the belief that they belonged to a party of Turkish gypsies. Soon afterwards McLaughlin found one of the men in the very act of trying the game in a pawnbroker's store.

THE METHOD ADOPTED.

The scheme is simple, yet it requires a man of nerve and experience to accomplish it. This man went into a store with two others, the latter looking at some clothing, and he incidentally asking if he could get Canadian bills for English gold. As he proposed to allow a small percentage for exchange the money was produced. He handed out ten sovereigns, and asked for ten dollar bills for it. Then he decided that he had better have five dollar bills, next he wanted one dollar bills, and finally decided not to make the change just then. In handing back the bills a five or a ten of their money would be held out, and the theft only discovered after the man had left.

SOME OF THE VICTIMS.

Among the victims were Mrs. M. Lamson, Joseph . Galley, J. Miller, Goldberg, Alec. Panarski, and a number of others.

Today complaints are being made as fast as the court clerks can write out the complaints.

The man that McLaughlin found gave his name as George Sterio, but refused to say who the men were that had been accompanying him on the rounds. The fifty dollars in gold was taken from the counter where he had laid it in readiness for the proposed change. This McLaughlin took, and Sterio at once suggested that twenty dollars should be given to the victim, and that the detective keep the balance and let his prisoner go. This style of doing things is not in vogue in the detective office, and Sterio went to the cells.

Then McLaughlin set out to find the companions and he met an experience that will long be remembered.

A TUMBLE-DOWN ROOKERY.

The colony is quartered up one flight of stairs in to tumble-down rookery at 120a St. Antoine street. It was half-past nine o'clock Saturday night when he reached the place, and already the inmates had settled down for the night.

As a matter of fact, when once in the room in which they live their settling down hours are the same as any other, for they never undress; they have no beds; they have not an article of furniture of any kind whatever. They have rags enough to start a paper factory, and these are from one to two feet high all over the room.

The place is only twenty feet square but it is divided by so-called partitions which happened to be there when the gypsies arrived. There is no thought of privacy of any character.

In a mass of dirt and filth, men women, young girls and boys, and tiny babies, scarce a month old, lay on the rags, while here and there other members of the party sat beside the fires.

NO STOVES—NO WARMTH.

There were no fires! no stoves—no stove pipes from below that might have taken off the chill of the cold night. Simply old [illegible] in which charcoal burned, and in the charcoal pots of tea or a tomato tin, in which a few little stewing bones told of the manner in which these poor people live.

COUNTED THIRTY-EIGHT.

Thirty-eight were counted. Under a great pile of filthy old sacks of something there was a babe but a few weeks old, while near it, was an old man in the last stages of consumption.

One tallow candle burned dimly in one of the compartments. McLaughlin turned his pocket light into the faces of one after the other of the frightened people, and then it was seen that some of the children were dangerously ill.

Pimpled, fever-parched faces suggested smallpox, and the health authorities are now at work. Whether or not the cases are as serious as that remains to be seen.

And all this poverty, while the leader of the band has in his possession the sum of £2,000—$10,000 in gold.

This he stated defiantly when he asked to be allowed to give bail for Sterio.

"I'm not poor,' he said; "we dont have to steal. Here is eight hundred dollars in English gold (he produced the gold) and can make it two thousand pounds as soon as I go to camp."

When asked why he did not supply his people with the ordinary comforts of life he smiled and said that they could not be happier except when they longed for the summertime when they could live in the fields under canvas.

Sterio pleaded not guilty when he was brought before Judge Lafontaine, said that there was a mistake, but the victims are all sure that he is the man.

The gypsies intend to stay here one month longer, when they will set out in the direction of Cornwall. They are now looking for horses, wagons, and other necessities for their journey.

PACKERS FOUND GUILTY

They are in a Trust and are Fined $5,000 Each

Jefferson City, March 31.—The supreme court this morning in an opinion written by Judge Marshall decided that there was a beef trust and awarded judgment for the state against the packers on the charge of combining against the trust law of the state, to fix and control the prices of meat. The packers were fined $5,000 each together with the costs of the case.

The packers against whom the judgment was issued are the Armour Packing Company, the Hammond Packing Company, the Cudahy Packing Company, Swift & Co., and Schwarzschild & Sulzberger. All of these companies have extensive branch houses in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo.

This will net the state $25,000 from these five packing concerns.

LAW TO BE CHANGED

Affecting Municipal Council and School Boards

It is probable that after the Gamey charges have been disposed of and the Legislature is in a position to transact other business, that an Act, striking out the clause in the Municipal Act, which prohibits the members of school boards from serving on municipal councils will be brought up. It was introduced last session by Mr. Hoyle of North Ontario, to meet a special case in his own riding. It went through without discussion, and few were even aware that it was on the statute book. The result has been that there have been unseatments every week since the first of January, of men legitimately elected in ignorance of the clause. It has proven a good source of revenue to country lawyers, but is not regarded as useful in other respects.

SPRING IS HERE

So Thinks the Poetry Editor of this Great Family Journal

The usual supply of spring poetry is arriving daily and is used for fierwood. This g. f. j. is capable of looking after the string poetry matter itself, and starts out with the following:

Come, gentle spring, and with you bring the crocuses and daisies, bring balmy air and weather fair, I long for you like blazes. I dream of lambs, which with their mams, are in the meadows skipping. I wake to find the winter wind is at me still a-snipping! The old groundhog has slipped a cog, but that is no good reason why spring should wait and get here late, and come all out of season. The barnyard hen gives now and then a premature cackle, the roosters proudly crow, long and loud and then their rivals tackle. The old bullfrog down in the bog is clearing out his swaller, he wonders why the spring is shy, I know he wants to hollar. Then gentle spring, do come and bring us breezes warm and vernal. I'm tired to death of winter's breath, and roads that are infernal.

ON COMMITTEE

Parliamentary Representatives of the District At Ottawa

The Federal Parliamentary representatives of Victoria and Peterborough, are placed on the following committees.

Hon. Geo. McHugh is on the Library Joint Committee. He is also on Railways and Private Bills.

Hon. John Dobson is on Joint Printing Committee and Private Bills.

Hon. G. W. Cox, is on Banking and Commerce, and Railways.

Col. Sam. Hughes, in the Commons is on Railways, Standing Orders, Printing, Public Accounts, Banking and Commerce, Agricultural and Colonization.

Dr. Vrooman, is on Expiring Laws, Railways, Standing Orders, Agriculture.

Mr. Kendry is on Railways, Banking.

It is evident that in the Commons, as elsewhere, the willing horse gets his full share of the work. Col. Sam. does not smoke, that is one reason why he can get through so much. It is more pleasure to him than the best cigar ever made to go to a Committee and hustle it into doing something. It tickles him all through to give a Committee a shock like that.

WAR ON ITALY ON BEHALF OF POPE

Porzer Would Fight if Necessary for Pope's Temporal Power

Vienna, March 31.—What amounts to a propaganda in favor of Austria Hungary making war on Italy, if necessary to restore the temporal sovereignty of the Pope, was inaugurated at the annual meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Catholic Schools in Austria, now in session here. Vice-President Porzer developed the proposal in a strong speech, partly devoted to an attack on the Austrian Government, for the alleged failure to exercise itself properly in the interests of the Holy See. Herr Porzer declared that Austria should have intervened to secure the representation of the Pope at the Hague Peace Conference regardless of the contention of the other powers that His Holiness could not be thus represented because no longer a reigning prince.

"Two Peace Congresses," said Porzer, "will meet in Vienna this year, and Austrian Catholics expect the Government to redeem itself."

Such talk cannot be dismissed as simply academic, because, while the vast majority of the people would oppose the views expressed, the Court is intensely clerical, and the Emperor still absolute, notwithstanding Parliamentary institutions. Military opinion carries great weight at Court, and popular opinion practically none.

A FOOL AND A GUN

Young Woman Instantly Killed By Her Brother

Philadelphia, March 30—Mrs. Esther Stewart, aged 21 years, was shot and killed to-night in her home by Charles Gaum, her brother, 18 years old. Gaum says he took the pistol from a sideboard and playfully pointed it at his sister and it was accidentally discharged.

A SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

Held in the Charlotte Street Church on Monday Evening

A very successful social under the auspices of the Epworth League of the Charlotte street Methodist church was held in the church on Monday evening last. There was a good attendance and a very excellent programme was presented. The chair was very ably filled by Mr. A. Sorsoleil. The programme consisted of a well-executed instrumental solo by Miss Hellman, a most enjoyable singing and whistling duet entitled "My Whippoorwill," by the Masters Hall, and a vocal solo "The Palms," by Miss Anderson, which was much appreciated. Messrs. Freeborn, Haldron Armstrong and Weir, sang a quartette, "Nearer My God to Thee."

After the programme refreshments were served and a pleasant social time was spent. The "Penny for Your Thoughts" scheme worked very well, the object being to find answers to a dozen questions, the answers to be found on the back of a cent. The singing of the National Anthem brought an enjoyable eveneing to a close.

EDWARDS' DE KING

A Man Who had a Big Pull With Laurier

The following has been received by The Times for publication;

Hon. W. C. Edwards, of Ottawa, one of the newly-appointed senators, is a lumberman who operated far up the Gatineau river, and he tells this story of a shantyman who had spent a couple of seasons working for him in the bush, and was coming out again shortly after the death of Queen Victoria:

At Maniwaki, the shantyman made his first stop on the way down, and in a chat with the hotelkeeper asked what was the news since he had gone to the woods.

"Oh, there's nothing much new. I s'pose you heard up there that the Queen was dead!"

"No, you don't tole me de Queen was dead. I'm sorry to hear dat. I'm sorry. She was a good woman, de Queen, an' a good Queen, too. Well, we'll all die some tam, even the Queen."

After a short, respectful pause, he asked, "An' who's got de job now! Who's de head now!"

"Oh, Edward's the King now. It's King Edward for the last three months."

"Edwards' de King! Well, well, you don't tole me Edwards' de King! He's a beeg man in de lumber beesness, but I never expec' to hear of him be de King. Whata pull dat man Edwards mus' have wit' Laurier.'

IRISH FIND FAULT WITH LAND BILL

The Nationalist Press is Claiming That Ireland will Pay the Bill

London, March 31—The Times' Dublin correspondent says the Irish Nationalist press is working hard to concentrate public opinion on its contention that the land bill is going to be financed entirely by Irish money, and that it is absurd to talk of a gift from the Imperial treasury, which will really make a substantial profit out of the transaction.

This line is also taken by the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin, who, however, acquits Mr. Wyndham of any intention to mislead.

Freeman's Journal clamors for a larger reduction in the Irish estimates remarking: "To make Place-Hunter pay Rack-Renter is as near to justice as we are likely to get during the present generation. And it is cheaper than civil war." It is strongly claimed that the saving should be treated as an Irish credit and not as a British asset.

People With Bad Breath

Generally suffer from Catarrh and should use Catarrhozone Inhaler four times daily, and be cured. The pleasant scented Catarrhozone vapor spreads through every air passage of the breathing organs, and reaches the very root of the disease at once; it kills the germs, purifies and cleanses the mucous surfaces, and erradicates every vestige of catarrh in a short time.

Pure, sweet breath, free from headache, sneezing and discharge are quickly derived from the use of Catarrhozone Inhaler. Complete outfit, guaranteed to cure, costs $1.00, trial size 25c. Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE KOCH THEORY SAID NOT TO BE PRACTICAL

That is the View of English and American Doctors at Present Moment

MEDICAL CONGRESS MEETING IN SPAIN

Famous Men Will Discuss All Questions Including Those Relating to Pulmonary Diseases

London, March 31.—Many physicians have reached London on their way to Madrid to attend the Triennial Medical Congress in April. The Americans will attempt to secure a special meeting of the Congress at St. Louis next year. The discussions at Madrid will be in the the hands of famous men from all parts of the world, and will cover the whole field of medicine and surgery.

Pulmonary diseases will once more receive a large share of attention, but it is not believed that Prof. Koch's theory will be much discussed.

Both English and American physicians who will attend the congress intimate that they regard the theory as of little practical importance, since prudent sanitary authorities and the public at large in every country will continue to draw the line at cattle afflicted with tuberculosis.

Via Port Hope

Ottawa, March 31— A deputation waited on the Minister of Railways and Canals to-day concerning the extension of the Trent Valley Canal down to Lake Ontario.

Mr. Blair's visitors asked that the Port Hope route be adopted in preference to that via Trenton. The request was supported by three M.P's from the district, Beith, Ward and McColl.

SCORE OF MEN WERE TERRIBLY BURNED

At Braddock, Pa., Owing to a Big Furnace Explosion, Three of Injured Men Dead

Pittsburg, March 31—Fourteen men were seriously burned and three fatally in an explosion today at Blast Furnace "I" of the Edgar Thompson Works, Braddock, Pa. The men were casting, and, without the least warning, the big furnace suddenly let go. Molten metal was thrown in all directions, and covered some of the men from head to foot. Doctors were hurried to the scene, and after dressing the injured, seven of the victims were removed to the hospital in this city. One of the men died on the way to the hospital and several of the victims will not recover.

THE CANAL IS UNDER THE OLD UNION JACK

Important Discovery of an Old Map of Alaska at Quebec

Montreal, March 31.—Mr. Joseph Pope, C. M. G., Under-Secretary of State, has been searching for the past few days among the archives of the Chateau de Ramezay, in this city, for material to prove the Canadian contention in the Alaskan boundary dispute. As a result of his search, a couple of old atlases, published in the years 1823 and 1824 were found. These contain maps showing the location of the boundary line between Russian America, as Alaska was then called, and British America, as Canada was then known. A point worthy of note in conection with these maps is that Lynn Canal is shown as being in British America. This canal is at present claimed by the United States Government as a portion of Alaskan territory. The boundary line between the two countries is well defined in the maps, which have been taken to Ottawa for further scrutiny on the part of those supervising the Canadian claims. Another map, dated 1860, was also found, giving the boundaries of Alaska seven years before it passed into the hands of the United States. Mr. Pope obtained permission from the Chateau authorities to take these documents to Ottawa, where the maps will be photographed. They may be of service to the Canadian commissioners in the coming conference with the United States.

MR. GAMEY WILL APPEAR BEFORE COURT

And Will Tell All He Knows Regarding His Bribery Charges

Speculation as to What More the Manitoulin Man may have to Say

Toronto, March 31.—There is little doubt but that Mr. Gamey will go before the commission of enquiry. His statement in the Legislature, at the closing hour of the debate on Friday night was only a protest against other ministers other than the provincial secretary and was not an intimation that he would decline to give evidence. The concern of the opposition over the terms of the attorney-general's evidence bill is considered to be proof that the member for Manitoulin will state his case before the commission. In any case Mr. Gamey, if summoned, as he doubtless will be under the same regulations for compulsory attendance, and answering of questions as any person else.

There is much speculation as to the new evidence which Mr. Gamey will mised that the half of the story has produce. It has been generally surnot been told. If he has any trump cards up his sleeve the fact has been carefully concealed in the information bureau of Mr. Gamey and his advisers.

MacDonald was Insane

New York, March 31.—The New York Sun publishes the following letter:

However the public may think, and no matter what the law, civil, or military, may be, progressive medical men will be sure that all things go to show that Sir Hector Macdonald was insane—that his suicide and other mad acts proceeded from insanity, pure and simple.

The pity and grief of it all is most that a trace of condemnation will linger to poison his fame and glory. The more the pity when it is realized that this insanity was almost certainly acquired in fulfilment of high and heroic duties—a noble mind destroyed by tropical heat, wounds and disease.

Two things are clear in this sad case; Macdonald was crazy, and his latter acts proceeded from this cause. Therefore not a trace of blemish or stigma should smirch his memory. One other thing is even plainer; his friends if they had had a decent apprehension of the facts in the case and their true meaning and propriety, would long have protected the unfortunate man.

It is not a case at all of how have the mighty fallen, but a case of craziness pure and simple; everything shows it, and the enlightened science of this day should speed to shield his memory—not with charity, but with facts.

Personally, I think there was something unspeakably contemptible, if not malicious, in the slowness, the stupidity, and the error of his so-called friends, and in the law in his case when considered in the light of scientific knowledge of insanity to-day. Sir Hector Macdonald should long have been under medical restraint.

ADVERTISE IN 'THE TIMES' NOW

GLAD TO BE HOME FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Paying Occupations are Hard to Find There

BOERS ARE BEING RECONCILED

Difficulties owing to Unwillingness of Mine Owners to Pay Good Wages

Montreal, March 31.—"The Boers are whipped, and they feel whipped,' said Sergeant-Major Smith, of Toronto, who, two years ago, joined the South African Constabulary under Major General Baden-Powell, and who reached Montreal this morning on his way home.

"We are all glad to get back to Canada," says he. "There is no business in South Africa," he said, "things are dull and we could not find any occupation sufficiently lucrative to induce us to [illegible]."

"Why," he was asked, "is the trade market so dull there as it is at present?"

"Simply because the white capitalists who own the mines will not pay enough wages even to the blacks, far less to the whites, to give them a decent living. That, as a matter of fact, is the crux of the whole situation. In so far as British and Boer are concerned, the Boer has, in my opinion, recognized the inevitable and the great majority of them are willing to accept the terms granted by the Imperial authorities.

"The only real bitter feeling I found in Boer circles was occasioned by the fact of the Boers, who had fought against their country on behalf of Britain. Even these are becoming reconciled to the fact that the war is over and that Great Britain is in South Africa to stay there in the best interests of all concerned."

The contingent spent four days in London and were the recipients of the most generous hospitality, official and otherwise.

Montreal, March 31 — Trooper Blumbtein, of Beaverton and Corporal Graham, of Red Jacket, N.W.T. both of whom belonged to the South African Constabulary, and were part of the contingent of thirty, who dissatisfied with their services, purchased their discharges before the end of the enlistment period, reached Montreal this morning. They put an end to all rumors about trouble over payment of their passage by saying they left with the clearest understanding that all the terms of the engagement were cancelled, and that they must pay their way home. They found themselves in London with insufficient funds and Lord Strathcona came to the rescue.

Both men went out two years ago and had 13 months active service under Lord Kitchener. Blumstein says that the sole reason why they left the Constabularly was that it was badly organized and was an unsatisfactory force to serve in. There was a constant confliction of authority, things seemed always in a tangle, and men were blamed for troubles for which officers were responsible. This condition existed in a small degree even under Baden-Powell.

There is not, say the returned constables, the smallest probability of a new Boer rising. British authority is absolute, and the chief trouble to be feared is jealously between the Boers who surrendered early and the "bitter enders." The Government is treating all alike, while the former think they should have special consideration.

THE BRITISH FOOD SUPPLY

Discussing England's food supply in war time, a London journal says that the real stock of food at any moment is not merely that actually in the country, but, in addition, that contained in the holds of vessels then in transit, the greater number of which will arrive, even if British and open to attack, but if neutrals must arrive, for they cannot be attacked. Thus in September, after harvest, the British stock of wheat (to deal with wheat alone) is only about four and a half months' consumption, but hundreds of vessels are then on the seas England-bound. If only half of these would arrive safely (as a matter of fact nine-tenths would arrive in war) the stock is really equal to ten months' supply. Supposing an enemy's fleet should attempt to blockade the British coast, it would be an extensive contract, and it might well be asked what would the British fleet be doing while the enemy's ships were holding the coast line or chasing food ships on their way to British ports? All these considerations would be entirely reassuring but for one other element in the problem which Mr. Balfour did not in his late speech on this subject take into account, namely, the Morganisation of the surplus wheat of the world by a gigantic speculative Trust. In that case other kinds of food would have to be resorted to. But the best security, after all, would be to promote wheat growing in the colonial empire, by a discriminating tax or otherwise. Canada alone could produce enough to feed the whole British population.

PEAT FU[illegible] vs. BEET SUGAR BOUNTY

Talking about beet sugar bounties, what would do this country more good would be a bonus on the manufacture of peat—and a good fat bonus at that. The people won't die for want of sugar, but they may die and have died in this city for want of the necessary dollars to buy coal placed at an exorbitant price by a trade combine. If there is anything in this compressed peat business it would be worth a lot of money to the people of this country for the government to find it out right away, if it was only to loosen the grip of the coal combine on the throat of the public. It has been noticed that people can go for several days without sugar in their tea and not die, but the absence of fuel when there is a marked scarcity of caloric in the atmosphere has been known to result in people becoming permanently cold.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

British antarctic explorers have discovered a new continent and put up the Union Jack on it. The Americans had better get busy and figure out whether it is on this hemisphere and comes within the Monroe Doctrine.

If Dr. Dyme, M.P.P, was not prepared to give the names of five or six members who, he said, had been offered the speakership of the House he should not have made the statement. The matter before the legislature is serious enough without indulging in any exaggerations on mere side issues.

Lord Nelson's battleship, the Victory, is to be put out of commission, after a service of 138 years. The naval emblem and Union Jack are to be hauled down, to be hoisted on the Hercules as flagship and signal school in Portsmouth harbor. The Victory was launched at Chatham on May 17, 1765, and from the date of her completion she has been employed practically without intermission. She has served the nation in storm and calm, in war and in peace, and links the old, spacious days of wood and sails with the modern fleet of steel and steam, while it can never be forgotten that on her Nelson fought his last fight and laid down his life.

MT. JULIEN HOTEL

Preparing for a Large Trade During the Coming Season

Chas. Armstrong, proprietor of Mount Julian hotel, has sold out to Messrs. Mann and Thompson. They have bought more land property, and are planning for a large tourist trade. A kitchen 16x36 is going up, besides a ten room cottage. The new hotel will be quite up-to-date, having a water works system all through the rooms, supplied by a windmill. The new proprietors also intend building a tower on the Mountain which will be quite a feature. 25,000 feet of lumber is going to be used on the premises, and when this is used up the place will equal any resort on the famous Kawartha lakes. A livery barn, and barber shop will also be run in connection with the hotel.

IT IS MUCH NEEDED

New Hall Admitted by the Department to be Necessary

In the annual report of the Militia Department, the Chief Engineer says:

"Peterborough Drill Hall.—General repairs were made to this building and arc lights installed on the drill grounds.

"A new drill hall is much required here."

This is a plain admission by the Militia Department that a drill hall should be built here at once. Last week Sir F. Borden, speaking in Toronto in reference to a new armory, said that the matter was being considered by the Department of Public Works. Evidently, then, the list for such improvements is not yet closed, and we may still hope that representations of our case may cause a grant for a drill shed in Peterborough to appear in the suplementary estimates.

THE ILLS OF WOMEN

A RELIABLE AND SAFE CURE FOR WOMANLY ILLS IS FOUND IN FERROZONE. A REMEDY THAT ALWAYS GIVES SATISFACTION AND NEVER DISAPPOINTS

If troubled with painful irregularities, dizziness, faintness, excitability, nervousness, remember there is a remedy that if regularly and persistently used, will cure all these ills. Its name is Ferrozone.

It is used by thousands of women who have experienced its great strengthening powers, and they would not be without it for ten times its price.

Ferrozone is primarily a blood maker. It drives all impurities from the crimson fluid, makes it strong and capable of supplying nourishment to the body. It quiets the nerves, banishes excitability, and headache.

By taking Ferrozone regularly you can keep free from those dreadful backaches, and monthly sickness will pass off regularly and without pain or distress. Being prepared in tablet form, Ferrozone is both convenient and simple to use, and no uncertainty as to the proper quantity or dose can ever arise.

A Montreal hospital nurse who has used Ferrozone herself, and has seen also the benefit that other suffering women have derived from it, writes: "I have nursed and treated all form of female disorders, and from my personal experience, must say that Ferrozone is a remedy about which all womankind should know. It is reliable and sure, and will give prompt and satisfactory results. As a builder of muscle and tissue, I know nothing to equal Ferrozone. I have found it good to build up a weak appetite, and consider it a splendid medicine for the blood and nerves. I have no hesitancy in endorsing Ferrozone."

Don't continue to exist in a state of misery and weakness any longer. Ferrozone will make you strong and well just as it has done for thousands before you. All druggists recommend and sell Ferrozone, at 50c. a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. Get a box to-day from your druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston, Ont.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

Again there was a murmur of horror and excitement through the crowd.

"Who was it?"

"Ay, maybe he could tell summat!" These and similar exclamations ran from mouth to mouth. Indeed of all the people present, perhaps the doctor, and Astley, who was away in the background, were the only two persons who made no comment on Norma's words.

She could not tell who the boy was, and said that he had refused to give his name or that of the place where he lived, and that all he would own to was that he lived a long way off, behind the hill.

The shrewd Northerners who formed her audience shook their heads, and one woman said:

"Maybe he were freghtened and didn't like to give his name, nor to say where he come from."

"It couldn't ha' been so very fur," said another, "or he wouldn't ha' been here so late."

"Maybe it were Raggett's lad," suggested one.

And by common acclaim this was hailed as a good suggestion.

"Ay, Ned Raggett's always a mouching round 'ere o' neghts, snaring rabbits most like," said one.

"Let's go to Raggett's, and ast him."

The proposal being hailed as a good one, the baronet came forward and led the way to the side gate, which he opened with his key.

Since the first mention of the boy, neither Astley nor the doctor had added a word to the debate. When they all started off to Ned Raggett's cottage, they left Dr. Wharles still examining the body of the dead man. But by the time they had crossed the road and knocked at Raggett's door, the doctor was in the front rank of the enquirers.

Norma found that Raggett's was the very cottage where the good-looking young woman had curtly refused to call up her husband after the tragedy, and she already felt pretty sure that Ned would prove to be the boy whom she had found in the tree.

It was a long time before they could get admittance; and when the black-eyed Nance Raggett opened the door, and the doctor enquired courteously whether they could speak to her step-son, she looked horribly frightened, and leaving them all at the door abruptly, went to the foot of the stairs, and called, "Ned! Ned!" in a husky voice.

Ned appeared to be quite as unwilling to come down as his step-mother had been. Dr. Wharles at last offered to go up and fetch him; and bounding up the narrow, rickety staircase two steps at a time, he soon brought down the trembling hobbledehoy, who proved, as Norma knew at once by his voice and gait, to be the lad whom she had found perched in the tree.

All efforts, however, to make him communicative on the subject of what he had seen failed utterly. It was impossible for him to deny that he had been in the tree, for Norma identified him positively, and forced him into confession.

"You remember my crying out and your calling to me from the tree?" she said.

"Ay," said the boy with a sullen nod.

"Well, lad, tell us how you coom up there, and what you see," said the man from the cottage next door, laying an encouraging hand on Ned's shoulder.

As he still hesitated, Dr. Wharles patted him kindly on the other shoulder.

"Yes, speak out, and, don't be afraid. We're all friends here."

It was a strange sight, Norma thought, as she stood in the background of the group watching, by the light of the little smoky lamp which had been hastily lighted and placed on the mantelpiece, the sullen, frightened face of the boy, heavy, stupid, yet cunning withal, and the two men, one on each side of him: the tall, well-dressed doctor with his cheery manner and bright black eyes on the one side; the rugged miner, with earnest face and ponderous manner, on the other.

"I see nowt," blurted out the lad after a long silence.

"Coom, coom, no lies, laddie. Yo' must ha' seen summat," said the miner, giving him a shake.

The doctor tried more conciliatory methods.

"Well, if you saw nothing, you must have heard something," urged he. "What did you hear now?"

The boy looked up at him with a sidelong look of ever-increasing alarm.

"I heerd a gun," he admitted slowly and sulkily, "and thowt it was poachers."

"But what made yo' get oop t' tree, lad?"

Another long pause, and then the boy said, "I was in t' wood; I'd gotten over t' wall. An' I see Squire comin'—"

"Squire!"

There was a fresh murmur, and without daring to look straightforwardly at him, all the crowd in the little cottage room felt that their attention, though not their eyes, was riveted on Astley, who at once came forward a step from the mantelpiece against which he had been leaning.

"Speak t' truth, lad," said the miner warningly.

"He's probably speaking the truth now," said Astley quietly. "For it's a fact that I came back to The Haigh this evening from the town, and passed through the plantation an hour or so ago."

Again there was a slight sensation observable, to the keen eyes of Norma at least, among the people present. They felt there was a fascinating mystery somewhere.

"So you got up in the tree for fear of being discovered by Sir Astley on the lookout for his rabbits?" said Dr. Wharles.

The lad began to stammer and to tremble.

"I didn't do no harm," he said in his rough voice. "There's others gets into t' wood besides me."

The doctor instantly changed his tone to one of good-humored kindness.

"Oh, Sir Astley won't be hard upon you this once in a way for trespassing. As you say, you're not the only offender."

The doctor had scarcely finished speaking when the people began to make way for the baronet, who appeared suddenly desirous of taking a more prominent part in the proceedings than he had done. As he came forward, the miner who was on one side of Ned gave way at once: the doctor, however, did not.

"Don't be flurried, my boy," said Dr. Wharles in his cheery tones, "you know what you saw, or what you didn't see, and what you heard or didn't hear. Don't let anyone flurry you."

"Be good enough not to prompt the boy, Dr. Wharles," said Astley sharply.

All present held their breath. News of the scene between these two men had spread like wildfire through the neighborhood, and many and wild were the conjectures afloat as to the cause of the

ECZEMA

For Years Mrs. Ellen Smith, Montreal, Suffered From Eczema—Nearly Three Years In Bed and Treated in Three Different Hospitals.

Five Bottles of Powley's Liquified Ozone Cured Her Completely, When She Threw Away the Crutches She Had Been Compelled to Use.

I was a fearful sufferer from eczema for many years. The disease centred in both limbs below the knees. The left especially was swollen to alarming dimensions, while the inflammation, irritation and hard, scaly condition induced a degree of suffering which only the mercy of God prevented me from ending in suicide.

I spent the best of three years on my back, besides different periods in three hospitals. When at home I could not go as far as the next room without the aid of crutches, and altogether my case was considered past help, for I had had the best skill in the country to no purpose.

I have now used five bottles of Ozone and I rejoice to say that both limbs are reduced to their normal size, the burning is entirely gone and I can walk alone with perfect ease, although I am now sixty years of age

The Ozone also cured an advanced stage of liver disorder, and I am willing at all times to tell my experience to other sufferers.

MRS. ELLEN SMITH,
81 St. Andre St., Montreal.

Wanted—A Chronic Case of Eczema That Ozone Will Not Cure.

Powley's Liquified Ozone has been used with such pronounced success in cases of Eczema and other skin and blood diseases that we are positive that there is no case so bad that it will not cure it. By destroying the germs of the disease it goes right to the root of the trouble and effects cures when drug preparations prove most disastrous failures. Mrs. Smith's case is a case in point. Though sixty years of age Ozone cured her after all drug preparations had failed. Powley's Liquified Ozone is sold by all reliable druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

A Fifty Cent Box of Powley's Ozone Ointment

FREE.

In severe cases, where a more speedy cure is desired, Powley's Ozone Ointment is recommended for external application. It destroys the outside germs and hastens the time when the skin will be as clean and smooth as that of a baby.

Great Fortunes Are Made

FROM INVESTMENTS IN GOOD MINING PROPERTIES—HERE IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME

The Electric Spark GOLD MINING COMPANY

Stock was placed on the market eighteen months ago and sold for SIX CENTS per share. In less than six months the stock was selling at FIFTEEN CENTS, and a few months ago rose to TWENTY CENTS, at which price it is now being bought and sold. $100 00 invested eighteen months ago would bring you today $333 33. CAN YOU FIND A BETTER INVESTMENT? Do you know that mining affords about the only opportunity for people of small means to make a large amount of money? Why? Because everything except mining is controlled by the trusts and combines, and the small dealer is soon frozen out. We have left to sell

20,000 Shares at 20c. per share

Inside of twelve months this stock will be worth $1.00 per share and paying a dividend. We refer you to any mining man in Gilpin County, Colorado, and, by permission, to the Rocky Mountain National Bank of Central City, Colorado. NOW IS YOUR GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY. We are ready and willing to give any further information asked for. Address

STOCK MARKETS

MARKET OFFERING SPLENDID OPPORTUNITIES

New York, March 31.—The lowest prices of a movement are made in gloom and a flood of pessimism. The highest prices of an upward movement are a blaze of glory, as it were in fact one vast rain bow. When stocks are at a low point it is difficult to find an expressed reason for buying. All Wall street talk is discouraging when they are round the top, where there is not a cloud in the financial sky and every reason is put forward why stocks should be bought. The period of gloom is with us at present; stocks are depressed, yet it is positively the time that they should be bought. Bearish inconsistencies are adequately illustrated by the professed disappointment that Pennsylvania is issuing new stocks for improvements, giving rights to present shareholders, while at the same time the same gentry profess bearishness on St. Paul, because the Board of Directors do not give present stockholders rights to subscribe to an additional stock issue. As they talk, matters are wrong whether you do or whether you don't. Despite the constant bearish uproar the larger declines are confined to comparatively few issues. Many are more than holding their own at the present time, and the following stocks are positively bargains: Missouri Pacific, the Coalers, every one of them; the South Westerns including Union and Southern Pacific, Kansas and Texas issues, Texas Pacific, T. C. I., and United States Steel, The Wabash Atchison issues, C.& O., and Norfolk and W., the Tractions and Southern issues. To buy any of these at present and to hold them, will be to make money. The bears usually use St. Paul at the end of an advancing market. Witness during the winter, when prices were at the top, the rise of St. Paul to 198 3-4; it was fast and furious. Now note the bearish fraternity using St. Paul after the decline has about finished. Both sides utilise it, being willing to take a loss in so doing, because it is a pivotal stock. To look at the market many would think declines to be tremendous, yet many stocks are as high, or higher, than they were two weeks ago. It is good common sense to buy the better class of stocks, after they have fallen twenty to thirty points, paying no attention to the prevailing bearish utterances.

SUMMARY.

Such a course if followed to-day would have given investors and speculators a profitable interest in the market. The opening to-day was firm. The bear interest endeavored to follow up the successes, but their progress was short lived. Prices rallied from what looked like a weak market, and buying became of a confident character, the stocks that bore the brunt of the storm last week becoming conspicuous by their strength. N. Y. C., Pennsylvania, St. Paul, exhibited every sign of investment buying. The strength of the [illegible] was uniform and [illegible]. The tractions were strong. Amalgamated copper was bought heavily by insiders. The market closed strong, and we feel certain that it has reversed itself, and is in for a decided rally, with an extended short interest the prime factor in bringing it about. Money closed 12 per cent. Sales 760,600.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
720 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Exploiting the First-Hand.

A well-known publisher (whose name shall be kept dark), has thought fit in an advertisement of a novel by a well-known authoress (not Miss Marie Corelli, by the way) to say:

"In London society, as everyone knows Mrs. —— is one of the most sought after of women. She can thus write of high life upon no mere second-hand acquaintance with it."

So bad an example is pretty sure to be followed, and we may soon expect to see paragraphs framed on the same intrusive model. As for instance:

Miss Amaryllis Intheshade is about to give the world a volume of short stories, with the tender passion as the motif of them all. As it is notorious that the authoress is the most proposed-to debutante of the Coronation year, she clearly writes with an amount of experience that can hardly be excelled or even equalled.

"Blacksheep" is the title of a forthcoming work by an anonymous author. We understand that as he has valeted some of the most gentlemanly scoundrels in Europe a lively and piquant book may confidently be looked for.

Lord Lettem Havitt's book on "Mayors I Have Met" is in the press and will be ready almost immediately. As Lord Lettem Havitt holds the record for freedom of boroughs presented for service in South Africa, it is clear that some entertaining experiences can hardly fail to be recounted.

Mr. Hippo Potamus has just completed the work on animals on which for some years past he has been engaged. As Mr. Potamus is himself an awful beast, he writes with first-hand knowledge of his subject.

The Plain Truth.

Judge Foster of the Court of General Sessions in New York, deserves commendation for having put the stamp of legal condemnation upon the miserable delusion that a woman can reform a man by simply marrying him. The occasion arose where a suspension of sentence was asked for a young man arraigned before him for sentence on the charge of larceny, the plea being based on the ground that the prisoner was engaged to an "estimable young lady" who would marry him at once if he were set free. Judge Foster refused to suspend sentence, and sent the man to the penitentiary for six months. He had investigated the fellow's record, he said, and found it bad. He added that he hoped that during this period the young woman would investigate the prisoner's history herself and take back her promise to marry him. It is too much to hope that the wretched old fallacy will suffer very much from this legal pronouncement, but if it saves even one woman from yoking herself for life to a brute and a criminal it will be a cause for gratitude.

Filial Piety.

A train full of pioneers was starting for a new settlement in the Woolly West, and an interested stranger was looking on.

"Yes, sir," said the head of the party to him, "we are taking with us everything that is required for the founding of a new city, and I guess we haven't got a thing that won't come in useful."

"What about that old man over there?" asked the stranger, pointing to a hoary patriarch with a white beard.

"That, sir, is my father," was the reply.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," said the stranger, apologetically.

"Yes, sir; and let me tell you that we are proposing to inaugurate the new Jugginsville Cemetery with the old man."

"Yessuh, I don bin ter de t'eayter," said Parson Snowflake, "an' I seen dese hyuh membahs o' mah race a-actin' on de stage, too. An' I jes' got dis ter say—de cullud actah am a moughty po'r imertation ob de white man's imertation ob de cullud man."

IF YOU HAVE CATARRH

Remember the best Catarrh medicine that money can buy is Catarrhozone; it cures quickly and permanently when all else fails

This remedy don't exist that will cure Catarrh as quickly as Catarrhozone. It relieves the most stubborn cases in a short time, and drives the disease so thoroughly from the system that it never returns.

Druggists boldly recommend Catarrhozone in preferrence to other remedies, because they know it is the best, and every progressive doctor prescribed it for the same good reason.

Catarrhozone is a rational, common-sense treatment that finds favor with everybody. It cures by the inhalation of medicated air, which comes into contact with the mucous surface of all the breathing organs. It gets at the source of the trouble, kills the germs and drives every vestige of catarrh right out of the system.

It doesn't matter how deep-seated or chronic your case may be, Catarrhozone can cure it. Even though a thousand other remedies have failed, don't give up hope till you have used Catarrhozone. It has cured other cases probably worse than yours, and will cure yours if it gets a chance.

Mr. Dutcher Law, a prominent citizen of Italy Cross, N.S., says: "I experimented with hundreds of catarrh remedies and found the majority to be worthless, dismal failures. Catarrhozone was the first to give lasting relief; it cured me and I am with pleasure testifying to its merits as a cure for Catarrh of the nose or throat.

(Signed), DUTCHER LAW.

You are sure to derive the most pleasant results from Catarrhozone. It has been tested many times and never found wanting. Every druggist in Canada sells it. Complete two months' treatment, guaranteed to cure costs $1, or a trial size 25c. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS

Boarders Wanted

Comfortable quarters for a couple of boarders at 490, Bethune street.

Wanted

Furnished house wanted for small family. Apply, by letter to P.O. box 532 or to this office.

Do Not be Hasty

It will be just as profitable for those who have commenced making gardens to go cautiously, as there is yet in store for us cold rains, sleet, frost and snow. April may be marked by cold north easterly winds and frequent showers and chilly, cloudy weather is not likely to cease at the end of the month. Although the season opened early, it will linger long with disagreeable changes of weather.

About Vaccination

Perhaps it would be well for us all to remember that henceforth by statutory regulation the infants in every municipality will be vaccinated free, up to the age of six months, and the duty devolves upon the medical health officer to see that this regulation is carried out. If not carried out, a future disability may result upon both parents and offspring inasmuch as no unvaccinated child will be admitted to the public schools; but if such should be admitted, the government grant will be withheld.

Sugar Beet Seed

The seed for the Peterborough Sugar Company has arrived from Germany. The Company has located its quarters in the premises recently occupied by the C.P.R. in the Market block. The seed is being stored here. Capt. Geo. Bennett has been appointed assistant agricultural superintendent and he and Dr. W. H. Jeffs, agricultural superintendent, will have their offices in the afore mentioned store and will superintend the distribution of the seed.

Student's Easter Rates

The Grand Trunk will issue to students and teachers of schools and colleges, on surrender of standard certificate, signed by the Principal, return tickets at Single Fare and One Third; going Apr. 4th to 11th, inclusive. Valid returning until Apr. 21st, 1903. Further particulars in another column of this paper, or at any Ticket Office. W. BUNTON, C. P. & T. A., Peterborough.

OBITUARY

Death of Walter Flowers at His Home on Bolivar Street

We regret to record the death of Mr. Walter Flowers, at his home on Bolivar street on Monday afternoon. Deceased came here from England about a year ago, along with his wife, and several children, who are left to mourn his loss. He was 44 years of age and his death was caused by dropsy.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at five o'clock from his late residence and [illegible] to the Little Lake Cemetery.

DEATH OF F. A. WALDEN

A Death That is Particulary Sad and Universally Regretted

Deep regret and sorrow was caused in the community yesterday by the sad intelligence that F. A. Walden, who for the past ten years had been an active and highly respected member of the community, had passed away. Deceased was only 39 years of age, and was in manhood's prime. He had only been ill two weeks, but heart disease, from which he suffered, finally caused his death. Deceased came to Peterborough from Ayton to take a position as head book-keeper and secretary of the Executive Board of the Dickson Co. Mr. Walden was always faithful and energetic in everything he undertook, and his loss will be keenly felt, particularly by the Dickson Co., and St. Andrew's church, where he was an active worker and until recently held the position of Secretary of the Board of Managers. His services in connection with both church and Sabbath school were willingly given and always successful. He is survived by a widow and one child—a boy about four years old. They have the sympathy of all in the irreparable loss they have sustained.

A DRUGGIST'S SCRAP BOOK

A Leaf from the Order Book of a Local Pill Mixer

The Times was handed the following taken from the prescription book of a Peterborough druggist, and are copies of the originals:

"I have a cute pain in my child's diagram. Please give my son something to release it."

"Dear Doctler, ples gif bearer five cents worth of Auntie Toxyn for garle baby's throat and obleage."

"My little baby has eaten up its father's parish plaster. Send an antedote quick as possible by enclosed girl."

"This child is my little girl. I send you five cents to buy two sitless powders for a groan up adult, who is sike."

"You will please give the leetle boi five cents worth of epecac for to throw up in a five months old babe. N.B.—The babe has a sore stummick."

"I haf a hot time in my insides and wich I wood like to be extinguished. What is good for to extinguish it? The enclosed money is the price of the extinguisher. Hurry pleas."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Mr. R. H. Bradburn, Ottawa, is spending a few days in town.

—Hon. Senator Cox was in town yesterday in connection with the proposed street railway deal.

—Mr. Wm. McLeish of the Monetary Times, Toronto, spent yesterday in town, the guest of his friend, Mr. R. F. Morrison.

—Miss Helen Mason has returned [illegible] Hanover, Ill., where she was visiting her sister, Mrs. Thewlis.

—Mr. W. D. Parker leaves this morning for Montreal, where he will reside in future. Mr. Parker leaves many warm friends in Peterborough, who will wish him all kinds of good luck.

—Mr. Donald McLennan of Port Hope, who has had a position in the local office of the Bank of Toronto, for the past few months, has been transferred to Brockville, and left on Saturday to assume his new position.

—Miss Abbie Robinson, who graduated with honours from the New York Hospital recently, is home for a six weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robinson, George st. Miss Robinson intends to return to New York in a few weeks and has accepted a good position in a Children's Convalescent Hospital in New York.

MORE THAN HALF

Suffer from Coffee Drinking

Coffee does not set up disease with all people using it, on the other hand it absolutely create disease in thousands and thousands of cases perfectly well authenticated and traceable directly to coffee and nothing else.

This statement may hurt the feelings of some coffee drinkers, but the facts are exactly what they are.

Make enquiry of some of your coffee drinking friends and you may be certain of one thing; one half of them, yes more than half, suffer from some sort of chronic disease. If you want to prove its the coffee, or would you prefer to prove it is not the coffee in these cases, take coffee away from these persons for from ten days to a month don't change the food in any other way but give them Postum Food Coffee, and the proof of whether coffee has been the trouble or not will be placed before you in unmistakable terms.

A young lady in the St. Mary's Academy, Winnipeg, Can., says: "One of our teachers suffered a long while from indigestion. She was a coffee drinker. She became worse steadily and finally was reduced to a point where the stomach did not retain any food, then electricity was tried but without avail. She, of course, grew weak very fast and the doctor said the case was practically incurable.

"About that time I was attracted to a statement in one of the papers regarding the poisonous effect of coffee and the value of Postum Food Coffee. The statement was not extravagant, but couched in terms that won my confidence and aroused me to the belief that it was true. I persuaded our teacher to leave off the morning cup of coffee altogether and use Postum Food Coffee.

A change took place. She began to get better. She has now regained her strength and is able to eat almost every kind of food and has taken her position as teacher again." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

—The License Committee and Court of Revision met last night.

—A couple of chimney fires yesterday gave the Fire Brigade a run.

—A mink boa is awaiting its owner at the Police station, as well as an owner for a bracelet.

—A blaze at the Cereal Company's sawdust bank caused an alarm to be rung. The fire was soon extinguished.

—Butt's Cannel coal is the best for grates. For sale by R. Hicks & Co., Hunter street.

The customs' collections for the month of March amounted to $273.9.97. For March 1902, it was $12,.67.788 being an increase of $14 812.19. This shows that the amount has been nearly doubled.

—A special meeting of the members of the Outside Workers' Union, No. 9,240, A. F. of L., was held last night in the Sons of England Hall.

—Hastings Star: Mr. H. M. Fowlds, of Hastings, has received many offers from different parts of the province for the purchase of the five legged lamb.

—Mr. R. Hicks has on hand an exceptionally fine lot of soft wood for summer use, which he is selling at a very reasonable price. tf —At the Police Court yesterday morning David Hoban was charged with being disorderly. This was not the first time that the prisoner had been before the Magistrate for unbecoming conduct. He was remanded for one week.

—By dropping a card to, or calling on J. G. Ghreen, of 46 Albert street, you will find a man who is prepared to do all kinds of gardening or carpet cleaning at reasonable rates.

—Two Verulam youths named Wm. Lamb, and Geo. Caley, cousins, amused themselves recently by shaving the tail of a horse owned by a German Jew pedlar. Magistrate Dickson of Fenelon Falls, fined each of them $20 and $5.80 costs.

—It has been a serious time for colds during the past month, scores of persons being able to testify to an ailment of this kind, and there are numerous cases of la grippe, while many are recovering from bronchitis and pneumonia. Many sudden changes in the weather may be expected in April, which will not be conducive to good health.

—Cobourg Post: The passenger steamers doing business on Lake Ontario were inspected this week by T. P. Thompson, government inspector. The North King is allowed to carry 520 passengers, the same as last season. Capt Jarrell will be in command of this old reliable craft, but the other officers have not yet been announced.

—We wish to announce to our many patrons and friends that a large assortment of fresh goods have been added to our well stocked store of groceries. We hope to retain all our old customers and invite others to call and price our goods and see for themselves that both our goods and prices are right. A. C. HAWLEY, 161 Hunter street. tf.

—It is said that the men who go to work on the river for the lumber companies this year will be paid from $24 to $30 per month, which with board and lodging is as much as the average mechanic earns. The day of low wages for lumbermen has gone by, and as a result lumber of all kinds and other building material has advanced in price double and even three times what it was some years ago. There is a larger amount of work being done than ever before, and it seems impossible to supply the demand for men.

Easter Holiday Trip

The Grand Trunk will issue round trip tickets between all stations in Canada, at Single First Class Fare; good going Thursday, Apr. 9th, to Monday, Apr. 13th, inclusive, and valid for return until Tuesday, Apr. 14th, 1903. Splendid trains and perfect roadbed, insure a comfortable trip. Particulars and tickets from any Agent. W. BUNTON, C. P. & T. A., Peterborough.

Wanted

A good, smart solicitor (lady or gentleman) to take orders for Enlarged Portraits in Crayons, India Ink, Pastel, Oilettes, Sepia and Oils. A good salary will be paid to the right person. Apply at 434 George street or address The Peterborough Supply and Art Company, P. O. Box 62 Peterborough.

Branching Out

Mr. F. Mason, the prince of florists, finding his large premises on Water street quite inadequate for his expanding trade, has remodelled and refitted No. 406 1-2 George street, with every convenience to meet the requirements of his already large trade. The store will be open for business on Thursday, replete with an abundance of seeds, plants and beautiful flowers in their season, which will be sold at the lowest possible prices, consistent with the high quality of stock. Mr. Mason will be pleased to see all his old customers and will gladly welcome every prospective buyer to either store. 77b

Private Telephone System

Cobourg Post: "Private telephone systems are coming into prominence all over the Province. Cobourg and the county of Northumberland should also get into the business." The Times would suggest to our contemporary that private telephone systems are a good thing to steer clear of, and if anyone doubts this assertion, they have only to ask any of the stockholders of the defunct "opposition" company in Peterborough.

DIED

WALDEN — At Peterborough on Tuesday, March 31, F. A. Walden, aged 39 years.

The funeral will take place on Thursday, April 2nd, at 2 p.m. from his late residence, No. 571 Water st., to the Little Lake Cemetery.

TO BUILDERS.

TENDERS will be received by the undersigned, until Saturday, the 4th of April, next, at 12 o'clock noon, for the erection of

No tender necessarily accepted.

W. H. MOORE,

Chairman of the Commissioners of the Peterborough Town Trust.

27th March, 1903.

HANDICAPPED.

The man who started to run a race in chains and fetters would be visibly handicapped. No one would expect him to succeed. The man who runs the race of life when his digestive and nutritive organs are diseased is equally handicapped. In the one case his strength is over-weighted, in the other it is undermined. Success demands above all else a sound stomach.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. When this is done food is perfectly digested and assimilated and the body receives strength in the only way in which strength can be given—by the nutrition derived from digested and assimilated food.

"The praise I would like to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I cannot utter in words or describe with pen," writes James B. Ambrose, Esq., of 1205½ Mifflin Street, Huntingdon, Pa. "I was taken with what our physicians here said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote to you and you sent me a question blank to fill out, and I did so, and you then advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took three bottles and I felt so good that I stopped, being cured. I have no symptoms of gastric trouble or indigestion now."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, sent free on receipt of stamps to cover expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Four Thousand Additional Settlers to Come from England Before September

Canadians will be interested to know that Canada is about to be taken possession of—two forces are aiming to do the trick, and which of the two will be successful remains to be seen.

Sailing from England are 2,100 English settlers for the Canadian West, who carry with them all their household treasure and $2,000,00 with which to make a new start in the world. Mr. Barr, their leader, as he stood on the deck of the ship, explained that their watchword was "Canada for the British."

In the Cosmopolitan Magazine for April is an article by William R. Stewart, entitled "The Americanization of the Canadian North-West." He says the Americans have entered the North-West in the past two years to the number of sixty thousand, and that, since 18[illegible] there has grown up in our West a population of 125,000 American grain growers. The figures are, of course, somewhat exaggerated. "In a few years so preponderant will this population have become," he says, "that dispassionate observers see in the present exodus that which is likely to bring about the future union of the two countries."

Mr. Barr announces that four thousand additional English settlers will come out by September, and probably ten thousand next year.

Mr. Stewart says the inrush of Americans will be far greater this year and next than ever before. His illustrated article, [illegible] praise of our Western country incites Americans to crowd in and possess the country.

Canadians will not be alarmed by either movement. Let them come. The great vacant spaces of the West invite population. The land does not care who tills it, or the wheat who reaps it. Let the people come from the United States and Great Britain, and when they are settled down and have houses and barns and waving fields of grain, the hope and expectation of the Canadian will be that they will not raise their conflicting national slogans, "Canada for the British," and "Canada for the Americans" but will be stirred to new ideas by new surroundings, and will of one accord adopt a new slogan altogether, "Canada for Canadians." Canada believes with the fine hopefulness of youth, that these people will become good Canadians almost before they know it. The Americans and English will find that in Canada they are living under the flag of a monarchy and not the conditions of a republic, and while the Englishman is growing accustomed to the conditions, the American can grow accustomed to the conditions, the American can grow accustomed to the flag. All the influences of nature and all the considerations of self interest will combine to cause them to show an early and complete acquiescence in the situation in which they are placed.

Canada is not the least nervous about the rival streams of invasion that are pouring in. The hostility is fancied and not real. If the two big nations were sending armies here to do battle, that would be calamitous, but their armies come to produce and create, not to kill and destroy. It is rather unfortunate, however, that there should be a fancied conflict between these nations in these efforts to settle the West—not unfortunate for Canada, perhaps, as the work of settlement thereby receives a great stimulus, but unfortunate for those who promote immigration from wrong motives.

Settlers who come into our country wrongly inspired will be suspicious of their neighbors and slower than need be in accepting the conditions that exist or will rapidly develop, and which must be accepted. It is easier to get settlers to swarm over an imaginary boundary line than to swarm over a very real and wide ocean, to begin life under entirely new conditions, and therefore it is not advisable that Canadians should encourage the idea that the North-West is a prize, which may be won either by England or the United States —the prize to go to the nation that can put in the most settlers. We want farmers in the West, not men projected across the boundary by a political force. Men who settle there naturally will remain there and become good citizens. We doubt the wisdom of Mr Barr when he ascribes a political motive to his work of colonization, for he challenges a country that has every advantage over England in the matter of pouring people into the North-West. The political future of the West is not in question. Men may come whence they choose, but when they are once settled they will be Canadians.

When will the Dominion Pay for Immigrants by Contributing for Defence?

London, April 1—Commenting upon the all-British colonists the Daily Mail notes the highly satisfactory prospects that Canada offers compared with South Africa, and adds: "While we are giving Canada so much of our best, the time seems to be coming when Canada will have to give something in return. She spends next to nothing on defence, trusting to the Mother Land for safeguards. Indeed, Canada spends less than two shillings per head on defence. How much longer is Great Britain to provide the balance?"

The Westminster Gazette regrets that the exodus is drawn almost entirely from the rural districts, and says: "We are all glad that Britons fill up some waste places in the Empire, but when are the conditions of rural life at home to be rendered a little more attractive and popular

HOUSE ADJOURNS, GAMEY'S AMENDMENT

The Assembly Takes a Three Weeks' Vacation, Carried by a Party Vote

The 96 members of the Legislature were let out yesterday for a three weeks' holiday, and as a result they disported themselves for a few minutes like a lot of schoolboys. It required only about two hours to get through all the business of the day, although there were numerous divisions. Four amendments were presented before Mr. Gibson's Evidence Act was allowed to become law, and all were voted down without any change being made in the bill. The granting of a month's supply was not opposed by the Opposition, excepting by a vote of want of confidence on the motion to go into supply. There was another division on the motion to adjourn for three weeks. The Government maintained its majority of five throughout. A feature of the voting was a return to the "pairing" system, and it is understood that the "no pairs" rule will not be resorted to again this session.

SHALL THEY GIVE A VERDICT?

When the bill respecting evidence came up for a third reading, Mr. Carscallen moved that it be referred back to committee, with instructions to add his amendment, which was to the effect that the commissioners report no finding or decision of fact, but the evidence taken alone. Mr. Carscallen argued that the bill as it stood was ultra vires. It was self-evident, he said, that Parliament had no jurisdiction to ask the Lieutenant-Governor to issue a commission with powers greater than the General Act authorising commission prescribes, and that Act did not cover many of the instructions contained in this commission. The judges should not report a finding, first, because they were not authorised; second because it would be highly improper. It would be improper for an outside tribunal to say whether a Government should stand or fall. That was a right which devolved upon the Legislature itself or in the last analysis on the electorate. Mr. Carscallen also contended that the judges should report tendered evidence as well as ordinary evidence.

"Last week," said Mr. Gibson in reply, "we were told that the judges had no power to report at all under this commission. Now the fear is expressed that they will report. Are honorable gentlemen afraid that something in favor of the accused will appear in the judges' finding?"

Mr. Gibson held that, supposing the Opposition was dissatisfied with that finding, the House would be still seized of the matter, and could overrule the decision. He thought, however, that with the country the finding of the judges who had listened to the evidence and noticed the demeanor of the witnesses would have some weight.

Mr. Foy maintained that the House was the court of first and last resort, and not merely a court of appeal from the commissioners.

FOUR PAIRS.

There was no further discussion, and the Opposition insisted on the yeas and nays being taken. The result was nays 41, nays 46, a Government majority of five. Contrary to general expectation there were pairs—four of them. Mr. Bowman, the Liberal whip, paired with Mr. Beck; Mr. Smith (Peel) with Mr. Carscallen, (Lennox), Mr. Burt with Mr. Hanna, and Mr. Caldwell with Mr. Powell. Mr. Bowman and Mr. Caldwell were present when the vote was taken. Mr. Burt, of North Brant, had been called away to his father's bedside.

GAMEY'S AMENDMENT.

Three further amendments to the bill were offered, but with practically no discussion they were respectively declared "lost on the same division." Mr. Gamey moved the amendment as was defeated when the House was in Committee of the Whole on Monday.

He said in support of it: "All I want Mr. Speaker, is that this commission be large and full enough for me to get in all the evidence I have in connection with this conspiracy."

Mr. Gamey moved another amendment, rephrasing the last clause of the bill, the effect of which, as explained by Mr. Whitney, was that Mr. Gamey's statements, charging conspiracy might be directed against others than the gentlemen who are members of the Cabinet.

The third amendment was put forward by Mr. J. W. St John. It asked that a new clause be added to the bill stating that no evidence tendered in support of the Gamey charges should be rejected, except for reasons stated by one of the judges and concurred in by both.

After these amendments were all declared lost, the bill was given a third reading.

THE SUPPLY BILL.

On the motion to go into supply Mr. Ross explained that the $345,000 was merely the ordinary departmental expenses for the month of April.

Mr. Ross explained that the expenses of the investigation would come out of the legislation or the miscellaneous item.

On the motion to go into supply a want of confidence motion was brought forward by Mr. Matheson. It expressed regret that the writ for the North Renfrew bye-election had not been issued, and was declared lost on the same division as previously.

THE HOUSE ADJOURNS.

The motion to adjourn until April 21 was advanced by Mr. Ross, who pointed out three reasons why such action should be taken. First, the attendance of members of the Government and of private members on both sides of the House would be required at the investigation, thus interfering with the proper transaction of business in the House. Besides, members would of their own accord desire to attend the investigation and hear the evidence for themselves. Second, it would be impossible to get a careful and undivided attention to ordinary business while the minds of members were being distracted by the investigation. Third, the Government did not care to assume the full responsibilities of government until they could do so with the full confidence of the country. If the charges were proven by the investigation, it would then devolve upon the Government to consider very seriously what they should next do. And until the matter was disposed of they thought it better that they should, if not altogether suspend the machinery of government, at least hold their hand.

He thought that five or six weeks after the House reassembled would be sufficient to close up the business of the session.

WHITNEY ADJECTIVES.

Mr. Whitney described the proposal as "wrong, unfair, unjust, and un-British." He held that the House, having delegated its powers of taking evidence, should be on hand if anything should arise during the investigation that demanded its attention. The members should be all the more astute while the investigation was on, but they were being asked to put all power to do their duty out of their hands. The members would not stay for the investigation. Nine out of ten of them would go home. It was proper, he said, that the Premier should acknowledge the undesirability of assuming the full functions of a Government at the present time. That statement was an acknowledgment that the Government, not Mr. Stratton alone, was on trial. There would be plenty of subjects they could discuss, however, that would not be inconsistent with the Government's position. The proposition, moreover, would leave the Government absolutely uncontrollable by the Legislature for the next three weeks.

A division was taken, and the result was 46 yeas, 41 nays.

The business was now completed, excepting the assenting to the Evidence Act by the Administrator. The House had to wait some ten minutes until Chief Justice Moss arrived, and a few seconds were necessary for the ceremony.

The House immediately adjourned.

THE LATE A. A. MOWRY

Passed Away at the Nicholls Hospital Yesterday Morning

We regret to chronicle the death of Mr. Aldus Augustus Mowry, who died yesterday morning at the Nicholls Hospital at the age of 78 years. Deceased was well known and highly respected in Peterborough, having resided here nearly all his life. His father was the late Marcello Mowry of Ashburnham.

The late Mr. Mowry was a pattern maker by trade, and with his father and brother for many years conducted a successful business in Ashburnham. Since then he has been employed at various times by the Peter and William Hamilton Mfg. Companies. Deceased was united in marriage to Margaret Nagle, who predeceased him about one year.

He leaves no children. Three brothers are living—Richard, of town; John, of Toronto, and Bradley, of Gravenhurst. Since the first week of January Mr. Mowry had been confined to the Hospital, suffering from heart trouble and dropsy, which caused his demise.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Richard Mowry, 234 McDonnel street, this afternoon at three o'clock and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

PROTESTANT vs CATHOLIC IN WESTERN AFRICA

Immense Population in South Africa Now Brought Within Reach of the Church

THE TRIBES ARE SUBDUED BY GREAT BRITAIN

A Big Struggle Between Protestant and Roman Catholic Missionaries in the New Field

London, April 2.—Both the Catholic and Protestant missionary societies which have their headquarters in London, are hastening their preparations to occupy the ground brought within the reach of the Church by the occupation of Kano and Sokoto by the British troops.

The feat of the British arms carries the authority of the British Government to the most northern point of the West African protectorate, and opens to evangelization a native population of 25,000. Ten millions of these belong to the dominant caste called Fulanis, and 15,000,000 to a subjugated and partially enslaved order called "Haussas."

Both peoples are chiefly Mohammedans, but the Haussas, whose conversion dates only from their subjugation at the opening of the nineteenth century are half-hearted proselytes, and it is thought that they can readily be brought under the influence of the Christian religion.

It is stated that the Fulanis ruled with a cruelty unsurpassed in the annals of barbarism, and it required the severest chastisement at the hands of the British army to curb them.

Letters from British soldiers state that the ruling tribe wiped out whole tribes of Haussas and burned scores of villages whenever they were seized by a thirst for excitement.

The missionaries naturally expect the quickest results from their labors among the Haussas, but hope gradually to overcome the fierceness and fanaticism of the Fulanis.

A despatch received here from Rome says:

Acting on information received from representatives of Roman Catholicism in the British West Africa the Vatican is maturing an extended plan for the evangelization of that protectorate. It is supposed to despatch an experienced staff of missionaries to organize religious and educational work in the territory already cleared by British troops. The natives are mainly Mohammedans. They number several millions and lived in a state of horrible savagery until the British columns overthrew the barbarous reigning chiefs and suppressed the inter-tribal wars, slave raiding and cannibalism.

According to the information received by the Vatican the missionaries who have hitherto been unable to advance beyond a certain point on account of the ferocity of the inhabitants, are now enjoying the support of the British officials.

The territorial authorities realise that while the sword must to first the purposes of civilization can be permanently served only by religion and education.

SON OF THE EMPRESS

Said to be One of the New Chinese Minister's Party

San Francisco, April 2.—Lee Fook Hoy, a modest young attache in the party of the new Chinese Minister is receiving a great deal of attention among the knowing people of Chinatown, for a story is traveling about the inner circles that the young man is no less a personage than the son of the Empress Dowager of China.

The story is officially discredited by everybody in the Minister's party. The young man gracefully disclaims all pretensions to the princely greatness attributed to him.

Boer Commandant in Lindsay

General Ben. Viljoen, late of the Transvaal forces, who is on a flying business visit to Lindsay, has been induced to stay over and give a lecture in the Academy of Music this evening, on the Boer war from the burghers' point of view. General Viljoen is a very interesting person, and speaks the English language well, with a slight Dutch accent. He served as Commandant of the Boer forces in the south-east portion of the Transvaal throughout the war, and was ambushed, wounded and captured before it was over, then transported to St. Helena, where he remained until peace was agreed upon.

CHRISTIANS FLEE TO ESCAPE DEATH

Many Have Been Murdered by Albanians, Others Bound and Ill-Treated

Constantinople, April 1—Details of the disturbances in North Albania show that the revolt which has broken out there against the reform scheme of the powers is a very serious disturbance. Several thousand armed Albanians surrounded the town of Vucstean on the Mitrovitza-Uskub railroad, March 29, and demanded the surrender of eleven Servian gendarmes, who had been enlisted in accordance with the reform plans. The Governor surrendered the Servians, who were bound and taken to Pristina, after having been maltreated. A number of the Servian inhabitants and bands of Albanians later surrounded Mitrovetza and serious fighting ensued with the Turkish garrison, consisting of three thousand troops. The fighting continued until March 30, when the Albanians finally repulsed with great loss. Heavy reinforcements have been ordered from the Vilayet of Aiden, Asia Minor, and other places, to suppress the rebellion.

The Albanian rising has caused a panic among the Christians of old Servia, who are fleeing towards Servia.

A panic has occurred at Prilep in consequence of the growing fanaticism of Albanians against the Christians. The latter have closed their shops and schools, and are preparing to seek refuge at Monastir. Numbers of Christians have been murdered in the Prilep district during the past few days.

Considerable apprehension is felt at the Russian Embassy for the safety of M. Stotherbina, the Consul of Russia at Mitrovitza.

The outbreak made a great impression at the palace. The Sultan was intensely exercised and measures were immediately taken to watch the two Albanian guards, on duty at the Yildiz Kiosk, in order to prevent disorder at the palace.

The Russian Ambassador at Constantinople has been instructed to protest to the Turkish Government against the insubordination of the Albanians.

TILLMAN'S TRIAL THIS MONTH

Case Will Probably be Heard in Columbia—Senator Tillman's Visit

Charleston, S.C., April 2.—The trial of James H. Tillman, formerly Lieutenant-Governor of South Carolina, for the murder of N. G. Gonzales, editor of the Columbia State, will probably begin in Columbia on April 13. Solicitor Thurmond, the chief prosecutor, announced to-day that the State was prepared to go to trial, and while the counsel for Tillman has made no intimation of their plans, it is understood that the case will be called at the April term. There was talk of obtaining a change of venue to some other county, but this will hardly be allowed, and, in fact, it is said that Tillman prefers to have the case heard in Columbia.

Tillman is still in jail, and he is chafing under the restraint of prison bars. Members of his family have called frequently to see him. The most significant visit was that of Senator Tillman, who went from Washington to have a talk with his nephew. It is said that the differences between them have been adjusted and the feeling is that Senator Tillman will do what he can to secure the acquittal of the younger Tillman. His efforts in this direction will be confined, however, to consultations with the lawyers in outlining a plan of defence.

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES SHOULD BE ONE

It Is Strongly Advocated by the New York Sun

"One Vast American Republic" is the War Cry

New York, March 31—The Sun says: "The question of fortifying Canada against attack from the United States is greatly agitating the military representative of Great Britain in the Dominion, Lord Dundonald, and also his superiors in the British Government. Twelve million dollars is the initial sum asked to obtain the desired safeguard..

"The discussion of our relations with Canada is always welcome, no matter what prejudice or purpose starts it. To raise the question at all is to point straight at the commercial and political absurdity of the fact that the 49th parallel north latitude between the Atlantic and Pacific can be subjects of military defence or commercial distinction. Canada and the United States should be one American Republic. To maintain on the American continent north of the Rio Grande such divisions as to make Europe the perpetual fountain of warlike perils and expenditure is an anachronism, which the spirit of the twentieth century says cannot be terminated too soon."

THEY ARE THE VICTIMS OF A CRUEL SELF-DECEPTION

RUSSIA'S INFLUENCE IN CHINA GROWING

London, April 2.—News has reached an official quarter here from St. Petersburg, to the effect that an agreement either has been, or is about to be arranged between the Russian and Chinese Governments for keeping all the funds of the latter at the Russo-Chinese bank at Pekin. If this agreement is carried out it will be a severe blow to those British institutions which have acted wholly or in part as the bankers of the Chinese Government institution. It is not impossible that a protest will be forthcoming.

Quit the Medicines and Got Well on Grape-Nuts

Made over a change of food is rather a fascinating experience. Sounds like fiction, but an employee of the Anaconda Copper Co. of Anaconda, Mont., had just that experience, being cured on Grape-Nuts.

"For several years I was so run down from indigestion and improper foods that I had to resign a $125.00 a month position in Chicago," he says. "I was in such a bad condition that if I stooped over the sour food came boiling up into my throat and out my mouth.

"I lost nine months valuable time, and three of Chicago's best physicians said I must die. I weighed about 140 pounds, which is a skeleton weight for me. So I resigned myself to my fate and went home to the country to die. It was there a cousin introduced me to Grape-Nuts and new life. I threw all my medicines away and at the end of two weeks' use of Grape-Nuts had to admit that I had gained 4 pounds. In the next few weeks I ate absolutely nothing but Grape-Nuts and pure rich cream and gained 18 pounds.

"I began to take interest in the events of the world again. From this point my recovery has been rapid and today I am physically in the best condition I ever was in my life. I had no trouble to get a position with the Anaconda Copper Mining Co. at a better salary than before.

"This is what Grape-Nuts has done for me. It saved my life, thanks to pure food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Who Hope for Russian Intervention in Balkan Trouble

London, March 31—The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent says that the Novoe Vremya, having published a pessimistic article on Sunday belittling the effect of the Austro-Russian reform scheme in Macedonia and casting doubt on Turkish sincerity, returned to the subject yesterday in a different tone, saying that no doubt reforms would be introduced and strongly attacking the leaders of the agitation.

The Novoe Vremya now described the reforms as adequate, and it is only necessary for outside influences not to interfere in the work of pacification. It declares the leaders of the agitation, with whom the inhabitants of Macedonia do not sympathise, are partly blinded by patriotic dreams and partly actuated by hopes of personal advantage. They do not want a peaceful solution, leaving Macedonia still subject to the Sultan, but desire to create an outbreak, hoping that Russia will assist as soon as Slav blood has been shed. But Russia's intentions are exclusively peaceful. Those who think they can force Russia's hand and make her depart from the course she has chosen are victims of cruel self-deception.

St. Petersburg, April 2.—Letters have just reached the Star correspondent, detailing and explaining the events at the Ural government iron mines, which culminated in fatal encounters between the strikers and troops near Ekaterinburg. The movements started eighteen months ago. Great strikes and disorders followed Gt Motovilo, where four thousand workmen were involved and the disturbances attained the proportions of a revolt. The Governor of the province moved a considerable army against the strikers and made many hundreds of arrests. Many of those arrested were subsequently fined, but no bloodshed occurred on that occasion.

At Slatoust more than thirty strikers and several soldiers were killed. These strikes were a continuation of the Motovilo trouble. The whole series of strikes and manifestations were the result of a crisis in the metal industry. One hundred thousand workers are idle in Ural government, and 50,000 have been reduced to wages of twenty-five cents a day.

COST OF CULTIVATING THE BEET

Hugh Blaim attributes the successful competition of German and Austrian beet sugar with Canadian beet sugar in the Canadian market to the bounties paid by those European countries, which he estimates at more than 1 cent per pound, while the Canadian duty on raw sugar is only 40 to 60 cents per hundredweight. Is that the whole of the story? Without a doubt the soil and climate of Ontario are well adapted to the growth of sugar beets, and there is no trouble about the manufacture of the sugar from the beets. But will reasonable countervailing duties bridge over the great difficulty of the labor problem? In Germany and Austria the women and children work in the beet fields, hoeing, weeding and thinning, and their labor is also available for pulling and topping the beets. Here in Canada this class of labor is not available, and ordinary male adult labor is too expensive to make the cultivation of the sugar beet economical. That is where the stick comes. That is said to be the reason why the sugar beet factories that were bonused and erected in Quebec could not survive. The great consuming body appreciates cheap sugar, but might be willing to strain a point to get a new industry on its legs. But is Mr. Blaim prepared to allow that labor conditions in Canada will ever be like the conditions which prevail in Germany and Austria? Would Canadians care to see them alike?

THE IRISH LAND BILL

In order to improve conditions of land occupancy in Ireland, the imperial government grants sixty million dollars outright, and pledges its credit in addition to an extent of five hundred millions.

One can not help reflecting that if Ireland had home rule, the money needed would be probably raised by the Irish government.

If Ontario needed money for Ontario purposes, Ontario, not the Dominion would raise it. Home rule fore I lnd tmd Catarrhozone Inhaler beauty is that you govern yourself locally. Another is that if you want anything locally, you are liable to pay for it yourself.

The Imperial Government, in order to stick at a system which congests the Imperial parliament with legislation about ditches and town pumps, assumes enormous burdens using it. Catarrhozone has my rather think that Ireland will turn up yet with both the money and the Home Rule.

The house in Portland, Me., where Longfellow was born is now a tenement in the poorer part of the city, mostly inhabited by Irish. A correspondent writes us that a few years ago a teacher in Portland was giving a lesson on the life of the poet.

At the end of the hour she began to question her class.

"Where was Longfellow born?" she asked.

A small boy waved his hand vigorously. When the teacher called on him his answer did not seem to astonish the rest of the class, but was a cold shock to her.

"In Patsy Magee's bedroom," he said. —Youth's Companion.

A Present Duty.

It is a mistake to postpone the pleasures and recreations of life until one has done his hard work; a mistake which a great many frugal and otherwise sensible people make. There are hosts of men and women working with might and main for the purpose of enjoying life when they have laid a solid foundation of fortune under their feet. They are acting upon the belief that it is possible to get the hard work of life done, to press it into a few years, and then to begin to live. This is a misleading belief, says "Outlook." In the first place, the work of life is never done, and ought never to be done; and, in the second place, he who postpones indefinitely the hour when he will begin to enjoy life, postpones entirely the possibility of enjoying it. No man can work with might and main for twenty years, committing all his strength to his task and permitting himself to be entirely absorbed by it, without suffering atrophy or deadening of the faculties of enjoyment. At the end of twenty years he will find nothing left of life for him, so far as occupation is concerned, except the things he has been doing. He will have so fashioned himself that he has become only a hand or a tool to do a specific thing; he will have lost the capacity of turning from one occupation to another, of taking up one interest after another, of giving himself out freely on many sides. He who would enjoy nature cannot begin too early. The first acquaintance with the outward world ought to be made at the time one begins to talk, so that one fits his words to trees and flowers and birds and clouds just as soon as he sees them, and sees them just as soon as he is able to fit words to them. The boy who grows up with access to the woods and fields and knows the habits of birds, because he learns them in the leisure hours of childhood, will acquire a knowledge of nature which the mature man can never obtain. It is impossible to shut oneself up for twenty years and then step out of the room and enjoy the sky and the landscape. It is impossible to work with might and main for twenty years with the expectation that at the end of that time, one will take up music, painting, sculpture, architecture, and find delight in them. Delight in these things comes with education, with early and intimate contact; and when one comes out of a business which he has made a prison for twenty years, he can no more see what art has to reveal to him than can a blind man.

The power of enjoyment must be educated by use just as truly as any other power; it withers and dies by disuse. If one is to enjoy life he must enjoy it from day to day; if he postpones enjoyment, he loses the power of securing it at the end. There come brief moments in life, swift crises when everything is put by for the doing of a piece of work, the performing of a specific task, the facing of a great peril; but these are only moments. The lives are few in which there are not opportunities of enjoyment as one goes along which will minister to one's working power and not subtract from it. He makes the best living who keeps himself fresh by keeping his interests varied; and he only can make a life who lives in every part of his nature. Enjoyment is as much a necessity as work; to find pleasure in life is as much a duty as to find profit; and the only man who lives a wholesome, normal, successful life is he who combines pleasure and work, toil and recreation, from day to day, from the beginning to the end. Pleasure is a duty which cannot be postponed.

THE ANAEMIC YOUNG GIRL

Easily Noticed by Her Blanched Cheeks, Bloodless lips and Dull Eyes

Perhaps she is sixteen. Suddenly she seems to lose strength. Her beauty fades because her vitality is steadily decreasing. Dark circles appear under the eyes which become lustreless and dull. Her spirits droop, for no girl can be contented and happy in such condition.

This may be quickly corrected by taking Ferrozone. It supplies what is lacking in the blood, purifies and strengthens it, and keeps it in perfect order. Ferrozone makes plenty of red corpuscles that manifest themselves in a healthy ruddy complexion. It aids the stomach to do all its work, and creates a natural healthy relish for food.

Every organ of the body is benefited by Ferrozone. It rebuilds the entire system, makes new tissue, strengthens weak flabby muscles, makes thin people fat and sick people well.

No case of Anaemia is too chronic for Ferrozone. It may take time, but if persistently used will cure in the end. It will give you a well developed form, clear complexion, pure breath and will restore the bloom to faded cheeks and color to the lips more quickly than any other remedy.

Every woman who desires a vigorous constitution, and the good looks that come with good health, should take Ferrozone after each meal regularly. It is a wonderful tonic for the brain, the nerves and the blood, and acts also as an efficient but harmless regulator of the menstrual flow. In fact for all diseases peculiar to women and growing girls, Ferrozone has no equal as your druggist can tell you.

Three weeks treatment costs 50c., or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere, or sent by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

quarrel. The doctor's usually handsome face still bore eloquent witness to the result of it.

"Nothing was further from my thoughts, I assure you, Sir Astley," said Dr. Wharles, with a bland and slightly martyr-like air conducive to a feeling of sympathy on his behalf against his late assailant. "But the poor little chap seems nervous, and whatever violence you may think proper to use in your dealings with grown men, I insist upon your more gentle treatment of the boy."

Astley was furious. The doctor was indeed making artful use of his wounds to excite sympathy for himself and antagonism against the baronet, who was really the most kind-hearted of men.

It was some seconds before Astley could trust himself to speak. Then he turned to the people round him, and said, in a steady and straightforward way that appealed as strongly to the men as the more theatrical manner of the doctor did to the women: "I think, though you don't know me very well yet, you have all seen enough of me to be sure I would never use violence towards any person who didn't thoroughly deserve it."

There was a murmur of assent audible at once; and the doctor grew rather less florid as he shrugged his shoulders, still, however, keeping a showily protecting hand on the shoulders of the boy who, truth to tell, was as solid and sturdy a young rascal as the county held, and could have held his own in a tussle with either of the men.

"You got up in the tree to hide from me," said Astley, in a very calm, measured voice, and without any trace of violence; "and what happened after that?"

Stubborn silence on the part of the boy.

"Speak out, laddie," said the miner from a little distance.

"Don't be afraid," reiterated the doctor close to his side.

"I dunno what happened after that," said Ned sullenly.

"Yo' must ha' seen somebody down below. If you could see t' squire you could see other folk," said the miner.

"Did you see anybody else?" asked the doctor, still keeping up that friendly tone which contrasted so strongly with the slightly cross-examining manner of the others.

"No," said Ned. "I see nobody 'ceptin' Squire."

"You mean, perhaps," suggested the genial doctor, "that you saw Sir Astley while you were still on the ground. But when you got up in the tree you were too high up to distinguish anybody below."

"Ay, that's reght," said Ned.

Astley laughed a little, and at the sound Dr. Wharles looked round with some slight uneasiness, perhaps afraid of another attack from the hot-headed baronet.

"I dare say," said Astley quietly, "we shall get at something more reasonable from the lad when there's no one beside him to put the words in his mouth."

At that the doctor stood up quickly.

"Do you mean to suggest that I am taking this boy's part, and saving him from being bullied, with any improper motive, Sir Astley?" asked he with fire.

"I only mean," said Astley, as calmly as before, "that we've not heard all the truth yet, but—that we shall probably be able to get at it by and by."

There was an uneasy feeling growing in the group, that resolved itself into an instinctive withdrawal of the better sort among them towards the door. Something in the faces and in the manner of the two men who were meeting each other so fiercely eye to eye, seemed to imply that there was more than a mere discussion of an exciting affair between them, that there was something intimate, something personal in the matter, that called upon casual spectators to be modest.

Before, however, this feeling had resolved itself into definite action on the part of the bystanders, Astley, without another word to the boy, turned his back on the doctor, and advancing to the corner where Norma was standing, shrinking, nervous, trembling, he took her hand in his arm, and saying gently: "Come, dear," led her out of the cottage, with a courteous acknowledgment, as he went, of the salutations of his tenants and humble neighbors.

Once in the road outside, Norma was able to speak freely. As she and Astley crossed the road together, and walked along slowly under the shadow of the black wall, she whispered:

"Astley, you were right. The boy didn't tell all the truth about what he saw."

"I was sure of that."

"He told me, as soon as he came down from the tree, that the murderer lifted the body up and threw it down again."

"What?"

"Sh—sh! I don't think you'd better go back," said she quickly, as Astley stopped and turned. "You'll get nothing from him now. Let Mr. Capper know. There'll be an inquest, won't there?"

"Yes, of course."

"Perhaps the truth will come out then."

"The truth. What is the truth?" said Astley, his voice sinking till it was as low as hers.

But that was a question she was not prepared to answer. They looked at each other furtively in the weak light of the one lamp, and they saw the same fear in each other's eyes.

It was Norma who spoke first.

"Let's go out into the fields," she said, "where we can be quite sure no one can hear us. Just for a minute. I want to say something to you."

So they went back, and re-crossed the lane, and went over the stile into the open ground, where Norma felt safe from being overheard.

"I want to tell you," she said, "before we say good-night—"

"Good-night!" cried he in consternation. "Aren't you going back with me then?"

"Not on any account. And you are not to ask where I live, or to come and see me."

"But why shouldn't you stay at the Haigh? People will chatter, and ask all sorts of questions if you don't come back, and if they know you're living here!"

Norma made an impatient movement with her hand, in her impulsive, half foreign fashion.

"What does that matter? Wouldn't they chatter in any case? Let them talk till they're tired of talking. I tell you I have a reason," said she imperiously. "Now I want to tell you not to be alarmed if the truth doesn't all come out at the inquest. I have an idea that it won't; I have an idea that we shall be made to suffer a good deal more before it's done. Now will you promise me not to quarrel with Dr. Wharles again, and not to express any suspicion of anybody—"

Shattered Systems Rebuilt in Springtime by

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Mr. Guild Says:

"Your Medicine Has Done Wonders For Me"

The many marvellous cures wrought for the sick, suffering and diseased by Paine's Celery Compound, should compel the attention of every prudent, and judicious person who feels that he or she is out-of-health in the spring-time. The rundown, weak, sleepless, neuralgic, rheumatic and those afflicted with blood troubles should realize at once that Paine's Celery Compound frees the system from the seeds of disease and deadly impurities, strengthens the tired nerves, arouses a hearty appetite, regulates the sluggish bowels and gives normal action to the liver. A few bottles of Paine's Celery Compound used at once, means the building of a vigorous health for the coming summer. Mr. S. B. Guild, Ellershouse, N.S., gratefully writes as follows:

"I wish to express my gratitude for the great good accomplished in my case by your Paine's Celery Compound. My whole system was rundown and shattered. I was under the care of several doctors, but they did not seem to understand my case, and could do nothing for me. I commenced using your Paine's Celery Compound, and it soon made me a new woman. My nervous system is completely built up, my appetite is healthy, and I feel better and stronger than ever before. Paine's Celery Compound has done these wonders for me, and I cannot thank you sufficiently."

Jewish and Christian Intolerance.

I have known Jews, and, doubtless, you have, who, despite education and so-called culture, were so narrow, so bigoted, that they practiced a spirit of aloofness; who, though willing to buy from or sell to the Christian, and to receive from or render professional service to the non-Jew, were unwilling to eat or drink with him, to worship with or cultivate a feeling of fellowship for a Christian neighbor.

I have known Christians, and so have you, who, likewise, despite education and so-called culture, were the creatures of such narrowness of spirit, such littleness of soul, that they would draw the line of fellowship at the non-Christian.

Jews might be good enough to have given them their Bible, their Saviour; good enough to have given them their moral code, and their religious spirit; good enough to do their shares in the world's great economic, industrial and commercial work; but not good enough for fellowship, whatever might be their moral, mental or social excellences.

What, think you, would happen if the Galilean rabbi, Jesus, were to come back to life and appear before them as the meek and humble Jew that he was? His Jewish name and face and lineage would cause them to bar against him the doors of their homes, their hotels, and their club-houses, despite the fact that they would continue in their churches to bow down, worship and adore him as God's only anointed.

God have pity on such Jews and on such Christians. God have mercy on such petty, narrow and misguided souls. Such as these surely need your sympathies and mine, despite the fact that their conduct carries with it its own punishment—the punishment of depriving themselves of the benefit and blessings which come from contact with good men and women, whatever their race, or creed, or belief. How small would such souls seem to the broad and tolerant Nazarene! How he would lay the lash on the back of Jews and Christians, whose arrogance would lead them to look upon themselves as better than their neighbors, no matter how great the virtues of such neighbors!—From "Jesus the Jew," by Harris Weinstock.

STOCK MARKETS

STUPENDOUS DECLINE HAS CREATED BARGAINS

New York, April 1.—Do you appreciate the depreciation in market values that have taken place in the past 6 months. Do you know that it amounts in dollars and cents to more than this alone discounts a great deal. With the closing market on Saturday last it was figured that in 21 active stocks alone there was a depreciation in value amounting to $657,200,000. Just think of it. The decline has been heavy enough to carry values for most securities below the actual bargain level. The fall in prices has not been accompanied by a decline in actual values. Conditions effecting the intrinsic value of investment issues are stronger to-day than when market values were many points above the present level. Again, there is every indication that the expansion of business will continue for many months to come, earnings will consequently go on piling up. People who claim the decline prognosticates a falling off in the volume of business are mistaken. Traffic managers disagree with any such opinion, stocks are unusually cheap. Railway statements continue excellent. Canadian Pacific has just made its report for February, showing a net increase of over $68,000. St. Paul earnings increased for the month almost $300,000. C. & O. comes in with some big figures also. This state of affairs exists in all parts of the American railway world. April disbursements for dividends and interest will aggregate about $85,000. This will certainly help out some. We are at the turning point of the road, and strongly incline to the opinion that prices are scraping on bottom. As we said later part of last week, to neglect purchasing now would seem to us folly. The weak accounts are pretty well eliminated, and stocks have been gathered by strong people, who are able to hold them, and who were induced to purchase them because they were cheap. Cash buyers have increased materially in the past few days. That is the best kind of buying to assist the future market.

SUMMARY.

The opening tone of to-day's market was generally firm, but the course of trading became featureless, and no movements worthy of note occurred. The market drifted into an apathetic state and showed evidence of pausing preparatory to a gradual rising movement. The probability of money rates soon easing off materially will restore activity and higher range of prices, and the fact that the bear element made no demonstration even in the face of yesterday's high money rates, indicates that efforts to depress stocks have ended. Money closed, last loan, 7 per cent. Sales 472,000.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 21 years old and for 2 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
120 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMETT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Of Gladstone, Henry Labouchere once remarked: "I do not object to Mr. Gladstone's occasionally having an ace up his sleeve. But I do wish he would not always say that Providence put it there."

Congressman Charles N. Fowler of New Jersey recently visited one of his constituents in Union County, and found him trying to give some medicine to his little son, who had eaten too many green apples, while a Christian Science neighbor was assuring the boy that there was nothing at all the matter with him. "I think I ought to know," groaned the boy; "I guess I've got inside information."

In refusing to grant a private interview to a certain politician, who is always trying to give him advice and information on important matters of legislation, President Roosevelt is said to have remarked: "It is always most distressing to me to be obliged to talk to that man. I find myself constantly expecting him to revert to his arboreal ancestors, grow a tail, and swing gracefully from the chandelier without interrupting the conversation."

It is related that on one occasion Judge Roy Bean of Texas, who is better known as "the law west of the Pecos River," held a coroner's inquest on a Mexican who had been found dead near the Pecos River. The jury brought in a verdict of accidental death. The crowd was dispersing when the judge called them back. "There is another matter to attend to," he said; "on this man's body was found fifty dollars and a six-shooter. It is contrary to the laws of Texas and to the peace and dignity of the State to carry concealed weapons. Therefore, I confiscate the revolver and fine the deceased one dollar. The costs of the case are just forty-nine dollars, which just settles his estate."

A good story is told of the quick-witted Irish lawyer, Baron O'Grady, who on one occasion was trying a case in a country court, outside of the walls of which a fair was in progress. Amid the miscellaneous herds of animals were a considerable number of asses, and one of these commenced to bray loudly. At once the chief baron stopped the advocate, who at that moment happened to be pleading. "Wait a moment, Mr. Bushe, I cannot hear two at once." The court roared, and the advocate flushed. Presently, when the judge came to sum up, another ass struck in and the bray resounded through the court. Up jumped Mr. Bushe at once, with his hand to his ear. "Would your Lordship speak a little more loudly? There is such an echo in the court that I cannot hear distinctly."

During a visit to the South with an eclipse expedition, some years ago, an eminent American professor met an old negro servant, whose duty it was to look after the chickens of the establishment where he was staying. The day before the eclipse took place the professor, in an idle moment, called the old man to him and said: "Sam, if to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock, you watch your chickens, you will find they will all go to roost." Sam was skeptical, of course, but when at the appointed time next day the sun in the heavens was darkened, and the chickens retired to roost, the negro's astonishment knew no bounds. He approached the professor in awed wonder. "Massa," he asked, "how long ago did you know dat dem chickens would go to roost?" "Oh, a long time," said the professor, airily. "Did you know a year ago, massa?" "Yes." "Then dat beats de debil!" exclaimed the astonished old man; "dem chickens weren't hatched a year ago!"

Booker T. Washington recently told a gathering of negroes that one of the great faults of his race was a disposition to exhibit knowledge under any and all circumstances, and asserted that until the negro learned not to display his vanity, he was useless in any confidential capacity. By way of illustration, he told a story which, he said, might be or might not be apocryphal, but which was good enough to be true. General Sherman had been told that the soldiers of a negro regiment in his command were very lax when on sentry duty, and showed a fondness for passing doubtful persons through the lines just to indulge their power to do so. To ascertain if this were so, he muffled himself one night in a cloak, and tried to get past a black sentry. After the "Who goes there?" the "A friend," and the "Advance, friend, and give the countersign," had been exchanged, Sherman replied: "Roxbury!" "No, sah!" was the polite but firm response. "Medford!" "No, sah!" "Charleston!" Sherman next tried. "No, sah! No, sah!" said the negro, determinedly. Then he added: "Now, see heah—yo' can go fru th' whole blamed joggrafy; but Massa Sherman he done say that nobody can get pas' me wifout sayin' 'Cambridge!'"

ELECTRIC SPARK GOLD MINE PAYS DIVIDENDS

This Year.
At the 225 foot level vein is Richer than ever in
Gold, Silver and Lead.
It's something immense, 33 per cent. lead.
Gold you can see in the rock.
Don't believe it?
Come and see for yourself
Large fissure vein that
Will never pinch out.
Surrounded by mines that are
Making their owners wealthy.
One neighbor mine 2,300 feet deep,
Others from 500 to 1,500.
Sinking and drifting every day.
It's a sure winner.
Stock only 20 cents per share,
For a short time only,
Then it goes to 50.
Don't class us with "we will companies, who never intend to."
For we have the goods, and will deliver part of them in 1903,
And continue to deliver for years to come.

DEAF

FOR THIRTEEN YEARS

Mr. Geo. Warner, publisher of the Masonic Register Toronto was almost totally deaf in both ears for a number of years. He experimented with a thousand different remedies and only got relief by using Catarrhozone and is cured

Mr. Warner says: "For the past thirteen years my hearing has been badly affected. The streets were as as quiet to me as if I lived in the city of the dead. I could neither hear the noise of the street cars or sound of horses feet on the pavement. Before I had used Catarrhozone Inhaler three days I was able to notice a great change in my condition, which gradually improved until now I can hear a whisper across the room. I cannot tell you how much I appreciate Catarrhozone, or of the wonderful results I have derived from using it. Catarrhozone has my strongest endorsement and I am quite willing that you should use it."

Mr. Warner's unsolicited testimonial furnishes abundant proof that deafness can be cured, even in old age, if Catarrhozone is used. This remedy is scientific in its application and meets with the endorsement of prominent ministers and doctors all over Canada. Our best equipped health institutions always keep it on ahnd, and cases are recorded where it has been used with great success in the Government deaf and dumb institutions where other means proved futile.

If your hearing is poor, If you have head noises or ringing in the ears, be sure and use Catarrhozone. It is a regular miracle worker and is sure to help you. Complete outfit costs $1; trial size 25 cents. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

AN ITALIAN STRIKE

Labourers at the Cereal Company's New Dam Quit Work

About seventy Italian laborers, who were working on the Cereal Company's new dam, have struck. These men have been getting $1.50 per day, but demanded $1.60. This being refused they went out.

The striking of the Italians will not affect the work, as their places will be speedily filled.

An Old Time Sale

China Hall announces in another column one of its old time clearing sales—the first in four years. The public will remember these sales, and the genuine bargains given at them, and will not be slow to take advantage of this opportunity to get first class goods at low prices. The sale begins on Saturday, April 4th. 78clw

Student's Easter Rates

The Grand Trunk will issue to students and teachers of schools and colleges, on surrender of standard certificate, signed by the Principal, return tickets at Single Fare and One Third; going Apr. 4th to 11th, inclusive. Yesterday's Market

The offerings on the market yesterday were not very large. There were a few cans of maple sugar, which brought $1.40 per gallon, as that product is very limited this year; the price is likely to be no less. Potatoes were more plentiful, and sold as low as $1.20 per bag. Butter was somewhat scarce and held firm at 23 to 25c. Eggs 10c; chickens, 860c to $1.00 per pair. Live hogs will bring only $6.00 per cwt. since yesterday, which is 25c. per cwt. of a drop; dressed hogs $7.00 to $7.50 per cwt. Hay brought $10 per ton.

A Widely known Electrician

The Belleville Intelligencer says: Mr. H. O. Fiske, of Peterborough was in this city yesterday, having been requested by the Belleville Hardware Co, to test their motor. Mr. Fiske is widely known in the electrical world as one of the cleverest electricians in the Dominion. He is the electrician of the Peterborough Light, Heat and Power Co. It was his first visit to our city. He was particularly struck with the appearance of Front st., it not being disfigured, as almost all the principal streets in most places are, with poles of various dimensions and length.

A Surprising Discovery

You will be surprised in trying Catarrhozone to find how quickly it cures cold in the head. The agreeable, penetrating vapor traverses every air cell and passage of the nose throat and lungs. In one breath it carries instant death to the millions of germs infesting the respiratory organs and breaks up a cold in ten minutes.

A trial will convince you that Catarrhozone is the most potent, satisfactory and pleasant cure for Colds, Catarrh, Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Lung Trouble. Complete outfit, $1.00; small size 25c. Druggists or N. C. Polson C., Kingston, Ont

The Question of Walks

Kingston News: When asked to compare the cost of asphalt walks with that of wooden ones the City Engineer gave this estimate: Asphalt, 8 foot walk, with curb, 14.44 cents per foot payable annually for twenty years; the same without curb, 10.48 cents. Asphalt, 6 foot walk, with curb, 10.26 cents per foot payable annually for twenty years; without the curb, 8.76 cents. Asphalt, 4 foot walk with curb, 9.68 cents per foot payable annually for twenty years; without the curb, 8.8 cents. Wooden eight foot walk, 9.01 cents per foot. Wooden 6 foot walk, 7.27 cents per foot. Wooden 4 foot walk, 5.4 cents per foot. The life of a wooden walk is generally about seven years. One made of asphalt will last for twenty years. In the above figures relative to the asphalt walks the quotation allows for sinking fund, interest and all expenses of repairs for twenty years

Ready-to-Serve Fad Foods Are Tried and Found Wanting

Fad foods—cereal preparations—that come to the table cold, cheerless and rough looking to be eaten with milk colder than the foods, are never recommended by food experts and physicians for the production of physical energy, vim and force. It is the steaming hot dish of Malt Breakfast Food that bestows nourishment, energy, strength and true life to body and brain. Malt Breakfast Food cannot be ranked with ready-to-use fads; it is as far ahead of these as the diamond is superior to common glass. It is delicious, appetizing and palate-tickling, bestowing in the fullest measure its blessings—perfect digestion, pure blood, rosy cheeks and lasting health. All Grocers sell Malt Breakfast Food.

REPORTED SERIOUSLY ILL

Mr. W. A. Stratton, K.C., Said to be in a Critical Condition

Word was received in town yesterday to the effect that Mr. W. A. Stratton, K.C., who is now at the Pacific coast, was very ill. His brother, Mr. A. H. Stratton, left at once for the Pacific province. Mr. Stratton's many friends in town will deeply sympathize with him and members of his family, in their anxiety, and will hope for his speedy restoration to health.

When asked about the truth of the report, The Times was informed by one of the Examiner staff, that Mr. Stratton was not as ill as was reported, and that Mr. A. H. Stratton would probably meet him in Winnipeg on his way home.

A Mixup of Names

Our typesetting machines have gotten us into a heap of trouble again. In an item of our issue of Monday they made us say that Mr. A. J. Clarke was the district agent of the London Life Assurance Company. This is not correct, as most of our readers know, the local business of that popular Company being in the capable hands of Mr. George Lee. Mr. Clarke is the district manager of the Northern Life of London.

EYES SPEAK

Volumes, at times, of woman's happiness or misery. The dull, sunken eye, with its dark circles almost surely speaks of womanly ill-health, and its attendant suffering. With the dull eye goes usually the sallow, sunken cheek, the drawn mouth, the shrunken form—the whole glory of woman's beauty marred by the effects of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases which undermine the health and mar the beauty of women. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free, and so obtain the advice of a specialist upon their disease. All correspondence is strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"With pleasure I send a few lines to let you know that I feel much better than for eight years before taking your medicine," writes Mrs. Pierce Geise, of 833 West Phila Street, York, Pa. "Will recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine to every person who may inquire as to what it has done for me. I was troubled with female weakness, and began to think I would never be well. If I had continued the treatment prescribed by my doctor I don't know what would have become of me. When your treatment was commenced my weight was 108 pounds, at present it is 130. Have healthy color and my friends say I look well. My best thanks to you and my best wishes, too, for what you have done for me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

Branching Out

Mr. F. Mason, the prince of florists, finding his large premises on Water street quite inadequate for his expanding trade, has remodelled and refitted No. 408 1-2 George street, with every convenience to meet the requirements of his already large trade. THE BRITISH CONTENTIONS ON THE BOUNDARY QUESTION

The Position of Canada Said To be Impregnable

OUR RIGHTS WILL BE MAINTAINED

The Claims of the United States are Groundless

Ottawa, April 2.—With the arrival in England of the British Agent, the Hon. Clifford Sifton, to confer with the Imperial authorities in the preparation of the Canadian case to be presented to the tribunal, a new and important stage may be said to have been reached in the Alaska Boundary negotiations.

So much has been said and written on the other side of the line, if not for the purpose, certainly with the result of confusing the issue, that it may be well briefly to set out in plain and untechnical language the respective contentions of the two governments. These contentions are in the main threefold. They are:

1. To the course of the boundary line at the entrance of the Portland canal.

2. To the width of the strip of coast which belongs to the United States.

3. To the ownership of the heads of the larger inlets, notably the Lynn Canal.

1. As regards the first of these, the Canadian government holds that the southern boundary of the United States strip of territory is a direct line joining the southernmost point of the Prince of Wales Island with the northern entrance to the Portland canal, and thence along the middle of that body of water. The United States on the other hand affirm that when the negotiators of the treaty wrote Portland channel they had reference to the southern entrance to Portland canal, and that therefore the line should enter within the continent, not by the body of water named by Vancouver Portland Channel, but by another inlet to which they have given another name, viz., Observatory Inlet. In order to support this claim they contend that the line on leaving Prince of Wales Island proceeds along the parallel of 54 degrees and 40 minutes to the Portland canal. In this phase of the dispute is involved the ownership of two islands (Wales and Pearse) commanding Port Simpson, and also both sides of Observatory Inlet. It is therefore not by any means the least important part of that matter at issue.

2. In regard to the second contention Canada maintains that the width of the strip which the United States acquired from Russia is limited by the summit of the mountains which border the coast. By these mountains we mean those nearest the sea, which Vancouver saw from his ships, and which he depicted on his maps. There are mountains lying within five or six miles of the ocean coast which fulfill all requisite conditions and Canada therefore maintains that the line of demarcation should run along the crest of these mountains thus restricting the United States to the narrow limits indicated above. The United States assert that there are no mountains existing which fulfil the requirements of the treaty. They therefore discard the mountain line altogether and fall back upon the alternative provision that where no mountains exist the boundary shall be formed by a line parallel to the coast and nowhere distant therefrom more than ten marine leagues or thirty-five miles. They further interpret this alternative and subordinate clause to mean that the line formed under its provisions shall never be less than ten leagues from the sea, whereas the treaty merely defines ten leagues as its maximum distance and says nothing abouts its minimum distance. The Canadian contention is that the line runs along the crest of the mountains and is from five to six miles in width as against a thirty-five mile strip claimed by the Americans. Twenty-five miles of territory for five hundred miles is involved in this issue. Its importance therefore in a gold bearing territory is immense.

3. The third question involves the ownership of the heads of inlets and particularly Lynn Canal at the head of which lie Dyea and Skagway. It turns on the meaning of the word "coast." When the treaty says that the line shall follow the summit of the mountains parallel to the coast, does it mean that it shall run round the heads of the deep indentations such as the Lynn Canal, or that by "coast" the framers had in mind that which any ordinary person resident at the head of the narrow inlet extending sixty miles into the mainland would have, who might announce his intention of "going down to the coast." The Canadian Government adopts the latter view. They hold that by "coast" the treaty makers did not mean to include the terminus of a narrow fiord of the sea, but had reference to the broad outline of the continental shore.

It cannot be denied, however, that Canada's claim to the head of inlets has been some extent compromised by official neglect and indifference. It will unquestionably be most difficult to secure recognition of our view of this claim, but it will be fully pressed and argued before the tribunal.

It will be observed therefore that there are three main issues between the United States and Canada. The first involves the islands at the mouth of Observatory Inlet. The second concerns the width of the coast strip, and the third the ownership of a port, at the head of Lynn Canal. It is perhaps hard to say which of the three points in dispute is the most important. In different ways they all affect Canadian interests most powerfully. Our contentions on all these points are strenuously resisted by the Americans who claim that we are so far wrong that there is no legitimate ground for dispute.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC

Population of a New York Hamlet Stricken with the Disease

Binghampton, N.Y., April 2—Before the nature of the disease was discovered 21 of the 54 persons in the little hamlet of Steven's Point, about five miles east of Susquehanna, were down with smallpox. The disease was brought to the place by a man who had been working in New Jersey. A few days ago he returned home and developed what was called "the itch." No physician was called, but many people of Susquehanna and surrounding territory were exposed. The latter part of last week other people in the village began to develop "the itch." Finally a physician was called in and declared the disease to be smallpox. Twenty-one people are sick and several hundred in the surrounding country have been exposed.

The Cause of Dyspeptic Pains

Improperly digested food usually forms gases that cause a painful distention of the stomach and pressure against the heart. This results in much pain and distress, but Nerviline will relieve the distention, dispel the gas, and cure the dyspeptic pains very quickly. Polson's Nerviline is really an excellent remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Cramps, Summer Complaint and all Stomach and Bowel Troubles. No household is complete without Nerviline. Try a 25c. bottle.

MAKING BIG PREPARATIONS

Toronto Peterborough Old Boy's Association Preparing for Home-Comin

The Peterborough Old Boy's Association in Toronto are making extensive preparations for their home-coming on July 25-27, as the following notice will show:

Toronto, March 30th, 1903.

Dear Sir,—A meeting of the Association will be held at "Oakham House" (Working Boy's Home) 63 Gould Street, corner of Church Street, on Monday Evening April 6th., to convene at eight o'clock sharp, when matters of importance will come up for consideration. Our last meeting was scantily attended, no doubt on account of the stormy evening. Please be present this time whether it storms or not and bring all the new members possible. The final preliminary arrangement for our home going on July 25-27 will be discussed, character of badges, programmes, etc. New songs will be practised. Will those who can sing please be as early as possible after 7.30. Please do not forget the date.

Yours very cordially,

R. A. CARDWELL, Secretary,
282 Queen street East.
Mr. Llewellyn A. Morrison, President.

GENEROUS TO ITS EMPLOYEES

The C. P. R. Give Handsome Increase to Salaries Paid

Montreal, April 3—The prosperity which Canadian railways have been enjoying during the last four or five years and the large increase in their receipts, more especially those of the Canadian Pacific, has enabled them to accord substantial increases in the salaries of their men.

Canadian Pacific men especially have recently been awarded handsome advances.

"With a surplus of $14,000,000 to our credit in the bank," said a director today, "with the North-West filling up in the manner it is and with an acreage of wheat in sight a third more than last year, there should be no reason why our men should not participate in our profits."

The Pension Fund of the company is now well under way and by next July will be in full operation.

TO ARROGATE TOLLS ON CANADIAN CANALS

A Very Important Movement is Now on Foot—Big Delegation for Ottawa

Montreal April 3—The freeing of Canadian canals from tolls will come up in Ottawa early next week, and considering the size and importance of the deputation which is going to the Capital for the purpose of placing their views before the Government, the movement is one of the most important of the year.

The campaign against tolls on the Canadian canals, following the example of the Erie and other inland waterways in the United States, was inaugurated originally by the Kingston Board of Trade, and has since gained in popularity, until now the boards of trade, the vessel men, the grain exchanges, and the other bodies throughout Canada, are taking a most active interest in the project.

The matter is looked upon by vessel men grain men and other shippers, as being of the most vital importance, as it will cheapen the Canadian route between the lakes and the sea, and thereby make the St. Lawrence more popular as a freight route than ever before.

The boards of trade throughout Canada have signed a petition asking that these tolls be abrogated, and on Monday evening the various men interested will proceed to Ottawa. On Tuesday some three or four hundred will meet in the Council chamber of that city, there to organize and appoint a committee to wait upon the Government.

SHARP AMERICAN METHODS IN PARIS

How United States Capitalists Get Valuable Concessions There

Paris, April 2.—At the Hotel de Ville today the special Gas Commission now in session, will choose the American offer for the lighting of the city submitted by New York capitalists, thus bringing to an end the long controversy in the Municipal Council, which is certain to ratify the committee's choice.

The Americans, who propose to build entire new plants will be organized under French laws, with a number of supposed French stockholders. The new company is offering gas at half the old Paris companies' price, the object being to obtain a footing in the city by means of which control of other more important French public utilities may be gained. Complaints, however, are being made that the Americans freely used money to gain their object. This information was imparted by a member of the American party, who added that the lobbying had been in the hands of a well-known Paris financier, the son of a former President of France.

Although the names of the members of the committee who accepted bribes are not given, no secret is made of the fact that money was thus used. Considerable sums were also distributed among certain newspapers to induce them not to mention the American bidders except under the names of the French 'men-of-straw." These facts are causing the greatest bitterness among the defeated French bidders, several of whom threaten legal prosecution and exposure of "the latest New York methods" applied to France.

DEMAND FOR HELP

The Famine for Farm Laborers Not Likely to End

Toronto, April 1.—Never were alluring bargains, tastefully displayed, more eagerly grabbed up by hungry purchasers than are the young English immigrants who have been arriving almost daily in the city of late.

Yesterday 120 more young men arrived, and they may readily be excused if they took their prospective employers for cannibals about to devour them so voracious was the descent made upon them. As has been the case on every previous occasion, there were not nearly enough arrivals to go round. After they had all been engaged still the cry was for "more" These men, few if any of whom have had any farm experience, were snapped up at from $15 to $25 a month, and will go to points all over Ontario.

Said Mr. Persee, of the Immigration Department to a press representative yesterday:—"We could find employment easily for 2,000 men instead of 120. You see those men there," pointing to half a dozen disappointed farmers waiting about the room, "all of them were down trying to get some farm hands, but could get none, so quickly were the men gobbled up. No, the men have had no experience on farms, but that would make no difference, and they would have been engaged gladly if there had been enough to supply the demand. We expect further arrivals every few days from now on."

BIGAMIST MARRIED A REFUGE DOMESTIC

Fulton Smith of Galt already has a Wife and Family

SMITH—KRUEGER —In Berlin, on Friday, March 27th, by Rev. W. A. Bradley, Fulton Smith, of Galt and Berlin to Minnie Krueger, of Berlin.

Married again to a domestic at County Poor House.

Berlin, Ont., April 1— A simple marriage notice, that; yet thereby hangs a tale. The transaction has gotten Mr. Smith, of Galt and Berlin into an unevitable predicament, as he was yesterday afternoon waited upon by an officer of the law, High Constable C. Huber, and placed under arrest on a charge of bigamy.

Fulton's first and lawful wife and helpmate is still alive and well. She is living in Galt, and was spoken to yesterday afternoon by Constable Huber. She told the constable that there was a time when they were well-to-do, but of late her husband had not been staying at home.

He has been at the County House of Refuge for some time, and there met Minnie Krueger, the woman who on Friday promised to accept him for better or for worse. Miss Krueger is one of the House employes.

Mrs. Smith number one told Mr. Huber that she hoped Mrs. Smith number two would fare better than number one. Both Smith and his wife are well up in years, and have a number of grown-up sons and daughters.

THE SOUTH AFRICANS AWOKE A LITTLE TOO LATE

Immigration Tide from Britain is Now All Canadawards

London, April 2.—Canada, rather than South Africa, is absorbing the surplus population of Great Britain. The restoration of prosperity in South Africa has been slower even than the process of reconciliation, and the mining industry has not received as strong an impetus as was expected since the close of hostilities. The reports sent home by a British army of 25,000 men during the war were unfavorable, and the expected emigration movement from Britain to South Africa has not set in.

The resources of Canada, meanwhile, have been advertised systematically, and full use has been made of the American invasion, both as an incentive and a warning. The American settlers have been credited with "knowing a good thing when they found it," and British farmers and mechanics have been urged to follow their example and take effective measures against an undue growth of American influence in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

The second contingent of Mr. Barr's force of British emigrants, leaving Liverpool today numbers 1,800, and before the winter at least 10,000 will be transplanted from the Midland and Northern counties to the Saskatchewan Valley. Rev. Mr. Barr himself sails today with this large body of settlers, and will go to Winnipeg and Saskatoon. The Canadian officials say that the settlers are a picked body of emigrants, representing the arts and crafts, as well as agriculture, and taking with them a large amount of capital.

The South African millionaires have neglected emigration work, and can hardly hope to succeed, by belated energy, in interrupting this remarkable British exodus across the Atlantic.

King and President

London, March 31—It is stated that the meeting of King Edward and President Loubet of France will probably take place at Villefranche at the end of next week. King Edward will arrive at Gibraltar on April 8th. His visit will be a semi-private one.

For Canadian Northwest

Montreal, April 1—Another thousand immigrants passed through Montreal yesterday on their way to the North-West. Since last Sunday over 5,000 immigrants have gone.

GREAT BRITAIN WARNS TURKISH AUTHORITIES

The Present Present Situation in the Balkans is a Menace to Peace of Europe

THE REVOLUTIONISTS ARE DECIDEDLY ACTIVE

Efforts of Russia and Austria Have so far Resulted in Harm —Great Britain's Warning

Sofia, April 3.—Thus far the efforts of Russia and Austria in behalf of Turkey's Christian subjects have acclerated rather than retarded the revolutionary movement in Macedonia. The agitators have made the reform programme the pretext for a violent crusade against Turkish rule and Prince Ferdinand's Government is intensely apprehensive of the result. Sarafoff, the leader of the Revolutionists, and Gen. Michaelowski, president of the Macedonian Committee, continues to denounce the powers for compounding Turkey's crimes, and appeals to the opressed peoples to fight for liberty.

Russian and Austria share Bulgaria's fears and are applying renewed pressure in Constantinople and all the Balkan capitals to avert a situation demanding the forcible intervention of Europe. Turkey is not yet fully prepared to cope with an immediate rising, and the fact that spring has set in earlier than usual this year, gives considerable advantage to the Macedonians, and should any serious rising take place, there would be every likelihood of success at first attending the operations of the revolutionists. Bulgaria, Servia, Roumania and Greece would in all probability be drawn into the fray, and their sympathies are naturally with the oppressed Christians.

GREAT BRITAIN'S WARNING.

London, April 2.—Great Britain has warned Turkey that the increasing bloodshed and disorder in the Balkans is dangerous to the peace of Europe, and that vigorous and straightforward action on the part of the Porte is imperative. This warning is due to official advices from Belgrade to the effect that the Albanians are on the verge of revolt and that war must shortly break out in the Servian part of Macedonia unless their armed predominance is checked.

It is believed that Great Britain hints that Europe will be compelled to take strong measures to defend itself against the consequences of a Balkan conflict should Turkey's failure to cope with the situation be prolonged. The British Foreign Office has received information that the Albanian National Committee has a new Pretender to the throne and means to fight for independence.

SAILED YESTERDAY FOR DOMINION

Another Big Party Leaves England, Emigrants Advised to Settle in Ontario or Quebec

London, April 3—The Chronicle publishes, from its Toronto correspondent, a long warning to the all-British colonists of the difficulties of early years in the North-West settlement. He urges that the new settlers would do far better to locate, for a few years at least, in Quebec and Ontario. Nevertheless, another large party will sail on the Tunisian today.

MARCONI EXPLAINS

CANADA'S BUTTER TRADE.

London, April 2—The Government's bill regarding the sale of adulterated butter, now before the British Commons, is of direct interest to Canada. Merchants say the export trade of Canada and Australia will benefit, inasmuch as they sundry butters which will be largely used for adding moisture as permitted in the new bill. Irish butter will suffer, as it always contains a high percentage of moisture in its natural state. Thousands of tons of Siberian butter are expected this summer, in competition with the Canadian varieties.

THE HUGE SCHEME

A Canal from New York to Winnipeg is Projected

Of Which the Trent Valley Waterway will Form an Important Link—A Great Future for the Western Country

The following extracts are taken from a letter addressed to Commodore Calcutt, who received it a few days ago. The letter is dated Eau Claire, Wis., March 5th, and is from Mr. Thos. Nicholls, formerly of Ashburnham, but now a prominent citizen of the Republic. The extracts from the letter read as follows:

Dear Mr. Calcutt:—

I am exceedingly obliged to you for the particulars of the Trent Canal. I have a large project now before the city of New York, in the shape of an enormous canal from that city to Winnipeg, Canada. Starting at New York, it will go to Rochester or Sodus Bay, on Lake Ontario, thence to Cobourg or Port Hope, and on to Peterborough and thence to Georgian Bay and Lake Superior, and from Thunder Bay to Nipigon Bay to Winnipeg, and ultimately on to the Pacific coast by way of the Saskatchewan Valley. The first division to Winnipeg will take a great many millions of dollars, but millions are now as easy to market as thousands were 15 years ago.

Since I first mooted the project several others have advocated it, one even giving a lecture thereon before the Chamber of Commerce at Rochester. I have it in the hands of the Chief Engineer of New York City, who was one of the Commissioners of the Nicaragua Canal—Mr. Alfred Noble.

As soon as weather permits I will go to New York and spend a month or so; of course I shall go to Rochester, and may cross over to Canada. I forgot to say that my proposition is to make my canal a ship waterway that will take ocean steamers of 500 feet in length.

There is a wonderful rush of emigration to the west this season. Over 100,000 are going from the United States and about 40,000 from England. A large body have applied to the Canadian government for a tract of land to establish an All-British colony on. A friend of mine, leaving here, has just returned from Winnipeg, and he tells me that the city has a population of 60,000 and that street frontages are fetching $2.50 per foot. Immense buildings are going up. Deering and McCormick of Chicago, have built large factories for the manufacture of agricultural implements. He purchased a half interest in 40 townships while there, and his brother-in-law, Capt. Sherman, also a friend of mine living there, goes there in six weeks to make a large investment. You perhaps have little idea of what is going on there. Andrew Carnegie has invested twelve million dollars there in Lake Superior district.

REBUILT BOTH

A Change in Food Can do Wonders

When a change in food and drink will totally make over people it is worth while knowing the kind of food and drink used, particularly when in the making over, the old aches, ails and diseases are eliminated.

A lady in Louisville, Neb., says; "Husband and I were both coffee drinkers. He was always troubled with dyspepsia and I had in addition to stomach trouble, serious bowel disorder and was so terribly nervous that I could scream at the slightest noise.

"The pain in my stomach continued from morning till three or four o'clock in the afternoon. I was so tired all the time and never could get rested, it was all I could do to drag about. My nervousness kept increasing until finally the doctor said I must be taken to a different climate because I was getting weaker all the time, and then could hardly walk across the room.

"I had read many testimonials of the good that Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee were doing for people but never thought they applied to me. However my ever kind husband one night brought home a package of each. I had tried to quit coffee but every time a terrible pain would come in my head after each meal.

"I had no faith in your food and drink helping me, but to tease my husband I tried the Food Coffee and the Grape Nuts. Postum satisfied my taste and I loved GrapeNuts breakfast food with good cream.

"In a day or two I began to improve. That was seven months ago. Improvement has been so steady that now instead of being a miserable, nervous wreck, I am a strong, healthy woman weighing 140 pounds, can work from daylight to dark with a life and spring about me that I have never had.

"I use two pounds of Grape-Nuts each week and drink Postum Food Coffee twice a day, and expect to as long as I live for it has been a godsend to me and mine.

"Husband quit coffee and took up Postum when I did. His dyspepsia entirely disappeared and he has never had a return of it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE MACEDONIAN REVOLT

The trouble in the Balkans is not developing satisfactorily for the lovers of sensation. So far it has been barren of episodes, a mere fizzling of discontent among a population who make up in romantic appearance what they lack in determinate purpose. It certainly does not seem likely that a revolt advertised to begin at a specific time, like the performance of a play, could initiate any amazing revolution. While preparations were being made to revolt, preparations would also be made to crush any uprisings, and divert them into wider channels. It is fairly safe to say that until it suits the policy of some of the great powers to stir up strife in the Balkans, nothing originating there is likely to be a source of genuine alarm. It is very noticeable that the unsettled condition of the Balkan states is not causing any particular disturbance in the money market. If there were reasonable likelihood that Russia would shortly be at Turkey's throat, with Germany crying "Hands off!" and France straining at the bonds of peace to get at Germany, financiers would be in a state of panic, and their alarm would be reflected in the price of stocks and bonds. After all, Macedonia, Bulgaria and Sarvia are but pawns on the European chessboard, subordinate to, and frequently sacrificed in the interests of the larger pieces. We do not blame the Macedonians. If a tenth of the stories told about Turkish misgovernment is true, the Macedonians are only to be blamed for not revolting earlier and oftener. But about all the Greek races (are the Macedonians of Hellenic origin?) there seems to be the same incapacity of united and effective action. They have retained the fierce sectionalism of the ancient Greeks, which their greatest patriots and wisest men could not overcome, and at the same time have lost those virtues which made the Greeks the dominant people of the world. In the light of subsequent history, that outburst of Hellenic enthusiasm to which Lord Byron gave the assistance of his genius and his life, was made possible only by imagining in the modern Greek qualities they do not possess. In sober fact, they are a people upon whom it is impossible to expend much sympathy, and the Bulgarians, and Servians and Macedonians are like unto them. Yet, it is a strange irony of fate that descendants of the people who successfully defended Europe from the invasion of Orientalism, should now themselves be helpless under the domination of the Turk; and that of all the peoples who owe their civilization to Hellenic culture, there should not be one to come to their aid, while the barbarous Muscovite is their natural ally.

CHILD LABOR IN MONTREAL

Child labor in Montreal is worse than child labor in Pennsylvania. But the appalling revelations in the one place seem to have stimulated investigation and reform in the other. The Quebec law only restricts the employment of boys in factories under twelve years of age, and of girls under fourteen. Recently an inspector personally examined the children of both sexes in a large cotton mill in Montreal. Out of sixty-five girls, between fourteen and sixteen, he found thirteen who were quite illiterate, eighteen who could read fairly, but wrote with difficulty, and thirty-four who could read and write. An equal number of boys between 12 and 15 supplied twenty-one who were quite illiterate, eleven who could read, but could hardly sign their names, and thirty-three who could read and write in a rudimentary manner. Here out of 130 children were thirty-four, or 26 per cent. illiterate, and and sixty-three, or 48 per cent. whose education may be counted as defective, even employing the old standard of ability to read and write. Such a condition of affairs is a disgrace to any Canadian province, and should be remedied without delay.

DISIRICT NEWS

KEENE.

—Dr. Shaw was in Toronto on Tuesday.

—Mr. G. Laing has been confined to the house for a few days.

—Mr. T. Laing went to Toronto on Monday to attend the funeral of his aunt.

—John R. McIntyre and Fred Eason left for Winnipeg on Tuesday morning. We wish them success in the West.

—Mr. Wm. McFarlane, who has been indisposed for the past week, is, we are glad to report, able to be out again.

—An exciting runaway accident took place on Monday. A horse belonging to Dr. McWilliams was left standing on the street and the horse took fright. It ran some distance and upset into the ditch and smashed the buggy badly. The horse was caught by Mr. John McFarlane, who bravely risked his life in doing so.

—Another old resident passed away on Saturday morning in the person of Mr. James Rennie. Mr. Rennie was 81 years of age at the time of his death. He has been ailing for some years, and his death was not unexpected. The funeral took place from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery, Peterborough, on Tuesday.

—The death occurred on Sunday afternoon of Mr. George Reade, ex-M.P.P., at his home here, at the advanced age of 84 years. The cause of death was pneumonia. Mr. Reade was born on a farm near Brockville, Ont., and spent his early life there, finally settling in Keene where he has since resided. He has held many responsible positions, having served served two years in the Legislature, twenty years township clerk, and many years as clerk of the division court. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon, and was largely attended. The service at the church and grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. McDonald.

King and President

London, March 31—It is stated that the meeting of King Edward and President Loubet of France will probably take place at Villefranche at the end of next week. King Edward will arrive at Gibraltar on April 8th. His visit will be a semi-private one.

Lost Appetite Quickly Revived

A Fitful Appetite is generally associated with a general weakness of the system. Ferrozone the best tonic and appetizer should be taken after each meal and a rapid improvement is sure to follow

Distaste for food often follows La Grippe and fever, or is brought on by over excitement or worry. It is a dangerous condition and paves the way for more sickness. On this account it should be at once corrected by the regular use of Ferrozone.

A new and wonderful medicine is Ferrozone. It instantly imparts a real zest for food, and gives power to the stomach to digest and assimilate all that is eaten. Dyspepsia and indigestion are quite unknown to those who use Ferrozone, simply because it digests food so quickly, that it has no time to ferment or sour on the stomach.

Ferrozone regulates the bowels, quickly remedies urinal disorders and causes all the organs of the body to perform their functions, with proper regularity. If the liver is torpid, or the kidneys not eliminating as they should, they are soon restored to normal action, and the poisons that might otherwise be retained in the body to cause disease and ill health, are carried off through natural channels.

The surest road to perfect health is Ferrozone. Young girls who have been accustomed to eat almost nothing at breakfast, soon get over the bad habit by using Ferrozone, and as a result grow into healthy vigorous womanhood. When people get up in years and loose the strength and vim of youth they need a good tonic and blood builder to enable them to resist the trials of our vigorous winter, and this is where Ferrozone can be used to great advantage.

Both the young and the old, the weak and the strong, male and female can derive untold benefit from Ferrozone. It is guaranteed to contain no opiates or injurious drugs, and will do just what is claimed for it.

Druggists recommend and sell it price 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE VERDICT IN BURDICK INQUEST

Judge Murphy Says the Evidence Would Justify Warrant for Pennell

MRS. HULL AND HER STORY

The Judge Thinks Her Actions and Evidence are Inconsistent With One another

Buffalo, April 2.—Judge Murphy handed down his findings in the Burdick case today. He declared that the identity of the murderer of Burdick had not been proven. The statement is an exhaustive review of the evidence brought out during the inquest. Special attention is given to the letters exchanged between Arthur R. Pennell and Mrs. Burdick, particularly the one containing a threat against Burdick's life and says: "Although these facts would, in my opinion, constitute just ground of suspicion on which a warrant could be issued, were he alive."

Referring to Mrs. Hull, he says: "The actions of Mrs. Hull on that morning (the morning after the murder) and her testimony on the stand, have caused me much thought and worry. To my mind they are inconsistent with a perfect want of knowledge as to what had actually occurred. So little apparent feeling for the dead man, such an evident desire to cover up the crime, and no disposition whatever to aid the authorities in apprehending the murderer, may be explainable, but has not been explained."

The court takes occasion to vindicate Mrs. Paine and Miss Hutchinson, applauds Assistant Medical Examiner Howland for his refusal to report the murder as a case of suicide, and concludes with a defence of the people of Buffalo, whose good name had been sullied by the revelations of scandal and loose morals which were made during the investigation.

Pennel Said to Have Been Head of Police System of Corruption in Buffalo

New York, March 31—The New York Journal, in a long special from Buffalo, declares that Arthur R. Pennell killed Edwin Burdick. In part the Journal says:

No seeker of love letters sent Edwin F. Burdick to his death. The hand that dealt the fatal blows was guided by a desperate purpose to recover incriminating documents of another sort—documents that would have exposed a system of police corruption, of which Arthur R. Pennel was the John Doe.

It will be remembered up to the present the most searching investigation has failed to reveal the source of Pennel's income. He lived in the best style. He spent money lavishly. Yet as a lawyer he was never known to have a case in court, and his office practice consisted chiefly in the management of a collection agency.

Yet he was not always prosperous. It is now recalled that his leap to wealth was made at about the time he established himself in a convenient ground floor office in the Austin building, opposite the City Hall. At that time there was a mortgage of $6,000 on his home. He paid it off within a few months after he had opened his office, and at the same time began spending money like a prince. It has been said in explanation of this sudden wealth that he received an annuity from an estate in Maine. This has never been verified. It was also said that Mrs. Pennell had inherited a large fortune. The sum total of this fortune was $19,000.

All the while Pennell had been living at the rate of $20,000 a year. Even his wife did not know where he got his money, and at one time, it is learned, she had detectives at work trying to find out where Pennel's income came from. Whether she ever learned or not is not known, but it is probable that she found out more than her husband wished her to know, and that she declined to furnish to Pennell any further funds from her own estate. Within the last few days a meeting of life insurance general agents in Buffalo has been held, at which the matter of Pennell's insurance was discussed. It came out at this meeting that instead of about $240,000 of life insurance, he actually had more than $230,000 of policies in force, besides $40,000 of accident insurance.

The Journal's story then argues that Pennell entrusted Mrs. Burdick with many important secret documents relative to the corruption fund, and that Edwin Burdick became possessed of these.

SIOCK MARKETS

SOME TRADERS VEERED TO THE BULL SIDE

New York, April 2.—Some of Wall street's shrewdest professional traders veered to the bull side, believing a rally of some considerable proportions to be due and the general list to be greatly oversold by the bearish contingent. Though to some extent lacking leadership the last two days, business shows the results of their efforts. The old bull party in copper have taken back lots of stocks sold between 70 and 75 and their buying in the past two days was vigorous and well concentrated. St. Paul and New York Central were bid up quite sharply by two prominent banking houses and the rise in the former did much to lift prices all around the room. London has been a moderate buyer the past two days. Money brokers are practically unanimous that money will be considerably easier during April. For March the treasury did not take in money greatly in excess of disbursements. For the first time in many months, and for the first time in several years, except the beginning of a fiscal period, federal expenditures were within a margin of exceeding receipts. The several years surplus was increased by only $450,000 for the month of March. Receipts for March were about $1,000,000 less than March 1902, while disbursements were over $6,000,000 greater. This is a most important fact. The reduction of the war taxes is commencing to show in the government report; the treasury is not going to absorb money as rapidly as heretofore, which is very much to be desired. For a while prices will be feverish and vacillating. We cannot expect to run immediately into an era of long continued steady advances. The market will be a splendid one to trade in. Opportunities will however present themselves to trade upon both sides of the market, for the bull conditions warrant buying and holding. Mr. Morgan's expressed views favor the future. He argues that our mass of new securities some of which are undigested, are essentially sound and staple. New railway issues do not represent war between one great system and another, they constitute equipment for old and renewed lines which has been required to satisfy the demand made upon American railways without distinction. The vigor of America is at full blast and will continue so for a long time to come.

ELECTRIC SPARK GOLD MINE PAYS DIVIDENDS

This Year.
At the 225 foot level vein is Richer than ever in
Gold, Silver and Lead.
It's something immense, 33 per cent. lead.
Gold you can see in the rock.
Don't believe it?
Come and see for yourself.
Large fissure vein that
Will never pinch out.
Surrounded by mines that are
Making their owners wealthy.
One neighbor mine 2,300 feet deep,
Others from 500 to 1,500.
Sinking and drifting every day.
It's a sure winner.
Stock only 20 cents per share,
For a short time only,
Then it goes to 50.
Don't class us with "we will companies, who never intend to."
For we have the goods, and will deliver part of them in 1903,
And continue to deliver for years to come.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.26
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	28,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,712 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,667.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $77,366.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 300 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of this Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc., will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 7 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 5 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale.) This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

CATARRHOZONE

The Only Cure for Catarrh endorsed by the Medical Profession

Physicians boldly state that every requirement of a perfect cure for Catarrhal diseases is fulfilled in Catarrhozone, and on this account it is prescribed by almost every intelligent doctor.

It is the most powerful antiseptic known. When the lungs are filled with its germ-killing vapor the microbes which cause and maintain the unhealthy condition of the mucous membrane die immediately. Disease germs cannot exist where Catarrhozone is used.

Although very penetrating, Catarrhozone is a soothing and healing treatment. It quickly heals the raw spots and allays irritation and congestion of the mucous membrane.

When using Catarrhozone you don't have to wait all day for relief; it comes with every breath taken through the Inhaler. Head and throat are cleared and cleansed almost at once. Droppings in the throat, headache, coughing, and spitting, and all other disagreeable symptoms of catarrh are banished by a few days' use of this superior remedy.

Catarrhal diseases of every description yield without much difficulty to Catarrhozone. When used for Bronchitis, Lung Trouble and Colds, it affords not only instant relief, but cures in a very short time.

Croup, Whooping Cough and Winter Ills simply won't live any time if Catarrhozone is inhaled four times daily, and as a safeguard for Pneumonia and Consumption it has no equal.

Better get a Catarrhozone Inhaler; use it occasionally, and you won't have a cough or cold in the head or catarrh. These afflictions can be prevented by Catarrhozone as well as cured. Complete outfit, full two months' treatment, costs $1. Small size, 25 cents. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

It is hoped that everybody having a liking for beauty will attend in order that they may take advantage of what promises to be an interesting lecture.

Colonial Weaving Company

The Globe's Peterborough correspondent says: "The promoters of the Colonial Weaving Company state that sufficient capital has been secured, local and United States, and that arrangements for manufacturing operations are so advanced that in a very short time the company will be in a position to book orders for woven trade labels, silk ribbons and probably piece silks. The location of the factory here, which will employ a large number of hands, was, the promoters say, influenced by the liberal terms the town offers and the low figures at which electric power is obtainable."

A MINOR "STRIKE"

At the Cereal Works Dam This Week—Only a Few Men Out

A very small strike occurred at the Cereal works dam yesterday morning when about half a dozen agitators managed to work on the feelings of their fellow-employees and succeeded into talking about thirty into leaving. Most of the so-called "strikers" returned before noon, however, and were taken on again, but it is almost needless to add that the agitators were discharged. The wages received by the men are very good, being $1.50 per day for laborers, and it is felt there is no reasonable ground for discontent.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT

Brakeman Dan O'Connor Meets with a Sad and Painful Accident

While doing some shunting in the Cereal Works yards yesterday afternoon, Mr. Dan Connors, who is employed as a brakeman in the C. P. R. yards here met with a sad and painful accident, which resulted in the loss of his right limb, above the knee, and a colles fracture of the right wrist.

The unfortunate young man was descending from a box car, when he fell in front of the car, receiving the most frightful injuries.

The ambulance was immediately despatched and the young man conveyed to the hospital, where Dr. Gray, assisted by Drs. Young and Carmichael dressed the injured limbs.

The right leg was so badly mangled that it was necessary to have the limb amputated about four inches below the thigh. The bone from the thigh to the knee was crushed into small pieces, and the tissues of the muscle below the knee were rendered into a mass of pulp.

Mr. Connors is about 28 years of age, unmarried, his home being in Toronto. He is a brother of Mr. Hugh Connors, of the G.T.R., Lindsay, who was also a conductor on the Peterborough street railway.

The Times was informed at an early hour this morning that the patient was doing as well as could be expected.

THE HISTORIC TENT

To be Provided for Those who are Unable to Procure Houses

The real estate agents in Peterborough have come to the conclusion that the best way to solve the house-hunting problem is to provide tents and lots for the many people who are in difficulty as to a place of abode during the coming summer. It is felt that this will help to develop the summer resort aspect of Peterborough, which is a very commendable enterprise. The houses which are in course of erection are only about sufficient for one in every twenty of the people who are seeking accommodation.

SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD

Dyspepsia and Liver Disease CURED BY DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I was weak, nervous and dizzy, with a fainting sensation when walking," writes Jesse Childress, Esq., of Samuel, Sullivan Co., Tenn. "Could not walk any distance; always felt bad after eating; felt as though something was sticking in my throat, always uneasiness in stomach. Doctored with three physicians but they did not relieve me. I grew worse and used everything I could think of; was nearly ready to give up and then some one told me that Dr. Pierce's medicine was good, so I began taking his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have taken seven bottles of that now and am as stout as ever, and enjoying health as much as ever before. I worked all summer and this winter as much as any one. My case was liver disease and nervous dyspepsia of which your medicine has cured me. In September 1898 my weight was about 95 pounds, now it is 125. Please accept my sincere thanks."

German Emperor Cordially Greeted at Copenhagen—Not Worrying Over Snub by the Duke of Cumberland.

Copenhagen, April 2—The German Emperor arrived here today from Kiel and received a cordial greeting from thousands of spectators, and from a great gathering of diplomats and civil and military authorities.

The Emperor was warmly welcomed by King Christian, and replied most kindly to the latter's remarks.

It is officially announced that the Emperor has expressed himself strongly in favor of the maintenance of good relations between Germany and Denmark, and that he will not be influenced by the departure from Copenhagen before his Majesty's arrival here of the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland.

SMALLPOX IN HARVEY

Five Cases Reported in the Township of Harvey

Three houses are now quarantined in Harvey at present, as a result of the visit of Mr. Metherell, who passed through the county from Norwood to Lakehurst, stopping at Westwood and Warsaw on his way to his home in Lindsay. It appears that the traveller, who was selling cigars and tobacco, was delivering some of the goods as he took orders, and was not aware that he suffered from this loathsome disease.

It was reported that one man in Warsaw had contracted the disease, but the report lacks confirmation. However, the people at Lakehurst were not so fortunate, as five well developed cases in three houses in the township are reported. It is of a very mild type, and the patients are doing as well as could be wished and no serious results are expected.

KING EDWARD TO CALL ON THE POPE.

Rome, April 2—Prince Colonna, Mayor of Rome, has been officially informed by the Italian government that King Edward will visit Rome at the end of this month. Mgr. Stoner (Canon of St. John Lateran) the highest English prelate here, has been entrusted with the negotiations to arrange a visit of King Edward to the Pope. It is proposed that the King go either to the English Ecclesiastical College here, or to the residence of Prince Massimo, whom he met when here as Prince of Wales, during the lifetime of Pope Pius IX. From either of these places King Edward will start for the Vatican, not in a carriage of the King of Italy, but in a private vehicle.

Rome, April 2—Senator Villari, in an address delivered to-day before King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena at the opening of the International Historical Congress, said Europe is shut in between two great, powerful countries, Russia, on the east, and the United States on the west. The latter, from a population of thirty million has risen to eighty million and no one knows what its population will eventually reach. The United States has also taken the lead in all the works of progress and civilization.

These two forces acting on Europe, are likely, he said to render necessary: a union of the different European countries, which may completely change the geographical situation to the universal advantage of Europe. He added that the twentieth century will, perhaps, see the solution of many problems.

1,100 Emigrants For Canada

London, April 1—Eleven hundred emigrants left Euston station this morning on their way to Canada. This is the largest number of emigrants that has ever left that station.

Capital of Portugal Turns Out to Welcome the British Monarch Who Comes to Pay a Social Call on King Carlos

Lisbon April 2—The British Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert with King Edward on board arrived in the Tagus today from Portsmouth and was saluted by the warships and forts. The yacht steamed up the estuary, followed by the escorting British and Portuguese cruisers, and anchored opposite Black Horse Square, where an immense crowd had assembled. Every point of advantage was packed with people.

Another royal salute was fired as King Carlos embarked at the Arsenal on board the beautiful royal galley, which was built for the marriage of Dom Maria and Carlos IV. The warships manned sides and yards and the sailors cheered as the State galley, followed by several others, proceeded to the Victoria and Albert.

The interview between their Majesties on board the Victoria and Albert lasted for an hour and a half, after which a procession was formed, and the two Kings went ashore. The historic galley, occupied by the Kings led the way. It was followed by a flotilla of various craft. Their Majesties' progress was accompanied by salvos of artillery, and the sailors of the warships again manned sides.

On landing King Edward and King Carlos were greeted with tremendous enthusiasm.

A MONSTER EXCURSION

Trenton Wants a Big Delegation to Go to Ottawa Re the Canal

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Mr. George Young, of Trenton, pointing out the necessity that exists for a popular demonstration before the government in connection with the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Young says that a cheap rate should be secured from the C.P.R., so that all who feel inclined might go on the deputation. The excursion could start from Peterborough and would be joined at the junction of the Ontario Central by a mammoth delegation from Trenton.

This is exactly what should be done. Let a deputation of at least 1000 go down and the government will come to terms.

THE STREET RAILWAY

The Proposition Before the Council in Committee

On Thursday night the Council refused to admit a Times' representative to the meeting, and others, apparently, next day gave the whole business to the evening papers. Either these committee meetings should be a sealed book, or they should be open to the press. That one paper can secure and publish a report of the proceedings, when such are supposed to be private, shows the folly of closing the doors at all.

The meeting left the street railway matter practically in the same position as it was before. The Otonabee Power Company made three alternative offers regarding street lighting, viz: (1) To supply and equip 100 lamps of 2000 candle power for $35 each per year. (2) In the event of the town owning the poles, to string their own wires, etc, and furnish light at $30 per lamp per year. (3) And to furnish power for lighting purposes at $10 per horse power.

In the meantime the council are busy figuring out exactly what the difference is between the Otonabee Power Company's offer and the proposition of Mr. Stuart. If the difference between $35 and $60 per lamp is to be the price of getting our street railway going, the ratepayers will have to sanction it. This would be equivalent to a bonus of $25,000 in the ten years.

The council will meet again on Monday night to wrestle with the subject.

THE PAIR HAVE GONE

Clayton Lost the Preacher and Hired Girl

Rev. H. A. Johnston Has Been Absent a Week, So also has Minnie Stalker Who Sang in the Choir

Clayton, N.Y., April 3.—The people of Clayton are talking about the departure of Rev. H. A. Johnston, aged about forty, who has been pastor of the Congregational church during the past two years, and Mrs. Minnie Davis, nee Stalker, aged about nineteen, who left town on the same day, though not together. The girl was a singer in the choir and the minister's name had been coupled with hers by gossip for some time.

On Monday of last week, Mr. Johnston was on the train going to Philadelphia and told an acquaintance that he was going to Rensselaer Falls, but it was noticed that he went towards Watertown instead. The girl was employed in the family of H. B. Dewey, and on the same day she was going to Watertown to spend the day. No trace of the minister or girl has since been found.

The girl was very attractive in appearance, and frankly admitted it, saying that the Lord had made her beautiful and it was not her fault. She was married last fall to George Davis, but they soon separated.

The minister has left a wife and two small children. It was a pitiful sight when on Friday night the little ones went to the depot, expecting to meet their father, but the train which brought others home to their loved ones carried no passengers for them.

Disfiguring and Troublesome Diseases Result from Impure and Poisoned Blood

Paine's Celery Compound

Is the Great Blood Purifier and System Renovator

Eczema, salt rheum, scrofula, shingles, ringworms, boils, pimples, itch, and a score of other disagreeable troubles, result from sluggish, impure and poisoned blood. All these common afflictions cause serious disfiguration to face and complexion, and demand our instant attention. Do not resort to outward treatments or applications. Common sense and the experience of your friends will at once suggest a blood purifier and system renovator like Paine's Celery Compound. This marvellous medicine soon multiplies the number of vital red corpuscles, and fills the arteries with a healthy stream that produces clean, solid flesh, and firm, well-braced nerves. Mr. M. D. Arthur of Chelmsford, Ont., says:

"I was laid up with sears all over my face and neck, the result of blood poisoning. While in that condition, I could not sleep at night, I had no appetite, and could not attend to my work. I tested the skill of all the doctors in the district, and used their medicines but was not benefitted. My aunt advised me to use Paine's Celery Compound, and I did so to please her. I bless the day I commenced with the medicine. In two weeks I was so much better that I could go out, and in three weeks I was able to resume work again. I cannot say sufficient in praise of Paine's Celery Compound; I would not be without it if I were obliged to pay ten dollars a bottle for it."

THE GAMEY CHARGES

Toronto, April 3—Your correspondent asked Mr. Gamey last night, if he proposed going out of town this week, or before the investigation began. He answered: "Oh, no! I must remain here, and be on hand for any new developments which may arise. We are busy night and day preparing our case, and will continue to be busy to the end of the chapter."

Mr. Whitney left yesterday for his home in Morrisburg, to spend the remainder of the week with his family. He will likely return to the city on Monday, and remain until the close of the investigation.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL NOW TAKE A STRONG STAND

Europe Must be Rid of the Obnoxious Turk at All Cost

THE ONLY SOLUTION OF THE PRESENT TROUBLE

When Present Provisional Arrangement Fails, Armies and Navies Will Move

London, April 3.—Great Britain is taking a stronger stand in the Balkan crisis than the English press and public appear to realize. This statement is based, partly on information obtained by the Star correspondent in diplomatic quarters, and partly on the explicit declarations of a distinguished member of the Armenian Relief Association. The stronger stand suggested, consists in warning Turkey that Europe cannot tolerate the continuance of anarchy in the Balkans, and in significant intimations to Russia and Austria, that no settlement must be contemplated in the disturbed area that leaves the interests of Great Britain out of account.

There is a strong feeling that Russia, Austria and Turkey are disposed to play with fire, and the Government has deemed it wise to formulate the British policy in precise terms for the benefit of the cabinets of St. Petersburg, and Vienna. Otherwise, it was feared that Russia and Austria, counting on the weakness or indifference of the Balfour ministry, might embark on a scheme to control the near east that would envitably provoke war. Downing street east regards British interests in the near East as vital to the integrity of the Empire, and has not the slightest intention of seeing it fall before Pan-Slavic or Pan-Germanic greed.

"Europe is nearer war over the Balkan question to-day, than at any previous moment for years," said a member of the executive staff of the Armenian Relief Association to the Star correspondent to-day. "To be sure," he continued, "the cloud may pass, but the situation is extraordinarily dangerous. One of our representatives who has just returned from the scene of trouble, reports that Macedonia is a regular arsenal. He says that the caves, cellars and churches, are filled with rifles and ammunition imported throughout a long period of years. The priests are tireless revolutionaries, and there is no thought anywhere of stopping short of emancipation from Turkish rule."

"When the Russo-Austrian reforms scheme breaks down, then look out. The powers, in the name of civilization must act. The only effective action possible can scarcely fail to entail the movement of fleets and armies on a huge scale. Russia's motives are a matter of deepest suspicion in England. What she will dare we cannot predict, but Great Britain purposes playing an important role when the curtain rises in the final act in the Balkan drama.

"Meanwhile the French Armenian Relief Association is working in harmony with us, and we do not doubt that the whole weight of American diplomacy will be thrown on the side of the suffering Christians. The Sultan's introduction of Kurdish cavalry into Europe is the prelude to a carnival of raping and slaughter.

"The Sultan could not reform the Government of the Balkans, if he wanted to do so. He is helpless in the vice of the Ottoman system, with its horde of nominal dependents on the palace, who subsist on the sale of offices in the afflicted peninsula. These parasites will fight reform to the death.

"Abdul Hamid himself is really in sympathy with the Albanian rising, because it gives him an excuse to offer the powers for not carrying out the proposed reforms in Macedonia.

"There is no cure for the situation, except the absolute expulsion of the Turks from Europe."

Paris, April 3.—The French Foreign Office has been officially advised that the Sultan of Turkey has ordered a division of troops to the scene of the recent outbreaks of Albanians. Official advices say the attacking party at Mitrovitza numbered two thousand men, representing the element opposing the plan of reforms which the Powers jointly formulated and which Turkey accepted. The officials here consider that the Albanian opposition to the reforms creates a serious complication, and they accept the Sultan's action in despatching large reinforcements to Albania as evidence of the Turkish Government's determination to carry out to reform project.

REDISTRIBUTION BILL.

The Measure Meets the Approval of the Masses

TORIES DON'T LIKE IT

They Say it is Fair at First Sight But Won't Stand a Close Inspection

How Many of the Constituencies Look—The Country Generally Well Satisfied

Ottawa, April 3—The talk in Parliamentary circles today is the redistribution Bill, as introduced by the Premier. The Liberals regard it as a popular move, while the Conservatives, following the view of their leader, admit that it has all the appearance of fairness at first sight. Take the single seats of Ontario to begin with, and there can be no trouble in disposing of them. The Conservatives will have four or five of a majority in that arrangement. In other words out of 25 single seats, exclusive of the Rainy River and Thunder Bay district, the Opposition will have fourteen, while the Liberals will have only ten and one doubtful. The constituencies which the Conservatives have are Carleton, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Peel, Dufferin, Halton, Lincoln and Niagara, Prince Edward County, Muskoka, Victoria Durham. The Liberal constituencies are Glengarry, Prescott, Russell, Kingston, Wentworth, Welland, Parry Sound, Nipissing and London. Norfolk may be placed among the doubtful. There are, therefore, 25 ridings that can be disposed of without any difficulty. The population of Hastings, Kent, Lambton, Peterborough, Lanark, Ontario Ottawa, Oxford, Perth, Northumberland, Renfrew, Waterloo, Bruce and Hamilton will warrant two members. There are natural boundary lines which can easily be followed and about which there cannot be any very great dispute. Take Ottawa and the dividing line recognized by all is the Rideau Canal. In Hamilton there are now two constituencies for the local. In Huron, Grey, Middlesex, York and Simcoe there will require to be three members. So that the opinion here is pretty general that the committee scheme will work fairly well.

In the Maritime Provinces and Quebec there will be no difficulty, as the charges will be few and all parties are pretty well agreed upon what ought to be done there. The same thing may be said of British Columbia. In Manitoba and the Northwest the movement of population is such that no real success could attend an attempted gerrymander, should any one suggest it.

GAMEY COUNSEL NOT READY TO PROCEED

The Commissioners Wish to Go on at Once, the Other Side Offer Every Aid.

Toronto, April 3—The Royal Commission appointed to enquire into the charges laid by Robert Roswell Gamey against Hon. J. R. Stratton sat this morning for three-quarters of an hour in the non-jury court room at the City Hall, and adjourned until Monday, April 13, at 10 o'clock to enable the counsel for Mr. Gamey to prepare their case.

The counsel for Hon. J. R. Stratton, E. F. B. Johnston, K.C did his best to facilitate the enquiry, even offering to send one, or, if necessary, two boats up to Manitoulin to bring down the witnesses from the island. But it was all to no avail. Mr. Blake declared he had not yet seen a copy of the commission authorising the investigation, and that it would take at least till the date mentioned for his colleague, Mr. McPherson to prepare his case.

THE COUNSEL.

The array of counsel is impressive.

For Mr. Gamey, Hon. S. H Blake, K C., was chief counsel, and was assisted by W. D. McPherson and C. H Ritchie.

Hon. J. R. Stratton is represented by Mr. E. F. B Johnston, K C W R Riddell, K.C., J. M McEvoy, K C of London, and T. C. Robinette, K. C

Nelson R. Butcher is the official stenographer.

MR. BLAKE SEEKS DELAY.

"I have not yet had a copy of the commission," said Hon. S. H. Blake, who asked for a delay to enable him to prepare his case. He wished for an opportunity to examine the commission, and he expressed the view that this was not a matter of necessity to the due investigation of the charges.

"You initiate proceedings do you not?" asked Chancellor Boyd.

"I am in the hands of the commission," replied the chief counsel for Mr. Gamey.

"But the charge is laid by you?" suggested the Chancellor.

"Oh yes, your Lordship," replied Mr Blake, who continued to point out that he would want time to carefully consider the commission.

"But it has been in all the papers so often," remarked Chancellor Boyd, "surely you know what it is."

"I don't know what its ultimate form is," was Mr. Blake's reply.

The counsel for Mr. Gamey also desired time to formulate his charges, and wished the counsel for the accused Minister to provide him with their statements of defence and other documents relating to the commission.

It was suggested by the court that there should be a general production of documents for to-morrow at the registrar's office in Osgoode Hall.

Then there was a consulting of the lawyers, Mr. Blake and his colleagues put their heads together in one group and Mr. Johnston and his aides in another.

OVER A WEEK'S DELAY.

The upshot of it all was that Mr. Blake told their Lordships that he did not see how they could be ready for examination before Monday week, April 13. There was the case to be prepared, and then some of the witnesses from Manitoulin could not get here before then.

The counsel's sparring began again. Mr. Johnston made a generous offer. He proposed to send a special boat up to Manitoulin to bring all the witnesses down. The passage from the mainland would, he said, take only ten hours.

Some one suggested that the witnesses for the two sides might scrap, and there was a laugh.

"We will send two boats, then," said Mr. Johnston. "That will get over the difficulty."

But no, that would not do. Mr. Blake was not satisfied.

"There are practical difficulties," he objected. "How do I know how far the ice is out of the bay?"

Mr. Johnston put in another suggestion—tried a little more oil on the machinery.

"The examination of the chief witness (Mr. Gamey) and his cross-examination will occupy one or two days possibly, and the other witnesses can reach here by that time," he said.

"This is not a matter of good-nature," said Mr. Blake, who was still obdurate. His colleague, Mr. McPherson, could not be ready before the 13th.

So it was arranged that the examination of witnesses should commence in the Assize Court room, No. 1, City Hall, on Monday, April 13, at 10 o'clock and the court officials proclaimed it.

In the meantime documents will be exchanged between the counsel, and Mr. Blake will hand the counsel for Hon. J. R. Stratton the revised statement of Mr. Gamey's charges, as they ask the royal commission to investigate them. He hoped to have this ready by Wednesday next, though it may be Thursday.

MAKING AN ATHLETE

Proper Food the most Important Requisite

Most health or ill health comes from the stomach, depending upon how it is fed. The athlete is very dependent upon the proper food. An athlete of Muncie, Ind. writes: "From a frail, sickly college student of scarcely six score pounds the pure food Grape-Nuts has brought me, through persistent conscientious use, to a vigorous young athlete tipping the beam at 152 pounds. For two years the food has been to my stomach what pure air is to the lungs—a source of vigor, health and vitality.

"Having always been a great reader I frequently while at school missed my meals that I might devote the time to a favorite book, or else I hurried through the meal. This irregularity, omissions and hurrying, together with the close application to study, finally told on my health until I was forced to leave school. I must have been in a truly pitiable condition from what my friends have since told me although at the time I am sure I did not half realize the seriousness of my case. My parents decided to send me on a trip to Southern California.

"On the train I made the acquaintance of a Mr. Weissenger, a wholesale grocer of Chicago, who was interested in my case. He heard my story and advised me to try Grape-Nuts, a food greatly relished by his own family. From what he told me of the food I longed to try it but I did not expect to find it beyond the Rocky Mountains. To my surprise on arriving at Los Angeles I noticed a box of Grape-Nuts on my aunt's sideboard. That marked the beginning of my health and comfort. Since then I have come to look upon the food Grape-Nuts as a synonym for good health and happiness." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A MEDICAL CURIOSITY

About forty years ago when the people of the State of New York were in a state of alarm over hydrophobia, the Legislature invested $5,000 in a sure cure for rabies. On Feb. 28, 1806, it tried one, agreeing to pay to John M. Crous $1,000 for his "perfect and infallible remedy and cure for the hydrophobia, or canine madness. "This Act provided that before the payment was made Crous should present to the Comptroller, duly signed and attested, "a full and true account and prescription in writing of the true remedy and cure aforesaid," and provided also that he and another surety approved of the Comptroller should enter into a recognizance to the people of the sum of $2,000 before one of the Justices of the Supreme Court, undertaking to refund said $1,000 with interest "in case the said discovery by him to be made in writing as aforesaid shall within four years after the passing of the act, prove deceptive and ineffectual." Crous, however, got his money, and the State got the prescription, which we give here, so that anybody who prefers to go out by its aid in preference to dying of rabies may try it:

First, take one ounce of the jaw-bone of a dog, burned and pulverized or pounded to fine dust. Secondly, take the false tongue of a newly foaled colt, let that be also dried and pulverized, and, thirdly, take one scruple of verdigris, which is raised on the surface of old copper by lying in the moist earth; the coppers of George I. or II. (are the purest and best. Mix these ingredients together, and if the person be an adult, or full grown, take one common teaspoonful a day, and so in proportion for a child according to its age. In one hour after take the filings of the one-half of a copper of the above kind, if to be had; if not, then a small increased quantity of any baser metal of the kind, this to be taken in a small quantity of water. The next morning, fasting, (or before eating), repeat the same as before. This, if complied with, after the biting of a dog, and before the symptoms of madness, will effectually prevent any appearance of disorder, but after the symptoms shall appear a physician must immediately be applied to to administer the following, viz., three drachms of the verdigris of the kind above mentioned mixed with half an ounce of calomel, to be taken at one dose. This quantity the physician need not fear to administer, as the reaction of the venom will then diffuse through the whole system, of the patient, and neutralize considerably the powerful quality of the medicine, and, secondly, if in four hours thereafter the patient is not completely relieved administer four grains of pure opium or 120 drops of liquid laudanum.

N. B.—The patient must be careful to avoid the use of milk for several days after taking any one of the foregoing medicines. John M. Crous.

Think of it—three drachms of verdigris at a dose, to say nothing of the half ounce of calomel! Medical literature records some queer doses that have been compounded for suffering humanity, but few stranger than this. The present day legislatures are not such easy marks for quacks — at least medical quacks; they are the legitimate mark for the economic kind.

THE SHIRT WAIST WILL STAY

A lot of dressmakers held a convention in Chicago and denounced the shirt waist. They said it must go. They said it was the duty of every dressmaker to discourage it.

And why?

"Because it is ruining the dressmaking business," they assert.

Nonsense! The people who are paying dressmaking bills haven't noticed it. They are still digging up money in response to the insatiable demands of Fashion, and making the best of it.

The fight on the shirt waist is being waged on lines that will not enlist the sympathy of the public.

If its opponents could say that it is laced too tightly, or that it gouges the heart out of place, or makes women look lopsided, or exposes the defects of the feminine form divine, or is unhealthful, then they could wage an anti-shirt waist campaign and, perhaps, win.

But the shirt waist, with its companion piece, the golf skirt, is the best thing in the something-to-wear line that ever happened to women.

They mean that without the expenditure of a large amount of money it is possible for any woman to appear well, sensible and comfortably dressed. There would be as much sense in putting the ban on or both or asserting that women's feet should be shod only with patent leathers, as to try to bar the shirt waist.

This is the age of business women. They have, very sensibly, adopted business attire, and it has been found so good, both from the standpoint of the wearer, and from that of the admirers of neatness, that all classes have embraced it. There are shirt waist summer girls and shirt waist stenographers; shirt waist school teachers, and shirt waist heiresses. A goodly portion of the money they save on shirt waists goes into better and more expensive clothing for wear on occasions where the shirt waist will not do.

The task of these disgruntled dressmakers is a hopeless one.

The shirt waist is here to stay, and humanity is glad of it.

FERROZONE

Will give you an Appetite and with Appetite and good digestion comes health and strength

Ferrozone will in one week give you a splendid apetite, and will so improve digestion and assimilation that full benefit will be derived from everything eaten.

There is nothing like Ferrozone to create a keen healthy relish for food for the brain, and a tonic for the nerves and brain. To those leading a sedentary life it is a perfect boon.

The reverend Dennis O'Brien, D.D., the well known Evangelist says of Ferrozone: "I have pleasure in saying that I have found Ferrozone a remarkably good preparation. It keeps up one's appetite, cures nervousness and sleeplessness, and perhaps the very best tonic I have used. Being in the form of chocolate coated tablet, it is both pleasant and convenient to take and is well worthy of my highest recommendations."

This is an example of the way people speak of Ferrozone who have used it, and should be convincing evidence of its unusual merit. It is warranted to cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Lost Appetite, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Catarrh, and all other diseases arising from impairment of blood or nerve tone.

Refuse to accept a substitute for Ferrozone. Every druggist sells it 50c. per box, or three for $1.25. Prepared by N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., and Kingston, Ont.

THE SOUTH AFRICANS AWOKE A LITTLE TOO LATE

Immigration Tide from Britain is Now All Canadawards

London, April 2.—Canada, rather than South Africa, is absorbing the surplus population of Great Britain. The restoration of prosperity in South Africa has been slower even than the process of reconciliation, and the mining industry has not received as strong an impetus as was expected since the close of hostilities. The reports sent home by a British army of 25,000 men during the war were unfavorable, and the expected emigration movement from Britain to South Africa has not set in.

The resources of Canada, meanwhile, have been advertised systematically, and full use has been made of the American invasion, both as an incentive and a warning. The American settlers have been credited with "knowing a good thing when they found it," and British farmers and mechanics have been urged to follow their example and take effective measures against an undue growth of American influence in Manitoba and the North-West Territories.

The second contingent of Mr. Barr's force of British emigrants, leaving Liverpool today numbers 1,800, and before the winter at least 10,000 will be transplanted from the Midland and Northern counties to the Saskatchewan Valley. Rev. Mr. Barr himself sails today with this large body of settlers, and will go to Winnipeg and Saskatoon. The Canadian officials say that the settlers are a picked body of emigrants, representing the arts and crafts, as well as agriculture, and taking with them a large amount of capital.

M. B. F.

Three initial letters, mystical to some, but quickly recognized by a vast number who regularly use Malt Breakfast Food.

One lady when asked by the writer what the above initial letters properly referred to quickly answered: "Malt Breakfast Food." "My Breakfast Friend."

To-day thousands of people in Canada look upon Malt Breakfast Food as their best breakfast friend. A hot, steaming dish of this delicious food every morning affords an energy, vim and strength that contribute to true health and physical robustness.

The secret of success of Malt Breakfast Food and its fast increasing popularity is due to its easy digestion and superior nourishing virtues. The doctors will tell you that no other food is half as good. Every Grocer sells M. B. F.

The "Two-Hat Trick."

The reform crusade inaugurated by Secretary Shaw of the United States Treasury against malingerers, gamblers, and other discreditable employees of the Treasury, has resulted, among other things, in unearthing a class of sluggards known as "two-hat men"—a man who wears two hats, not both at once, but separately. When the two-hat man arrives in the office in the morning he apparently has only one hat, which he removes and hangs upon a peg. Later in the day he becomes possessed of a desire to drop the business of the Treasury Department for a while. He leaves his hat on the peg, walks out of the office, pulls a soft hat out of his pocket, puts it on, and stays out as long as he pleases. If his chief notices his absence, a glance at the hat hanging on the peg is sufficient to assure him that the clerk is still in the department building, and presumably attending to business of some kind. The two-hat scheme has only been discovered within the past few weeks, and, as a result, the officials have become so exacting that it is dangerous for a person known to be a "two-hatter" to leave his room even on business of the office.

The Northern Life
Assurance Company of Canada

SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT

At the annual meeting held in the offices of the Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada in London, Ont., on Monday, the 9th day of March, the following report was presented:

To the Shareholders of the Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada:

The directors beg leave to submit the sixth annual report, and with pleasure refer to the advancement made by the company during the past year.

The amount of insurance written during the year was $1,119,725.00.

The total amount of insurance in force on the 31st day of December, 1902, was $3,192,535.00.

The total assets of the company now amount to the sum of $332,044.71, being an increase during the year of the sum of $47,776.06, and being $118,194.71 in excess of the paid-up capital stock of the company. This fact will be gratifying to the shareholders. It shows that the capital stock has earned, since the company commenced business, more than 50 per cent. after payment of all expenses and death claims, and although as yet no dividend has been paid it stands to the shareholders' credit as an inseparable part of the capital stock of the company, and it is necessary to be so held as a reserve for the security of the policyholders according to law.

The cash income during the year amounted to the sum of $110,022.55, being composed of first premiums received $34,646.59, renewal premiums $64,843.82, and interest $10,532.14, the increase over last year being $25,266.63.

During the year investments have been made which the directors deem perfectly safe and which increased the amount of interest earned.

The claims paid for deaths occurring up to the present time are well within the expectation of loss.

The same cautious energy which characterized the management of the company from its commencement was continued during the past year, and the directors believe the right course is being pursued in the management of the company's affairs.

The books of the company have been regularly audited and a synopsis of the assets and liabilities of the company is given below, as well as some comparisons with the previous year's accomplishments.

The managing director and staff both at the head office and in the field have loyally and diligently labored to secure the best results they could for the company, and it will be to them as well as to the directors and shareholders a source of gratification that they have met with so goodly a share of success.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

DAVID MILLS,
President.

Catarrh

After the Grippe frequently comes Catarrh, and after Catarrh, Consumption. You can prevent each and every one of these maladies by the judicious use of Powley's Liquified Ozone. You can cure them with the same infallible remedy. By destroying the germs to which Catarrh is due, Ozone quickly and permanently eradicates every trace of the disease. The following extracts taken from letters written by persons, who have been cured by Ozone, prove what it has done for others. It does not matter how chronic your case may have become, it will do equally well for you:

W. A. MOODY,

Fairbank P.O., Ont., writes: "I am pleased to say I found Powley's Liquified Ozone all you claim for it. It cured my Catarrh and also built up my general health. I took two advertised remedies before trying Ozone, but they did me no good."

WALTER D. KEW,

23 Maplewood Avenue, Toronto, writes: "My employer, John H. Palin, 186 Davenport Road, advised me to use Powley's Liquified Ozone for Catarrh, as it had cured his son. I did so with the most satisfactory results, as I am now entirely well. My father also used it with equally good results in a bad case of stomach trouble."

MISS CORA REID,

46 Borden St., Toronto, writes: "After suffering from Catarrh for five years, during which time I tried many advertised remedies without results, I commenced to use Powley's Liquified Ozone. I have used several bottles, and am now in better health than I have been in years."

A. J. FORGUE,

St. Constant, La Prairie, Quebec, writes: "For fifteen years I suffered from Catarrh. Two years ago the discharge from my head tainted my lungs, which became very weak. I was treated in the hospital and by our family physician, besides taking several advertised remedies sent from the States; but did not receive any benefit. I finally tried Powley's Liquified Ozone. The first bottle helped me wonderfully, and after taking three more bottles my appetite had become excellent, there was no vomiting, my lungs were strong and the Catarrh had entirely disappeared."

M. F. JOHNSON,

postman, 395 Rivard Street, Montreal, writes: "I had Catarrh of the head and stomach for eight or nine years, during which time I tried all kinds of Catarrh remedies, snuffs, washes and Sarsaparillas, but they gave me only temporary relief. I finally tried Powley's Liquified Ozone. Before the first bottle was half used I found it was doing me good, and continued to get better until I had used seven bottles, when I was entirely cured, with not a trace of the disease left."

JAMES A. PATTERSON,

20 Main Street, St. John, N.B., writes: "I have used three bottles of Powley's Liquified Ozone for Catarrh, and have been wonderfully benefited."

JAMES L. SCHOTT,

27 Voyer Street, Montreal, writes: "I have been afflicted with Catarrh for the last thirty years, during which time my entire system had become impregnated with it. I tried every remedy I could hear of but without success. Finally I decided to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I have now used six bottles. It has stopped the bad odor that arises from Catarrh. I have no headaches or pains, and I am better than I have been in years. To those afflicted I cannot recommend Ozone too highly."

V. BESSEY,

43 Elgin Street, Hamilton, writes: "I suffered from Catarrh for four or five years, and was annoyed by a constant dropping in my throat to such an extent that I could scarcely get to sleep. In the morning I would feel as tired and sleepy as when I went to bed. I tried different snuffs and patent medicines, but got no relief until a friend of mine told me he was positive that Powley's Liquified Ozone would cure my Catarrh. I bought a bottle and before I had used it found it was helping me. I have now taken six bottles. I can go to bed and sleep. The dropping in my throat has ceased entirely, and when I wake in the morning I feel as if my sleep had done me good and I am ready for my breakfast. I strongly recommend Ozone to anyone troubled with Catarrh."

FREE We have a new laxative to use in connection with Powley's Liquified Ozone, in cases where a laxative is necessary. We believe it to be as nearly perfect as it is possible for a laxative to be. In order that our customers may more speedily become acquainted with the merits of this remedy we will send a regular 25 cent box free of charge to any customer who will cut out the accompanying coupon and mail it to us.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

"You know something?" said Astley quickly.

"I don't indeed. I know absolutely nothing. But—I believe it's my Italian blood, I have a fancy that I can play detective a little, and I tell you I shouldn't scruple to do it in a cause I had deeply at heart."

"Come, you can tell me, what do you suspect?"

"I can tell you nothing. You would laugh at me. But I want you to be very circumspect, and very quiet and—very generous to your wife."

"You are my wife," cried Astley passionately.

"I don't mean me, though," said Norma demurely. "I mean to—the other one."

"But why—"

"Do as I tell you. And remember again and again, you are not to be alarmed whatever they say, whatever they think."

"I wish you'd explain," said Astley uneasily.

But she would not. She called his attention, at that moment, to a commotion in the lane behind them, and returning thither, they found that the police had come from Blackdale, and with them a fresh crowd of sensation-mongers.

The people streamed into the road, into the plantation. The police went first, with Dr. Wharles, who had been summoned from Raggett's cottage to explain what indeed there was little need to explain. Norma and Astley, drawing together under the shelter of the hedge that bordered the lane, beside the stile, heard the doctor's ringing tones as he talked. The people who had been in the cottage, and who had seen the body, did not, for the most part, join in this second expedition into the wood; they formed groups in the lane, discussing the mysterious affair.

The words of some of these gossips reached the ears of Astley and his companion, as, anxious that the people should disperse before they themselves went back into the lane, they waited a few minutes in silence near the stile.

"It's a rum thing this, and a bad beginning for t' new master oop at t' Haigh," said one man to another, in a low voice.

"Ay," said his mate, "let's hope as ow t' truth 'll coom out and clear him."

Astley started. Norma held his arm in her hand like a vice.

The first speaker went on: "I'll not believe it easy of t' new master. He's a nice chap, for all he's a bit violent, as t' doctor says."

"T' doctor had proofs of it t' other day!" said the second man. "But he says hissen as how he doan't think we ought to talk as if we felt suspicious, without more proof than we gotten."

Norma was trying to draw Astley away: but he seemed to be rooted to the spot. "They suspect me of the murder!" he cried hoarsely.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Very gently, very sweetly, Norma tried to soothe Astley, and to restrain him from following the artful doctor then and there. "Don't you see," cried the unhappy Astley, "that it's this rascally fellow who's been spreading the belief that it was I who killed this man, the very man I've been so anxious to meet?"

"Well, if he has," said Norma persuasively, "his tales will turn against himself by and by. People will say that he is malicious and revengeful, after your attack upon him, and that this is the way he is trying to satisfy his malice."

But Astley would not be convinced.

"This affair is of too intimate a nature for the truth to be given to the world," said he, "and the beggar knows that, and presumes upon it."

"Well then, how can you bring up the subject now, before all the people?" said Norma. "You know it's impossible. The doctor would say such things before everybody, that you would not be able to control your rage and disgust. No, no, let me persuade you; let me, oh, let me have the satisfaction of feeling that I have done some good, some little good!"

Her plaintive appeal touched Astley to the heart. Once more he entreated her to come back to the Haigh with him, and when his entreaties failed, he began to reproach her and to say she did not care for him.

"Don't you see," urged he, "that while you live in the neighborhood, yet not in my house, people will ask questions, and ferret out things? While if you come back, and live in the same house as you have done, the gossips will be quiet?"

"Oh, no, they won't," said Norma. "This affair to-night, this dreadful story, will bring out more than you think. And then you will find people will see we have done what is right, what is best. And, remember, the more of the truth they learn the stronger the feeling for us will be. We need not tell anybody anything: we don't want to parade our griefs before the world. But since the world will never be satisfied till it knows the truth, and since the truth is that we are both quite blameless, isn't it better not to make any pretense, but to face the facts as they are, and wait?"

He let himself be persuaded at last. But her heart ached for him, as, weary and worn out, he left her, when the excitement in the neighborhood had died down, and the body had been carried away, and went back, through the dark wood, which had been the scene of such a terrible tragedy, to his great, lonely house—ill and alone.

On the following morning Norma, from her upper window, saw Dr. Wharles come up the lane, not in his gig, but on foot, and go quickly into Raggett's house.

Her landlady, old Mrs. Giles, saw him too, and instantly began to gossip, with an old woman's malice, about black-eyed Nance Raggett and the handsome doctor.

"Is he often at the cottage, then?" asked Norma.

"Dear, no, my lady," said Mrs. Giles. For she had learnt who Norma was, and was very proud of her lodger, though somewhat puzzled by her choice of a residence. "I've never seen him there afore. No doubt he noticed her black eyes and her saucy ways last night; for she's a bold 'un; not but what there's something to be said for her, poor thing, tied to a drunken fellow like Raggett; which she's his second wife, and no children of her own, only that gowk of a Ned, the son by Raggett's first wife, to look after. But there, I'm running on, and I see you don't care for gossip, my lady; it's not likely a lady of your quality would."

Norma let her run on with her remarks, but the point of interest was past for her. This, then, was the doctor's first visit to the cottage, with the exception of his share in the visitation of the previous night. She took mental note of this fact, and even condescended to play the spy from her window, in order to ascertain how long Dr. Wharles stayed there. And his visit was a very long one.

It was on the following day that the inquest was held, and Norma, more dead than alive, crept into the town hall by the hour appointed, and sat, trembling, in her place not far from Astley, with whom, however, she scarcely exchanged a word. A heterogeneous crowd the witnesses were, consisting, as they did, of Sir Astley of The Haigh, his wife, Dr. Wharles, Mrs. Wharles, the boy Ned Raggett, an innkeeper of the town, two or three of the townspeople, and a brother of the dead man, who had come from a Midland town, and who identified the body as that of Thomas Rogerson, formerly a soldier, but who, according to this witness, had done no work of late.

The brother gave evidence that he knew of the proposed visit to Darwen Haigh, where he understood that the deceased man had some business with Sir Astley Darwen; but what the nature of it was he declared he did not know. He knew of no grudge entertained by the deceased against any man or of any grudge entertained against him.

The next witness called was Norma, who trembled so pitifully that they gave her a chair, in which she sat, limp and lifeless, her features shrouded by a thick black veil, the raising of which was suggested by one juryman; though his demand was overruled.

She looked such a forlorn little creature in her black dress, with her great black eyes shining out of a pale face through the meshes of the veil, that a good deal of sympathy was aroused for her. Rumors had not been wanting as to the existence of a lady with a better right than she had to her title, and the fact that she was not living at her reputed husband's house was taken as convincing proof that there was something in the rumors.

The nature of some of the questions put to her was startling in the extreme.

"May I ask, Lady Darwen, how it was that you were in the wood that evening, the evening of the murder?" asked the coroner, respectfully enough, but so unexpectedly that Norma started violently. She waited a moment before replying:

"I was in the lane beside the wood, when I saw a flash in the darkness, and then another flash, and heard two reports and a loud cry. I got over the wall and ran through the wood until I touched something with my foot, and found—it was—the body."

"Did you see anyone in the wood before you saw the flash?"

"Not at that time," she answered, after a moment's hesitation.

The jurors grew attentive.

"Not at that time! Do you mean you had previously seen someone there?"

"I had seen someone go into the wood—two people."

"Two people? How long before was that?"

"I can't tell exactly. Some minutes before."

"They passed you in the lane?"

"No. I saw them from the window of Mrs. Giles's cottage."

"Will you tell us just what you saw?"

"I was at my window when I saw someone—cross the road, from the stile a little beyond the cottages, and go into the wood."

"Over the wall?"

Norma's heart and her voice sank together.

"No. Through the gate."

"Through the gate! Is it a public way?"

"No. He unlocked the gate and went through."

"Did you see who it was?"

"I thought it was—Sir Astley Darwen," said Norma tremulously.

Here Astley nodded a decisive assent to the coroner and jury. The coroner went on with his interrogatory:

"And you say you saw a second man? Did he go through the gate with Sir Astley?"

"No. He came from the stile, went up the lane to the right, and got over the wall into the wood."

"When was this?"

"A few moments later."

"And who was this man?"

"I don't know at all. He was never near enough for me to see."

"But you can give us your impression as to his appearance. Was he a tall or a short man?"

"Tall, I think. Not particularly short, I am almost sure."

"Did you ever see the deceased man in life?"

"Yes. Once for a few moments only."

"Was it he you saw?"

"I really didn't see well enough to be sure. If I must give my impression, it was that the man I saw cross the road was a broader-built, stouter man than he."

This answer created an unfavorable impression among the jury that Norma was drawing upon her invention in order to avoid incriminating Astley.

"But you could not see clearly?"

"No."

"When you came to the body, was anybody near?"

"I thought not until I cried for help on hearing a noise above me, and a boy came down from a tree."

"Was anybody else in sight at that time?"

"No."

"Did you hear any sound as if anybody else was near?"

"While I was talking to the boy, I heard a noise as if someone was getting over the wall into the road."

"What sort of noise?"

"The cracking of branches, and then a sound like a drop into the road."

More amiable invention—thought the jury.

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER,
Miami, Man.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the (fill in name of paper.) To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow, we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

ADVERTISE IN 'THE TIMES' NOW

A SPLENDID PROPOSITION OFFERED TO CANADIANS

East Argentine Tunnel, Mining, Milling and Power Transportation Company

The Owen Sound Times has the following which we gladly reproduce in these columns. Mr. Sidney also assisted Peterborough, and arranged for Mr. R. J. Kidd to represent his company in this We also publish a number of views of the East Argentine Company's famous property. Our contemporary says.—

Among the interesting visitors to Owen Sound this week was Mr. M. Sidney, superintendent of the East Argentine Tunnel, Mining, Milling, Power and Transportation Company. This company operates valuable properties on Pendelton mountain in the East Argentine district, about five miles from Georgetown, Colorado. Mr. Sidney is an Owen Sound boy, and his rise in the western mining world must be a source of interest and pleasure to the citizens of Owen Sound, and indeed of all Canada. By hard work and exceptional ability he has become one of the successful men of Colorado, and a recognized authority on the value of good mining properties in process of development. Mr. Sidney is a brother of Messrs. John and Harry Sidney, of Owen Sound. Mr. Sidney's career since leaving Owen Sound forms an interesting story, and proves again that well known quotation that "Truth is stranger than fiction." It would be impossible to refer to Mr. Sidney's personal successes in the west, however, since space is not available. Many Owen Sounders are interesting themselves in the valuable property which his company controls. That he has not forgotten his old home is instanced by the fact that Owen Sounders, as a result of his visit, will have the opportunity of securing a limited amount of stock which the company is placing in the market. The Mining Investor, a recognized authority, speaks in glowing terms of the Sidney Tunnel. "The territory of this company," it says, "is traversed by some of the most noted ore bearing zones of the entire state, and is adjoined by very rich mines which have been extensive producers of high grade ores." Prof. Chauvenet, of the Colorado State Schools of Mines, did not hesitate to say, when inspecting the property, that one of the two or three great mineralized zones of the McClellan mountain, a rich adjoining property, extended into Pendelton mountain and traversed the East Argentine Company's territory. The geological formation is very similar to the Alunde-Colorado Central lode which has produced over eight million dollars and continues to ship ore that is improving in quality at the thousand foot level. The East Argentine prospectors originally prospected for silver values exclusively, as the smelters of that period paid nothing for the gold, copper and lead in the ores. The introduction of new methods in metallurgy and mining has made many properties of great value. The East Argentine Company's properties yield ore highly valuable in lead, copper and gold, with varying proportions of silver. The company develops its properties by the tunnel system, economizing by dispensing with costly hoisting and pumping plants, and by saving fuel and labor in connection with steam or electricity, with a valuable water power which drives the air drills. Some mines are located in treeless wastes and must import mining timbers at a very great expense, but this company's properties are studded with a supply of timber ample for all mining purposes for several generations. There are a number of out cropping veins in the territory of this company, and it may be observed that the blind veins are frequently discovered wherever outcrops are visible in the Georgetown region. The veins traversing the territory of this company form a vast network, and the lode system is briefly as follows: Veins traversing the granite in the direction of the porphyry dikes; contact lodes between the granite and porphyry; strong cross veins, evidently more recent, traversing the systems mentioned, and furnishing in the aggregate one of the most compactly and richly mineralized areas in Colorado. The object of the Sidney, or main tunnel, is to explore this vast system of veins at a depth of one thousand feet lower than any other tunnel projected in the district. The Sidney tunnel will cut the veins at various angles, and drifts will be run in promising cross veins, as they may be encountered. The company has sixty-three lode claims, five mill sites and nearly sixty acres of placer ground, aggregating about four hundred acres. Development work is now actively pushed in four places on the company's territory. The big Sidney tunnel is 8 by 8 feet and is designed to run a distance of 1,000 feet, enabling the company to exploit its vast network of veins at great depth, through drifts or laterals along the veins as they may be intersected by this great thoroughfare. The officers of the East Argentine T.M.M.P. and T. company are all local residents of Georgetown, and are rated among the most reliable gentlemen of Colorado. The officers are: President, Marcus Wheeler, Manager of the Dewey & Wheeler Ore Concentrating Works; vice-president, Hon. Henry Knebel, member of the Colorado Legislature, president of the Georgetown Board of Mines and Commerce and member of the mercantile firm of Knebel & Anderson; secretary-treasurer, R. A. Leisy, superintendent of Public Instruction in the Georgetown public schools; superintendent of mines, M. Sidney, who has had extensive experience in the mines of Colorado and other Western States, and who is universally respected for his efficiency and uniform uprightness; counsel, J. J. White, mayor of Georgetown and leading attorney of Clear Creek county. The board of directors consists of these gentlemen and Mr. J. S. Randall, one of the most distinguished mineralogists of Colorado. The home office of the company is at Georgetown, Colorado. It is perhaps quite unnecessary to enter upon a discussion just here of the value of mining investments in general, or the East Argentine in particular. Mining investment is not a gamble. Since the introduction of machinery that will treat all grades of ore, but the very lowest, at a commercial profit, mining has become a more reliable investment than manufacturing. The East Argentine, with its valuable water power, its tunnel system, mining timber and other essentials to economical development, right of the ground, presents a field for investment such as has not been offered the citizens of Owen Sound for years. The company is installing a water power plant of one hundred and twenty-five horse power, which is more than sufficient for present requirements, without the expense of attendant, and can be enlarged to meet any future requirement. There is nothing unreasonable in the statement made by the East Argentine Company, and the developments in progress and contemplated in the immediate future, will greatly enhance the value of the stock by the time that it becomes a dividend bearing asset. Owing to pressure of business Mr. Sidney was obliged to leave for New York and Boston yesterday morning, but before his departure he arranged that all information that the public may desire, could be secured at the office of Mr. R. A. McGregor, general district agent for the People's Insurance Company, 12 Poulett street. His brothers, Messrs. John and Harry Sidney, of this town, have been authorized to act as agents, and will be pleased to supply at the local office any information that prospective shareholders may desire.

TO ABROGATE TOLLS ON CANADIAN CANALS

A Very Important Movement is Now on Foot—Big Delegation for Ottawa

Montreal April 3—The freeing of Canadian canals from tolls will come up in Ottawa early next week, and considering the size and importance of the deputation which is going to the Capital for the purpose of placing their views before the Government, the movement is one of the most important of the year.

The campaign against tolls on the Canadian canals, following the example of the Erie and other inland waterways in the United States, was inaugurated originally by the Kingston Board of Trade, and has since gained in popularity, until now the boards of trade, the vessel men, the grain exchanges, and the other bodies throughout Canada, are taking a most active interest in the project.

The matter is looked upon by vessel men grain men and other shippers, as being of the most vital importance, as it will cheapen the Canadian route between the lakes and the sea, and thereby make the St. Lawrence more popular as a freight route than ever before.

The boards of trade throughout Canada have signed a petition asking that these tolls be abrogated, and on Monday evening the various men interested will proceed to Ottawa. On Tuesday some three or four hundred will meet in the Council chamber of that city, there to organize and appoint a committee to wait upon the Government.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC

Population of a New York Hamlet Stricken with the Disease

Binghampton, N.Y., April 2—Before the nature of the disease was discovered 21 of the 54 persons in the little hamlet of Steven's Point, about five miles east of Susquehanna, were down with smallpox. The disease was brought to the place by a man who had been working in New Jersey. A few days ago he returned home and developed what was called "the itch." No physician was called; but many people of Susquehanna and surrounding territory were exposed. The latter part of last week other people in the village began to develop "the itch." Finally a physician was called in and declared the disease to be smallpox. Twenty-one people are sick and several hundred in the surrounding country have been exposed.

The C. P. R. Give Handsome Increase to Salaries Paid

Montreal, April 3—The prosperity which Canadian railways have been enjoying during the last four or five years and the large increase in their receipts, more especially those of the Canadian Pacific, has enabled them to accord substantial increases in the salaries of their men.

Canadian Pacific men especially have recently been awarded handsome advances.

"With a surplus of $14,000,000 to our credit in the bank," said a director today, "with the North-West filling up in the manner it is and with an acreage of wheat in sight a third more than last year, there should be no reason why our men should not participate in our profits."

The Pension Fund of the company is now well under way and by next July will be in full operation.

A Fine Pen

The "Champion" Stylographic pen, guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, is just the pen that suits the requirements of everyone. The platinum point can't be spoiled; a child can use it, and the price is within the reach of everyone—only one dollar. Times Bookstore.

Dined with the King

London, April 3—Lord Strathcona and Lord Mount Stephen dined on Saturday with King Edward at Buckingham Palace. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, and a distinguished company were present.

ON THE FARM.

There's many a successful business man who sits in his city office and lets his mind slip back to his boyhood days on the farm. How good it felt to live! What an appetite he had! How good everything tasted! How sound his sleep was! How eagerly he rose with the sun and raced with him through the long day. And now he's a successful man. But he can't sleep. He doesn't enjoy his food. His stomach is weak, his nerves are shaken, and he no more rises with the sun to race eagerly against him. His vitality is low and now and again his heart seems to plunge in his breast as if it would break loose. That's the price he has paid for success.

The mischief of the whole business is that he buys "tablets" of one sort or another to "aid" his digestion, and indulges in bromides and other nerve stimulants, just to hold himself together, and wonders why he seems to be getting worse.

The whole trouble with such a man generally lies in what is called a "weak" stomach. The food he eats does not nourish him because it is only partially digested and assimilated. No man can be stronger than his stomach, because it is in the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition that strength is made from the food which is eaten.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the strength of the body in the only way strength can be restored, by food which is perfectly digested and assimilated, when the diseased stomach (with its allied organs) is cured of disease. It is a blood-making, body-building medicine, inasmuch as blood is made from food and the body is built up by blood. It is not a stimulant, containing neither alcohol or any other narcotic.

NO OTHER DOCTOR FOR ME.

"Last spring, early, I wrote you my feelings and condition," says Mr. A. J. Vanderwater, 873 West Division Street, Chicago, Ill., "and you advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (a few bottles), and then write you how I felt. I am happy to say I am getting to feel fine. In all I have taken six bottles of the 'Discovery' and four or five vials of the little 'Pellets.' They have done me worlds of good. All my friends say: 'Vanderwater, how well you are looking. What in the world have you been doing?' I tell them I have been doctoring with Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. 'Why,' they say, 'you haven't been there?' No, I say, but I took his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little 'Pellets.' These medicines have wrought the great change in me. From a slow mope of a man that could hardly crawl, tired and sick all the time, and could do no work; to a man who can work, sleep, eat, and feel fine, and that tired feeling is all going away. I am very thankful that I wrote to Dr. Pierce. His 'Golden Medical Discovery' and his little liver 'Pellets' have almost made a new man of me. I feel young as I did at thirty years. No other doctor for me, only Dr. Pierce."

HAD GIVEN UP HOPE.

"I will express my thanks to you for the kindly advice you have given me in regard to my case," writes Miss Carrie J. Wharton, of Dunnavant, Spottsylvania Co., Virginia. "When I wrote to you last spring I was in a terrible state of health. Had given up all hope of ever being better. I spit up my food all the time and it seemed sour as vinegar. I would have a bad sick headache every other week; in fact, my head never felt clear, and I was perfectly broken down under the strain of losing my food constantly. I had read a great deal in your books of what your medicine had done for others, so I wrote you and got your advice. Bought two bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the first dose I took I felt better. When I had finished taking them my stomach had stopped spitting up and entirely stopped and my head was much better. I believe your medicines are just what you have said of them.

"I carefully read the books you sent me and shall always speak a good word for the 'Golden Medical Discovery' whenever I have a chance.

"You can publish this if you think it worth while. It might induce some one else to try your medicine who was suffering as I did. It was by the testimonials of others that I was induced to try it. I shall always rely upon your advice and feel safe to do as you tell me."

Richer than ever in
Gold, Silver and Lead.
It's something immense, 33 per cent. lead.
Gold you can see in the rock.
Don't believe it?
Come and see for yourself.
Large fissure vein that
Will never pinch out.
Surrounded by mines that are
Making their owners wealthy.
One neighbor mine 2,300 feet deep,
Others from 500 to 1,500.
Sinking and drifting every day.
It's a sure winner.
Stock only 20 cents per share,
For a short time only,
Then it goes to 50.
Don't class us with "we will companies, who never intend to."
For we have the goods, and will deliver part of them in 1903,
And continue to deliver for years to come.

STOCK MARKETS

POWERS ARE NOT

New York, April 3.—The great financial powers are not disposed at this time to let the market make any decline from its present level. Many enterprises are yet to be floated and the market must be manipulated to the end of raising prices and securing public confidence. It is conceded that commission business is generally dull, and lines of stocks carried by the average speculator small. In this condition exists the primary cause for future market steadiness. Weak lines are now thoroughly eliminated and it is conceded that severe market reactions never develop when the public interests is small. It is only when public buying has continued for any length of time and it is gorged with securities that breaks of any consequence occur. Railroad earnings are still on the increase. Interest and dividend payments are as secure now as when stocks sold 20 points higher, and the trade of the country was never reflected in brighter colors. Railroad officials admit their inability to accept all the business offering, and state that there will be no diminution in tonnage for many months to come, and perhaps for years. The situation in the coal roads is especially gratifying, the increase in net profits for the last month on the Lehigh Valley being $612,000, on the Erie $404,000, Reading $261,000, and Jersey Central $113,000, and the net increase for 26 roads was $953,679, or 16.23 per cent. The chief complaint in the iron and steel trade is that it is unable to meet the consumption. At the present time there is a demand for two million tons more of steel rails than was anticipated. The pressure on steel manufacturers can be realized when attention is called to the fact that 8505 miles of new roads are under construction, as against 5684 miles last year. Taking into consideration the unaltered prosperity of the railroad and industrial world, the brilliant crop prospects ahead of us, and a short interest of extensive dimensions, we can see no reason why values should not materially increase. There is an old Wall street saying never sell a dull market, and it surely applies to the the situation today. The burst of activity will begin on the bull side and with a reaction of twenty points. The market [illegible] justification for selling higher.

Summary—Unexpected energy developed today, and trading was on a large scale. Prices were more or less erratic, but the tone was unmistakeably bullish fluctuations in Southern Pacific were of a very violent character. The stock was viciously attacked, but made a handsome recovery. The buying in the better class of stocks was of the very best character, it being very evident that Southern Pacific, L. N. and B. O. were being taken for investment account. The buying of B. R. T was also a striking feature. The market is emerging from its rut and the [illegible] should witness a substantial restoration in values. Money closed 5 and 6 per cent. Last loan 6 per cent. Sales 722,000.

The Girl Who Didn't.

(A FABLE.)

Once upon a time a girl decided that she would go in for health rather than fashion, and would be a true woman, such as men like to talk about in the abstract.

She wore spring heels on number seven shoes, and shivered at the very idea of corsets. Her waist measured thirty-six inches, while her hips and bust were only thirty-two. She wouldn't curl her hair, and as she thought powder vulgar, her face was always red and shiny.

Her clothes were all made to hang from the shoulders, and she never sat on her spine. By the time she was twenty-five men ran when they saw her coming or going, they never knew which, and women looked at her through lorgnettes and said she was an unsexed creature!

Moral—The easiest way is always the best if you are a girl!—N. Y. "Life."

At the Football Match.

No. 1—My word, I wouldn't drop on a ball like that in front of a rush. You might get your head kicked in and be laid out for twenty minutes.

No. 2—Yes, but think of the cheers when you get up.

"But you might never get up."

"Then think of the funeral you'd have!"

A widow's weeds are often the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual rejoicing.

Student (to servant)—I thought you had finished sweeping my room.

College-bred Servant Girl—Beg pardon, sir, but I was just decomposing.

Student—What?

College-bred Servant Girl—I was returning to dust!

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at 20c. per share. The Company controls 646 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 80 tones of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $19.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new, 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 20 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 646 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. NICK TREWEEK, WHO FOR 21 YEARS WAS UNDERGROUND FOREMAN FOR THE HOMESTAKE COMPANY. SHOULD NOT COLUMBUS DO AS WELL IF NOT BETTER THAN THE HOMESTAKE? Homestake stock started at $1.00 per share sold up to $115.00 per share, and has not missed a dividend in over 22 years. For a cheaper stock,

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.25
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,712 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,587.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $77,266.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this poineer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 800 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 5 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Cold in the Head

What's the sense in sneezing and Sniffling, dosing with purgatives or bothering with atomizers?

Catarrhozone

a convenient inhaler treatment is the proper remedy to cure quickly and pleasantly

Sensible people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease itself.

To cure a cold in about ten minutes' time use Catarrhozone. It is aromatic delightful to inhale, clean and very simple to use.

Catarrhozone is a vegetable antiseptic, and perfectly safe and harmless. Even children and infants can use it. The vapor is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through the respiratory organs is exhaled slowly through the nostrils.

Catarrhozone never disappoints, it stops sneezing, coughing and running at the eyes, by a few inhalations. Inflammation, congestion and all irritation disappear under the influence of Catarrhozone more quickly than can be told.

C. B. College, of Clarence Street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhozone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhozone cures every time."

To carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh or any lung trouble. It keeps these diseases away and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with Hard Rubber Pocket Inhaler costs $1.00. Small size, 25 cents. Druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Served Him Right

At the Police Court yesterday a citizen was charged with neglecting to support his wife and family. The accused pleaded guilty. The wife's evidence showed that they had been married for 34 years and that for the last three months accused had been drinking heavily, thus creating a unpleasant home for his wife, and children of which latter he has eight.

In spite of a promise to sign the pledge and thereby always abstain from strong drink, the Police Magistrate found him guilty and sentenced him to one month's imprisonment with hard labour.

New Organist Entertained

Mr. Lloyd, the newly appointed organist of St. Andrew's church, was tendered a reception on Thursday evening by the ladies of the church. The choir, managers and sessions and their wives were also entertained. Speeches relating to the work of the choir were made by Rev. Mr. Potter and Messrs. McFarlane, J. D. Tully and Wm. Campbell. Mr. Lloyd, in a short speech expressed his appreciation of the reception tendered to him. Rev. J. D. Potter and Messrs Morgan, bass soloist, and Loyd sang, for which they were heartily applauded, after which the assembly dispersed.

A PROSPEROUS COMPANY

Splendid Report of the Northern Life Assurance Company

Elsewhere will be found the financial statement of the Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada, at the sixth annual general meeting of the shareholders of that popular and progressive institution, which took place in London, Ont., on March 9th.

The company's balance sheet shows, comparing the present year with the previous one, an increase of assets equal to $40,619, their total now being $332,044. New insurance for the same period amounted to $1,119,725, bringing the total amount of insurance in force up to the last year to $3,192,635. Total assets, $332,044.71; amount of paid up stock, $213,850.

We congratulate the managing director and staff both at the head office and in the field on the splendid results of the year's operations.

In Peterborough the interests of the company is ably looked after by Mr. A. J. Clarke, district manager, whose headquarters are situated in the block on the corner George and Brock streets. Mr. Clarke, although only a month in charge of this district, reports prospects exceedingly bright. He has had wide experience in insurance business, and is well qualified to look after the company's rapidly growing interests here.

A SAD DEATH

Mr. John McKim Succumbs to Appendicitis Yesterday Afternoon

Another life has been ended, and taken from our midst; full of ambition and bright prospects for the future, it has been cut off just as it had begun to spring from the bud into bloom. Scarcely had Mr. John McKim reached the first score of the allotted time of life when the Supreme Being saw fit to call him away from the weary travelling of mother earth and take from the home and his companions one who was a great favorite and beloved by all that had the privilege of coming in contact with so manly a personage.

He had been in Peterborough about six weeks, coming from Napanee, where he had a host of friends and was very highly respected. He was employed in the C.G.E. works, and while here won for himself many friends. About three weeks ago he went to the hospital suffering from appendicitis, which finally caused his death yesterday afternoon.

He was a member of the Methodist church and Sunday school as well as of the Y.M.C.A. all of which deeply feel the loss of their respected brother and friend.

The interment will probably take place at Napanee.

THE POPULAR COUNTY CLERK OF THE CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HON. WILLIAM A. DEANE, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

Hon. Wm. A. Deane, Clerk of the city and county of San Francisco, was Chief Deputy in the office of his predecessor during the latter part of his term. He is a Native Son, having been born and raised in the city of San Francisco, and has for many years been prominently identified with the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, as well as other fraternal organizations. He is an exceptionally popular young man, socially and politically also, as evidenced by the ballots cast at the late election, he having defeated his opponent for the office of County Clerk by nearly 8,000 votes.

In a letter written January 28, 1899, from San Francisco, to Dr. Hartman, Mr. Deane has the following to say of Peruna:

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—"I would not be without Peruna, as I have found it to be the best remedy for catarrhal complaints that I have ever used. I have tried most all of the so-called catarrh remedies advertised, and can conscientiously say that of all the remedies for catarrhal complaints recommended to me none have been so beneficial as Peruna."—WILLIAM A. DEANE.

CATARRH assumes different phases in different seasons of the year. There is, therefore, four quite well-marked varieties of catarrh. Winter catarrh, spring catarrh, summer catarrh, and autumn catarrh. In each of these varieties different organs seem to be the principal seat of the catarrh.

In the winter the catarrh is more frequent in the head, throat and respiratory organs. In the spring the catarrh seems to chiefly affect the stomach and nervous system. In the summer the bowels suffer the oftenest; while in the autumn the liver and kidneys seem to be particularly subject to the ravages of catarrh.

Of course it is not meant by this that catarrh is absolutely confined to these parts of the body during the season in which we have assigned them. Catarrh may attack any organ in any season of the year, but the liabilities are so much greater for catarrh to attack particular organs in certain seasons that these four distinct varieties have become recognized.

Mr. Robert Douglas, Homeopathic Specialist, cor. 6th and F Sts., N. W., Washington, D. C., in a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, O., has the following to say concerning their noted catarrh remedy, Peruna:

"I have been a practicing physician for some years, during which time I have administered Peruna to a number of my patients for colds, catarrh and general debility with great benefit to them. I have paid particular attention to its effects, and I have absolute confidence in its curative qualities, and have no hesitation in giving it a most emphatic endorsement."

Hon. Clement M. Hammond is one of the best known newspaper men in New York City. He was for years editor of one of the principal papers in Hartford, Conn., later was prominently connected with the New York Recorder and New York World. He has traveled extensively and is known all over the United States for his talent as a newspaper man. Writing to The Peruna Medicine Co., he says:

Hon. C. M. Hammond

"For about six years I have had trouble every fall and winter with my voice. At times it has extended to my bronchial tubes and lungs. I think all this trouble came from whooping cough, which I had when I was about twelve years old, and which left me with catarrh. Since I have taken Peruna, my voice has been clearer than in over two years, all of which I am willing to testify to." Mr. Hammond's address is "The Arlington," 64 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Peruna is an internal remedy—a scientific remedy for catarrh. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures last. Peruna gives strength by stopping waste. By saving the mucus it enriches the blood. By cleansing the mucous membranes it preserves the vital forces.

No remedy can possibly supply the place of Peruna. Insist upon having Peruna. Take no other remedy. There is no substitute for this catarrh medicine. Send for a free book on catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

THE BALKAN SITUATION IS REGARDED WITH ALARM

The Outlook in the East does Not Improve

GENERAL WAR MAY BREAK OUT

The Powder Magazine Likely to Explode any Moment

London, April 6.—The situation in the Balkans is now regarded with positive alarm. The feeling is growing that a general war is likely to break out. The present position is intolerable.

Constantinople, April 6.—Even diplomatists and journalists who have been ridiculing the idea of a European war that will terminate the existance of Turkey west of the Bosphorus are awed into silence by recent events in Albania and Macedonia. The sudden swelling of guerilla bands into armies of eight and ten thousand men, and the reckless shedding of blood in defiance of authority leave little room for optimism. The Sultan is snared into putting the utmost pressure on his military chiefs and indefinite numbers of troops are moving. Representatives of the powers are continually in touch with the Ottoman Foreign Office, which is prolific in assurances that the uprisings will be quickly quelled. This activity and anxiety of the diplomatists is an index of the keen and determined interest of Europe in the trend of events.

REVOLUTIONARY PROGRAMME.

Sofia, Bulgaria, April 3.—Anything to spread disorder and terror has become the programme of the revolutionaries. The leaders hold that train wrecking may do more to make Europe uneasy than all the sufferings of the Christians.

A BRITISH PROPOSAL.

London, April 6.—A number of English members of the House of Commons and others interested in the preservation of the independence of the minor Balkan states had an interview with the Marquis of Lansdowne, Secretary for Foreign Affairs. They suggested to him that before England's assent to further action by any individual power on the lines of the Austro-Russian reform scheme for Macedonia is given, all the signatory powers to the Berlin Congress be invited to sign a protocol of disinterestedness, binding them not to seek fresh territory in the Balkan Peninsula. The Marquis of Lansdowne promised to take the matter under consideration. It is rumoured that Russia, Austria and Italy have a secret agreement looking to the partition of European Turkey.

Constantinople, April 6.—There are conflicting accounts of the fighting between the Turkish garrison and the Albanians at Mitrovitzka, but it is known that it lasted nearly three hours. The fighting was desperate while it lasted, and the result was decided by the Turks using artillery and compelling the Albanians finally to abandon their onslaught, leaving over 200 of their number killed or wounded on the field. The present whereabouts of the Albanians is unknown. Apprehensions are felt in regard to the situation at Pristina, from which place no news has been received. The number of Turkish regulars from Uskub and Salonica who have been ordered to northern Albania now reaches 12,000.

SERVIA IS ALARMED.

Vienna, April 6.—A despatch to the Neu Frei Presse from Belgrade says that owing to the massing of the Turkish troops on the old Servian frontier Servia is increasing her frontier garrisons and is considering the question of mobilising her reserves.

"Seat of the Empire."

Montreal, April 4—J. Bruce Walker, formerly of Brantford, who has been appointed Dominion Immigration Agent in Scotland, passed through the city today en route for England. He will sail on the Bavarian, and on reaching Liverpool will proceed direct to London, to confer with Mr. Preston, the emigration commissioner.

Mr. Walker has just completed a tour of the N.W.T., undertaken with a view to thoroughly acquainting himself with its conditions and possibilities. He was as far west as the Rockies, and is greatly impressed with the western country.

"It will some day be the seat of the empire. It has every qualification but men, and this lack is being removed as speedily as possible. We are confident that this year's emigration from the Mother Country will far exceed all previous records."

STEAMERS A WEEK OVERDUE

Friends of St. Malo Fishermen and Families are Growing Anxious

St. Pierre-Miquelon, April 6.—With 1,200 passengers aboard, consisting chiefly of crews for the fishing fleet here, the owners, and their families, the French steamers Burgundia and Notre Dame de Salut, sailed from St. Malo, France, March 17, for this port. They are now a week overdue and anxiety is felt for their safety.

A committee of shipowners has interviewed the Governor, requesting that he try to induce the Minister of Marine at Paris to send out cruisers in search of the overdue vessels.

WINNIPEG IS CROWDED

Three More Train Loads of Immigrants Have Arrived

Winnipeg, April 6.—Dr. Robbins and party, who are also arranging for the Barr Colony, reached here yesterday. In an interview with a reporter Mr. Robbins said the colony would be a modern repetition of William Penn's efforts and co-operation would be the watchword.

The city is overcrowded with immigrants, 1319 having arrived on three specials and regular C.P.R. train from the east. The immigration sheds are packed and the strangers are experiencing difficulty in securing sleeping accomodation. The rush so early in the season is unprecedented in the history of the West.

LASSOED MAD DOG

Watched by Hundreds Policeman Threw Noose Around the Terrier's Neck

New York, April 4 — While Mrs. Sarah Shay, of No. 160 West Nineteenth street stood at the front second storey window of her home yesterday afternoon, clasping in her arms her year-old baby, and shrieking for rescue from a mad dog which had taken possession of her kitchen, Policeman Stegmuller, of the West Thirtieth street station, climbed upon a one-storey extension at the side of the house, lassoed the dog through a window and put two bullets into its brain, as he dragged the snapping and snarling animal from its place of refuge.

A thousand or more spectators looked on and cheered the efforts of the policeman.

The dog was first noticed in Seventh avenue near Twentieth street. Taking the centre of the sidewalk, with head lowered and barking, and foaming at the mouth, it rushed along driving pedestrians into doorways and creating a panic along the avenue.

At a safe distance behind a crowd of boys followed hurling bricks and stones at the maddened cur. When the Nineteenth street was reached the dog suddenly turned east and running a few paces further, darted into the side door at No. 160 West Nineteenth street and ran up the stairs.

The second floor is occupied by Mrs. Shay. Her kitchen door was open and the dog bowled in, taking refuge beneath a sewing machine. Attracted by the noise in the street, Mrs. Shay started through the kitchen, when she heard the dog snapping beneath the machine.

In the room behind Mrs. Shay's one-year-old baby was sleeping. With a cry of alarm the mother dashed into the dining room, slamming the door behind her. Taking up the infant, she then ran to the parlor, and raising the window, began crying for help.

It was at this stage that Policeman Stegmuller and a companion reached the scene. After a council of war, the policeman ran upstairs and climbed out on the extension from the dining room. On the roof he found a quantity of clothes line, which he at once seized, hastily tying a noose at one end.

The other policeman took up a position at the door of the kitchen, and by hurling a few articles at the mad dog, drove him out into the middle of the room, where Stegmuller, after two or three efforts, succeeded in throwing the noose around the dog's neck and drawing the rope taut.

Down in the street, the crowd looked on anxiously, the frightened mother at the parlor window still crying for aid. A great cheer went up when a sudden, sharp jerk on the rope announced that Stegmuller had finally lassoed the dog.

Then the policeman began drawing home his prey. With the rope twisted about his left arm, he pulled steadily, a series of short, sharp barks from the room giving token of the dog's hard fight. As the animal was brought near the window sill, Stegmuller drew his revolver.

Holding the rope taut with his left hand and taking careful aim with the revolver in his right, the policeman fired as the dog's head appeared over the sill. The first shot went wild, and the bullet was buried in the floor of the kitchen.

But the second went home, and the dog fell limp at the end of the rope. Then another cheer went up. A final jerk on the rope brought the dog out on the roof of the extension, and the policeman fired one more shot in its body to make sure of his work.

It was a small fox terrier that caused the trouble. It was fifteen minutes before the policeman was able to get away from the admiring mob that gathered around to congratulate him on the work.

GAMEY MUST BEAR EXPENSE OF WITNESSES NOT ADMITTED

TO LIVE RETIRED

London, April 6.—It is rumored that former President Steyn, of the Orange Free State, has asked the government for permission to return home, promising to live in retirement if the request is granted. The request may probably soon be granted, although Mr. Chamberlain is in no mood to do so at present. The matter, however, it is thought, can only be arranged by the handing over to Great Britain the large amount of gold in the hands of Steyn and Kruger, for the benefit of the burghers.

Feature of the Terms That the Prosecution Takes Serious Exceptions To

WILL PRODUCE ALL DOCUMENTS

Must R. R. Gamey bear the expense of all witnesses summoned to prove his charges of corruption whose testimony the commission fails to admit? That is the point that is strongly brought out by the following receipt the government force his counsel to sign before any funds for expenses are advanced:

"Received from Charles Clarke, Esq., Clerk of the Legislative Assembly, the sum of five hundred dollars ($500) for payment of conduct money to witnesses, which sum is to be accounted for by me. I undertake to furnish the above named, Charles Clarke, upon his request, at the close of the commission herein, with a list of all witnesses, the sums paid to them, and to refund him any portion of the said mentioned sums which is not used in the payment of witnesses, as aforesaid; it being agreed and understood that fees shall only be allowed for such witnesses as the judges, acting on the commission in the above matter, certify as having been properly subpoenaed or summoned to give evidence before the said commission, and such judges' certificate shall accompany the aforesaid list of witnesses, etc.

(Signed) W. D. McPherson, per A. J. Macdonald.
Toronto, April 4, 1903.

In Need of Funds.

Emmerson Coatsworth, jr., who has charge of the fund for defraying the expences of the Gamey inquiry, apart from the expenses which the province guarantees payment of, was seen by a press representative on Saturday. He said he was in receipt of many inquiries as to the amount that would probably be required, but was unable to form an estimate just yet. He said that in response to the appeal for funds, quite a number of small amounts were being received, showing clearly that the public conscience was being awakened to the risk the public liberties are running if proceedings, such as have been alleged by Mr. Gamey did really take place. The public evidently wanted to see the matter probed to the bottom.

Expend Daily $500.

Liabilities were being incurred, said Mr. Coatsworth, which would mean a daily expenditure of $500 for some weeks to come, and from this it could easily be understood that a large amount would be necessary. Mr. Coatsworth referred the press representative to Mr. McPherson, who said that an arrangement had been come to whereby certain moneys of the province would be available, but so far all the money he had received was $500, although he knew that representations had been made to the government, that at least three or four times this amount should be made immediately available.

Gamey's Severe Trial.

Mr. McPherson estimated that the investigation would last three weeks perhaps four. He thought the chief witness would be in the box for three or four days.

The representative could not find Mr. Johnston in his office on Saturday to obtain a statement of the amount of funds that have been placed at his disposal by the government.

The first skirmish of the lawyers in the bribery case came Saturday when counsel for Gamey served an order on the defence for the protection of all papers.

Counsel in the inquiry are busy preparing for the opening of the case on the 13th. It will require the whole of the week to get all the evidence in the proper shape for presentation. One of the gentlemen engaged on the case said on Saturday that the postponement of the taking of evidence was not altogether due to the difficulty of bringing down witnesses from Manitoulin, but that some days would be required to examine the documents that will be produced by both sides on Monday.

Saturday W. D. McPherson, who is preparing the case for the accuser, served an order for the production of the documents on E. F. B. Johnston, chief counsel for the defence. The order is as follows:

In the matter of a Royal Commission dated the 28th day of March, 1903, directed to the Honorable Sir John Alexander Boyd, Knight, and the Honorable William Glenholm Falconbridge, authorizing them to inquire into certain charges of bribery or attempts to bribe.

Before the Honorable Sir John A. Boyd, the Honorable William Glenholm Falconbridge, Commissioners, Friday, the third day of April, A.D. 1903.

Want All Documents.

It is ordered that each of them, the Honorable J. R. Stratton (Provincial Secretary); the Honorable G. W. Ross, (Premier and Provincial Treasurer); the Honorable John Gibson, (Attorney-General); the Honorable Richard Harcourt (Minister of Education); the Honorable E. J. Davis (Commissioner of Crown Lands); the Honorable Frank Latchford (Commissioner of Public Works); Frank J. Sullivan, R. A. Grant and Capt. John Sullivan, of Toronto, D. A. Jones of Beeton, and R. R. Gamey do on or before Monday, the 6th day of April, 1903, make full discovery on oath according to the practice of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, and if each of the above mentioned persons was a party in a cause in the said High Court of Justice, of all the books, papers, documents and things which are, or have been in his possession, custody, or power, relating to any matter in question herein or relevant thereto, and also on or before Monday, the 6th of April, do produce to and deposit with me, for the use of the honorable, the commissioners, all the said books, papers, documents and things.

(Sgd.) G. C. Grant,
Registrar of the Said Commission.

STRANGE SIGHTS ON SOUFRIERE

Unusual Phenomenon During Eruption of the Volcano

Kingstown, St. Vincent, April 3 — The last eruption of the volcano Soufriere was the longest and, considered geologically, the most interesting. It lasted from March 21 until the morning of March 30. The volcano became again active on the night of March 30, when a startling phenomenon was witnessed, the crater, appearing like an electric arc, appearing like an electric arc, being reflected upon the mountain of clouds. The Soufriere continues to show signs of disturbance.

The agricultural officer represents that the district to windward resembles the surroundings of a gas works. The young vegetation is again obliterated by cinders from the volcano. A dozen different kinds of ejects were thrown out during this eruption.

Tenement Fire Fatality in New York

New York, April 3— One life is known to have been lost and several persons were hurt in a fire today in a six-storey Henry Street tenement house on the East Side. Firemen found a dead body on the top floor so badly burned they could not tell whether it was a man or a woman. Twenty-four families in the building were greatly excited, and one woman Mrs. Greenfield, 30 years old, jumped from the second storey. A fireman attempted to break her fall, but her legs were broken and she was otherwise badly hurt. A fireman was severely hurt while carrying a woman and slid down a ladder.

ARSENAL WORKERS HEAD FOR DOMINION

An English Order Warned, The Passionist Fathers Disband

London, April 4— The emigration movement is spreading to the arsenal workers. Yesterday six hundred Government employes were discharged from the Royal Arsenal through slackness of work and many are booking for Canada, a local clergyman having received a guarantee of permanent work in Canada for any number of competent tool makers, machinists, fitters, brass-finishers, pattern makers, iron moulders and boiler-makers.

Paris, April 4—Premier Combes, answering an interpellation of M. Rudelle (Liberal Republican) in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, as to why he did not intend to accompany President Loubet on the latter's coming trip to Algeria, said the real reason was the threatening, violent attitude of the congregations. He added that there was no mistake in the manner in which the friends of the congregations and the congregations themselves had received the action of the Chamber in voting to expel the latter from France. They were openly talking of violent resistance.

The Church of the English Passionate Fathers in the Avenue Hoche, was among those visited yesterday by police agents, who served the Passionists with a notice to disband. Since they learned that the efforts of the British Ambassador, Sir Edmund Monson, and the United States Ambassador, Gen. Porter, would not prevent the Chamber's action in ordering the expulsion of the Passionists, with the rest of the religious orders, the Passionist Fathers arranged to turn over their affairs to secular priests, who will continue to conduct the church.

The members of the order are leaving the country or are retiring to private life. The Marists, Dominicans, Capucins, Barabites, Franciscans, Redemptorists, Oratorians, and Brothers of the Sacred Heart, and of the Holy Cross also have been notified to disband. Many of the latter are going to America.

Reports from various parts of the country gives particulars of the active steps being taken to disband the religious congregations. The courts are appointing liquidators to take charge of the effects of the orders. No disturbances have yet occurred. The branch of the Benedictine Order at Douai, Department of the Nord, has secured 24 hours' grace, the head of the order having left to confer with the British Ambassador at Paris, as the members of the establishment at Douai are mostly Englishmen. The Monks of the Grand Chartreuse deaf and dumb asylum maintained by Monastery has been taken possession of by a receiver appointed by the Grenoble court.

Rome, April 6.—It now seems that the facts about King Edward coming to Rome, and the possibility of his meeting the Pope, are that the King has not yet been asked to visit the Pope, and therefore all the means suggested for the meeting are problematic.

The Vatican thinks that, owing to the number of Catholics in the British Empire, especially in Ireland and Canada, his Majesty will not come to Rome without trying to see the Pope, as otherwise it would appear to be an intentional offence. Anticipating the King's visit, there is now an element at the Vatican advocating a deviation from the ceremonial established at the time of Emperor William's first visit. However, it is probable that the King will not go to the Vatican if he comes to Rome for one day only as seems likely, according to the latest information on the subject.

London, April 6.—Mrs. Margaret Neve, King Edward's oldest subject, died yesterday at her home in Guernsey. For 110 years she preserved her health, strength and even her sight, and was known throughout the United Kingdom. She was a wealthy woman, lived on a charming estate, and gladly welcomed visitors who came to see this old friend of the late Queen Victoria.

During the lifetime of the late Queen, Mrs. Neve never missed sending, on Her Majesty's birthday, a telegram of congratulation to Queen Victoria. Her Majesty never forgot to return the compliment and had Mrs. Neve's portrait hung in a conspicuous place at Osborne. Mrs. Neve lived the simple life of a country gentlewoman, and was keenly interested in her estate, over which she walked, unaided by stick or arm. Among the many accomplishments of Mrs. Neve, who entertained Marshal Blutcher shortly after the battle of Waterloo, was a translation which she made of Dante's poem into French. She has been a widow for the past half century, had no children, and in May would have been 111 years of age.

Five Lives Lost in a Riot

Monterey, Mexico, April 3— Five persons lost their lives in yesterday's rioting here before the residence of Governor Reyes. The wounded number fifty-six.

No further trouble has occurred, and quiet prevails throughout the city.

SARCASTIC VIEWS OF BRITISH PRESS

Vigorous Comments About Canada's Home Rule Resolution

MOTHER COUNTRY RESPONSIBLE

Comments of Westminster Gazette on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Justification

London, April 6.—The Home Rule motion of Hon. John Costigan in the Canadian House of Commons excites more or less sarcastic criticisms whose import are that Canada should mind her own business. Similar comments are provoked by similar debates of previous years.

The Westminster Gazette, commenting on Sir Wilfrid Laurier's justification of Canada's interference, says:

"The true doctrine is that the Mother Country must remain really responsible so long as the constitution of the Empire is what it is."

Mr. Wyndham's present attitude on the Irish question almost suggests that even the present British ministry are becoming modified Home Rulers.

THOUSANDS RISE AGAINST THE TURK

Men of Thirty Bulgarian Villages Take Up Arms

Constantinople, April 3—Official advices from Monastir say the Bulgarian inhabitants of thirty villages in the Okhrida District, totalling three thousand men, and supported by the bishop and a number of revolutionary bands, have risen against the Turks. They surrounded a small detachment of Turkish troops in the mountains northward of Okhrida, but the troops succeeded in cutting their way out, after sustaining considerable loss.

Another dynamite outrage at the Town of Mustapha Pacha has led to the discovery that the Revolutionary Committee is supposed to be responsible for the attempt to wreck the Oriental Express early in the morning of March 31, when the Bridge of the Turkish Oriental Railroad, between Adrianople and Mustapha Pacha, was blown up by an infernal machine.

Although affairs at Mitrovitza and Prishtina are reported to be calmer the rising of the Armenians in those districts creates intense concern at the palace, amongst the Ministers and at the embassies. It is felt that a continuation of the troubles in the vicinity of Sanjak and Novi-bazar is liable to lead at any moment to an extension of Austrian occupation over the entire Sanjak district, and as far as Mitrovitza, although it is believed nothing short of absolute necessity will induce Austria to take advantage of this right, which is reserved to her by the Treaty of Berlin.

Chicago Was Snowbound

Chicago, April 3—The city was almost entirely cut off from communication with the outside world this morning when a north-east gale and heavy fall of wet snow caused telegraph wires to go down in all directions. The temperature was slightly above the freezing point. Lake vessels have been warned not to venture out.

Three Students Killed

Madrid, April 3— Student riots have broken out at Salamanca between the students and the police. The civil guards fired several rounds, killing three and wounding many others. The situation has become so serious that the town authorities have resolved to depose the prefect who delayed obeying the order of the Government to remove a police inspector for insulting the students.

WILL THE C. P. R. BUILD NEW LINE?

The Company Wants Road of Its Own to Connect with North Bay

WOULD BEGIN AT PETERBOROUGH

The C.P.R.'s threat made to the G.T.R. a few years ago, to build a connecting line of its own from North Bay to Toronto, may be carried out in the near future.

Color is lent to this by the application of L. T. Barclay of Whitby and others for authority to construct and operate a railway or a tramway from a point at South Bay, on Lake Nipissing, in a general south-westerly and southerly direction, to some point or points on the Georgian Bay; thence to Lake Simcoe and a point on the C. P.R. in the counties of Dufferin, Peel or York; also from the Georgian Bay to a point or points on the C. P. R. between Myrtle and Peterborough; also from South Bay, via Callendar, to North Bay.

The map shows that this road would connect the C.P.R. main line at North Bay with the Ontario and Quebec divisions near Peterborough, by which easy access would be had to Toronto. At Ottawa the C.P.R is thought to be behind Mr. Barclay.

Notice is also given by Mr. Barclay that application will be made at the present session of Parliament for the incorporation of a lumber, power and navigation company, for carrying on in Parry Sound district and also throughout Canada and elsewhere, the business of lumberers and manufacturers of all timber and pulp products, operating and dealing in mines and minerals, and also generating electricity for light and power purposes.

OUTLOOK AT THE "SOO"

The changes at Sault Ste. Marie which has been long expected—which has been announced at different times, and prematurely—has taken place. Mr. Clergue has retired from the active management of the many enterprises with which his name has been associated, and in which about $25,000,000 have been invested. There is not in the change anything which indicates distrust in, or dissatisfaction with Mr. Clergue. It is the result of his own suggestion and advice. He remains as the inspiration of the syndicate. There is no one in Canada, who can, perhaps, with as little apparent effort, charm an audience, and exhilarate it with his optimism. He is not, however, an experienced organizer, like Mr. Carnegie, and has not gathered around him so many experts who can lighten his labor and co-operate in his achievements. The new manager will have what he lacks, the faculty of applying his practical experience in the development of the Soo's colossal schemes. Mr. Clergue's power will still be felt, in conceiving brilliant things, and another will imbibe his spirit and give it practical effect. Under the circumstances Sault Ste. Marie may expect to continue the magnificent growth which has marked its history in the last five years.

EDUCATION

The Globe, of April 3rd, has an article on our present educational methods, which ought to go a long way to bring about a change. Heretofore childish optimism, which is another name for vicious self-complacency, would have it that in Ontario we led the world in matters of education, but as The Globe points out this is a deplorable fallacy. The aesthetic or emotional side of schoolboy life has been ignored in favor of the arithmetical side, and as a consequence what have we? A dislike of school and a hatred of education amongst boys, such as never existed before. We may safely say always that our methods in any branch of human life are not likely to be the subject of "hearty congratulation," but let us hope that we shall, nevertheless, be able to say that a possible future has not been discounted by optimistic hysteria. Humility is a much better guide to truth than optimism or bounce, and when we learn to underestimate—rather than to over estimate—our own efforts there will be some hope of a reform, and of a just idea of what civilization means.

NEW YORK'S ENTERPRISE

The New York state legislature has passed its canal bill, and it only awaits the signature of the governor in order to become law. The work, as a despatch describes it, is of mammoth proportions.

The expenditure is estimated at over $100,000,000, and is to be governed by a comptroller who shall issue the bonds to the value of $10,000,000 every two years, until the work has been completed and paid for.

The debt is to be recouped from a general tax of twelve one-thousandths of a mill upon every dollar of valuation of property subject to taxation, and the tax will be continued until the cost of the barge canal has been fully met.

The route of the canal is to be somewhat different from that of the Erie, but it will be an enlargement of the Erie at several points, will be twelve feet deep and seventy-five feet wide at the bottom, with a water interaction of 1.128 square feet, except at aqueducts and through cities and villages where this width will be reduced.

The Americans have imagined, by the drift of things, that they can command the trade if they have the facilities. The old Erie canal has been free, and the new Erie will aim, by its freeness, to divert the grain traffic from the great lakes to the seaboard via Buffalo, Albany, and New York.

It is questionable if it will fulfill its expectations. It certainly will not do so if the Canadian Government, in response to the appeal that is now being made to it, make its canals free.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Evidently Andrew Carnegie is beginning to weary of aiding ungrateful humanity to drink from the pure fount of wisdom. He has applied for the privilege of supplying Cornell University with a good filtering plant. Possibly Mr. Carnegie is philosopher enough to be convinced that there is no easier way to get quit of superfluous wealth than to pour it down somebody's throat.

A certain Japanese railway company is, it is reported, going to staff all its refreshment cars with girls who have been chosen for appearance, education, health, conduct, and a blameless past. They must dress their hair in a certain style, must wear uniform, and are enjoined to behave with military discipline, to take no tips, and to refrain from chatting with the passengers. Japan is progressing.

FERROZONE

Furnishes in a convenient form, a Tonic-Laxative which cures Constipation and a host of other diseases more or less common

The entire length of the intestinal canal can be gently and thoroughly cleansed of all foul decaying matter, by taking Ferrozone after each meal.

Ferrozone helps the kidneys and liver to their work, and by preventing the pores of the skin from being clogged up, it clears and beautifies the complexion. Ferrozone relieves irritation and pressure on the tissues of the brain and nerve centres, and insures a healthy vigorous condition of mind and body.

The great merit of Ferrozone is that it instantly relieves constipation, and permanently cures it without interference with business or pleasure, and never causes inconvenience or distress. It keeps all the bodily functions regular, and is the only medicine for constipation that acts gently, acts quickly, acts surely, without pain or gripe.

Ferrozone will keep the entire family in perfect health. It regulates the bowels, cures headache and stomach troubles, and effectually cleanses the blood from all impurities. It builds up muscle and sinew, strengthens debilitated constitutions, and permanently remedies all manner of skin blemishes.

Ferrozone is especially efficacious in cases of over-work, headache, brain fag, torpid liver, weak memory, and melancholia. It relieves that "tired feeling," and puts elasticity into every movement. Ferrozone gives strength to the regenerative organs, and for the relief of nervous prostration, nervous debility, or decline of mental or physical power, is certainly superior to any curative agent the world has ever seen.

The range of adaptability of Ferrozone is simply wonderful. It is entirely vegetable in composition, and quite free from any possibility of injurious effect even under long continued use. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, and no uncertainty or mistake as to the proper quantity or dose can ever arise.

Ferrozone is recommended and sold by all druggists, price 50 cts. a box, or three boxes for $1.25. Remember the name and see that the genuine Ferrozone is supplied. Refuse a substitute. Sent safely by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Set Her Free

[COPYRIGHTED

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

"Did you recognize the dead man, Lady Darwen?"

"Not till they brought a light."

"What did you do on finding it?"

"I knelt down," said Norma with a shudder, "and finding his face to the ground, I raised his head, and turned him on his side. His coat and waistcoat were open, and there was blood—" She stopped, shuddering. "I knew he was dead," she added at last.

There was a pause, and then a juryman asked, "You say you recognized the deceased when they brought a light, your ladyship. You knew the man then?"

"Oh no. I had seen him once only."

"May I ask on what occasion?"

"It was the day before. He called at The Haigh, and asked for Sir Astley, and went away on learning he was not at home."

"I think that is all we have to ask Lady Darwen," said the coroner, after a pause.

And Norma rose in a dazed manner, and slid into an offered seat.

The next witness called was the lad Ned Raggett. He proved an absolutely impracticable person. He had seen the squire in the wood, and nobody else. He had got into a tree to escape being seen, and then he had heard a pistol-shot. He was too high up to see who fired the shot, or who was fired at. On being reminded that it had been reported he said the murderer raised the body and threw it down again, he said he must have fancied this; he was sure he was too far off to have made anything out distinctly.

He gave his evidence with such stupid stolidity that most of the listeners thought him too unintelligent not to have told the truth.

The next witness was the keeper of an inn where the deceased had passed the night previous to his death.

This man deposed that the deceased had said his business in the town was with Sir Astley Darwen, and he had bragged that he would be a richer man when he left Blackdale than when he went into it.

These statements, which were afterwards confirmed by two or three townspeople, customers, at the inn, who had spoken with Rogerson, produced a profound sensation in court. Many a curious glance was directed, after this, to the corner where Sir Astley and his wife sat, both very quiet and downcast, side by side.

The next witness, when these had been disposed of, was Dr. Wharles.

There was a subdued buzz of whispering voices in the court when he advanced and stood up facing the jury; and the spectators glanced at the scar on his handsome face, and exchanged furtive nods as they looked from him to Sir Astley, and recalled by a frown or a raised eyebrow the scene which had taken place between these two men but a few days before.

Dr. Wharles proved an excellent witness, clear, straightforward, unhesitating.

After stating that he had first judged, from the position of the wound and of the body, that the tragedy was a case of suicide, but that subsequent examination, and the fact that no weapon had been found, had caused him to alter his opinion, he gave a minute description of the two wounds found on the dead man, one of which had pierced the heart, and must have proved instantly fatal; then he went on to answer the various further questions put to him with perfect distinctness and in a voice which all could hear.

"Did you know the deceased, Dr. Wharles?"

"When I first saw the body I thought not, but I afterwards remembered his face as that of a man, a stranger, who had called at my house the day before."

With a little reluctance the coroner put the next question:

"May we know what was the object of his visit?"

"Certainly. He was acquainted with some relatives of my wife's, and seeing my name on the door-plate as he passed through the town, he called to ask me some questions about Sir Astley Darwen, with whom he said he had some private business, though of what nature he did not disclose."

There was another sensation in the court, as was the case now whenever the name of the baronet was mentioned.

"Was he in an angry or excitable mood? Did he seem like a person whom you would suspect of suicidal intentions?"

"Oh, dear no. He was a lively sort of fellow, and in very good spirits."

"Did he talk as if he had a grudge against anyone?" asked a juror, who caused by his question some consternation among the rest.

"Oh, no, certainly not."

"May we know the nature of the questions he asked about Sir—"

But the juror who uttered these indiscreet words was promptly silenced by the coroner, who asked instead:

"So far as you know, Dr. Wharles, the man was on good terms with all the world?"

"That is so," said the doctor.

And he bowed to the jury and the coroner and withdrew from the witness-box in his turn.

The next witness was Mrs. Wharles, who had been seen letting the deceased man out of the doctor's house, and talking to him in the little porch. The lady was very nervous, but very dignified, and she gave her evidence clearly, though with a not unbecoming shyness struggling with her dignity.

"I believe you had some conversation with the deceased as he left your husband's house, Mrs. Wharles?" said the coroner.

"Yes."

"Do you agree with your husband's view of him?"

"Not altogether. He was more outspoken with me," said Mrs. Wharles, "and he asked whether Sir Astley was a man of violent temper, who would be likely to take personal revenge for an injury."

As she uttered these words, Norma sprang up from her seat, throwing back her veil, and with her great eyes flashing with indignation. It was with difficulty that Astley, who was sitting beside her, very white but calm and collected, managed to force her down into her seat again. An indescribable sensation of horror and suspense was gaining ground in the court. Mrs. Wharles was the only person who appeared to be unaffected by it.

RHEUMATISM

Mr. C. Wright, of Toronto, Had Rheumatism So Bad That He Had to Crawl on His Hands and Knees.

Five Bottles of Powley's Liquified Ozone Eradicated Every Trace of the Disease and He Gained Forty-Two Pounds in Weight.

For several months I was a great sufferer from rheumatism. My trouble was principally in the soles of my feet, which were so sore and full of pain that I had to crawl on my hands and knees. I was recommended to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I soon began to get better, and by the time I had taken five bottles I was in splendid condition. My pains and aches had all disappeared. When I commenced taking Ozone I weighed 130 pounds. I now weigh 172 pounds and feel in splendid health. We feel very thankful that we ever got your valuable remedy. We keep Ozone in the house all the time as a ready remedy for ills in the family. You are at liberty to publish this for the benefit of other sufferers.

(Signed) C. WRIGHT.

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at 30c. per share. The Company controls 645 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 50 tons of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $10.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 10 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 645 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. STOCK MARKETS

PRESENT CONDITIONS FAVOR LONG SIDE OF THE MARKET

New York, April 4.—In a dull and sagging market pessimistic talk is always current, and there has of late been much discussion relative to the commercial condition of the United States and of the possibility of a turning point having been reached in our prosperity. Opinions to that effect are not based on facts, and there are no surface indications that there is to be any cessation in our progressive march. During the past seven years we have assumed first place in the commercial world, we lead as exporters, and are a potent factor in foreign trade. The continuance of excellent railroad and industrial earnings reflects most fully our commercial strength and gainsays the improbability of any recession in our national prosperity. Consequently there is no reason why the security market should not expand, and with a reduction in money rates, bring about broad and active trading and create and foster bullish operations. A factor favoring a speedy restoration of higher prices is the attitude of the Standard Oil interest. This interest is said to have at present fully $30,000,000 available for stock operations. A surplus of this size indicates how small commitments are, and it can be reasonably argued that a fund of this character must find immediate employment. During the reactions of the past week it was very evident that high grade stocks like N. Y. C., Pennsylvania and St. Paul were bought for investment account, and that the floating supply of these securities is far less than is imagined. The future of the market hinges on the money question almost exclusively, and with a gradual increase in the movement of funds to New York the way will be paved for brighter market possibilities, and a bull campaign of large dimensions will get under way. It is an opportune time to make purchases. The level is certainly low, and there is no reason why the better grade of stocks should not be quoted at figures more consistent with their earning power.

Summary—Today's market was generally dull. Stocks opened off fractionally but soon assumed a steady tone. The buying of B. R. T., Manhattan and Amalgamated Copper was well maintained, but there was hardly any feature worthy of comment. A poor bank statement brought immediate declines, but the market rallied as rapidly, and was not adversely affected by the statement. As we have stated before we believe bearish efforts are about at an end, and that it will require but very little to kindle bullish enthusiasm. Money 6 per cent. Sales 248,900.

ELECTRIC SPARK GOLD MINE PAYS DIVIDENDS

This Year.
At the 225 foot level vein is Richer than ever in
Gold, Silver and Lead.
It's something immense, 33 per cent. lead.
Gold you can see in the rock.
Don't believe it?
Come and see for yourself.
Large fissure vein that
Will never pinch out.
Surrounded by mines that are
Making their owners wealthy.
One neighbor mine 2,300 feet deep,
Others from 500 to 1,500.
Sinking and drifting every day.
It's a sure winner.
Stock only 20 cents per share,
For a short time only,
Then it goes to 50.
Don't class us with "we will companies, who never intend to."
For we have the goods, and will deliver part of them in 1903,
And continue to deliver for years to come.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,909.25
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,713 22
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,587.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $77,356.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and progressive Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada.

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 30 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical preparation, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 7 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 6 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale.) This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Graveyard Coughs and Colds

Cured Quickly by Catarrhozone

A cough or cold this season of the year paves the way for pneumonia or consumption. The best remedy is "Catarrhozone." It eases a cough in five minutes, and colds cannot exist but a few hours where it is used. Mrs. H. L. Chenowith, residing at [illegible] was terrified by a "graveyard" cough. In the following letter she tells how Catarrhozone cured her in one week;

"I had a bad cough for several months last fall that settled on my lungs. I was worried very much to think that nothing I used could shake it off, but reading in the Halifax "Presbyterian Witness" of the wonderful cures Catarrhozone was effecting, I decided to try it. The irritability and soreness was taken out of my throat in a few days, and in less than one week it entirely cured my cough.

"It is with great gratitude and pleasure that I recommend Catarrhozone. I am sure it will benefit and cure all who use it."

(Signed) Mrs. H. L. Chenowith.

The reason Catarrhozone always cures is that it goes right to the sore spot, which it heals and makes well quickly. It is antiseptic and destroys disease germs in every part of the system. For Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis, nothing compares with Catarrhozone. It is very simple to use, contains no injurious drugs, and is warranted perfectly safe to use. Catarrhozone Inhaler is suitable to use in a street car, theatre, church any place at any time. Complete outfit costs but $1.00 and is guaranteed to cure or your money back. Trial size, 25c., sold by druggists, or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Central Milling Company Report a Prosperous Year

After paying a dividend to the stockholders of ten per cent a substantial sum was carried forward.

We congratulate the management on the result of the year's operations.

FIREMAN INJURED

Thought the Train was Leaving the Track and Jumped

On Friday afternoon, Mr. Alex. Trotter, at one time an employee of The Times, was seriously injured on a G.T.R. double header freight train between Peterborough and Belleville.

Mr. Trotter was firing for Engineer Nugent when one of the connecting rods broke and came up through the cab, and thinking the train was leaving the track, he jumped and sustained serious internal injuries. No bones were broken, and Alex's many friends hope to soon hear of his speedy recovery.

Lindsay's Great Advantage

In discussing the enormous increase in customs collections in Peterborough over last year, the Lindsay Post says: "We ship more poultry and pickled eggs to the British market any one day during the season than Peterborough does in a twelve months and on a nice winter day one of our hotel yards contains more hardwood than can be seen in Peterborough hotel yards in a year.

Another Pioneer Gone

Again it is our sad duty to record the death of one of the oldest residents of the county, and who was one of the best known personages of the town. On Friday last Mr. Wm. Fleming departed this life at St. Joseph's Hospital. He was in his 74th year. In his younger days he was recognized as one of the most muscular and powerful men in the county. To most of the younger generation he was more widely known as a milk vendor. Industry and honesty won for him respect and a competency in his old age. A family of five children are left to mourn the loss of a kind father. The funeral takes place from his late residence in Auburn at two o'clock.

"THE OTHER MAN."

Interesting Address by Mr. J. L. McPherson of Toronto

The crowd at the Y.M.C.A Hall yesterday afternoon was not as large as met the speakers in the Opera House during the preceding four Sundays. Probably the speaker in these series of addresses appealed for directly to the young men of the town for their interest and assistance for the young men of foreign lands. He spoke eloquently and hopefully of Y.M.C.A work in Japan; showed how that country was the country of the influence of young man; how that country is governed by young statesmen, who were making their influence felt throughout the whole civilized world by their enterprise, progress and united efforts to place their country in the foremost position amongst the nations of the earth. He briefly showed why China might be called the old man's country, their methods being of the most antiquated style in politics, learning, government and business methods, they being a nation which is not susceptible to the influence of young people. The speaker quickly turned to India, and enlarged on the wonderful possibilities of the influence of the Y.M.C.A in this great land, and especially among the college students and graduates of Calcutta, where people come from every quarter of British India to receive or complete their education and were eminently susceptible to the Christian teaching and who took to their homes, on their return the influence of the teaching of the Lord Jesus Christ. The fluent young speaker inspired his audience to make a liberal collection for the support of Association work in these lands. We believe we are not overstepping the mark when we say that Mr. J. L. McPherson made the most fluent, forceful, earnest and effective appeal to young and old to support the foreign work, that has been made by any previous speaker.

The general secretary spoke briefly on the work accomplished by Mr. McPherson since coming to town and emphasized the work accomplished and prospects for the future. Col. E. B. Edwards, who is a Christian missionary enthusiast, spoke briefly on the subject of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. supporting a young man in the work in one or both of these countries, and was complimented by the secretary on his pertinent and inspiring remarks. The meeting was closed with singing and prayer.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

—Rev. D. O. Crossley preached with great acceptance in the George St. Methodist church yesterday.

—Miss Annie Wannamaker, of Lakefield, is visiting her uncle, Mr. Andrew Fleming, Maple Creek., Assa., N. W.T.

—Mr. E. W. Squires, who for some years has been employed in R. Neill's boot and shoe store, left for Winnipeg on Saturday.

—A telephone message was received yesterday from Toronto by Mr. T. F. Matthews, giving the good news that Mr. W. A. Stratton had arrived safely at that city at 2.30 and was much better. He left for Clifton Springs Sanitarium, where he will remain until fully restored to health. Mr. A. H. Stratton, who is with him, will return to town on Wednesday.

Naval Display at Algiers

Rome, April 5—The newspapers here announce that Italy will make a notable naval display at Algiers, on the occasion of the visit of President Loubet to that port. Later, the Italian squadron will go to Naples, where there will be another large gathering of warships on the occasion of the visit of King Edward to Italy.

Will
It Cure
Me?

That's the personal question a woman asks herself when she reads of the cures of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Why shouldn't it cure her?

Is it a complicated case? Thousands of such cases have been cured by "Favorite Prescription." Is it a condition which local doctors have declared incurable? Among the hundreds of thousands of sick women cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription there are a great many who were pronounced incurable by local doctors. Wonders have been worked by "Favorite Prescription" in the cure of irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. John Graham, of 2018 Plumb Street, (Frankford) Philadelphia, Pa., "I had a very bad attack of dropsy which left me with heart trouble, and also a very weak back. At times I was so bad that I did not know what to do with myself. My children advised me to take your 'Favorite Prescription,' but I had been taking so much medicine from the doctor that I was discouraged with everything. I came to Philadelphia two years ago, and picking up one of your little books one day began to read what your medicine had done for others. I determined to try it myself. I took seven bottles, and to-day I am a strong, well woman, weighing 160 pounds. Have gained 30 pounds since I started to use 'Favorite Prescription.'"

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

TRAINS AND STEAMERS TIED UP BY THE BIG STRIKE IN HOLLAND

A General Strike Proclaimed Throughout the Whole Country, Cause of the Strike.

Objectionable Legislative Measures and What Is Contained in Many of Them.

TROOPS PROTECT MAILS

The Hague, April 6—A general strike of the railroad men was proclaimed this morning. The railroad stations are guarded by troops and police. The Government is endeavoring to maintain the foreign mail service by troop protected trains. The service on the Netherlands Railroad is restricted.

All Laborers Connected with Land and Water Transportation Called Out as a Protest Against Anti-Strike Bills, Troops Guard the Wharves and Railways

Amsterdam, April 6—At midnight, a meeting of the Workmen's Committee proclaimed a general strike throughout Holland of all laborers engaged in transportation both by land and water. The meeting lasted until 4 o'clock this morning.

All the railroad lines, stations, and wharves are guarded by troops.

The administration of the railroads has taken steps to secure the running of the foreign express under military protection. A workman was wounded by a revolver shot fired by a soldier this morning. The man was walking on the railroad, was not aware that the strike had been proclaimed and failed to reply to the soldier's challenge.

The president of the Workmen's Committee of Defence, in an interview said the strike population involves the entire railroad system and other land transport of Holland, and the water transportation of the important ports —Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Dordrecht, and Zaandam. The strike, he added, was intended as a protest against the anti-strike laws as well as to support the demand of the railroad men for an increase of wages before the passage of the laws made an improvement in their position impossible. He declares the strike will spread to other branches of labor.

The staffs of the shipping companies trading with London and Hull have stopped work in sympathy with the strikers. Only one train left Amsterdam this morning and it was protected by troops.

Dock Laborers Join.

Rotterdam, April 6— The dock laborers, wagon drivers, and all others engaged in industries connected with the port have joined in the general strike.

A formal declaration was issued by the strike leaders here to the effect that the strike was not connected with the question of wages, but was solely against the proposed anti-strike laws, whose withdrawal is demanded.

The railway station here is guarded by marines and a sufficient number of employes have remained at work to enable the running of a few trains today between Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

Threatens Discharge.

Amsterdam, April 6—The Netherlands Railroad Company, during the day, posted a notice urging its employes to resume work, and adding that if they did not resume their occupation within 24 hours all the workmen would be discharged. The Railroad Company which succeeded in getting off a few trains, has decided not to attempt to run after nightfall.

Cause of the Strike.

The Premier of the Netherlands, Dr. Kuyper, introduced in the second Chamber of the States General, February 25, three bills in connection with the railroad strike in Holland. He explained that the Government considered it necessary to oppose any unreasonable attack on society, which would sacrifice the well-being of the people to the desire of a certain class for influence and to political tyranny. The Government, therefore, had proposed to form a regular brigade to insure a regular service of trains in case of need. The just complaints of railroad employes would be adjusted by a Royal Commission, which would be entrusted later with the settlement of the situation from a legal standpoint as well as regarding the condition of service of the employes. It would also have to decide what constituted criminal acts. The Government did not desire to be reactionary. It only aimed at effecting social reforms.

One of the bills provides for a modification of the penal code with the object of affording a surer guarantee for the personal freedom of labor and of preventing State officials or persons engaged in occupations effecting public interests, from absenting themselves from their duties.

The bill further provides that refusal do do duty on the part of employes of the railroads or other public services may be punished by six months' imprisonment. If two or more persons rise in rebellion, the penalty is increased to four year's imprisonment for the ringleaders or those guilty of criminal acts.

During the debate on the bill Saturday last, the Premier, whose speech was received with cheers mingled with hisses from the Socialists, dwelt on the danger of strikes to commerce, or in the event of the mobilisation of troops, and maintained the necessity for securing uninterrupted communication with foreign countries and offering a firm front to the party disorder which was terrorising the country.

The debate was then adjourned until Tuesday.

GIGANTIC TASK IN INDIA ASSOUN DAM ECLIPSED

Structure to be One Hundred and Fifty Feet High

London, April [illegible] Calcutta Englishman says: We announced the other day the arrival in Calcutta of Mr. A. T. Mackenzie, the engineer in charge of the Tunga Badra irrigation project. It is not generally known that this project is of a nature that can without exaggeration be described as colossal. Indeed, it throws the great Assouan dam completely in the shade. The proposal is to construct near Hospet, on the Tunga Badra, a dam nearly a mile long and about 150 feet high. The result will be the formation of a new lake, nearly forty miles long, covering an area of 150 miles square. Mathematicians can work out for themselves the cubical contents of a reservoir of this enormous size. An approximate calculation shows that the lake will contain nearly 200,000 millions of cubic feet of water, which is about five times the capacity of the Assouan reservoir, while the area of the water-spread will be about three times that at Assouan. The cost of this gigantic project is estimated at three and a half crores of rupees, but, owing to the extent of the country it will be able to irrigate, the scheme, it is supposed, will be a most paying one. Hospet is in the extreme western corner of the Madras Presidency. The Tunga Badra has its sources in the Western Ghats, and flows eastward across India, 400 miles to the sea.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Manila, April 4—Col. Julian Santos, formerly aide-de-camp of the late Gen. San Miguel, who participated in San Miguel's operations and was captured over a month ago by Gov. Daniel Rigard, of Rizal Province personally, has been found guilty at Pasig before Judge Cromfield, of brigandage, abduction and disarming of the police at Novaliches and was sentenced to death. The case will be appealed.

RUSSIAN CONSUL DEAD.

Salonica, European Turkey, April 4—It is reported that the Russian Consul at Mitrovitza, who was shot in the back by an Albanian sentry there, is dead.

HAYTIAN CABINET RESIGNS.

Port-au-Prince, Hayti, April 4—The cabinet has resigned, owing to the senate having passed a vote of censure against the ministers of their failure to take proceedings against those who were responsible for the interruption of the Chamber of Deputies [illegible] by the firing of rifle shots. It was reported at the time that the disturbance was due to the complicity of certain of the ministers.

TOMMY ATKINS HARD AT IT.

London, April 4—The War Office to day received a despatch from Aden Arabia, under current date, saying that Major Sharp's flying column had returned to Damot, Somaliland (East Africa) after a weeks successful week's operations southward, and that the enemy's losses were 18 men killed and 2000 camels and 6000 sheep captured.

MACEDONIAN TROUBLES.

Vienna, April 4—Advices received here from Sofia says the Bulgarian government is taking active measures against the Macedonian bands and has seized a large quantity of their arms, which were hidden in Sofia. Bulgarian gendarmes on the frontier near Dubnitza have fired on insurgents who were attempting to smuggle guns into Turkey. Fresh insurgent bands have appeared in the district of Djumaa (Roumelia) and a strong detachment of Turkish cavalry with artillery has started in pursuit, going towards the Kresna Pass.

POLICE EVADE THE LAW

The Sohmer Park Constables Avoid the Civic Tax by a Sharp Trick

Montreal, April 4.—Several actions taken last week against constables doing business in certain theaters, and especially in Sohmer Park, for refusing to pay the civic tax, the license of $5 imposed on constables who are not under the control of the city or government, have revealed a strange state of affairs.

Much to the surprise of the Recorder's Court authorities, however, several of the summoned constables produced certificates showing that, since receiving the notice from the city to pay their license, they had gone to Mr. Scotte, clerk of the Crown, and who acts as judge of Sessions in the absence of the regular judges, and had themselves sworn in under a section of the law which empowers magistrates to appoint constables for their own use.

Their object was to place themselves under the control of the Government, and thereby escape the civic tax. They confessed that the matter had been arranged between the Sohmer Park authorities and Mr. Scotte.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE.

Gentlemen,—Your Property committee beg leave to report that in accordance with the resolution passed at the last meeting of the Board in February, being the last meeting of the 1902 Board, we have instructed Mr. J. E. Belcher to prepare plans and estimates of a Collegiate Institute, accomodation to be also provided for household science and manual training, cost of same not to exceed $30,000, with any additional allowance for travelling expenses that the committee deem advisable, which expense amounts so far to $18.00, the the architect's remuneration, in the case of the building going on, to be absorbed in the general school fee. Further, we expect in May to be able to lay these plans, and estimates before the Board.

Regarding repairs, etc., to the various properties for this season, we beg to state that we had overlooked the fact that it is usual to lay our recommendations before the Board at its May meeting, and that this week we propose having the usual inspection made and will lay same before the Board at its next meeting.

All of hwich is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

Moved by Mr. R. Fair, seconded by Mr. V. Eastwood, that Mr. J. J. Hartley and Mr. James Stevenson be a deputation from this Board to the meeting of the Provincial Association of High School Trustees held in Toronto next week.—Carried.

The report of Mr. Seath, High School Inspector for the Province, was received, but the length of which precludes it from the columns of the present issue.

The Board then adjourned.

CANADA'S APPEAL TO BRITAIN "GIVE US YOUR UNEMPLOYED"

Opportunity for Philanthropist

London, April 7.—The Canadian Gazette says: "The only obstacle that stands between the capable London unemployed and the boundless prosperity of the North-West is the passage money —a paltry £7 per head. It seems almost incredible in these days when a Carnegie can pour out his millions to supply young people with a kind of novel reading which does more harm than good; when a Rhodes can push British scholarship upon the attention of Germans and Americans who can hardly be said to enjoy it; in these days when the British sacrifices in South Africa are pouring gold into the pockets of mine-owners already overburdened with wealth—it seems strange, we say, that in such times as these the need of this insignificant sum should stand between poverty and its relief."

Colonization Campaign Receiving Support of All Classes

ENGLAND'S CAPABLE MECHANICS WANTED

Room in the Broad Dominion for All Who are Willing to Work

Montreal, April 7.—Canada has found the psychological moment for prosecuting with the greatest effect her colonization campaign. With the thousands of unemployed forcing public attention, with the difficulties of obtaining work for even such a superior class as the returned South African soldiers becoming daily more obvious, the opportunities Canada offers to the man who is willing to work never appealed more strongly to the average Englishman.

Mr. Smart, the Deputy Minister of the Interior, has been preaching from this text some very effective sermons.

"Send us people," is his one insistent cry. "Last year the United States sent us 33,000 excellent farmers. They are fast making homes for themselves in the North-West, and will in time become the best of Canadian citizens, but we are British in origin, British in character, and while we welcome all good people whencesoever they come, we would especially welcome people from the British Isles.

"The Dominion is at the present moment making greater strides in trade and general development, and its resources are attracting more attention than can be said of any other part of the British Empire.

"We stand first in point of proportionate increase of trade during the past six years of all countries in the world that keep statistics — the Canadian increase being nearly 100 per cent.

"This astounding and welcome fact is due largely to the unbroken agricultural prosperity that the country has enjoyed, especially in the fertile prairies of Manitoba and the Territories. Take the past year's crop for instance. This was 125,000,000 bushels of grain, including 85,000,000 bushels of wheat, the average yield being 25 bushels per acre.

"During the past ten years the crops have been excellent; the wheat is admitted to be of the finest quality of any produced in the world, and it is really no exaggeration to say that the farmers of Canada are in a better position than the farmers of any other country in the world."

In commenting on these statements, the Canadian Gazette says:

"Last year no fewer than 3,500,000 acres, or 5,500 square miles, were taken up by farmers in free grants alone, and we begin to get at grips with facts when we remember that every one of these acres has an actual market value, and could be sold to-day, virgin land though it may be, at from £1 to £3 per acre. Eighty-three thousand persons took advantage of Canada's invitation last year, and of these only 20,700 came from the British Isles. This year Mr. Smart looks for immigration into Canada from all parts of 100,000; and of these, half should come from the Mother Country.

"Of course, at the present moment, when one talks of emigration, thoughts fly naturally to the London unemployed. The benefit of the transmission of the competent unemployed from London to Canada would be enormous, not only to the individual emigrants, but also to the overstocked labor market they leave and the understocked labor market they enter."

THE STREET RAILWAY AND STREET LIGHTING

Questions Not Yet Settled by the City Fathers

NINETEEN MILLS ON THE DOLLAR

Will be the Rate for 1903—The Agricultural Society Ask for A Grant of $500—Two Brave Boys Rewarded

MORE LIGHT WANTED

The Town Council are seeking more light on the question of street illumination for the ten years commencing next January, and Mr. D. W. Dumble expressed a hope last night, at the Council meeting that "Providence would lead them to a right decision" of the two tenders now in their hands.

The Otonabee Power Co. offers to enter into contract for street lighting, using an alternate current, at [illegible] per lamp a year or [illegible] if they are charged for pole rental. Messrs. Stuart and Cox, who have taken over the Light and Power Co., have tendered at $60 net per lamp a year, in consideration of which they will take over and run the street railway.

In reply to a request by the Council for a definite price per lamp, the following letter was received:

From R. M. Dennistoun, representing Messrs. Stuart and Cox, as follows: "In reply to your request that I should state the price per lamp in the lighting contract asked for, I beg to say that the figure mentioned previously and now confirmed, is $60 per lamp net. The contract will include Ashburnham in the event of municipal union and any other extensions of the town."

From the Otonabee Power Company, as follows: "In answer to your letter of the 3rd instant, we beg to state that whatever amount the town impose on us for taxes and rent for poles will be received back by the town for their own use, thereby leaving our offer to supply light at the prices already given. If a pole rental of $400 per year be imposed on our substation and pole line, etc., then our price for each lamp will be correspondingly increased by that amount. Our taxes amount to about $61 per year With the new and modern lamps a different electric current is used from that which the old lease provides for. In the result, however, the Town will get a much better light than has been heretofore supplied."

The Council did not seem to grasp the exact meaning of the term net as applied to these tenders.

Ald. Best thought Messrs. Stuart & Cox's (the Cereal Company) tender at $60 net implied freedom from pole tax.

Ald. O'Connell submitted that both tenders are indefinite. It is a question as to what the term "net" really means in this case. He argued that the Town should insist on having tenders per lamp irrespective of the question of either pole rent or taxes. "It seems quite evident," he said "that the Otonabee Power Co. want exemption from pole rent, and possibly exemption from taxation."

Mr. W. H. Meldrum replied that the Peterborough Light & Power Co. are at present enjoying exemption from taxes on their power station—plant and building—and taking that view of the situation the Otonabee Power Company would expect to be put in the same position, and have their substation and plant exempted. Under such circumstances their tender means $35 a lamp free of pole rental, and $40 if pole rental is charged. Pole rental is $5 a lamp and had the other company to pay this, it would bring their tender up to $65 per lamp.

Ald. O'Connell said the term "net" had a serious aspect; it might mean giving Messrs. Stuart & Cox an extension of exemption of taxes on their light and power plant, during the life of their contract for light.

Mr. Meldrum here explained that the alternating current proposed by his Company furnishing 400 watts; the present street lamps have only [illegible] watts. Such lamps would be superior in every way to those now in use. If successful in securing the contract they would not put in anything but a first-class system; it would be to their own credit to do this.

Ald. Best said the council had one of two things to do, and at once.—Either to ascertain whether we can do our own lighting cheaper than under contract, or to accept the Otonabee Power Co.'s tender, providing they give sufficient guarantee that they will properly execute the contract entered into with them. In any event the Pole question would be a vexed one. If the Town is not willing to let the Otonabee Power Co. erect new poles on the main streets, how would they get pole facilities unless the Town took over the Peterborough Light and Power Co.'s poles and charged rental for them.

The Mayor thought a by-law should be passed compelling companies to use each other's poles.

Ald. R. F. McWilliams said a vast number of people are anxious to see the street railway in operation, and are willing to forego a saving in street lighting for that purpose. But we want to know exactly what [illegible] we are to pay for this convenience. He thought the two Companies should be placed on the same footing, in tendering for street lighting. Both tenders evidently meant free of pole rent and taxes on plants and machinery, i.e., $35 net as against $60 net. For his part, while thinking the street railway could not be in better hands than those of Messrs. Stuart and Cox, he was of the opinion that $30,000 bonus was too much to pay for it.

Ald. Best argued that street lighting and the railway question must be separated. The council must remember that while we need but 100 lamps now, before the ten year's contract expires 150 lamps will be required. The difference in two two contracts for that number of lamps, practically meant a bonus to the Cereal Co., of about $37,500 for operating the railway. He did not think the ratepayers would support the council on these lines. Let Mr. Stuart take up the railway question on similar terms to those offered Mr Starr—A 20-year franchise and a bonus of $1,000 each year for twenty years.

Ald. McWilliams remarked that objections are raised to both propositions. Some people object to the Otonabee Power Co. because they have no alternate power in case of accident.

Mayor Roger thought present conditions do not favor municipal lighting. Both competing companies have power to spare, and are possibly in a position to give it for street lighting at or even below cost. Messrs. Cox and Stuart have made a straight proposition, and courtesy requires the council to give them a straight answer as to whether they are prepared to consider the question of light and street railway jointly or not.

The whole question was referred to a Committee of the whole Council to appoint a Sub-Committee to interview both companies, and ask for a straight tender per lamp, irrespective of the question of pole rent, or taxes.

TWO BRAVE BOYS.

Mayor Roger, in behalf of the Royal Canadian Humane Society presented little Percy H. Johnston and Ernest Hamilton each with a scroll of honor in recognition of their bravery in rescuing from drowning a lad named Harris, who, while skating on Little Lake on February 14th broke through the ice.

Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles, D. W. Dumble and Ald. O'Connell each made an exceedingly appropriate speech in eulogy of the pluck of the little chaps who so early in life have shown that they have the stuff in them to make good men and true, and exhibited a presence of mind to do the right thing at the right time.

THE FALL FAIR.

Messrs. D. Hughes-Charles and Alex. Elliott were a deputation from the Agricultural Society to ask for financial assistance towards the fall fair.

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles pointed out that in the past the fall fair had not been a success for many reasons, the main one being that the old society was in a bad shape financially, and offered small prizes for fear of not being able to pay larger ones. However, they might as well have offered large premiums, for as they did not pay the small ones, it would have amounted to the same thing in the end. Fall fairs are a great benefit wherever held, and in Toronto the annual Exhibition and Horse Show have had a good effect in the production of high class stock. Peterborough is a splendid centre, but we have never had an object lesson in the shape of good stock, because the prizes offered have always been too small. The reorganized Agricultural Society want to change that and offer sufficient inducements to bring to our show good exhibits from a distance and make the fair a county one in every respect. That our fall fair has gone to pieces is a disgrace to Peterborough and once we get it going again, we will improve it every year. The Society has started in to raise a fund of $2,000 and if this is not secured the Board of Directors may drop the matter. $1,000 has been already subscribed by private citizens and Mr. Hughes-Charles asked the Town for a grant of $500. Then the town ought, he said, have its own fair grounds and be in a position to appropriate a few hundred each year for buildings. The Board of Directors meet Saturday night and we want to report progress.

Mr. Alex. Elliott concurred with Mr. Hughes-Charles in his opinion as expressed above.

The Mayor assured the deputation that the council will do the best they possibly can in the matter. We have, he said, only so much money to dispose of and will divide it up in the best interests of the town and all concerned.

INCREASED TAXES.

The estimates were read, which provided for an increase of one mill. 19 mills on the dollar will be the rate for P. S. supporters and 20 9-10 mills for S. S. supporters. The full text of the rates will be published to-morrow.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

The Town Council met in regular session at eight-fifteen when there were present Mayor G. M. Roger, presiding, and Aldermen Edgcumbe, Shortly, H. Rush, O'Connell, Hatton Best, Clinkscale, R. F. McWilliams, and Corkery.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were adopted as typewritten.

From F. W. Doan, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., asking for permission to remove eight poles now on the west side of Water street, between Hill street and town limits, to the east side of Water street between Hill street and town limits—Board of Works.

From C. Wood, asking permission to build a boat house at the end of Dalhousie street—Board of Works.

From Dr. Young, applying for the temporary position of Medical Health officer, during the absence of Dr. Bingham. Dr Young kindly offers to temporarily fill the office free of any remuneration until such time as Dr. Bingham is able to resume his duties.—On motion of Ald. Shortly Dr. Young's offer was accepted.

From O. S. McClelland stating that the town clock is in need of repair, and advising that it be stopped for this purpose during some week in May. The cost of repairing would be about $15—Property Committee with power to act.

From the Y.W.C.A. asking for remission of school taxes. —Court of Revision.

From E. H. Wood, Simcoe street, complaining that the arm of the railway gate prevented him using his crossing.—Referred to the Legal Committee.

—From St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, asking the usual remission of taxes on their hall.— Court of Revision.

From a number of ratepayers asking that Parnell street be opened west to the boundary.— Board of Works.

An application by the 57th Regt. Band for a grant of $600 was referred to the Finance Committee.

NO UNCERTAINITY ABOUT IT

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Spring System Cleanser and Health Builder Makes Sick People Well

There is nothing doubtful or uncertain about the working and effects of Paine's Celery Compound. It stands supreme as a spring system cleanser and health builder. It reaches without loss of precious time the cause of sickness and disease in a way that no other remedy can do. Its first and most important mission is the purification of the life stream, increasing its volume and quality. It then stirs all the organs that work sluggishly. It restores strength, renews vitality, regulates the kidneys, liver and bowels, and makes people well and strong. For these reasons Paine's Celery Compound as a spring medicine stands far above all other prescriptions and remedies that promise so much and accomplish so little. Mrs. E. Coleman, Burlington, Ont., gives her experience with Paine's Celery Compound as follows:

"I am now sixty years of age, and have been ill for nearly twenty years. During my long illness doctors and patent medicines failed to cure me. At the hospital I was told that I was suffering from tumors; and often, no matter how I tried to cheer myself, I felt like putting an end to my life. I heard of your Paine's Celery Compound and commenced to use it, and it has done wonders for me. I feel better than ever before in my life, and my friends are surprised at the wonderful change in my health. Paine's Celery Compound is a grand medicine, and I will always recommend it."

DESERVED CONDEMNATION

In line with some comments made recently by "Mack" in the Recorder, the Watertown Times has this:

"In New York, of a recent evening, the actors in a burlesque play were rotten-egged by a combination of Irishmen who declare that they are going to drive that kind of play off the stage. It was followed up in Philadelphia by a similar demonstration, and evidently the stage caricature of an Irishman with a monkey face and green whiskers is going to be abolished or else there is going to be trouble. One cannot blame the Irish for having become tired of this caricature on their race. Alleged comic newspapers have four stock caricatures, the Irishman, the Jew, the Hayseed and the Negro. Their artists seem to be unable to get away from these four stereotyped traditions or to produce anything fresh. Nowhere on earth can be found the likeness of the stage Irishman, and no wonder the real Irishman is tired of the caricature and is bound to abolish it."

TO PREVENT STRIKES

We like the tone of Mr. E. W. Day's address to the Employers' Association of Toronto. He said "the public may be assured that we do not believe in low wages, excessive hours, or oppressive shop rules. We do, however, believe that capital is entitled to protection and fair dividends, and that labor is entitled to favorable working conditions and fair wages. We seek to accomplish through the agency of the association the prevention of strikes, lockouts, and friction generally, and, as far as possible, promote harmony in our part of the industrial world. This can only be accomplished by organisations of about equal strength so that one body cannot presume upon the weakness of another, and should we be the means of preventing even to a small degree the hardships involved in a strike, the cause for our existence will have been vindicated." Mr. Day admits that there are extremists in both camps, who need to be kept in check by the moderate men. He says:

"I have no doubt that the great mass of our citizens, be they employees or employers, are honest, honorable, worthy men, striving each in his own way, in the best interests of his home and his country. The two great classes of the community can, if they will, bring the arrogant and unreasonable employers and employees, of which we are bound to have some to a realization of their duties to the community. Why should the disturbing elements be permitted to rule the destinies of this great country? The movement requires the ablest men of both sides—men who will reason, think and strive in the best interests of the whole people. When we arrive at this stand, the politician will no longer keep his ear to the ground, that his course may be determined by the popular demand. In the final conflict, if ever such a thing comes, between labor and capital, the good sense of the people comprising the large middle class will stand with whichever side has given the best example of right, righteousness and fidelity to duty."

THE RICHEST COUNTRY

The United States has got into the habit of speaking of itself as "the richest country in the world." This estimate is undisputed, unconsciously no doubt, by an authority that can hardly be thought unduly prejudiced in favor of Great Britain, namely, the Russian Finance Minister, De Witte, who recently said: "Notwithstanding the fearful cost of the Transvaal war, England is still the richest country in the world." Great Britain spent £250,000,000 in the war in South Africa; she is now voting sums of money for the army and navy far in excess of the previous estimates of any country in peace times; she is preparing for vast outlays in South Africa and Ireland. Could any other nation in the world bear such drains with as little friction? While this is so, the British consol is the very best of all marketable securities, the bank of England note passes muster in every money market in the world an easy winner, and her credit is unquestionably the highest of any country. Great Britain is unquestionably the richest country in the world.

A NEW LABOR MOVEMENT

What may yet happen on a large scale is indicated by what has happened on a small scale in Anderson, Indiana. Anderson is a place of somewhat more than 20,000 population. Workmen in the building trades in Anderson have formed "a non-union men's union." The Independent American Mechanics, as the members of the new order call themselves, entered into their association about four months ago. The order now has a membership of 230, which makes it practically equal in strength to the local unions in the same line of work. This includes carpenters, bricklayers, stonemasons, tinners, painters and plumbers. In the association's membership are also about twenty-five independent contractors. Extracts from its constitution show just wherein this body differs from the ordinary trade unions and wherein it is similar. Among the declared "purposes" are these: "To assist its individual members in obtaining the highest wages consistent with the general good of all concerned . . . . . and to protect and defend its members against any and all attempts by any person or combination of persons to abridge the inalienable right of all mankind to work for such wages as shall be mutually satisfactory to the individual workman and his employer."

It will be interesting to watch the progress of this labor movement. It is said to be flourishing in Anderson.

THE TRENT WATERWAY

The Journal of Commerce makes the following point in regard to the Trent Valley Canal:

All available means of water communication between the ocean and the great lakes should be opened up and used to the fullest extent possible. In this respect the Trent Valley water way, although a modest one compared with other routes, is at least in a fair way of being completed and will, in the near future, prove a very important adjunct to the trade interest of this port and general prosperity.

NEURALGIA.

THIS DISTRESSING COMPLAINT IS DUE TO IMPOVERISHED BLOOD

When the blood becomes thin and watery, as a matter of course, you become weak, vitality gets down low, and there is but little power in the system to ward off disease and pain.

Neuralgia hunts out a weak spot, and makes a home there, so secure that it is hard to drive it out. But by using the proper remedies it can be driven from the system, never to return. To obtain immediate relief, first apply to the painful parts, a good quantity of Polson's Nerviline, and then bind on a hot flannel cloth.

This local treatment will be found very efficacious, but must be followed by a course of Ferrozone treatment. Ferrozone is a blood food, and a blood purifier, and quickly strengthens the system so that further attacks may never be feared. It makes the rich red kind of blood, that gives strength and vigor to weak constitutions and puts them in good shape to resist neuralgia attacks.

This combined treatment of Nerviline and Ferrozone in Neuralgia, Sciatica, and Rheumatism, is marvelously effective and cures after all else has failed. Because of the unique success of these remedies we have no hesitancy in endorsing their use to our readers. All druggists sell them.

To Set Her Free

[COPYRIGHTED

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

There was a dead pause when she had ceased speaking; and the coroner, with a hasty glance at the other lady, waved Mrs. Wharles aside with a quick: "Thank you, thank you. That will do."

The doctor's wife sailed to her seat, and was tenderly soothed by her husband after the ordeal she had gone through. And, amid a state of extreme tension, and a silence in which the scratch of a mouse would have been heard, Astley rose up and went into the witness-box.

The feeling of everyone in court underwent a change when this unhappy gentleman, worn and weak from wounds and illness, with the interest of a whispered romance about him, stood up and faced his questioners. He was not bold or fluent, like the doctor: he was not hesitating and inaudible, like the ladies. He was just a man pursued by ill-fortune, making a dogged British stand against it, and showing as little sign as might be of the feelings within.

Sympathy and respect, as well as intense interest, were excited by his look, his bearing, his simple, soldierly speech.

"You knew the deceased, I understand, Sir Astley?" asked the coroner, with an indescribable change in his tone to sympathetic deference.

"No. I never saw him alive. But I knew of him. And I expected to see him. I was anxious to do so."

"May I ask—excuse me for putting the question bluntly—may I ask if there was any ill-feeling between you and this man?"

"There was none—on my side certainly. If I had met him earlier there might have been: but actually there was none."

Dead pause for a moment.

"It is a very painful thing to have to ask, Sir Astley," went on the coroner, instinctively lowering his voice, "but it has been said that the deceased was an early admirer of your late wife—"

Astley bowed his head in assent.

"And that you were certainly, at one time, violently and naturally resentful on that account," added the coroner quickly. "I may take it that it is not true to assert, as has been asserted, that you still harbored resentment against this man?"

"It—is—not—true," said Astley slowly. And as he spoke, he reeled slightly. "Is that all?" he asked.

"That is all, thank you. I am sorry—"

Astley had already left the box. As he did so, Dr. Wharles stood up in his place.

"Pardon me one moment, Mr. Coroner," said he, in the ringing voice that carried his words to the farthest end of the court. "But there is a correction which, in the interest of one of my kinswomen, I feel I ought to make." Everyone looked round in surprise. The doctor went on: "I know this is an irregularity, but I must mention that, in speaking of Sir Astley's late wife, you were in error. Mrs. Wharles's sister Charlotte, who married Sir Astley, is alive."

There was a sort of gasp audible throughout the building. Astley leapt from his seat, with haggard eyes and fury in his face.

The next moment the clinging arms of Norma were about him, her face was raised imploringly to his.

"Bear it, bear it all," she whispered.

His uplifted arm dropped to his side. In face of all men, as he looked down at her pleading eyes, a tear stole down the unhappy man's cheek.

CHAPTER XIX.

Dr. Wharles had made a mistake. He knew it in a moment, as he looked round him, with quick, observant eye, and noted that every face was full of pity for the unhappy man who, with the tender woman's hands clinging about him, was now the center of interest and compassion to everyone in court.

There were, on the other hand, angry glances cast at Dr. Wharles and his wife, and unpleasant remarks were muttered in his hearing by some of the sturdy Lancashire men. The doctor was more popular among the women of the neighborhood than he was with their husbands and brothers, and his own conduct was not so impeccable that he could afford with impunity, to draw attention to the mistakes of others.

There was a fine ringing sound, of course, in his challenge on behalf of an injured woman, as his protest purported to be. But Lottie Darwen, though not well known in the neighborhood of Blackdale, had not been altogether unknown there; and there were people present in court who remembered the flighty beauty who had tried so hard while staying at the house of her brother-in-law, to marry Sir Hugh Darwen, and had then succeeded in marrying his cousin Astley.

The feelings of most of the witnesses of this painful scene were voiced by no less a person than Lord Wyersdale, a little bent old gentleman, very dignified in spite of his low stature, who tapped the ebullient doctor smartly on the shoulder, and said, not loudly, but with cutting emphasis:

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself See what distress you have brought upon Lady Darwen and her husband, victims, both of them, I'll be bound!"

There was a murmur of sympathy and assent among the bystanders, and the florid doctor grew redder still. It took him, however, only a few moments to recover himself. He always knew how with clear, sonorous voice and burly, imposing figure, to make himself the central figure of any picture. With a deprecatory wave of the hand, and an apologetic glance at the coroner, whom everybody else had forgotten in the excitement of this episode, he said:

"Pardon me, your lordship. I have to apologise to Mr. Coroner for my interruption, and to Sir Astley and this lady for my impulsive words. But I was carried away by my feelings; I could not but say a word on behalf of an unhappy lady who is not here to take her own part, and who, whatever her foibles may be, does not deserve to be left to starve."

The sensation produced by these last words, to which the doctor gave an impressive ring, exceeded anything that had been experienced in the court during that eventful morning.

Although there was a large section among the hearers who sympathised still with Sir Astley and the unhappy lady who held the position of his wife, there was not, of course, wanting another section who sided no less vehemently with the doctor, and applauded his boldness in daring to stand up for the absent woman in defiance of the two great men of the neighborhood, the Earl and Sir Astley Darwen.

Lord Wyersdale, amid an indescribable confusion of tongues—the coroner declaring that he would clear the court, the ushers crying "Silence," the people arguing and murmuring—again took up the cudgels on behalf of Astley.

"If Sir Astley Darwen," said he, his thin, old man's voice making itself heard nearly as well as the doctor's more resonant tones, "has really left to starve anyone who bears his name, that person has certainly forfeited every right to bear it."

Astley, who had been with difficulty restrained, by Norma and other friends, from making a rush at the doctor, now spoke.

"Thank you, Lord Wyersdale," he said. "You do me no more than justice. The story which Dr. Wharles has thought proper to drag to light in this public manner is too pitiful for such discussion. I will only say that I would never allow anyone who had borne my name, rightfully or wrongfully, to be in want. And if Dr. Wharles or any other man asserts the contrary, he lies."

Again there was a moment's dead silence, while Astley, with flashing eyes and firmly compressed lips, shot a glance at the doctor which was a challenge.

That gentleman, however, felt that he had gone far enough, if not too far; for, if he had brought pain and some amount of public disgrace upon Astley, in addition to the load of suspicion which he had already managed to fasten on the young baronet's shoulders, he had also undoubtedly alienated the earl and others of his most important patients; and his wife, when they were driving home together, did not scruple to tell him so.

A sharp "Hold your tongue!" uttered in a tone which she knew and perforce respected, reduced Mrs. Wharles to silence.

Meanwhile the inquest had been brought to an end for the time being by an adjournment, which on many accounts appeared desirable.

Norma slipped away out of the court while the party from The Hall were

IT STARTS YOU THINKING

The first dish of Malt Breakfast Food that you try will start you thinking. You will wonder why you were so long a user of oatmeal and rolled oats. You will think too of the times when you felt out-of-sorts through the use of blood-irritating and starchy oatmeal preparations. You will regretfully think of what you have missed in the past of flavor, deliciousness and palate-tickling qualities. Unless your taste is sadly depraved or very peculiar, you will quickly determine that Malt Breakfast Food will be your chosen cereal food whenever you can get it in the morning. Malt Breakfast Food affords mental vigor and lasting health. See your Grocer about the great health food.

About Dreams.

From a new book of dreams, not by a played-out gypsy, but by a college professor, the Chicago "Tribune" selects the following passages:

To be sure, the gray granddames have always held their dreams to be true, and have always interpreted their eerie visions of the night into future events of colossal moment. So, too, the romantic lassies in search of signs of lovers, and here and there some masculine rhapsodist, who warmed to the world of the unreal and fanciful. But not so the scientific [illegible]. They have always known better—until now.

N. Vaschide and H. Pieron of the Paris Institute are two leading exponents of the value of dreams in diagnosing physical disorders, and have collected from here, there and everywhere, of all times, not omitting the all-convincing present-day, illustrations and data which go to establish the accuracy of their position in a way not known to the ignominious gypsy.

This is their idea: In sleep the mind forsakes the outer world and yields itself to introspection. During our waking moments the external sensations prevail. The brain is preoccupied with what occurs outside the body, and, unless there be importunate calls from internal sources, pays no attention to what is happening within. When sleep overtakes us it is vice versa. The internal organic sensations predominate and occupy the exclusive attention of the mind unless external demands for its notice become emphatic. This is why reasoning begun during the course of the day or a problem too intricate for the preoccupied brain of waking hours can be carried on to successful issues in sleep. The brain is not disturbed with interruption.

Dreams are chiefly of three kinds: those which reveal the temperament of the dreamer; those which prognosticate disease, and those which are symptoms of a disease.

People with sanguine temperaments dream about songs, dances, feasts, merrymaking, fights, games. Those of a melancholy temperament dream of ghosts, studious solitude, death. Those of phlegmatic temperament dream of white phantoms, water, humid places. The bilious dream of dark bodies, assassinations, incendiarism, and the like.

Dreams of gaiety signify healthy conditions; dreams of tranquillity are favorable. Dreams of baths or of cold water foretell critical perspirations. Fiery serpents in dreams indicate hemorrhages. Dreams of combats or [illegible] of various descriptions when occurring at the inception of a fever predict prolonged illness. Violent pains, if not due to exterior causes, are signs of lesion, inflammation, or gangrene in some form. Mountains in abrupt precipices or inextricable forests in dreams indicate disordered livers. Fire is the ill omen of [illegible].

Anxiety in dreams is a sign of heart affections. Dreams of overexertion and exhaustion prognosticate hysteria. Nightmares in the beginning of the night indicate cerebral affections; in the middle of the night they mean bad digestion. Dreams of gustatory enjoyments indicate digestive affections. Fatiguing, suffocating dreams indicate dropsy of the chest. Terrifying dreams and hideous pictures show gastric affections. Floods, swamps and ponds mean cerebral disorders. Fear and anguish denote faulty circulation.

Nightmares with repulsive animals, like rats, serpents and reptiles, indicate suffering from alcoholism. Nightmares also precede asthma. Short, frightful dreams of the night [illegible] certain heart disturbances. Veritable romances, sometimes continued from one night to the next, are forerunners of hysteria and characteristic of people suffering from hysteria.

The children of alcoholics always see animals in their dreams, such as cats, dogs, horses, lions, or other frightful beasts of prey, although generally the sort of animals with which they are most familiar. Obstructions of all kinds are omens of certain varieties of dropsy.

When dreams are repeated several nights in succession they are certain signs of physical disorder, and should be related to the physician, who, if he understands diagnosis through the interpretation of dreams, can be materially assisted thereby in arriving at the correct conclusion regarding the malady affecting the dreamer.

Vaccination [illegible]

The return of a well-known African explorer, in the person of Mr. J. [illegible], who has had a long [illegible] in the land of the Gallas, British East Africa, has given a correspondent of the "Pall Mall Gazette" an opportunity of recording some fo this traveller's interesting experiences and discoveries. The Gallas, [illegible] and intellectually superior to their neighbors, the Somalis, have a light copper-colored skin and handsome features. Possibly the most remarkable thing about them is that for centuries past they have practised vaccination as a preventive of smallpox; and although this disease is not unknown among them, they are not susceptible to it, and are rarely pock-marked. The operation is performed not on the arm, as with Europeans, but on the side of the nose, the serum being rubbed into the skin after a slight puncture has been made. Should any of the Gallas be smitten with an infectious disease, he is immediately isolated from his fellows, while his neighbors cast lots as to undertaking the duties of nursing and feeding the invalid. The Gallas are a strictly anti-liquor people, and intoxicants in any form appear to be abhorrent to them. The land which they occupy extends from some distance east of the Uganda railway to the Juba River, and there have been found on their territory the ruins of a large city, now almost entirely hidden in the jungle, which speak of a former civilization of a very high order.—"Chamber's Journal."

Didn't Want to Make Any Mistake.

A flag-raising was held at the schoolhouse, and after the banner had been hung to the breeze there was an exhibition of the drawings which the pupils had made and the work they had done during the year. The teacher had recited to the class the story of the landing of the Pilgrims, and after she had finished she requested each pupil to try to draw from his or her imagination a picture of Plymouth Rock.

Most of them went to work at once, but one little fellow hesitated, and at length raised his hand.

"Well, Willie, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"Please, ma'am, do you want us to draw a hen or a rooster?"—Exchange.

SPANISH DISORDIR IS GROWING

Public Join Students in Threatening Parade on Streets of Madrid

STUDENTS KILLED BY POLICE

Honduras Rebellion Spreading—Newspaper Man Turns into Yaqui Indian Leader

Madrid, April 4—The rioting here was continued until a late hour last night. The public joined the mob of students in parading the streets, a black flag was raised and there were cries of "Long live the Republic" and "Death to the Minister of the Interior." The police charged with drawn sabres and fourteen students and six policemen were seriously injured. The Republican party is still active, hoping to take political advantage of the situation, and especially if the disorders spread.

A mass meeting of the students of Madrid was held yesterday to demand the release of their colleagues who were arrested while making a demonstration against the Minister of the Interior, Senor Maura. This led to further riotous demonstrations and collisons with the police, in which several persons were wounded. The students at Barcelona are wearing crape in mourning for the students killed Thursday at Salamanca, and it was announced from Saragossa that the university there had been closed as a sign of mourning.

The disturbances were the outcome of a quarrel between the students of Salamanca and the police there. This led to rioting, during which the civil guard killed three students and wounded many others. All the universities of Spain will hold memorial services for the students killed at Salamanca.

The prefect of Salamanca has been dismissed.

Collisions between the police and rioters were frequent during the afternoon. Groups of students incessantly paraded the streets shouting "Long live the Republic," and "Down with the government and singing the Marseillaise. Women joined a number of rioters in stoning the police, who charged the mob. A woman was fatally injured.

REVOLUTION SPREADING.

Mobile, Ala., April 4—The Norwegian steamer Jamaica, from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, just arrived, reports that upon the capture of Puerto Cortez, March 23, an exodus of the inhabitants occurred. The revolution has appeared all along the coast, and with it such disorganization of labor that the fruit vessels have difficulty in getting full cargoes, having to visit several ports in order to do so. The Jamaica was required to transport revolutionists.

WELL MERITED PUNISHMENT

Tucson, Ariz., April 4—The Mexican Herald publishes a report of the capture and execution of John Dyer, an Arizona newspaper man, who is reputed recently to have proclaimed himself leader of the Yaquis in Sonora. The capture was made by the Fourth Battalion of Mexican Regulars, near Bacum, State of Sonora. Dyer was tried immediately by court-martial and shot. During his brief leadership of the Yaquis Dyer earned the name "El Renegado" on account of his alleged inhuman cruelty to Mexican women. [illegible] He was for a time a newspaper correspondent at Cananea for several eastern and coast papers and he sent out many sensational stories of alleged Yaqui uprisings.

Interesting Items.

The anonymous author of "An Onlooker's Note Book" says that he remembers a little boy belonging to an historic English family who cried when he cut his finger—not because it hurt, but because he was poignantly disappointed to find that his blood was not blue, as he had always been taught, but red, like anyone else's.

The majority of people can scarcely remember the time when there was no revolver, yet the fact is that it is a modern weapon and in its form of real efficiency is less than half a century old. It was the invention of Joseph Shirk, a citizen of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. Before the civil war there were the old-fashioned pepper-boxes, which were dangerous to the user; then came the "navy" which had to be loaded like a musket, each barrel requiring separate attention, and usually being ineffective, except at point-blank range. Then followed the present weapon of destruction, which is more effective than the musket of our fathers. Out of the revolver was evolved the repeating rifle of to-day, which has so far changed the whole tactics and strategy of war that Jean De Bloch felt that a great war could never again take place.

It is said that one of the great enemies of the overland telegraph line in Central Australia is the common green frog. In order to save the insulators from being broken by the lightning they are provided with wire "droppers" leading round them at a little distance to conduct on to the iron pole in case of need. The frogs climb the poles and find the insulators cool and pleasant to their bodies, and fancy that the "dropper" is put there to furnish them with a back seat. After a nap they yawn and stretch out a leg until it touches the pole—result sudden death to the frog, and as the body continues to conduct the current to earth we have a paragraph in the papers to the effect that "in consequence of an interruption to the lines probably caused by a cyclonic disturbance in the interior we are unable to present our readers with the usual cables from England!"

A great many people were sorry to hear, a little while ago, that old "Pug," the Central Park, New York, police horse, was to be sold by auction. For fourteen years he had done service in the police department, and during that time had stopped innumerable runaways, several of them on his own account, having started when his rider was absent and having caught the reins of the runaway in his teeth. "He caught three hundred and fifteen during the first four years," said his master. "Then I lost count." But old age had rendered "Pug" no longer equal to his arduous duties, and it was decreed that he be sold. Those who knew him were afraid he might fall into harsh or inconsiderate hands. Happily, however, the fear was groundless. A friend who was grateful for what the old horse had done in the line of duty bought him, and has put him in charge of the policeman who has ridden him so long.

Interesting Items.

It has passed into an axiom that almost anything can be insured at Lloyd's. The other day, according to the "Outlook," a broker actually received a letter from an ardent golfer who wanted a rate for insuring himself against the loss of Haskell balls. The broker was not a golfer, but his enquiries speedily elicited the fact that there was no market in Lloyd's. That venerable institution, by the way, has a flourishing golf club of its own, so the risk was adequately appreciated.

They have got a highly ingenious method of dealing with drunkenness in Denmark which reflects great credit on the master-mind that devised it. When a policeman finds a drunken man in the street he hails a cab and drives the too ardent devotee of Bacchus to his domicile. If he is very far gone, a considerable time is often spent in discovering where the intoxicated individual lives. But who pays for the cab? That is just where the ingenuity comes in. The cab is paid for by the publican who served the man with his last drink! Now what we should like to know is, how they find that publican.

Appendicitis is by no means new, if we are to credit the researches of a Frenchman, M. Lannelongue, who claims to have discovered that cases of it existed in Egypt under the Pharaohs. Says the "Revue Scientifique:"

"It has long been confused with peritonitis, typhlitis, intestinal catarrh, and with diseases of the liver, kidneys and ovaries. At the Trousseau Hospital from 1885 to 1889 there were noted 470 cases of peritonitis. From 1895 to 1899, in the same hospital, after appendicitis had become recognized, there were 443 cases of it—about the same number. Appendicitis is thus not any more frequent than in the days when it constituted a good part of the acute cases of peritonitis of unknown cause. Appendicitis is a microbian disease. . . . Its causes are numerous. . . . The influence of intestinal worms has been noted by Metchnikoff. 'These worms,' says M. Lannelongue, 'have been found by my colleague, M. Guilliod, in 128 cases, or thirty-five per cent. of those examined.' The worms may cause appendicitis by introducing into this organ the microbes with which their bodies are covered."

False prophets and fictitious Messiahs are not always merely victims of their own hallucinations. They are not infrequently the result of the fanaticism of others. A strange and certainly instructive example of this is to be found in the proceedings of the Russian peasantry near Kronstadt. A famous priest of the neighborhood, Father John, has in spite of himself been credited with divine attributes by the village folks. One peasant wrote a hymn to him, and a sect began to grow up whose objects were to worship him. The remarkable thing is that the peasants persist in their belief in spite of rebukes and denials and threats from Father John himself.

Paris is enjoying a swindle now not comparable with the Humbert affair, but still with some unusual features. A pretending canon, an unfrocked priest, named Rosemberg, of Jewish origin, a financier named Malleval and some others plucked a wealthy widow, Madame Civet. Malleval is an interesting character. His lively youth resulted in his being disinherited. He decided to marry money, and did it. And then on the day of his wedding he went out with his wife, took a cab, went to a certain gambling club on the Boulevards, and told her to wait outside. That was, it appears, in the afternoon, and at 2 o'clock in the morning the bride was still waiting. When he finally arrived, the bridegroom informed her that he had lost the whole of her "dot" at play. According to the Paris papers that was but a typical incident of his career!

The King's Library.

A library that is necessarily exceptional in its wide and varied interest is that of King Edward VII. at Windsor Castle. The whole library dates only from the time of George III. When the British Museum was founded the ancient library of the kings of England was transferred thither by George II. George III., finding himself without a library, entrusted Sir Frederick Barnard to buy in Venice and other cities all books of worth; and in 1762 Consul Smith's library was also bought for him. Thirty-nine Caxtons, including the "Doctrine of Sapience," were mostly personal gifts to the King. The inner print-room is precious beyond all words. Twenty thousand of the finest works of the greatest men are contained in it, including over eighty portraits by Holbein—they speak for themselves as likenesses—in three tints of crayon. But the glory of the whole collection is in the Leonardo da Vinci drawings, and not only drawings, but his own manuscript, with anatomical notes and illustrations of priceless worth.

A simple library table contains in its drawers a sequence of kings and queens in miniatures, with the exception of "Bloody Mary," dating from King Henry VII. There are works by the two Olivers, Orgius, Humphrey, Cooper and Cosway. Queen Mary of Scotland is by Janet, and described by Charles II. most accurately in his catalogue of his possessions. On the table is a curious little drawing, which was presented to the present librarian for purchase. It was a little drawing made by Her Majesty Queen Victoria and given to her uncle. She said she quite remembered doing it at the age of seven. The Queen and Prince Consort were frequent visitors to the library. The librarian is Mr. Richard Holmes, C.V.O., who, when sent by the British Museum to gather treasures, succeeded so well that the late Mr. Gladstone referred to him in the House of Commons as a sacrilegious robber.—"Bookman."

Millicent's Engagement.

"Just listen to Millicent's letter," says the fond mamma, who is reading the epistle from the daughter who has been spending the summer at a fashionable resort. "She writes, 'I know you will all be surprised to learn that I have become engaged—'"

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the doting papa. "I knew we should never have permitted that girl to go to that place unattended. Now she will come home with a bogus count or a spurious duke, or at the best a bankrupt lord for me to support. I've a notion to telegraph her that she is disinherited, and—"

"Wait a minute," advises the mother. "Listen to the rest of the sentence. 'I have become engaged to the landlord.'"

"Oh, joy!" shouts the father, as he executes a saraband of happiness down the room.

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER,
Miami, Man.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the (fill in name of paper.) To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Naval Display at Algiers

Rome, April 3—The newspapers here announce that Italy will make a notable naval display at Algiers, on the occasion of the visit of President Loubet to that port. Later, the Italian squadron will go to Naples, where there will be another large gathering of warships on the occasion of the visit of King Edward to Italy.

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at [illegible] per share. The Company controls 646 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 50 tones of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $19.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 20 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 646 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. STOCK MARKETS

A RISING MARKET SEEMS IMMINENT

New York, April 6.—A rising money market seems imminent. The conviction is very general now that the money market will gradually ease off, and many brokers state rates will be cheaper early in the current month, consequently operations for a rise should soon begin in an aggressive way. There are numerous short lines scattered throughout the list, and the sum total of bearish commitments is of a very heavy character, and should be the principal factor in establishing a higher range of prices. Stocks like St. Paul, L. N., and Pennsylvania have been accumulated at their low points and at the same time short selling contracts in these stocks have not yet been closed. The bull party which operated recently in amalgamated copper, selling out around 75, has renewed operations in that stock and are confident that their efforts in their new deal will carry the price well above 80. The borrowing demand for this stock is very noticeable, and may result in a sharp demand at any moment. The bull party has worked steadily for a general advance, and while their efforts have not been entirely successful, their persistency is regarded as a good sign, and has created optimism. Skilled leadership has been lacking so far, but sentiment is rapidly crystallizing in favor of better things and the buying impulse is certain to soon get under way. Bull sentiment has grown steadily even in the face of higher money rates, and it looks to us as if the time is near at hand when the pool in this stock would become active once more. Above is only one of many ventures which are soon to be undertaken and rushed to a successful termination, and it would seem prudent to buy into the market at this time instead of waiting until the advances are well under way.

Ghostly Find of C.N.R. Surveyors on the Prairie near Saskatoon

Winnipeg, April 4.—A party of C. N. R. surveyors made a ghastly find on the prairie a few days ago, about forty miles west of Saskatoon. While running their survey line they came across a man and a team of horses attached to a sleigh. The man was sitting huddled up in furs on the seat, but the reins were trailing on the ground, and the horses were walking in a jaded condition on the trail. On investigation the surveyors found the man was dead. There was nothing in the way of papers on his person to show who he was, but it is believed that he was a rancher and had been frozen to death. The spot where he was found was quite close to where English colonists met their death in the great blizzard recently.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 3 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
720 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 23 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$16,969.26
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.64
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,712.22
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,687.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000.00

The total capital invested is $77,366.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and progressive Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish, and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada.

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of this machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of the Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc., will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view this Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 19th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 7 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 10 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

BRONCHITIS CURED

For fifteen years Mr. John Pearson of Melvern Square suffered from Bronchitis and throat irritation. Doctors failed to relieve but Catarrhozone cured quickly

The remarkable recovery of Mr. Pearson, who for years was principal of Melvern Square High School, is convincing evidence of the exceptional curative powers possessed by Catarrhozone.

"For fifteen years," writes Mr. Pearson, "I constantly suffered from Bronchitis and Throat Irritation. Until quite recently I was able to keep up my teaching, but my bronchial trouble became so annoying that I was forced to resign.

"For months I doctored with different physicians and was not benefited. My trouble grew more severe and extended to the lungs, and I feared I would sink in decline.

"Providentially I was advised to use Catarrhozone, and I believe it really saved my life. Its immediate effect was to relieve the throat trouble sufficiently to give me perfect ease in speaking. Within one short week all symptoms of bronchitis had disappeared. I can fervently recommend Catarrhozone. I know it has no equal as a sure and speedy cure for throat trouble and bronchitis."

Every air cell and air passage, all parts of the breathing organs are reached and breathed by the antiseptic vapor of Catarrhozone. It soothes and heals the inflamed mucous surfaces, stops the cough, clears the nose and throat, and drives every symptom of bronchitis right out of the system.

To purify the blood of all poisons, and to build up the system, Ferrozone Tablets, which are included in every Catarrhozone outfit, are very highly recommended. This local and constitutional treatment in Bronchitis, Catarrh, and Consumption cannot be equalled.

Catarrhozone is endorsed by physicians and ministers and thousands it has cured. Two months' treatment costs $1. Small size, 25 cts. Sold by all Druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Ashburnham Schools

The people of Ashburnham are very fortunate indeed in having the Rev. E. A. Langfeldt as one of its citizens, because of his whole hearted and very effective work in connection with religious instruction given in the Public Schools. He has given a Bible study for half an hour each Friday afternoon. Very much interest has been taken in the subjects taught, as is shown by the result of the recent examinations, at which two young ladies—Miss Lizzie Telford and Miss Grace Hartley won each a medal offered by the school Board for proficiency in Bible Study in the Senior class, while Miss Fannie Lund and Master Willie Manicle captured the coveted prizes in the junior class.

It is to be hoped this rev. gentleman will continue his good work, as his efforts are so much appreciated by the members of all denominations.

AT NO. 3 DAM

The Walls of the New Power House have Been Completed

Work on the new power house at No. 3 dam is progressing satisfactorily. The walls were completed on Saturday last, and the building will be ready for the machinery in a day or two. There will only be about 500 horse power required at once for the use of the Lakefield Cement Company. We understand that it is the Company's intention to still further increase the capacity of the works, until the entire power of the dam is utilized.

A PRETTY WEDDING

Nuptials of Miss Pearl Hamilton and Mr. James Hards Town

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Hamilton, Aylmer street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when their only daughter Miss Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. James Hards, of town.

The ceremony was performed by Rev J. G. Potter, pastor of St Andrew's Presbyterian church, in the presence of the intimate friends of the contracting parties.

The bride, who was attired in a pretty blue travelling suit, was assisted by Miss Maud Adams, while Mr. J. F. Selby supported the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty wedding dejeuner was served after which the happy young couple left for Toronto. A host of friends unite with The Times in wishing them much prosperity and happiness.

Hyslop Bicycles, Sundries and Tires of all makes are now on sale at Metheral's Bicycle Works. The Hyslop is the best this year. Call and let us explain our terms

A Note of Warning

The other day a New Orleans firm received a letter from J. P. Morgan & Co., and in the letter was a check signed by the big firm for $3,766,000.-50. As the check was meant for somebody else, and had been sent to the New Orleans firm by mistake, it was returned. When any of our readers send out checks of this size they would do well to see that they are put into the right envelopes, especially if the check is intended for the great family journal.

WATER RATES

The Water Rates for the quarter beginning April 1st, are now due and payable at the Town Buildings, and the bills are being delivered. If paid by April 15th, 20 per cent. discount will be allowed. S. R. ARMSTRONG, Secretary.

—Mr. Fred. Peake, of Campbellford, spent Sunday in town.

Mr. G. N. Brown, of Belleville, was in town yesterday.

—Miss Maude Elliott went to Toronto yesterday to visit friends.

—Mr. George Bradburn, of Parry Sound was in town yesterday.

—Mr. Geo. W. Ramsay, C.E. of Belleville, is a guest at the Munro House.

—Miss Jessie Spenter has returned from Ottawa where she has been visiting.

—Mr. A. Hubbs, of Duluth, Minn., is visiting her father, Mr. C. E. Hubbs Ashburnham.

—Mr. G. W. Stewart, of Berlin, is in town and is staying at the Hotel National.

—Mr. Albert Hunter, the popular milkman from Monaghan, had the misfortune to break his arm on Saturday.

Ministerial Association

The regular meeting of the above Association was held in the Y.M.C.A hall yesterday forenoon. Rev. Dr. Torrance presided in the absence of the president. The Rev. J. G Potter read a paper on Ignatius Loyola which was much appreciated by the members present.

—Hiawatha Encampment, No. 66 I.O.O.F meets on Wednesday evening next.

"FROM MISSOURI"

But Pure Food Quickly "Showed Him"

The popular expression, "I'm from Missouri; you've got to show me," means a lot. Among the Missourians who have "been shown" the value of Grape-Nuts food, is a man from St. Louis who says:

"It was during the summer of 1900 that I was taken really ill. For some time previous I had had premonitory signs, occasional headaches, gastric disturbances and a general feeling of debility. These increased until I became alarmed and sought medical advice.

"It seemed to me I was treated for all the ills that flesh is heir to but without avail. Finally I was frankly told by my physician that I had better put my business matters in order as I could live but a short time. I had actually resigned myself to die when a friend who knew what he was talking about made me change my food and try Grape-Nuts. It was a long time before I commenced, for it seemed impossible that the food would help me after so many able physicians had failed to help me. Well, to make a long story short I at last decided to try Grape-Nuts and the food showed me what was the matter.

"The effect was magical. One by one the shackles of disease fell from me. My brain became clear, headache disappeared and it seemed I could feel the improvement daily. I experienced the delicious glow of strong, rich revivifying blood flowing through my veins. I arose in the morning with old time vigor and life seemed worth the living.

"The first month of Grape-Nuts use I gained 20 pounds and I have been gaining steadily ever since." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

OBITUARY

Death of Mrs. Thos. Barrie Sr.

It is with deep regret we chronicle the death of Mrs. Thomas Barrie, senior, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Peterborough. Deceased passed away at the residence of her son, Mr. Thos. Barrie, Gilmour street, yesterday morning at the ripe old age of 84 years. Her death was caused by paralysis.

Mrs. Barrie was a daughter of the late John Dayell, one of the first settlers of Cavan and was born at Centreville, where she resided until 18 years of age. Deceased was twice married, first to the late Thos. Ryan, of Otonabee, and afterwards to Mr. Thomas Barrie, who predeceased her about 23 years.

Mrs. Barrie moved to Peterborough about 28 years ago and resided at No. 38 Gilmour street.

Deceased lady was a very active member of the Methodist church until about four years ago when failing health compelled her to forego many of her former labors of love. She has resided with her daughter Mrs. (Dr.) M. A. Morrison for the past seven years and it was during a visit to her son last week that she was taken ill and gradually sank until the end came.

Her surviving children are Mrs. A. P. Morgan, town; Mrs. W. Mann, Bridgenorth; Mrs. Alex. Hamilton, Warren, Ont.; Mrs. Kimball, Kansas; and Mrs. M. A. Morrison, town; Mr. John Ryan, town; Wm. R. Ryan, Michigan; Thomas Ryan, Atlanta, Georgia; and Thomas Barrie of town.

The funeral will leave the residence of her son, Thomas Barrie, Gilmour street at 3.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon and proceed to the Little Lake cemetery.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

A by-law to provide for a refuse ground passed its several readings.

FIRE HOSE.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee were authorized to purchase 200 feet of fire hose at at 90c. a foot.

A HORSE WANTED

Ald. Clinkscale reported that his committee had sold one of the fire horses, and he asked authority to purchase another in its place. This was granted.

Council then adjourned.

AT THE TOP.

It is a laudable ambition to reach the top of the ladder of success. But many a man who reaches the topmost rung finds his position a torment instead of a triumph. He has sacrificed his health to success.

A man can succeed and be strong if he heeds Nature's warnings. When there is indigestion, loss of appetite, ringing in the ears, dizziness, spots before the eyes or palpitation of the heart; any or all of these symptoms point to weakness and loss of nutrition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. By perfect and abundant nourishment distributed to each vital organ it enables the co-operation of all the organs to preserve the perfect health of the body.

"For about two years I suffered from a very obstinate case of dyspepsia," writes R. E. Secord, Esq., of 13 Eastern Ave., Toronto, Ontario. "I tried a great number of remedies without success. I finally lost faith in them all. I was so far gone that I could not bear any solid food in my stomach for a long time; felt melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor follow my occupation. Some four months ago a friend recommended your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' After a week's treatment I had derived so much benefit that I continued the medicine. I have taken three bottles and am convinced it has in my case accomplished a permanent cure. I can conscientiously recommend it to the thousands of dyspeptics throughout the land."

CANADA SHARES THE COST OF THE EMPIRE'S DEFENCE

Indirect Payment for Protection Afforded

GROWING FEELING WE SHOULD DO MORE

Aid Given in South African War—Military Defences and Railway Facilities

Ottawa, April 7—Mr. George Johnson, Dominion statistician, received a few days ago the following letter from a correspondent in the United States:

"Dear Sir,—It has been asserted that Canada pays no taxes in any way shape, or form, to England or the Kingdom. We cannot believe Canada gets all her protection and expects something for nothing, and therefore ask, to settle a bet, that you inform us fully with unquestioned authority as to whether or not she pays duties or otherwise helps support the Crown."

THE ANSWER.

To this Mr. Johnston sent the following reply:

Dear Sir,—In reply to yours of the 26th inst., I beg to say that Canada receives protection from the head of the British Empire without paying anything directly for it. She has the navy and army and consular service of the United Kingdom free of cost. There is no direct charge for it. It is as free as the air we breathe.

"During the South African war Canada's aid to the Empire was: Officers and men, 8372, of whom 244 were killed, and 252 wounded; money cost was $2,830,965. We maintain a militia force, military college and schools, garrison some of the forts, etc., at an annual cost of about $2,000,000. We contribute to the cost of the defences of British Columbia about $150,000 a year. Under normal conditions we do not contribute to the cost of the fortifications and military at Halifax, N.S., as that is an Imperial establishment.

"Heretofore what has been done by us is principally in the direction of railway development. Halifax and Quebec are connected by railway costing $74,000,000 principal and sum (since 1873) at an aggregate deficit of $6,000,000 expenses exceeding revenue by that amount. To the Canadian Pacific railway which connects the fine defences on the Pacific coast with the Atlantic and affords the central authority of the Empire an alternative route to the British possessions in Asia, Canada has contributed $62,700,000 in money, and thirty-seven million acres of land. While this railway development has been of immense benefit to Canada, it has also been very useful in connection with the general defences of this part of the British Empire and may be deemed fairly enough a contribution to the war expenditure of the Empire.

"No doubt the whole question, which has been more or less discussed during fifty years, on both sides of the Atlantic, will be a much more prominent subject for discussion in the near future. A large proportion of Canadians already feel unwilling to allow the mother country to assume all the burden of Empire without insisting upon a direct contribution to a general war fund, or upon some other means of bearing a fair share of the immense burden."

Minister of Railways and Canals to Visit Port Hope

The Mayor of Port Hope has been informed that Mr. Blair, Minister of Railways and Canals, to visit Port Hope, and drive over the proposed route for the Canal from Bewdly to Port Hope. It is understood that Mr. Blair has promised to do so.

It is imperative that the Canal Association should, therefore, lose no time in presenting the claims of the Trenton route on the Government, and endeavor to have the whole of the work for the completion of the Canal placed under contract without delay. In this connection The Times is authorised to state that opportunity will probably be afforded all who desire to join the deputation to do so, so that there will be another of those mammoth affairs that was so fruitful on former occasions. The Times would like to see at least a thousand strong, so that the Government may be impressed with the fact that we are in dead earnest.

LINDSAY'S CEMENT WALKS

Some of the Aldermen have no Use for a Town Engineer

At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the Lindsay Council, a warm discussion took place regarding the appointment of a town engineer:

Ald. McCrea—"We'll need an engineer to draw plans for and supervise the sewers, and to take levels for the granolithic walks."

Ald. Storer—"No, we'll have no engineer with my consent. I'm the oldest member on this board, but if I can't lay a straighter bit of walk than that on Russell st., north side, from William to Cambridge st., I'm willing to resign. And I'll not use a sighting rod, either."

Ald. Cinnamon—"Can't a first-class mechanic take levels for granolithic walks?"

Ald. Storer—"No doubt about it."

Ald. O'Rielly—"We should proceed in a proper way when we are doing work that is expected to last for 20 or 30 years. If we don't want to hire a Commissioner who is able to take levels, we can get Supt. Begbie of the waterworks, to do that part of the work. The Mayor can make the necessary arrangements with the Commissioners."

The above all goes to show that Peterborough is doubly blessed with an engineer and a road commissioner.

FAMINE IN FARM HELP

Scarcity of Farm Labor Causing Serious Loss

The scarcity of farm labor is being keenly felt all over Ontario, and the press has much to say about it. The Pickering News says farmers in its constituency are in a dilemma, "as they are far from having sufficient strength to carry on the necessary work." Wages in that locality range up to $25 and board per month for eight or nine months of the year. The News goes on to remark that the farmer will be forced to adapt his methods to the amount of labor he can command. "For example, representatives of the Berlin Sugar Company have endeavored to secure contracts with farmers to supply beets, but a number who otherwise would be willing, are unable to engage in this enterprise for the reason that they have not sufficient help to assist in their cultivation and in the harvesting." There is no mystery as to where the laborers are going. They are off for the Northwest, where the prospects for home making are brighter.

In Peterborough the outlook is no better. This explains the tremendous difficulty that is being experienced in securing acreage for the proposed beet sugar factory.

WAR CLOUDS GATHERING FRIGHTENS THE TURK

Abdul Hamid Sees Great Danger to Turkish Rule in Europe

EUROPE'S FEAR IS OF A BIG CONFLAGRATION

The Views of the Balfour Cabinet Have Been Expressed—Russia's Rage.

Vienna, April 8.—Abdul Hamid has sent autograph letters to the kings and reigning princes of the Balkan Peninsula, urging their co-operation in the suppression of disorder. In these letters the Sultan acknowledges that there is urgent need of reform. He indirectly suggests that the restoration of peace is opposed in influential quarters outside the actual Balkan vortex, and says that any tampering with Ottoman sovereignty will invite consequences which all the sane statesmen will combine to avert.

His Majesty is obviously frightened and sees nothing in the war clouds but danger to Turkish rule in Europe. He realises that the powers are more alert and determined than ever before, and a collision among them points to readjustment of the Balkan situation with Turkey left out.

THE VIEW IN ENGLAND.

Constantinople, April 8.—Sir N. R. O'Connor, the British Ambassador, is taking an energetic part in the representations with which the powers are bombarding the Sultan. This action shows that the interest of Downing street in the near east has undergone a radical revival. Russia and Austria have been compelled to take England into their confidence at every step. If St. Petersburg and Vienna, when playing a forward role in the Balkans hoped to draw the Balfour Cabinet on subject of future Constantinople, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, their expectations have certainly been gratified. Whether they have got what they wanted is another question. They know that Great Britain is thoroughly satisfied with the Balkan status quo and is willing to take considerable pains, not to say run a good deal of risk, to avert changes thereof.

This fact, together with the manifest alignment of Western Europe in favor of a policy of simple pacification, may account for Russian renewed declarations of attachment to the same principle. That the St. Petersburg semi-official press, while it vociferously champions the Balkan status quo, should fly into a rage at the French Government for taking the same line of the Russian papers, of which the Muscovite editors appear blissfully ignorant.

Monastir, Macedonia, via London, April 6.—A veritable reign of terror exists here. The town is filled with Turkish troops, infantry, cavalry, and artillery, and the entire population which is not Bulgarian, is armed for self-protection. The Bulgarians would be arrested if they carried arms openly, but many are secretly armed. The emissaries of the Macedonian bands, after meeting with little success in their attempts to enroll recruits here for a general uprising, have adopted drastic measures. Their committees come into the town despite the presence of the Turkish troops, and they cannot be kept out. Their expedients for arming sympathizers whom they secretly enlist are remarkably ingenious. There was a funeral cortege, for instance, from the country, with a priest at the head of the mourners, and boys burning incense behind him. The coffin was interred, but at night the grave was robbed by raw recruits to the revolutionary committee, and in place of the corpse was a supply of arms and ammunition. In secret conscript officers visit the Bulgarians who have not enlisted, and demand their signatures to an oath to rise at the appointed time and also the price of a definite amount of ammunition. The tax is levied on the general principle of every man according to his ability. Those who refuse under the obligation of loyalty to the Sultan are shot down if the emissaries can readily escape, or otherwise are marked out for secret assassination by long range sharpshooters. Money is exacted this way not only from the Bulgarians, but also from the Turkish and Greek residents of Monastir, for the purchase of ammunition, with which the revolutionists are inadequately supplied for a general uprising, a large consignment from France and Germany having been recently discovered and confiscated by Bulgarian Government officials at the Macedonian border. The Bulgarians, being proportionately weaker in number to the Turks, Greeks and Albanians in Monastir, than in Salonica and Uskub, have tried to remain loyal to the Sultan, but they are completely terrorized and paralysed with the revolutionists threatening them with death unless they consent to arm themselves, and with the Turkish soldiers ready to shoot or imprison them if they are caught with arms in their possession. All who can pay the heavy charges for permits to leave the country, after giving bonds for their return, are deserting the town. Many refugees under the advice of American missionaries, are heading for the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Tsilka, with the famous baby born while Mrs. Tsilka was a captive of the brigands, have already started for New York, with a number of other fugitives. I talked with them here, and learned that they expected to return ultimately and resume their missionary work. Tsilka is a reformed Albanian, but his wife is a Bulgarian. Her brother-in-law is in a Turkish prison, having been arrested as a suspect.

LIES ABOUT CANADA HARDSHIP STORIES

Some One in the Western States Cabling Reports to England That Emmigrants are Suffering Hardships

London, April 7—British critics heartily applaud Sir William Mulock's refusal to exclude from Canada artisans. The Chronicle says, "it will be time enough to legislate against the influx of contract immigrants when the employers in the Dominion seek to emulate the example of the United States by importing huge drafts of cheap Continental laborers to supplant local workmen. In the meantime Canada wants all the labor it can get, skilled, or otherwise.

LIES ABOUT CANADA.

English papers are publishing alarmist stories of the hardships before British settlers now arriving in Canada. They say the Canadian transition from summer weather in March to winter in April is a startling experience for Canada's new citizens. It is suggested in some quarters that these alarmist tales are of Western States origin, designated to check the remarkable movement Canadawards.

STILL THEY COME.

Another party of young English farmers leave Liverpool to-morrow for Canada, and a further 1,000 will leave London in a fortnight's time.

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY MEET

Rev. Mr. Kannawin, of Omemee, Is Called to Woodville

A special meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery took place yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's church, Rev. Dr. Torrance presiding. There were present, besides the local ministers and elders, Rev. T. W. Goodwill, Cordova; Rev. Mr. Macdonald, Lorneville; Messrs. Gilchrist and Campbell of Woodville; Thurston and Sandy, Omemee, and Best, Mount Pleasant.

The object of the meeting was to deal with a call that had been made by the congregation at Woodville to Rev. W. M. Kannawin, B.A., of Omemee.

The matter was fully discussed, and it was finally decided to give Mr. Kannawin a week to consider it. A special meeting of the Presbytery will take place at Norwood to receive his decision.

COUNTY POLICE COURT

Held at Havelock on Monday—A Number of Cases

At a session of the County Police held at Havelock on Monday before County Police Magistrate Edmison, a number of cases came up for hearing.

In the case of the Crown vs. Geo. A. Parcells, who was accused of stealing a canoe, evidence was taken and the accused was committed for trial. He was also accused of perjury and violation of the game laws, and was committed on these charges also.

Jas. A. Lawrence, of Belmont, who was accused of stealing saw logs was dismissed. On a charge of bigamy he was committed for trial.

Mr. G. J. Sherry, of Norwood, appeared for the defence while County Crown Attorney Wood conducted the prosecution.

FRANCE FOR JUSTICE FROM THE PORTE

Proposed to the Powers Measures to Bring Turkey to Time, But Germany and Russia Rejected Them

London, April 7—The Times' correspondent in Paris says the Matin publishes a somewhat sensational article on France's role in the pending Eastern crisis. Another article is by Stephanne Lausanne. He declared that M. Delcasse, the French Foreign Minister, suggested common action with Russia and Austria, in order to put pressure on the Porte, with the view to obtaining more equitable treatment for the Macedonian population, and that he drew up a list of reforms which was submitted to the Powers. M. Delcasse further proclaimed French disinterestedness, and his wish to collaborate with Europe in the work of justice and civilization.

Lausanne adds: "It was possible that the policy displeased Russia and Germany. It was certain that it brought France no concessions, no 'pots devin.'

Finally Lausanne says: "A sovereign who, like Emperor William, forwards a despatch in which he prays God to preserve in His august and holy keeping the life of the Sultan, Abul Hamid, in order to obtain some section of railway, some concession in respect to a loan, is a sovereign who dishonors his throne and soils his crown. The nation which against its own interests on the eve of a terrible hecatomb utters a cry for justice and pity is a nation which justifies the great role it has played in the past, and the confidence one has in its future."

New York, April 7—The Herald's Berlin despatch says there is a growing conviction in official circles here that the Balkan troubles will eventually lead to new European alliances. Germany's action in recently joining the Austro-Russian Alliance is regarded here as certain to force England, France and Italy who have common interest, to form a defensive alliance.

My authority quotes King Edward's visit to Paris and the recent rebuke from St. Petersburg to the French press as corroborating this view.

Belgrade, Servia, April 7 — King Alexander today executed a coup d'etat. He issued two proclamations, the first decreeing a suspension of the constitution adopted April 19, 1901, repealing objectionable law passed thereunder, retiring the Senators and the councillors of state, dissolving the Skupshtina, and re-enacting the laws as they existed previous to the constitution of 1901. The second proclamation restores this constitution to its former validity.

In the first proclamation the King says the Senate and the Skupshtina, created under the constitution granted by him in 1901, passed laws proved impracticable. Furthermore, the constitution, by tending to fan political passions, prejudiced the interests of the Fatherland, and hindered its development as a state and nation.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE HONORED

Central Smith Remembers an Esteemed Citizen

An interesting event took place on Tuesday of last week at the Temperance Hall, Smith. The occasion was the departure of Mr. George A. Gillespie and family to reside in Peterborough. Mr. Gillespie has for some time been associated with the firm of White & Gillespie, Peterborough, grocers and dairy supplies, but he intends removing to Peterborough, and devoting his whole time to the business. Mr. Gillespie has for the past five years been the cheese and butter maker for the Central Smith Dairy Company, and has given excellent satisfaction in that capacity. The occasion of the definite severance of business relations was taken advantage of to give an expression to the esteem in which Mr. Gillespie and family were held.

The Temperance Hall was filled and in connection with the evening's program an oyster supper was served.

The chair was taken by Mr. Thos. D. Young, president of the Central Smith Dairy Company, who introduced the following interesting program;

Dairy quartette... ......Messrs. Graham, McGregor, Gillespie and Campbell.
Chairman's address...... ....
Instrumental trio... ... .Miss Scott, and Archer Bros.
Recitation... ....Irene Young
Address...... ....E. M. Elliott
Illustrated song, "Every Man has a Flag but the Coon"
Recitation...... ....Lillian Scott
Duet... ...Messrs. Campbell and Gillespie
Reading...... ....Miss Courtney
Instrumental...... ....Miss Scott and Archer Bros.
Song... ... ...Graham and McGregor

As far as the program was concerned, the best of the wine was kept till the last of the feast. Mr. Gillespie was presented with an address, read by Mr. T. H. Graham, as follows;

Mr. George Gillespie;

Dear Sir,—We, the members and patrons of Central Smith Dairy Company, feel that we cannot allow the present opportunity pass without expressing our appreciation of your diligence, skill, and courteous manner during your five years of labor amongst us. You have always been ready to do anything that would promote the welfare of your patrons and add to the prosperity of our company. The good feeling existing between us is largely due to your affectionate heart, caressing manners, and uniform kindness, therefore it is not surprising that we very much regret your departure, and as an expression of our good wishes for your future welfare as well as our own thankfulness for past favors we present you with this chair, hoping that you may live long and spend many happy hours while resting in it.

While we shall long remember you with pleasure, none the less do we respect and esteem your gentle partner in life, and hope that she may enjoy life none the less while sitting in this chair, which we have the greatest pleasure in presenting to her as a seal to the good wishes we bear and a bond of friendship existing between us. We would not like to let the evening pass without also remembering the little fellow who has brightened your home and delighted us all by his innocent face, happy frolicksome pranks and good behaviour. May his life be far too long to ride so small a tricycle, but we hope he may enjoy many youthful rides, and when it is cast aside, may he add honor to a good name, and be a pleasure and comfort to his parents.

We sincerely wish you long life, prosperity and a happy home at last.

Signed by the Directors of Central Smith Dairy Company, on behalf of the patrons.

T. D. YOUNG,
T. H. GRAHAM,
R. J. EDMISON,
C. D. MOORE,
A. MACGREGOR.

With the address was presented an easy chair to Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie each and a tricycle to the little boy.

Altogether a most enjoyable and interesting evening was spent.

Irritating Pimples and Disfiguring Blotches

They place many girls at a great disadvantage in life. The only cure is a blood purifier like Ferrozone. It cleanses the crimson blood of poisons and impurities, renews and strengthens it, and makes lots of red corpuscles that manifest their presence by a ruddy, healthy glow in the cheeks and lips. Ferrozone quickly masters all skin eruptions, builds up broken-down constitutions, and gives to weak, sickly women an abundance of spirits, vitality, energy and beauty. Try Ferrozone, it's all right. Price 50c. per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50, at druggists, or N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Earthquake Stops River

Kalispell, Mont., April 6.—Residents of Helena flats, five miles north, were terrified last night by an earthquake. At a point on White River where the disturbances occurred, more than five acres of bluff land was carried a distance of 600 feet and deposited in the channel of the river. The dam is 300 feet long and no trace of the former channel can now be seen. The water is backing up and flooding bottom lands.

IN PRAISE OF IGNORANCE

Men have written in defense of lying and laziness and all the other vices to which the sinning mortal is heir, but now, thank goodness, is found one who writes, not in defense, but in actual praise of ignorance. Here is something in which all will feel equally at home. For, the avenues of knowledge continue to open out in this world much faster than stumbling man can travel them. How comforting, therefore, to be told that, if it is not exactly folly to be wise, it is at least often blissful, and quite honorable, moreover, to be ignorant.

Mr. S. M. Crothers is the man to whom we are indebted for this praise of ignorance. He writes in the current Atlantic. Mr. Crothers says he himself happens to live in a community where there is a deeply rooted prejudice in favor of intelligence. Alas for us all, what one of us does not live in such a community? But Mr. Crothers would have us believe that even in such a community he, while blissfully and consciously ignorant, has nevertheless been able to walk abroad with head high and heart merry. "Conscious" ignorance is, of course, the point. Mr. Crothers would not for a minute be understood as defending that ignorance that mistakes itself, or seeks to make others mistake it, for knowledge. Nor would he defend what Milton calls "barbarous ignorance of the schools." It is only plain, simple, natural, knowing ignorance that has his praise.

How many people have on their bookshelves certain books, which they perhaps have never read, as the uncut pages mutely and accusingly testify, and yet for which books the owner has a real affection, and regards them as pleasant pastures to be explored at some future time? Mr. Crothers is not ashamed to confess that he has such, and, moreover, is convinced that among the "Books that Have Helped Me," none has helped him more than some he has never read. For example, he tells of one small book on his library shelves—"The History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars of England, by Edward, Earl of Clarendon." Now Mr. Crothers is by nature and education a Cromwellian. Thus, although he has never read the Earl of Clarendon's history, has never, in truth, crossed the Rubicon of the second chapter, the mere possession of the volume is proof that his prejudices have ceased a little, and that he is at least willing to be convinced that there are two sides to the matter of the English commonwealth. Therefore, Mr. Cruthers numbers this unread volume among the "Books that Have Helped Me."

Mr. Crothers counts it a curious thing that, while we profess to envy the old adventurers and joys of discovery, before we set out on our travels we do our utmost to rob ourselves of the slightest possibilities of surprise. An essential to all traveling preparations is "reading up." Before going to Rome, we read Baedeker and Hare and "the Marble Faun," and everything that everybody, who has been there before ourselves, has said upon the subject. When we arrive there is nothing to do but sally forth and verify our guidebooks. Mr. Crothers tells of the joy of the old lady in the Sistine Chapel when she discovered an error in Baedeker. In other words, we are continually striving to do our utmost "to brush the bloom off our native ignorance."

Therefore, let us all join in this praise of ignorance. Let us boldly and unblushingly say, "No, I don't know anything about this, that you are saying, nor am I especially desirous of knowing; a good part of my brain is under cultivation, and there are some fields I want to keep fallow." This latest historical romance? No, I haven't read it, nor have I any intention of reading it." What consternation a few such remarks would create in a community, in which there is a "deep-rooted prejudice in favor of knowledge!" Let us all join in the praise of ignorance. It will be a great relief to many who are brain-fagged and soul-tired. But, let us remember all the time, as we must, that it is only ignorance of the conscious sort that is to be commended, and remember also the fitting corollary that knowledge is of two kinds; "We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it"—when we want it.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

If it costs $25 a minute to run the Dominion Parliament, there are various gabsters in Ottawa who are very dear to their country.

If all the "old boy" reunions that are scheduled to be held in Ontario this summer come off, the old girls are going to have a great time.

All those Quebeckers who are opposed to contributing a cent to maintain the army and navy of Great Britain, undertook, yesterday, to tell the Imperial Parliament how to run the country. That didn't cost them anything.

POLICE EVADE THE LAW

The Sohmer Park Constables Avoid the Civic Tax by a Sharp Trick

Montreal, April 4.—Several actions taken last week against constables doing business in certain theatres, and especially in Sohmer Park, for refusing to pay to the city the license of $5 imposed on constables who are not under the control of the city or government, have revealed a strange state of affairs.

Much to the surprise of the Recorder's Court authorities, however, several of the summoned constables produced certificates showing that, since receiving the notice from the city to pay their license, they had gone to Mr. Sicotte, clerk of the Crown, and who acts as judge of Sessions in the absence of the regular judges, and had themselves sworn in under a section of the law which empowers magistrates to appoint constables for their own use.

Their object was to place themselves under the control of the Government, and thereby escape the civic tax. They confessed that the matter had been arranged between the Sohmer Park authorities and Mr. Sicotte.

Change of Life

A TIME OF INTEREST AND GREAT IMPORTANCE TO ALL WOMEN.

[illegible] last during this trying period, and small wonder that women look forward with dread to its coming, for if not properly passed, is but the beginning of an endless chain of troubles.

As soon as the unmistakable signs known to all women make their first appearance, Ferrozone should be used regularly, and if persistently taken will be a guarantee of happy, healthy old age.

Nothing can bring more pleasure than to know that the days of sickness and suffering are over. This can best be accomplished by building up the system with Ferrozone, which produces blood, muscle, tissue, and strength to resist and ward off disease.

Ferrozone increases the appetite strengthens and improves nerve tone and digestive processes, thereby strengthening and invigorating the whole system. It gives tone to the heart, regulates its action, removes distressing palpitations, and it lays the solid foundation of perfect health.

Ferrozone is a sensible and efficient tonic; it brings back strength very quickly, and few people are so strong and healthy, that they would not be benefited by using it.

Be advised and try Ferrozone. It is very pleasant to take, one tablet after each meal. All reliable druggists sell it for 50c. per box, or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

crowding round Astley, loading him with sympathy and kindness.

Lady Myfanwy insisted upon his coming home with them; and Astley, not sorry to put off the lonely return to the gaunt halls and echoing dreariness of The Haigh, accepted the invitation.

It was on the following day, early in the afternoon, that Norma, who kept indoors for fear of meeting Astley, and, with a view to keeping a watch on the Raggetts' cottage, saw two smiling faces at the gate, and recognized, with tears in her own eyes at the sight, two visitors from The Hall, in the persons of Sadie Brown and "Jack" Scorton.

She opened the door to them herself; but they would not come in; she must come out with them, they said.

"Poor child! She's been crying!" said Sadie, with a caressing gesture.

"No, she hasn't," said Norma. "At least, she hadn't till she saw you."

"What! Don't say the sight of us made you miserable!"

"Miserable! Oh, no, just the reverse. I was glad, delighted, to see your kind, bright faces."

"There, Jack! isn't she nice?" said Sadie, turning with a smile to her young companion, who seemed rather nervous, and who blushed more than Norma had previously seen him do.

"Of course she's nice," said Jack laconically.

"Now put on your hat, there's a dear, good creature, and come out with us. We've got something to say to you; at least, one of us has," said Sadie, with an air of importance.

Norma did as she was told, and was soon walking up the lane between her two companions, who seemed overwhelmed by some fact or secret which they appeared to hesitate to divulge.

"You begin, Sadie," said Jack at last, leaning forward to throw a mysterious glance across the intervening Norma at the face of the bright American girl.

"Well, then, you must know that Jack has something very important to say to you, and that he wants me to open the matter for him," began Sadie gravely. "I'm to tell you that what he is going to say is serious, and is the result of earnest thought, and that he hopes you won't treat it frivolously because he happens to be rather young."

"I'm not so very young," put in Jack with irritation. "I shall be nineteen in a week or two, which is, I fancy, about the age of—of you, too, isn't it?"

"I'm nineteen," said Norma, wondering what was coming next.

"Well, then, now I think I've said enough, and you can speak for yourself, Jack," said Sadie, as she suddenly turned and left the two together.

Norma turned round, too.

"What does she mean?" asked she in amazement. "Miss Brown—"

But Sadie walked on quickly, and Jack put a detaining hand on Norma's arm.

"Never mind her for a minute," said he earnestly. "It was all arranged between us that she should go away like that. She's a real good sort, Sadie, and a dear girl. They wanted me to marry her, you know, because she's ever so rich; but we didn't take to each other, at least not in that way. And so we made a compact to help each other in other ways."

Norma began to smile.

"You seem very good friends," said she.

"Oh, we are," said Jack. "Look at the way she's helped me this morning! I shouldn't have liked to come here by myself; I should have been afraid you'd send down a message that you couldn't see anybody," he went on, his bright face glowing with such sympathy and shy kindness that the ready tears sprang again to her eyes as she looked at him. "There, don't cry! Oh, don't, don't! I was there yesterday, you know. Sadie and I both were, and she had to hold me down when that beastly cad Wharles said what he did! It was a shame, an infernal, awful shame, and this morning I met him in the street and told him what I thought of him. I did really; you ask Sadie!"

Norma felt divided between an inclination to laugh and an inclination to cry.

"You shouldn't do that," said she. "It doesn't do any good, you know."

"It does do good to let him see what gentlemen think of a man who tells lies!" retorted Jack valiantly. "But anyhow, that's not what I came here to tell you. You won't mind my speaking to you? You won't think I'm impertinent, or—"

"Indeed I know you couldn't be that."

"Well, then, I'll tell you what is the greatest wish of my heart. Sadie knows, and she thinks my idea splendid. I do hope you will too."

"What idea?"

"Well, it's this. It's horrid for you and for Sir Astley, too, to be in this plight through this horrible Wharles woman's sister."

"Oh, don't talk about it, please."

"I won't, I won't more than I can help. Look here, I've thought of a way out of it. I know Sir Astley's a good fellow, and a nice fellow, and I know you're fond of each other. But what's the use of that, if there's another woman in the way? Now what I propose is that you should marry me—"

"Marry you!" echoed Norma aghast.

"Yes, yes," said he earnestly. "I know it's sudden, this idea of mine, but it's a good one, isn't it?"

"A g—good one!" stammered Norma.

"Yes. Then you could snap your fingers at them all, and show them that there was a rush for you, don't you see? And Sir Astley, well, poor fellow, I'm awfully sorry for him. Still, it will be better for him to know you're provided for, won't it? I'm sure he'd rather. And then, if ever this woman dies, he can marry Myfanwy, you know. She's awfully sweet on him, she really is."

"Why, you take my breath away," said Norma, still uncertain whether to smile or to cry; for in contrast with the wildness of the lad's suggestion, there was an earnestness, a breezy, enthusiastic sincerity in his manner which warned her that she must not hurt his feelings by any appearance of treating his offer lightly. "Don't you know, don't you understand," she said gently, "that I love Astley, that I married him, as he married me, believing him to be free; and that I can't look upon myself as anything but his wife now?"

"Well then, why don't you go back and live at The Haigh?" said Jack with youthful straightforwardness. "Why but because you feel you can't as long

ECZEMA AND INSOMNIA

Besides Eczema Mr. James Bushby, of Toronto, Was Troubled With Insomnia and Became a Very Sick Man.

His Pastor Advised Powley's Liquified Ozone—In a Few Days He Felt Better and Was Soon Entirely Cured.

For nine months I was afflicted with a disease that seemed to baffle the skill of three doctors, for I took their medicine but got no relief. I was troubled with an itching and a rash that appeared three or four times every week. The more I scratched the more I itched, until sometimes I almost became insane. It was confined to no particular spot, but occurred all over my body. I could not work. I was reduced in flesh from 145 pounds to 124 pounds. I became weak and pale and was physically miserable. I was told that I was in an anaemic condition.

My pastor, the Rev. G. L. Powell, B.A., advised me to try Powley's Liquified Ozone. I acted on his advice, purchased a bottle, and in a very few days began to feel better. I am now in excellent physical condition. The itching and rash have disappeared long ago.

Since taking Ozone I have gained 16 pounds; I now weigh 140 pounds.

I shall be pleased to answer any inquiries that may be made regarding my condition.

Ozone Cures by Destroying the Disease Germs.

The cleansing and purifying powers of Powley's Liquified Ozone are exemplified in no disease to better advantage than in a case of Eczema. The germs that cause the trouble are attacked and soon destroyed, when the eruptions gradually disappear and the skin becomes as clean and smooth as that of a baby. This has been proven so often in the worst possible cases that there is no doubt about it. Mr. Bushby's case is simply one among hundreds. Powley's Liquified Ozone is sold by all first-class druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle.

A Box of Powley's Ozone Ointment FREE

Powley's Ozone Ointment is especially recommended in cases of Eczema and other skin diseases for use in connection with Powley's Liquified Ozone. For external application this ointment is superior to Liquified Ozone because it holds the Ozone in contact with the diseased parts for hours, destroying all outside germs. So certain are we that Powley's Ozone Ointment used in connection with Powley's Liquified Ozone will cure the very worst case of Eczema or any other skin or blood disease that we will mail free a regular fifty cent box of this ointment to any person who will cut out and mail to us the following coupon:

50,000 SETTLERS ARE COMING BACK TO CANADA

Major Edwards Says That Fully 50,000 Will This Year Cross the Border

Montreal, April 7—From the State of North Dakota alone fully 50,000 people will this year cross the border into Canada and take up land in the Assiniboia district," was the announcement made to-day by Major Allison Edwards, of Fargo, North Dakota, on his arrival to take up his duty of United States consul.

"A strange feature of the big movement," Major Edwards went on to say, "is that they are for the most part members of Canadian families that are returning. A third of the population of North Dakota, are Canadians who were among the first settlers in the State. Now their children find it very difficult to get farm lands, and so are making their way back to the country of their fathers. It has been shown that the land in Assiniboia is just as fertile as that in North Dakota, and that means that it is just as fertile as any in the world.

"The people of the Canadian North-West and the Western States are just like one people, and now their relations will naturally become even more friendly than before. I sometimes think that it was to make them so that I received the present appointment."

The Smith Family.

Mr. Glazebrook, author of "The Heraldry of Smith," declared it to be absolutely true that a lifetime and the fortune of an American billionaire would not suffice for an exhaustive history of all the Smiths in all four quarters of the globe.

Mr. Compton Reade does not attempt anything so supremely heroic in his last book, "The Smith Family," just published by Elliot Stock. He professes, to use his own words, "to review the great Fabrician family," whether crisped into Smith, "smoothed into Smyth, or smudged into Smijth." Mr. Reade says that so numerous are the Smiths, he marvels England has not been transmuted into "Smithland." An American authority is quoted to the effect that "the history of England is the history of families," and then Mr. Compton Reade affirms that so far as the Smiths represent a type, England without them would have been very small indeed.

It is curious, Mr. Reade observes, how the little letter "y" has proved a huge differentia. For, whereas the "Smiths" as a rule have been money-making, the "Smyths" have shown themselves chivalrous and aristocratic. While the Smiths were Roundhead, the Smyths suffered for Tory or Jacobite principles.

Apropos of these variations in the spelling of the great patronymic, Mr. Compton Reade propounds a theory which should prove of comfort to both branches of the family. He hotly combats the notion that the Smyths, Smythes and Smijths have assumed a variation of spelling to lend an aristocratic flavor to a homely name. "Nothing," he declares, "can be further from the truth. The original form was Smyth just as the modern 'cider' is a corruption of the ancient 'cyder.' So far from the Smyths having Smythed themselves, I can discover barely one notable instance of the change from 'i' to 'y,' but I can trace numberless instances of Elizabethan Smyths having become Victorian Smiths. The roco spelling of the word Smijth is apparently due to the ingenuousness of some mediaeval clerk who in writing Smyth took upon himself to dot both points of the 'y,' thus producing 'Smijth.'"

But what is the origin of this great family? The following couplet furnishes the answer:

Whence cometh Smith, be he knight or be he squire,
But from the Smith that forgeth at the fire?

Not that this is any disgrace. The name is old enough; at any rate, Professor Mahaffy has discovered that a man named Smith lived in the days of Ptolemy III B.C. 227; and the occupation from which the name is derived was originally one of great [illegible] King Saul. Vulcan was a person of distinction in Olympus. In the days of Thor, when none but the mightiest could wield the hammer, he was a cynosure; in the heroic days of gallant little Wales he sat upon the right hand of the King. But from his high estate he fell, to become a mere mechanic in Norman times, only, however, to blossom into the gold-storing goldsmith of Queen Anne's days, from which trade sprang the great industry of banking.

With the assistance of pedigrees and other matter Mr. Reade sets to work to prove the doctrine of hereditary characteristics: "For the ranks of these descendants of primitive iron-workers," he says, include scarcely a poet or an idealist, while in matters practical they stand pre-eminent.

Whatever we are, we were,
And whatever we were, we are,
And whatever we are, and whatever we were,
That same shall we always be.

Certainly Mr. Reade's pedigrees and the list of celebrities which he gives at the end of his book contain the names of many well-known men of affairs, not to mention lawyers, sailors and soldiers. Charitable Smiths without number have proved the old proverb, "There is that scattereth but yet increaseth." Perhaps the most eccentric and yet practical bequest was that of Henry Smith in 1717 to St. Sepulchre's "to help poor maids for husbands!" Clearly when George I. was king a spouse must have been a purchasable commodity, and at a moderate price.

Why should there not be a day set apart every year to celebrate the greatness of the Smiths, after the manner of the Smith banquet which took place in the eighteenth century? At this banquet the guests were Smiths to a man, and the president was one Captain Smith, Governor of Virginia. The cooks were Smiths, the waiters also, and a Smith said grace. The feast was graced by a poet Smith, whose sole claims to immortality rest upon the ode he composed for the occasion, the publisher of which was James Smith.

MACEDONIAN TROUBLES.

Vienna, April 4—Advices received here from Sofia says the Bulgarian government is taking active measures against the Macedonian bands and has seized a large quantity of their arms, which were hidden in Sofia. Bulgarian gendarmes on the frontier near Dubnitza have fired on insurgents who were attempting to smuggle guns into Turkey. Fresh insurgent bands have appeared in the district of Djumea (Roumelia) and a strong detachment of Turkish cavalry with artillery has started in pursuit, going towards the Kuesnu Pass.

Mainly About People.

At Pretoria the Jews once complained that only half as much ground had been allotted to them for a synagogue as to the Hollanders for a church. Whereupon Dom Paul replied: "Well, that's perfectly fair; you believe only half of the Bible."

On one occasion Voltaire spoke highly of Haller and then was told he was very magnanimous to do so, as Haller had spoken in quite a contrary way of him. "Perhaps," remarked Voltaire, reflectively, and after a pause, "perhaps we are both mistaken."

A friend once wrote to Mark Twain asking his opinion on a certain matter, and received no reply. He waited a few days, and then wrote again. His second letter was also ignored. Finally, he sent a third note, inclosing a sheet of paper and a two-cent stamp. By return post he received a postcard on which was the following: "Paper and stamp received. Please send envelope."

A characteristic story is going round about Her Majesty and the Archbishop of Canterbury. It is said that they were playing at cards, when His Grace suddenly exclaimed, "You have revoked." "Well," replied the Queen, "it is the first time anyone has ever told me that I revoked at cards." "I dare say, ma'am," responded the Archbishop; "I don't suppose they dared!"

The late Sir Frank Lockwood was a tall man, and for some reason an unruly member of his audience once called out to him in the middle of his speech: "Go it, telescope!" "My friend is mistaken in applying that term to me," Sir Frank quietly said; "he ought to claim it for himself, for, though he cannot draw me out, I think I can both see through him and shut him up."

A New Jersey clergyman in a small town recently electrified his congregation by introducing into his sermon a dramatic account of Rudyard Kipling's deathbed scene. One of his parishioners hurried up to remonstrate with him at the close of the service. "Kipling isn't dead?" echoed the preacher, tranquilly; "well, that's odd. I surely read about the thing somewhere. Well, never mind. It must have been someone else who died, but the point remains the same."

Archbishop Ryan, visiting a small parish in a mining district for the purpose of administering confirmation, asked one nervous little girl what matrimony was, and she answered that it was "a state of terrible torment which those who enter it are compelled to undergo for a time to prepare them for a brighter and better world." "No, no," remonstrated the pastor; "that isn't matrimony; that's the definition of purgatory." "Leave her alone," said the archbishop; "maybe she's right. What do you or I know about it?"

Early in his literary career, the late Frank Stockton, in conjunction with his brother, John, wrote many poems with which they afflicted the editors of various periodicals. The effusions came back always. The editor of one magazine was an especial target of the Stocktons, but as none of their poems were ever accepted, the brothers came to the conclusion that this editor had no conception of good poetry. To prove their belief, they hunted up and despatched to him an ode little known from Milton. Within two days they received a check and a letter of thanks. "I came to the conclusion that that editor knew poetry when he saw it, after all," Mr. Stockton used to say; "and gave up trying to write it."

Mrs. Bigelow, wife of a former United States minister to France, was a woman noted for her ready wit, but sadly addicted to the reading of "Ouida's" flashy and fleshly books. Being once in Florence, where the author resides, Mrs. Bigelow resolved to call and pay homage to her talent. On her arrival she was kept waiting while a servant disappeared with her card, returning after some time with the information that 'Mademoiselle de la Ramee is not at home." A strident voice was heard shrieking over the stairs: "Tell Mrs. Bigelow that I never receive Americans." "You don't, eh?" shouted back the irrepressible Mrs. Bigelow. "Well, you ought to, for they are the only people who read your dirty books!"

Mr. Balfour's Kindness.

Added to the other virtues of the new Prime Minister of England is consideration for the least of these who ask his help. Mr. Justin McCarthy, who is a favorite contributor to the "Companion," tells in the "Outlook" a story of Mr. Balfour's readiness to stretch out a helping hand.

Two or three years ago Mr. McCarthy learned that an Englishwoman who had won distinction as a novelist had fallen ill, and was suffering from the poverty that followed her inability to continue her literary work. Some of her friends thought that she should be assisted by a department of the state, and applied to Mr. McCarthy, who is both man of letters and politician, to bring the matter before the proper authorities.

There is a small fund at the disposal of the British Government for the relief of literary persons in distress. The fund is in the control of the First Lord of the Treasury. This office Mr. Balfour held at the time, and holds now.

It was just when England was in the most distracting period of the South African War, and Mr. McCarthy feared that an official who must have been passing many nights of sleeplessness in the midst of ever fresh news of disaster and mishap would not be able to attend to such a small matter as the relief of an individual. It would have been natural for the overworked statesman to hand the case over to some minor official, who would allow it to come to a standstill, immovably entangled in the red tape of petty routine. But in spite of his lack of hope he wrote to Mr. Balfour.

The next day he received a reply in Mr. Balfour's own hand, expressing sympathy and willingness to help. Relief came soon after.

Although the case was deserving, and too much need not be made of it, yet Mr. Balfour would have had good reason for turning it over to someone else.

"I must say," concludes Mr. McCarthy, "that I think this short passage of personal history speaks highly for the kindly nature and sympathy of Arthur Balfour."

Monsieur Mouton—I vould of Mademoiselle beg to know ze rule grammaire ven shall I say I vill, and ven will I say I shall. Miss Klever (graciously)—Why, that will be very simple, Monsieur Mouton. Wherever you now say I shall, you should say I will, and wherever you say I will, say I shall instead.

The Power of Kings.

Marie Corelli's "Temporal Power" is a polemic—the arraignment of royalty and of the Church of Rome in favor of what the author considers Justice, Truth and the Rights of the People.

In the first chapter a prince and heir to a throne—what throne or where the scene of the story is laid we are not informed—discusses kingship with his tutor.

"Professor," said the prince on one occasion, "what is man?"

"Man," replied the professor, sedately, "is an intelligent and reasoning being, evolved by natural processes of creation into his present condition of supremacy."

"What is supremacy?"

"The state of being above or superior to the rest of animal creation."

"And is he so superior?"

"He is generally so admitted."

"Is my father a man?"

"Assuredly. The question is superfluous."

"What makes him a king?"

"Royal birth and the hereditary right to his great position."

"Then if a man is in a condition of supremacy over the rest of creation, a king is more than a man if he is allowed to rule men?"

"Sir, pardon me! A king is not more than a man, but men choose him as their ruler because he is worthy."

"In what way is he worthy? Simply because he is born, as I am, heir to the throne?"

"Precisely."

"He might be an idiot or a cripple, a fool or a coward—he would still be king?"

"Most indubitably!"

"Strange sovereignty!" said the young prince, "and still stranger patience in the people who would tolerate it."

Such reasoning leads the young prince to the resolve that he will be a man as well as a king. He resolves to break through all the "miserable conventionalism, the sordid commonplace of a king's surroundings," and stand for something more than a dummy. He is married for state reasons to a princess of a neighboring realm. The situation of a loveless union is accepted by them; but the memory of a youthful love affair that ended in tragedy because of his rank and the impossibility of marriage with a "daughter of the people" makes him finally rebel to some purpose against such conditions. Under the name of Pasquin Leroy, a journalist, he joins a band of Socialists. He plays the double role of king and of revolutionist, and in these two roles succeeds in learning and correcting the intrigues of his ministers, in "reforming" the press, and in breaking down what the author considers the hostile power of the Church of Rome. In a word, he becomes the king of the people—the ideal exponent of "temporal power."

But in attaining this ideal he proves that, after all, there is something far greater. In the meetings of the Socialists he meets a woman who is recognized as one of their leaders. His love for this woman comes to be the great influence in his life. He discovers that he has served the people not through an ideal, but through love. He puts aside the position he has won, to win her love in return. The climax of the story the author weaves around this motive. The woman is assassinated by a jealous lover. According to her wishes, she is set adrift after death in a ship, after the old Viking custom, "to sail the seas alone." On the deck of the helpless craft that is being driven by storm out to sea the two rival lovers meet. One of them kills himself, and the other—the king—ties himself to the coffin and goes down with the ship.

Such, in brief, is the story. But in Miss Corelli's work it is not the story that counts. Her success is sensationalism. Here, for example, is what she has to say of the press:

"Originally the press in all countries was intended to be the most magnificent institution of the civilized world—the voice of truth, of liberty, of justice—a voice which in its clamant utterances could be neither bribed nor biassed to cry out false news. Originally such was meant to be its mission; but nowadays what, in all honesty and frankness, is the press? What was it, for example, to this king, who from personal knowledge was able to practically estimate and enumerate the forces which controlled it thus: six, or at the most a dozen, men, the proprietors and editors of different newspapers sold in cheap millions to the people. Most of these newspapers were formed into companies; and the managers issued "shares" in the manner of tea merchants and grocers. False news, if of a duly sensational character, would sometimes send up shares in the market; true information would equally on occasion send them down. . . And, concerning the people who wrote for these newspapers [illegible] were [illegible] and old; they were generally of a semi-educated class, lacking all distinctive ability—men and women who were on the average desperately poor and desperately dissatisfied. To earn daily bread they naturally had to please the editors set in authority over them; hence their expressed views and opinions on any subject could only be counted as nil, being written not independently, but under the absolute control of their employers."

So much for the press—the "weathercock of speculation," as it is called a few pages further on. In her ideas on the Church of Rome the author makes thoroughly good the promise in her earlier novels. The question is not whether one agrees with or condemns these attacks on the Church of Rome, on the press, on the Jews, on all the various topics that Miss Corelli discusses in the course of a novel. The point is that the melodramatic way in which she expresses her exaggerated ideas is her most picturesque attribute as a novelist. As in this novel, most of the discussions could be omitted. But if they were, there would only be left a melodramatic story with only one unusual way of committing suicide not mentioned in the author's former work.

About the Size of It.

Leopold—Josephine, I'm goin' ter be a great musishener like Paderoosker.

Josephine—But, Leo, you never even seen a piany. How cud you play?

Leopold—Don't need ter. All yer have ter do is have long hair ter run yer fingers through, then look sleepy-like, and bust a couple or keys.

A Giddy Thought.

If, as scientists aver, the people of Mars have lived a million years longer than we have, of course they are much further advanced. One is made quite giddy with the thought of how much their society women probably spend in entertaining, or how much seats in their stock exchanges sell for.

HAYTIAN CABINET RESIGNS.

Port-au-Prince, Hayti, April 4—The cabinet has resigned, owing to the senate having passed a vote of censure against the ministers of their failure to take proceedings against those who were responsible for the interruption of the Chamber of Deputies March 30, by the firing of rifle shots. It was reported at the time that the disturbance was due to the complicity of certain of the ministers.

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER,
Miami, Man.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the (fill in name of paper.) To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $600 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

BUY COLUMBUS CONSOLIDATED

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at 20c. per share. The Company controls 640 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 50 tons of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $19.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 20 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 645 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. NICK TREWEEK, WHO FOR 21 YEARS WAS UNDERGROUND FOREMAN FOR THE HOMESTAKE COMPANY. SHOULD NOT COLUMBUS GO AS WELL, IF NOT BETTER THAN THE HOMESTAKE? Homestake stock started at $1.00 per share sold up to $115.00 per share, and has not missed a dividend in over 22 years. For a cheaper stock,

BUY JOSEPHINE GOLD AND COPPER

Mining Company's stock of Arizona at five cents per share cash, or at $60.00 per thousand, on payments of $5.00 down and $5.00 per month. This Company owns the patented Black Claim, located south of Prescott, Arizona, in the same great mineral belt as the famous United Verde. A nine-foot body of ore was recently opened up in this claim, which gives good values in gold, silver and copper. This stock will show a very rapid advance, and will make big money for those who get in now. Send for illustrated prospectus of the above Companies and full information.

STOCK MARKETS

BIG RALLY NEAR

New York, April 7.—Stocks have reached a point where they are inordinately cheap, bonds also are most attractive at the present time. Even if the market be going lower before it takes inevitable turn it is fair to anticipate an advance of five points on the average before the sagging process be resumed. After a week of pounding and frequent circulation of most dismal rumors, stocks finished no lower on the whole than they were at the close of the week preceding. Considerable long stock came out and was quickly absorbed by the inside interests. The short interest has increased instead of decreasing, and will eventually be the lever for a good rally, if nothing more. Standard securities, of the best type, such as Pennsylvania, N. Y. C., Illinois Central, etc., are absolutely on the bargain counter, and fully fifteen points each below their average prices. Whenever such class of securities can be purchased upon such terms, it is sure money to buy them. If they do go somewhat lower after you have made your purchase you may be absolutely certain that they will advance again. The tractions seem resting upon bottom prices. B. R. T. ought to be good for 75 at least, while Metropolitan and Manhattan show every indication of having reached the bottom prices; they will all be higher. The Pacific Union and Southern are absurdly cheap also. No matter which party wins the controversy Southern Pacific is remarkable cheap at going prices, and consequently good to buy and carry. Union Pacific is extremely low also. A decision in favor of Union Pacific would undoubtedly stimulate the market more than one against them. In either event, however, it will be better than the waiting for an anouncement. The roads interested in the winter wheat belt ought to have an advance. The best crop in ten years is anticipated. Atchison and R. I. will be prize beneficiaries, both of these issues have been holding remarkably well in the current depression. It is the time of year also when nine times out of ten it pays to buy stocks. We like the present action of corn and wheat, also corn specially ought to do to buy at going prices. Market is low. Bad features have been pretty well discounted. The next good turn should logically be for the better.

Summary—Sentiment was generally cheerful this morning, and the market acted steady and in many instances displayed strength. But for severe raids made in Southern Pacific there might be a better story to write tonight. The pressure against that stock put the entire list under pressure, becoming reactionary and dead. The closings were at figures that are certainly attractive. The short interest is known to be immense, and the fact that dullness followed declines proves that the bear party has exhausted its efforts and that a good rise is imminent. Money loaned at 5 per cent. Sales 438,200.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
120 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMETT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole rights for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling rights for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.35
From JAN. 1st, 1897, to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.64
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,713.32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,687.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000.00

The total capital invested is $77,366.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.78 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter Institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and progressive Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada.

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that only [illegible] are in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make [illegible] market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of this Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc., will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in type writing given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE.

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 7 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 5 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Sir James Watson

This eminent English physician is one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the respiratory organs

In a recent address Sir James Watson stated that the commonest of all disorders is Catarrh and that not one person in ten thousand passes the winter without an attack of some sort.

Sir James advises local treatment very strongly, and says it is [illegible] trying to treat Catarrhal disease by stomach medicines, atomizers, douches and snuffs.

Local treatment is applied most scientifically by Catarrhozone, which is inhaled into the nose, throat and lungs, and drives the disease completely out of the system.

Catarrhozone is a rational, commonsense treatment; it clears the air passages, makes breathing easy, and relieves at once. Physicians prescribe Catarrhozone with gratifying results, and pronounce it a specific for Catarrh in any part of the system.

Mr. Thos. Cox, one of the most prominent citizens of Minden, Ont., says: "I want to recommend Catarrhozone. It is a nice, clean cure for Catarrh. Cured me perfectly, and is well deserving of a trial from everyone at all affected by Catarrh or throat trouble."

Mr. G. F. Fadden, of Royan, Que., writes: "In my opinion Catarrhozone is the only cure for Catarrh. I had the disease in its worst form, but only got relief from Catarrhozone. It cured me quickly and permanently, and I have no fear of the Catarrh ever returning."

The foregoing brief extracts, like thousands of others that the proprietors of Catarrhozone have received, prove that the proper remedy to use is Catarrhozone. It is quite different from the ordinary Catarrh preparation, and is warranted to prove entirely satisfactory. If it fails your money will be refunded, so if not benefited you won't be out of pocket.

All druggists sell Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, liquid for recharging, etc., costs $1.00; trial size, 25 cents. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston Ont.

A FATAL ACCIDENT

AT LAKEFIELD YESTERDAY MORNING

Mr. Harry Smith was Killed Instantly by a Moving Car

A shocking accident occurred at Lakefield at 11.20 o'clock yesterday morning when Mr. Harry Smith, who was employed by the Portland Cement Company met an untimely death. His duties were those of a brakeman on the cement cars, and while engaged on the top of a car he fell and rolled underneath the wheels. He was instantly killed, the wheels passing over the chest.

Deceased young man was 25 years of age, and was the son of Mr. Richard Smith of Lakefield. He was highly esteemed and his sad end has caused much regret and sorrow in the village.

Coroner Gray was telephoned, but considered an inquest unnecessary.

The Outlook Good

The outlook for a large business over the Rice Lake waters is particularly good. Already the Calcutta fleet has been engaged for Victoria Day, and also for Dominion Day. On May 25th a mammoth excursion under the auspices of the band of the 57th Regiment will be run to Jubilee Point, and July 1st the T.A.S. will hold their annual picnic to the same place.

OBITUARY

On Monday, April 6th, Mrs. Robt. E. Stara received the news of the death of her brother, Mr. William Wareham, which sad event occurred on Sunday afternoon at his home in Lake Linden, Mich. The deceased had many friends in Peterborough having resided here a number of years ago, but renewed old acquaintances many times since. His last visit here was a little over a year ago.

The undersigned has received instructions to sell by public auction on the premises, No. 571 Water street, the household effects of the late F. A. Walden, on Wednesday, April 7th, at 1 p.m. JOHN HAGGART, Auctioneer.

Interment This Afternoon

The interment of Mrs. Barrie will take place from the residence of her son, Mr. Thos. Barrie, 36 Gilmour st., this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. A private service will be held at the house, after which the remains will be taken to the Charlotte Street Church, where a service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Jolliffe, assisted by Rev. Mr. Kilgour and Rev. Mr. Roberts, of Lindsay. The latter gentleman is a venerable minister of 74 years of age, and was the first minister the deceased sat under after her marriage. Interment will take place at the Little Lake Cemetery.

PETERBOROUGH STAKE RACES

Entries for the Big Event are Already Coming In

Yesterday Secretary Rountree, of Peterborough Turf Club received a number of entries for the big Stake Races, to be held at the Driving Track in Peterborough on August 5th and 6th. The entries are made by Messrs. Kidd Bros., of Listowel, the well known breeders of trotters and racers.

The Turf Club intend making these races the best ever held in Peterborough and among the best ever held in Ontario.

PASS IT ON

The True Way to Enjoy a Pleasure

The way to enjoy a truth is to pass it on to others.

Certainly it is a pleasure after having enjoyed anything to be able to see your friends enjoy it. A lady of Key West, Fla., believes in this. She says: "I am a great believer in passing a good thing along to others and my faith in Postum Cereal Coffee is founded upon such truthful experiences that I take pleasure in passing it along to my friends.

"Coffee has had a very distressing effect upon me. I have long been a great sufferer from indigestion. Some time ago I commenced drinking canned milk with just enough tea to give it a flavor. Even this did not agree with me and when a friend of mine a few weeks ago told me what wonderful results she had gained by giving up coffee and drinking Postum I bought a package to try.

"I quit coffee and tried the Postum. Have found it delicious and nutritious.

"My appetite, which was very poor, has increased wonderfully and my indigestion has disappeared. I look forward to meal time and Postum Cereal.

"I know many people who have benefited by leaving off coffee and taking up Postum. One, a delicate elderly lady, suffered terribly from nervous headaches and other nervous troubles. She was on the verge of nervous prostration when advised to drink Postum instead of coffee which she did with the result that her headaches have almost entirely disappeared already. Her doctor was surprised at the result and advised her to stick to Postum. She looks younger and fresher than in 10 years past." This lady also goes on to give the cases and names of half a dozen other friends. One of these is a Cuban.

"Cubans are famous coffee drinkers, and this gentleman was no exception. His physician exhausted the remedies without any benefit. When it seemed he would live no longer a friend advised him to shift to Postum. He dropped coffee and took up Postum and he is now a living testimonial to the wonderful properties of this drink." Names furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

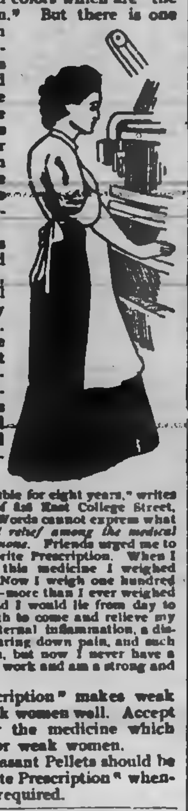
—The Fraser Musical Band of St. Paul's church intend having an entertainment on Tuesday evening, April 14th at eight o'clock in the Sunday School room of the church. They will present "The Story of Kardoo," a service of song.

—The Times would like to call the attention of the town authorities to the condition of Parnell street. It is said to be almost impassable. In fact almost as bad as some of the streets in Lindsay.

—The "Champion" Stylographic Pen is one of the best for the price on the market. A child can use it, and the price within reach of all. Only one dollar. Times Bookstore.

—Mr. Haverson of Toronto, solicitor for the Ontario Licensed Victualler's Association, is in town, and will appear in court this morning on behalf of one of the local hotelkeepers who is charged with selling liquor after hours on Saturday evening.

"FRUIT OF THE LOOM."



Men and women of taste and judgment go into ecstacies over the wonderful patterns, textures and colors which are "the fruit of the loom." But there is one fruit of the loom they rarely consider, and that is the frail and faded woman, old before her time, because necessity compels her to work under conditions, which send her more favored sister to bed and the doctor's care.

The diseases which weaken and torment women, may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 824 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

SIX THOUSAND EMIGRANTS ARE COMING TO CANADA

Fully That Number Now on Their Way from England

VESSELS ARE ALL HEAVILY LOADED

Every Available Ship Has to be Used to Accomodate the Rush

Montreal, April 8.—There are at present on their way out to Canada no less than 6,000 immigrants distributed on board the Allan and Elder, Dempster steamships.

The Allan line is using every available ship to accomodate those who desire to cross to Canada and are even diverting the steamships which ordinarily operate between British and American ports. For instance the Corean sailed from Liverpool on Saturday last for Halifax and Philadelphia, in place of Philadelphia direct. She has on board 34 second cabin and 450 steerage. These passengers will be landed at Halifax, after which the steamer will proceed on her way to Philadelphia.

On Friday last the Sardinian of the Allan Line sailed from Glasgow for Halifax with 208 second cabin and 260 steerage. On Saturday last the Allan Line steamship Laurentian sailed from Glasgow to New York. She has on board 28 first, 224 second and 233 steerage passengers, bound for Canada. The Sicilian of the same line sailed from Liverpool on Saturday. She has 230 second and 128 steerage passengers, all prospective settlers.

On Friday last the Allan Line steamship Tunisian cleared from Moville with 158 first, 310 second and 1,125 steerage passengers. This makes a grand total of 3 202 now on their way out.

The Elder, Dempster Company's steamer Lake Ontario sailed from Liverpool on the 29th of March with 65 first and 1,200 steerage, all bound for Canada. She is due at St. John on the 8th or 9th. The Lake Manitoba on the 31st of March, from Liverpool has on board the party under the Rev. M. Barr. This is composed of 300 first cabin and 1,400 steerage. The next steamship of this line to sail from Liverpool will be the Lake Simcoe. She will leave on the 8th of April, and it is estimated that this vessel will carry 800 steerage and 150 first cabin. The Lake Simcoe will be the last sailing for St. John, the next vessel being the Lake Champlain from Liverpool for Montreal, the vessel at the time being under the management of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

EXTENDING THEIR WORKS

The New Buildings to be Erected by the [illegible] Company

Canadian Engineer: "The new buildings which the Canadian General Electric Co. are about to add to their works at Peterborough, will include one 450 ft. by 80 ft., two stories high with a large crane 25 ft. wide for shipping purposes, that work now being done by each department being centralized in the new building; one, 225 by 80 ft., with a new 40-foot gallery and a 40 ft. crane, for the manufacture of heavy machinery; one, 140 by 40 feet, being an addition to the new building erected last fall. The company, it is said, has under consideration the advisability of moving some of the departments where smaller articles are manufactured in order that room may be available at Peterborough. Should they not do this, they will erect an extra building, 200 by 50 feet. The extensions will necessitate the employment of about twice as many hands as at present."

The Immigration Figures for March

London, April 7.—The tremendous increase in Canadian immigration as shown by official returns is published to-day. According to the reports, 12,864 went to Canada during March as compared with 5,294 in March, 1902. Canada secured 34 per cent. of the total emigrants, compared with 18 per cent. in March, 1902. The emigration to the United States showed a total of 19,182, as compared with 17,635 last year. Canada's total for three months is 19,929, as compared with 8 820 in 1902.

RIOTING AT BELGRADE

One Hundred and Thirty Arrests Made—Objectionable Police Regulation Caused the Trouble

Belgrade, Servia, April 7—The gendarmes has to be called out to suppress the rioting which took place here yesterday as the outcome of a demonstration against an objectionable police regulation, and in the result two rioters and two gendarmes were killed, and many wounded on both sides. One hundred and thirty arrests were made.

FOR THREE MURDERS

Klosowski Pays the Penalty for Killing Three Wives

London, April 7—Klosowski, alias Chapman, the Southwark saloon-keeper who was found guilty March 19 at the Old Bailey of the murder of the murder by poison of three women who lived with him as his wives in different parts of London, and who was sentenced to death the same day, was hanged this morning in Wandsworth jail.

He was in a state of complete collapse, and had to be supported by warders. He protested his innocence to the end, declared his real name was Chapman, and said he was an American by birth.

ASHBURNHAM SCHOOL BOARD

Pleased with Rev. E. A. Langfeldt's Action with Reference to Religious Instruction

The Ashburnham School Board met on Tuesday evening, all the members of the Board being present. The following committees were elected:

Committee of Management —Messrs. Neil, Sheridan and Rogers.

Property Committee Messrs. Fowler, Morgan, Thompson.

A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the Rev. E. A. Langfeldt for the great interest he has taken in having religious instruction in the school weekly throughout the year, and for holding the recent annual examinations in the same. The Board also undertook to pay for the medals and prizes which were offered for religious instruction and which were obtained by Lizzie Telford, Grace Hartley, Fanny Long and Willie Manione. Several of the examination papers on religious instruction were read, and the Board was very much pleased with the knowledge displayed by the several pupils on the subject.

Messrs. Morgan and Rogers were appointed delegates to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Educational Association on the 51th inst.

The usual teachers' reports were read and a number of accounts were ordered to be paid.

The Committee of the Whole went through the several rooms of the school and examined the recent improvements made in the ventilation system and were much pleased with the same.

TRACKMEN ON THE BOOTH SYSTEM OUT

Question of Five Cents per Day Causes a Large Strike

LABOUR TROUBLES ELSEWHERE

Huge Strike at the Deering Works in Chicago—Trouble on the Intercolonial Railway

Ottawa, April 8—The trackmen or sectionmen in the employ of the Canada Atlantic Railway along the main line from Depot Harbor to Swanton and the several branches to Hawkesbury, Rockland, and Pembroke, to the number of about [illegible], went out on strike yesterday on the wage question. On April 1st an order was issued increasing the pay of sectionmen and foremen by five cents per day, bringing the wages up to $1.25 and $1.60 per day respectively. This was not accepted by the men, who, under the leadership of President Wilson, of the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, demanded that they shall receive the pay given Canadian Pacific Railway and Grand Trunk Railway trackmen, viz., $1.40 for yardmen and $1.30 for linemen. A grievance committee waited on Mr. J. R. Booth demanding the increase under pain of quitting work if it were not granted. Mr. Mountain explained that it would be necessary to await the return of Mr. Chamberlain, the general manager, who was then in New York. He arrived in the city on Saturday prepared to hear the deputation, but, according to the officials, no approach was made to him either Saturday or Sunday, and the strike went into effect yesterday.

Chief Engineer Mountain thinks that when regard is had to local conditions the men are relatively as well paid as similar employes on the other roads. The action he says is hasty and while causing a temporary inconvenience will not seriously disable the company. Efforts will be made to secure other men, and such of the strikers as are willing to return will be given their positions so long as they have not been filled by new men. Many of the trackmen are living in houses the property of the company, which charges only a nominal rental of $4 or $5 a month and supplies the men with light and fuel free, and a plot of ground for garden purposes in addition to their wages.

STRIKE IN DEERING WORKS.

Chicago April 9—A general strike has been called of the machinists, blacksmiths, patternmakers, electricians and pipe fitters in the Deering Harvester Works at Irondale. They quit in protest against the signing of a contract insuring them in case of accident, but releasing the company from paying damages. The men also demand a nine-hour day and a 12 per cent. increase in wages.

CHICAGO PACKERS' STRIKE.

Chicago, April 9—One thousand furniture packers in down-town wholesale and retail establishments, struck today for a nine-hour day and $2.70 as a minimum scale. The packers submitted demands several weeks ago and were offered the nine-hour day and a minimum wage of $2.

Come Up
Where You Belong.

Perhaps you know why you fail in the plans for money, fame and position.

Some don't.

Just why the brain does not produce practical money making results is a puzzle to many men

Strong, healthy, natural brains cannot be made from the food most men eat and good brains can't work sharp when slugged to weakness by coffee.

Unsuccessful brains come from improperly selected food and from coffee drinking.

Coffee affects the stomach and nerves, thence the brain and prevents proper digeston of even good food

A distinct improvement in mental power will follow in a week or ten days after coffee is left off and Postum taken on.

The results are multiplied when the brain building food Grape-Nuts is used twice a day.

There are well established and very clearly understood reasons for these sure results from the change in food and drink. You can make Money, Position, Fame if you have the kind of Brain that works that way.

Postum well boiled produces a delicious beverage, satisfying and nourishing.

Quit drugging and poor food and Come Up Where You Belong.

It was moved by Mr. G. W. Hatton and seconded by Mr. J. W. Garvin that the secretary be instructed to cast one ballot for the re-election of the retiring Board, which was carried unanimously. The new Board of Directors will consist of President, T. H. G. Denne; Secretary, R. H Kells, and Messrs. W. H. Hill, A H Stratton, Jas. Hamilton, J. S. Knapman, W A Sanderson and H. R. H. Kenner

Every one present was highly pleased with the financial statement, which makes the wonderful showing of about 27 per cent on the investment for seven weeks work.

On motion of Mr. Patterson the meeting adjourned.

AT HER SISTER'S DOOR

The Deliberate Suicide of a Former San Francisco Actress

London, April 7—Mrs. Mebel Townsend, formerly of the Alcazar Theatre San Francisco, shot herself with a revolver yesterday on the doorstep of her sister's residence, in Great Litchfield street. She was dead when taken to the hospital. Mrs. Townsend is said to have been suffering from a religious mania, and recently had a disagreement with her sister, Mrs. Roe. An inquest on the body will be held to-day. Mrs. Townsend had been summoned to appear at Marlborough Street Police station in answer to the charge of alleged assault on her brother-in-law, Wm. Roe, and when the case was called in court her suicide was announced.

ASHBURNHAM SEWERAGE

A New Outfall Sewer to be Constructed—Dr. Bryce Paid a Visit Yesterday

Yesterday Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, was in town and confered with representatives of Ashburnham regarding an outfall sewer. For some time the importance of this matter has been felt, and it is considered wiser to have such a system built before the two municipalities are united. After obtaining the approval of the Provincial Health authorities with regard to an outlet, the work of construction will be proceeded with.

HOLLAND'S IMMINENT DANGER OF GERMAN INTERFERENCE

Latest Scheme for Ireland's Benefit

London, April 9.—Since the union there has been nothing like the present feeling of mutual esteem between the Protestants and Catholics in Ireland. The splendid scheme which Lord Iveagh and Mr. W. J. Pirrie are, with the approval of Mr. Wyndham, about to put into working order for the development of the country's agricultural industry, has been undertaken by them owing entirely to the changed attitude of all classes in Ireland to one another. A company, private in the sense that the public will not be asked to subscribe, is to be formed. The capital has all been guaranteed by Lord Iveagh and Mr. Pirrie. These wealthy Irishmen are prepared to put at least £500,000 into the business, although the initial capital is not likely to exceed a quarter of a million pounds. The scope of the undertaking will at the outset be confined to the agricultural communities of Ireland.

The scheme, as drafted, proposes to establish central depots for the receipt of all kinds of Irish produce in various parts of the country. These depots will be situated as near as possible to the existing means of transit, and where no railways exist produce will be conveyed by means of an extensive carrier service to the nearest depots. It is intended to build a number of motor cars, which will be introduced gradually in the more outlying districts. Ordinary horse drawn vehicles will also be utilized, to start with at any rate. Later on, probably with the assistance of the Government, additional light railways will be built.

Two things are claimed for the system—it will enable the Irish farmers to get their produce earlier to the markets, and the produce will be carried at lower rates. In carrying out the scheme Lord Iveagh and Mr. Pirrie will have the assistance of a number of experienced agriculturists, but they have no desire to make profit out of the concern, and are even prepared to lose money over it for the first few years.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. LOWES

An Old Resident of Cavan Passes Away at the Advanced Age of 74 Years

On March 29th Mrs. Wm. Lowes, one of Cavan's oldest and most highly respected residents passed away at the age of 74 years.

The late Mrs. Lowes was born at Mount Pleasant and was a daughter of Mr. MacPherson, one of the early pioneers of Cavan. She was united in marriage at the age of 22 years to Wm. Lowes, of Cavan.

Deceased was all her life a devoted member of the Methodist church. Her surviving children are, John, of Bethany; Henry, of Mount Pleasant; Elias, of Peterborough; Dr. A. J., of Kansas; Mrs. W. H. Howden, of Cavan; Mrs. W. H. Lee, Bethany; Mrs F. Whyte, Peterborough, and Bella and Bertha, at home. She was married fifty years March 18th.

The funeral took place on Tuesday last and was very largely attended

Paine's Celery Compound CURED MR. KIMPEL

A Terrible Form of Dyspepsia Conquered by the Medicine That Makes People Well in Springtime

Dyspepsia, one of humanity's most cruel enemies, is effectually cured by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. The tormenting disease is caused by acute inflammation of the nerves centered about the stomach. In dyspepsia, nervous energy is wasted, and the entire digestive organism is deranged. The needs of dyspeptics may be summed up as follows: the great nervous system requires strengthening; the blood now charged with impurities must be cleansed, so that it will flow healthily and in abundance; the stomach, weak and unreliable, must be toned up. Paine's Celery Compound in the springtime will accomplish all that is needed for the dyspeptic sufferer, and banish troubles that make life unbearable Mr. S. Kimpel, Listowel, Ont., says:

"Your Paine's Celery Compound is a most wonderful medicine, and I wish all dyspeptic sufferers to know the good that it has done for me. I suffered so badly for one year from the worst form of dyspepsia, that I had almost to give up my work. I doctored and used many kinds of medicines, but found no relief or cure until I got hold of Paine's Celery Compound. Your medicine possesses small curing powers, that in my case, two bottles set me all right, so that I can work as well as ever, sleep well and enjoy my food. I feel deeply grateful for such a medicine, and at every chance I recommend it to others. No doctor can cure as quickly as your Paine's Celery Compound."

A FORMER RESIDENT

Death of Mr. J. Crawford, of Montreal, on Sunday Last

There passed away in Montreal on Sunday last, Mr. John Crawford, at one time a resident of Peterborough, at the age of 90 years. The deceased gentleman had a large number of relatives in Peterborough town and county, including his brother, Mr. Chas. Crawford, Lakefield; his niece, Mrs. W. H. Moore, and nephews, Messrs. John and Augustus Sawers, town.

Mr. Crawford was born at Ballievey House, Ballbridge, County Down Ireland. His father being the squire of the place. The latter brought out his family in a vessel chartered for the purpose, taking three months on the voyage in 1828, and resided for a short time near Cobourg, and then removed to Peterborough.

OUR WATER WORKS

Are Under Capable Management and a Great Financial Success

Everyone who uses city water need not be told that our Water Commissioners have performed their work with the utmost care and marked ability. They have not only provided for the payment of debentures issued as the purchase price of the whole system, and cash payment of yearly extensions, but have made sweeping reductions to their patrons. It is not probably realized by those who are not directly interested that a house having four rooms may have the use of one tap for the small sum of 90c. per quarter, or in all $3.60 per year, a sum barely sufficient to keep an ordinary pump in repair.

We are therefore glad to be able to congratulate the town on their choice of Water Commissioners. As Mr. Denne's business has kept him out of town a considerable portion of the time, the bulk of the work has necessarily fallen on Messrs. Hill and Matthews. All these have done their duty, and the success attending their labors must be a great source of pride and gratification to them.

The advocates of municipal ownership have reason to rejoice in the success of this undertaking, and are expecting the town to take another step forward and take up the lighting problem. But where will they find such commissioners!

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A Great War May Result from Labor Strike

EMPEROR WILLIAM MAY SEND TROOPS

The Crisis Causing Great Uneasiness in Europe

London, April 9—The great strike in Holland is likely to have disastrous results for that little kingdom. The attitude of Germany is being watched by all Europe. If German troops enter Holland for the ostensible purpose of preserving order, it will be equivalent to acknowledging a German protectorate.

New York, April 7.—The correspondent of the New York Tribune in London cables: "The proclamation of a general strike in Holland is an event of European importance, owing to the recent intimations of the German Emperor that the railways must be kept open and the transit of trade remain uninterrupted. If the Emperor's effort to send German troops into Holland to co-operate with the maintenance of order and the keeping of railway traffic in motion be renewed; Dr. Kuyper, the Dutch Premier, will be placed in an awkward position. The acceptance of the Emperor's assistance will involve indirect recognition of a German protectorate over Holland, which the Dutch people will resent as a violation of the independence of their country. Yet so complete is the paralysis of the railway and water traffic, and so serious is the damage caused to German interests by the interruption of transit trade, that the military forces of the little maritime kingdom seem powerless to cope with the strikers and offer security to the railway companies and the vessel owners.

The chief cause of the strike is the drastic measure which Dr. Kuyper with all his shrewd talent for compromise, has been unable to modify and re-adjust to the satisfaction of the labor unions. There is a general revolt against legislation which will render combinations for the defence of the workmen impossible. Behind this is the demand of the railway men for increased wages. The situation in Holland is, indeed, most serious.

TRENT VALLEY CANOE CLUB

Meeting in the Y.M.C.A Hall Last Night—Business Transacted

A meeting of the Trent Valley Canoe Club was held in the Y.M.C.A hall last evening, about a dozen of the members being present.

The minutes of the previous meeting being confirmed, the constitution was read for the benefit of new or intending members.

The Club is but in its infancy, but has every prospect of proving a success under the efficient officers, in whose hands is the management.

Mr. Fred. Roy resigned his position as secretary, and the assistant secretary, Mr. C. Whiten, succeeded him. Mr. F. Bradburn was chosen to fill the assistant secretary's position. The officers now stand as follows:

Commodore—Bert. H. Stock.
Asst. Com.—N. E Bell
Secretary—Chas. Whiten.
Asst. sec. and treas.—F Bradburn

After the evening's business was transacted a proposed regatta on Juniper Island was discussed. After white and blue had been chosen as the colors of the club the meeting adjourned.

LOOKS TO BRITAIN AND ITALY

Paris, April 9 Nothing has ever brought out the gradual weakening of French enthusiasm for the Franco-Russian alliance so strongly as the present situation. Statesmen from the Tribune, in the Chamber, and also inspired journalists give utterance to slighting views regarding Russia with a ready carelessness that would have shocked the whole nation two years ago. The feeling seems to be spreading throughout the most thoughtful political quarters that the dual alliance does not represent the best interests either of France, Russia or the rest of Europe.

At a political dinner given lately by a former foreign minister at his home on the Boulevard, St. Germain, the guests, most of whom were men of first rank in public life, discussed at length the greater advantage of an Anglo-Franco Italian alliance. This would have been sufficient to have ruined their careers six years ago.

Germany's joining the Austro-Russian policy, taken in connection with certain unequivocal editorials in several Russian papers, not only hurts the strong Russophile party, but further familiarizes the public with the idea of weakening the alliance. A correspondent has authority for saying that several of the most clear minded men in the van guard of French public life do not believe that the alliance will be in existence two years hence.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE HERESY TRIAL

It is dangerous for a clergyman to employ the looseness and inaccuracy of slang. A tea pot tempest now raging about the head of Dr. Rainsford, an eminent preacher of New York, is convincing in this regard. Dr. Rainsford recently visited Philadelphia. Being accustomed to use rough and ready language to his parishioners, he indulged in the same to his Philadelphia listeners. In the course of his sermon he used the following sentence: "It is up to God to forgive and put away." This descent into the vernacular of the Bowery was a mistake. The staid city of Brotherly Love was inexpressibly shocked.

The Sunday following Dr. Rainsford's sermon, one Dr. Upjohn sternly rebuked the visitors conduct. Among other things, Dr. Upjohn said with great energy and solemnity:

As a priest of the Church of God who has sworn to uphold and to preach "the faith once delivered to the saints," and to be ready with all faithful diligence to banish and drive away from the church all erroneous and strange doctrine contrary to God's word, I denounce this erroneous and strange teaching [illegible] ligious and damnable falsehood, soul-destroying and iniquitous to the last degree.

This pompous onslaught seems a good deal like taking a harpoon to impale a minnow. Dr. Rainsford is doubtless culpable, but hardly merits such a polysyllabic attack. The punishment does not fit the crime according to the benevolent rule of Koko, and is hardly a cause of innocent merriment—especially to the victim.

The New York clergyman, however, has found defenders. One of them is Dr. Worcester, who defends him in quite as labored a manner as Upjohn attacked. Dr. Worcester makes exegesis and interpretation of Dr. Rainsford's slang. "In that sentence," says Dr. Worcester, "which has been objected to, 'It is up to God to forgive and put away,' he simply meant, I take it, that if God was a just God he would forgive the sins of a penitent sinner." This is very clear and satisfactory, but it will surprise many addicted to the "up to" phrase to discover that it has such a recondite meaning. It does not appear that Dr. Rainsford will be tried for heresy, but it is doubtful if he will venture to use his brand of discourse upon a Philadelphia audience again.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

It is natural that an appeal in England for funds to endow a new Westminster bishopric should provoke criticism, considering that statistics are alleged to show that Canada is per capita the richest country on earth.

Who would credit that such prejudice exists against negroes down south when it is learned that about a hundred white men have applied for positions under the new negro customs collector, Dr. Crum, about whom all the row has been going on!

A Chicago paper finds compensation in the thought that if Americans have had to pay boodle to get control of the gas business of Paris, they will exact more than get their money back. Exactly. That is what all boodle-givers calculate on. But not from the people they paid it to.

What a lot of people there are lobbying for special laws these times—special laws for capitalists and special laws for labor organizations. Why should Parliament know anybody in the making of laws? Why should not the laws be made for all Canadians? We have had too much of this thing of laws made at the request of cliques and rings and sections; let us have laws for all Canadians not in any special interest. We have a great deal too much law anyway for a free country. Let every man have the fullest liberty to work out his own destiny, so long as he does not interfere with the equal liberty of any other man, and protect him with all the power of the State in the exercise of that liberty, then Government will have done its full duty.

THE HIGH-GRADE FOOD

In food products, let it be distinctly understood that there are a host of preparations of low grade which unscrupulous manufacturers would foist on the public for the sake of large profits.

Amongst the reliable high grade foods, there is one that stands without an equal in purity, healthfulness and deliciousness; this particular brand is Malt Breakfast Food, the king of cereal foods. It has been tested in the homes of the wealthy and humble, and has fully and completely met the desires of young and old. It has made the weak strong and contented, and has kept well people in continued vigor and good health. In Malt Breakfast Food, the perfect combination of pure Malt and the choicest Wheat, and their scientific treatment in cooking, gives the world a nourishing food that all look for at the morning meal. Your Grocer has it.

J. F. Staples, of this, the purchaser of the famous Clydesdale stallion, Burnbrae, (8378) winner of first prize in two year old class in Chicago and sweepstakes for best draft horse at the show in 1899, and in 1901 he won first and sweepstakes at Ottawa and he won first and championship at the Pan-American exhibition in 1901, and he also won first and championship at Winnipeg at Brandon the same year.

Lord Roseburn, a son of Burnbrae, as a yearling won first and championship over all ages at Winnipeg in 1902, and first at Brandon the same year. A colt of his [illegible] foal class at Toronto Industrial in 1902, and was again first and the special championship at Markham for the best foal on the ground sired by any draft horse, and was sold at the show for $225.00 to go to Medicine Hat.

Nelson Wagg, of Claremont, sold a colt sired by Burnbrae at ten months old for $250.00.

Graham Bros, another at 8 months old for $200.00. As will be seen from the above he is both a winner and the sire of a winner, and has proved himself to be very prolific. This district is to be congratulated on having the services of so valuable a horse placed at their disposal.

Chronic Biliousness

IN ITS TRIAL FOLLOW HORRIBLE DREAMS, DESPONDENCY MELANCHOLY AND GENERAL WEAKNESS.

The proper elements needed to promote good digestion, regularity of the bowels, correct action of the kidneys and liver, must be supplied when a bilious condition of the system is once established.

Ferrozone can't help but do this. It gives the stomach perfect rest, and allows you to partake of and enjoy the variety of food that is necessary for maintaining health. One Ferrozone tablet taken after each meal will separate the nutritious portions of the food from the waste, which is carried off, thus preventing and curing constipation and its attendant evil, piles.

Being a potent blood purifier, Ferrozone cleanses the crimson flood of all bile and impurities, and as a result the complexion is restored to a rosy, healthy hue, and the dark circles under the eyes and the deathly pallor of the cheeks, get away never to return.

Taken for disorders of the stomach, commencing with biliousness and ending with derangements of the liver and kidneys, Ferrozone achieves marvelous results. It is at the same time a tonic and stimulant, and a regulator of all bodily functions, and chronic sufferers should not fail to give it a fair trial. It will do them good without doubt, and if the malady is curable it will yield to Ferrozone.

With the use of Ferrozone appetite will be better, the blood made rich and pure, sleep will be dreamless and sound. Your muddy complexion will be cleared and beautified, your eyes will acquire a new brightness, and as your spirits rise and good health returns, you will bless the day you learned the secret of Ferrozone's power.

If you think you need Ferrozone go to the nearest drug store and procure a supply. Refuse a substitute and insist on having the genuine Ferrozone, which costs 50 cts. per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Set Her Free

(COPYRIGHTED

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

as this woman's alive! Oh, I know the feeling!" he added with confidential sympathy. "You feel that you're his wife in the sight of heaven. But what's the use of being his wife in the sight of heaven, as long as you can't be in the sight of earth?"

At that blunt putting of the case Norma felt her inclination to laugh get the better of her wish to cry, and she smiled.

"Look here," she said gently, "it's of no use to argue the matter with me. I'm a woman, you know, and must have my own way. I thank you more than I can say for your kindness, and it makes me feel happier to know that there are such nice people in the world as you and that dear girl over there. But I couldn't think of—of such a thing, I couldn't really. It's absurd, you know. For Astley is my husband—oh yes, he is. And nothing could alter that feeling of mine, even if it's a feeling only, and not a fact."

"Well, I think it's a great pity you won't listen to reason, and Sadie will think so, too," said he soberly, and with a most thoughtful expression of face. "But remember this; if you change your mind you've only got to hold up your finger, and I'll fly to you like a bird. I should love to! You'll remember that, won't you?"

"Oh, yes, I'll remember that," said Norma, her face wreathing in smiles in spite of herself. "And now let's go and run after Miss Brown. I'm sure she'll be miserable at being so long away from you."

As Jack accompanied her, with a very grave face, he said suddenly: "It isn't because I'm so young, is it? That wouldn't be fair, you know, because you're nearly as young yourself!"

Norma assured him that that had nothing whatever to do with it, and then they came up with Sadie, at whom Jack shook his head woefully.

"She wouldn't hear of it, of course!" cried the American at once. "I told you so, Jack, didn't I?"

"It's nothing to boast about," said he sulkily. "And ladies generally say 'no' the first time. I sha'n't lose heart."

Sadie began to laugh, but Norma broke in quite gravely:

"It's beautiful to have such friends as you both. It makes me feel much happier."

And then they both hastened to give themselves to her, one on one side and one on the other, and to say cheering and comforting things to her out of the kindness of their hearts, both talking at once for the most part, in a very cheering and cheerful manner.

They came to see her again and again in the course of the next few days, during which Norma lived quietly at the cottage and kept carefully out of Astley's way.

Whether he knew of her whereabouts or not she was not sure, until one day she saw him walking slowly down the lane and glancing up wistfully at her window.

Her heart leapt up. She wanted to go out to him, but she struggled with herself, feeling that it was best for both that they should for the present remain altogether apart.

And then the very thing happened, in her sight, before her eyes, that she had been constantly dreading: Dr. Wharles drove up, on one of his so frequent visits to Raggett's cottage, and he and Astley came face to face.

Norma saw from her window that the two men exchanged a few fierce words; a taunt from the doctor, [illegible] tended as a provocation, began it; it was followed by a sharp retort from Astley. Fearing that the latter would not be able to keep his temper, Norma rushed out into the lane, and was by Astley's side, holding his arm, before the exchange of another word between the men.

He was so much astonished, moved, overwhelmed, by the unexpected appearance of the woman he loved, that at once he allowed himself to be drawn a step or two back. And the doctor, thinking discretion desirable, went on into the cottage.

Norma kept her hold on Astley's arm, and led him away down the lane.

"Where did you spring from?" asked Astley, who was flushed and delighted at this meeting.

"Oh, the cottage where I'm staying."

"I know. I've kept religiously away until this morning, when I thought [illegible] served a peep at you, and came along here on the chance."

"Well, now I want you to take my advice, and I should like a promise that you will to begin with."

"Well?"

"I want you to leave the Haigh for a little while. It's bad to risk these meetings with that man."

"I believe you're right. But I don't want to go away and leave you here."

"I'm not going to stay here long. I've got something to find out before I go."

"You won't tell me what it is?"

"I'd rather not. I may be quite wrong, you see, and then I should only raise false hopes."

"What is that fellow doing at Raggett's cottage?"

"How should I know? Somebody ill there, I suppose."

"Raggett's boy was the witness who wouldn't speak," went on Astley thoughtfully.

"Never mind about that. Will you promise to go away, and keep clear of awkward meetings with the doctor?"

"I'll do whatever you wish. But he wouldn't be able to taunt me again as he did in the court that day. I wrote to Leamington, not to her, but to Mrs. Finch, to ask how things stood with them. It seems she has run into debt. So I've sent her five hundred pounds to clear that off, and I'm going to allow her five hundred a year. I couldn't be expected to do more than that, could I?"

"Certainly not," said Norma thoughtfully. "Is she still ill?"

"They say so."

They were standing under the wall and the overhanging and still leafless branches.

"Good-bye," said Norma softly.

Astley hesitated. Looking behind him, he saw that they were out of sight of the cottage.

"You'll kiss me, won't you?" said he.

She flung herself into his arms.

"Good-bye, good-bye, God bless you and keep you safe!" whispered she brokenly.

A minute later he was hurrying back through the plantation; and she, with her eyes still dim, was returning to the cottage.

On the following day Norma knew that Astley had left The Haigh, and the next thing she learned was that the inquest on Tom Rogerson's body had been again adjourned.

CHAPTER XX.

When she knew that Astley had left the neighborhood, Norma found herself more free in her movements. She generally took a walk in the morning, and another in the afternoon, frequently passing through the plantation and the grounds of The Haigh on her way.

Astley had left a key to all the private gates with her; and although she had told him, with a shudder, that she could never go through the plantation where she had made the ghastly discovery of Rogerson's dead body, she subsequently got the better of her feeling on this matter, and chose this walk more often than any other.

Full as her thoughts were from morning till night of the wish to clear all suspicion away from Astley, and determined as she was to hesitate at nothing which could help to bring about this result, Norma had conceived the notion that the place where the tragedy happened might still have unrevealed secrets, and she therefore took to haunting the little wood with an observant eye.

On many of these occasions she would see Dr. Wharles, sometimes in his gig, more often on foot, on his way to and from the Raggetts' cottage. But there were still more significant sights to be seen in and about the town.

The sight of Mrs. Wharles, driving through the little town one afternoon in the doctor's brougham, made Norma thoughtful. The doctor's wife was always showily dressed, but on this occasion Norma caught the glitter of jewels from the interior of the carriage, and it occurred to her to think it surprising that a woman in Mrs. Wharles's position, having no fortune of her own apart from her husband's modest earnings, should be able to wear diamonds.

Norma was not fond of gossip, but Mrs. Giles, her landlady, loved nothing so much. And when, two days later than the above occurrence, Norma met Mrs. Wharles coming out of the Vicarage wearing a cape of real sable, and a muff-chain of gold and pearls, she decided to relax her dignity a little, and to hear what Mrs. Giles had to say of the neighbors' chatter on this important matter.

So that afternoon, when she went in to tea, her landlady did not meet with the usual rather distant thanks which warned her to leave the room as soon as she had brought in the tea-things.

Lady Darwen—for so she was always called—was ready for a chat.

"Most pleasant weather this is, for February," she said; and Mrs. Giles stood still at once, with a beaming smile and a complacent crossing of her plump hands in front of her. "There were such a lot of people about to-day. All the ladies of Blackdale seemed to be taking tea with each other, and all in their smartest clothes, looking quite lovely."

"Indeed, my lady, and some of them are smart now, and no doubt about it," responded Mrs. Giles, taking the bait immediately. "Did you happen to see Dr. Wharles's lady now, in her fine feathers? It's the talk of the place how grand she's grown of late, with her furs and her jewelry! More like a lady in your station, my lady, or in Lady Myfanwy Scorton's, than a country doctor's wife!"

"Oh, but Mrs. Wharles always did dress well, didn't she?" asked Norma.

Mrs. Giles put her head on one side condescendingly.

"She always did try to be very fine, my lady, if that's what you mean. But not like what she is now. Not but what I'm talking most from hearsay, but, still, I had it from a friend as works for the first dressmaker in the town, and she says, says she: 'There's a difference,' says she, 'in the way she used to dress and the way she dresses now. For while mink—which it seems is a kind of fur, my lady, as you know, no doubt, better nor me—mink,' says she, 'used for to be good enough for Mrs. Wharles, now it's sable,' says she. And it seems she wears diamonds, too, which nobody ever saw on her before, nor wouldn't now, I expect, if her husband or her hadn't somehow come by money. Which it seems they've paid some bills lately that had been owing ever so long."

Norma felt some consternation at the torrent of gossip which her indulgence had let loose, and which, once started, was difficult to stop.

"Ah, well," she said, "Dr. Wharles is a rising man. They say he's by far the cleverest [illegible] in the neighborhood."

A woman in pursuit of a late summer gown stood in front of a counter heaped with foulards in a big store. A blue ground with a white polka dot seemed to please her best, but she paused irresolutely. "It looks just like the old indigo blue calicoes they used to wear when I was a little girl in the country," she said, [illegible]. "Madame," said the portly salesman, "long after you and I are dead and gone women will be wearing blue and white polka dots. They have worn them since the race emerged from barbarism. They will wear them until it sinks into it again." After that portentous gravity and heavy philosophy the woman bought the dress in a dazed silence.—Tacoma "Ledger."

CHAMBERLAIN'S VIEWS

Colleagues in the Cabinet Said to Find it Difficult to Silence His Protests

London, April 7 — While interest in the proceedings of Parliament is languid, due to the holiday adjournment, there are unknown forces under the surface. It is generally contended by men in the innermost political circles that Mr. Chamberlain is not reconciled to the Irish policy of the Government, although matters have gone too far for him to oppose the land bill strenuously. The Duke of Devonshire and other Irish landowners in the Cabinet were expected to carry him with them, but it has been difficult to silence his protests. His attitude, according to my information, makes it impracticable for the Government to consider any political scheme as a substitute for home rule. He is described as consenting against his will to Mr. Wyndham's measure, and as ruling the Cabinet on other questions with a rod of iron.

Strange Snake Moods.

For several years I have had in my possession a common blacksnake (Bascanion Constrictor), writes a contributor to the Indianapolis "Sentinel." He has become perfectly tame as far as it is possible for a snake to be so; and from him I have perhaps learned more of the intelligence of snakes than from the thousands of others that I have seen in nature and observed in captivity. Of all the snakes I have ever seen or heard of, he undoubtedly is the tamest. He evinces not the slightest fear in human presence. All my visitors handle him now, put him around their necks, stroke him on the back, rub him on the head and under the chin—and this treatment he gives every evidence of enjoying. If I open his cage on a cold day, as soon as he sees my hand at the glass undoing the fastenings he glides gently over to meet it. I leave my hand there, and out he winds, softly and slowly, up my arm to the shoulder. When his cold tongue points touch my warm throat, he glides round and round my neck until he gets himself comfortably settled, and there he stays enjoying the heat. Often when he does this, I go back to my chair, and allow him to stay so coiled for half an hour or longer. Sometimes indeed, when I am reading, I forget that he is there. The other day I shocked a caller by going to the door, oblivious of the kind of cravat I had on. Lately my visitors have all learned to ask me before leaving to "please feed the blacksnake," because he will follow me for his food. If I draw away the glass slide from the front of his cage, and hold up a garter snake wiggling by the tail he will glide out of his cage and chase me through the house to get it.

But this blacksnake, so tame and gentle, eating from my hands and following me for food, my pet for nearly five years, gave me a very great surprise. One day I determined to give him an outing, so I took him with me up in Westchester County.

On a river bank, sloping gently up from the water, there was a nice stretch of smooth grass, and beyond that some rocks and a thicket of bushes, and beyond these again some trees. I put out the blacksnake on the smooth sward close to where I reclined, and there he lay basking in the sun. When he felt sufficiently warm he began to glide gently around, so I stood up to watch him. After a time he went slowly toward the bushes, and then he stopped but with his head raised, as if surveying them. Now at any time until then I could have approached him and picked him up at will. But what did he do when [illegible] now that he was on the edge of the bushes? He made a dash for liberty, so quick that for an instant he was nowhere to be seen. My heart beat fast, for I thought that I should see him no more. But I perceived that the bushes where he was were surrounded on every side by short grass except one little neck, which joined the more extensive growth beyond, making the copse where he had hidden a sort of peninsula of bushes. I placed some boys that were there as pickets about a yard apart across the isthmus, to see that he didn't pass them and get into the more extensive brushwood near the trees. Then I went myself into the peninsula to look for him. I feared that he might have found a hole and gone into it; but no, there he was, coiled by some rocks under the thickest bushes; but he was not my tame blacksnake any more. He was an angry, savage creature, vibrating his tail against the leaves and biting toward my hand as I stooped to catch him. My delight at finding him was not half so great as my astonishment at this sudden change to wildness. I reached my hand out quickly and took hold of him—and as I touched him all the fierceness seemed to go out of him. When I got home that evening he followed me as usual for a garter snake and glided about my room, as gentle and tame as if he had not been a wild, fighting thing a few hours before in the bushes in Westchester.

Since then I have tried him many times, and always with the same result, namely, that when he can hide among rocks and bushes he becomes instantly wild again.

Other tame snakes I have tried in the same way, and I find that the tame copperhead, which I have had since '94, acts precisely as the blacksnake did, becoming instantly wild under the same circumstances. So does the Texas bull snake, the water snake, and the Georgia corn snake. And with all these the same rule holds true, that they become tame again just as suddenly when brought into the house among their old surroundings.

What Happened in Singapore.

Some days ago the players in a billiard-room at a Singapore hotel noticed with no small interest that a tiger, measuring seven feet eight inches from nose to tail, was lying under the table. A player was chalking his cue at the time, but he immediately desisted, and chalked his stumps instead. The others took the one from him. The boy who acted as marker alone kept his head. He walked out of the room, and (in a moment of brilliant inspiration) shut the door after him. That boy should make his mark. Eventually one of the players potted his opponent through the window, and the game was resumed.

KILLED AT CORNWALL

Allen Snetsinger Caught in a Landslide on the Canal

Cornwall, April 7—Allen Snetsinger, a young man from Cornwall Township was killed here last night by being caught in a landslide while employed on the contract of J. J. Falton on the Cornwall Canal. The young man was buried in about eight feet of clay, and it was about an hour before he was dug out.

A FATAL RUNAWAY

Young Woman's Neck Broken by Being Dragged

Maxwell, April 7—Miss Annie Scott, aged nineteen, daughter of William Scott, was killed here today. She had driven her brother to Dundalk station, and when on her return, within a mile of home, the horse took fright and threw her out of the buggy. She became entangled in the lines, and was dragged a mile. Her neck was broken.

Mainly About People.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton was once giving a piece of advice to a roomful of young men in a little village on the subject of matrimony. "When you marry," she said, "choose a woman with a spine and a sound set of teeth." "Good gracious! Mrs. Stanton," remarked one of her listeners, in alarm, "do they ever come without spines?"

Professor Powers of Cornell's political economy department was discussing the changed attitude that people have assumed (and in his opinion rightly assumed) toward the conveniences and the luxuries of life. "At a Methodist church convention," he said, "the delegates were talking on that subject, when an old graybeard arose and exclaimed angrily to the presiding bishop: 'I suppose you came here in a private car?' 'Yes,' the bishop answered; 'do you know any way more comfortable?'"

When Labouchere was an attache of the British Ambassador to the United States a Briton of the consequential species descended on the ministry at Washington demanding to see his country's representative. "He's not in," said Labby. "Then I'll wait," said the Briton pompously, seating himself. At the end of half an hour came the query, "When—er—do you—er—expect Lord Lyons back?" "Oh, in six months or so," said the ever-obliging attache. "He left for Europe this morning. But you said you'd wait, you know."

A manufacturer not one hundred miles from the city tells a good joke on himself. He is credited with being extremely disagreeable to his employees. A man just arrived in this country called on him one day to ask for work. "Have you a recommendation of character?" he asked the stranger. "No," he replied, "but I have friends in the village who will give me one." Putting his bundle on the floor, he left. In the course of half an hour he returned, took up his bundle and was leaving the office without a word. "Did you get your character?" asked the manufacturer. The man, without halting a moment or raising his eyes, said: "No, mister, but I got yours."

Kitchener's scathing sarcasm is well illustrated by the reply he is said to have sent to the leader of a not over-successful column. This officer had several slight engagements with the enemy, mainly consisting of flinging a few shells at them at long range. After each engagement he wired to the commander-in-chief substantially: "During action several Boers seen to drop from their saddles." The thing was becoming tiresome; for Lord Kitchener's rule was that only those actually "gathered" should be counted. He soon thought of a remedy, and sent back to the officer this polite telegram: "I hope when they fell they did not hurt themselves."

The Scotch of Glengarry are largely, probably mainly, of "the old faith," and this story told by Senator McMillan, touches upon that fact, and also introduces one of the old-time giants of that county. This particular giant was Big Alex McDonnell, uncle of the bishop of the same name. "Big Alex," the senator began, "was probably the only man who went over the Chaudiere Falls and lived. Shortly after his escape he visited his uncle, then a simple priest, and his marvelous escape, with the incident of clinging desperately to a floating crib while being tossed about in the turbulent waters, formed the subject of conversation. 'It must have been a great comfort to you to know that the saints were with you in your peril,' remarked the priest. 'Oh, yes,' responded Alex, but it was also a comfort to know I was a tamn good swimmer.'"

The following incident occurred at an entertainment in a large provincial town in England. On the programme a certain vocalist was down to sing "The Miner's Dream of Home," and to add special effect to the song he, having a friend a fireman at the fire station, about three minutes' walk from the hall, ran out and borrowed his topboots. His turn on the programme came around. He appeared on the stage in all the glory of a blouse, slouch hat, white breeches and (the fireman's) topboots. His rendering of the song was a great success up to the middle of the second verse, when a commotion was heard at the entrance of the hall. Then a hot and eager fireman forced his way through the audience up to the footlights and bawled out at the top of his voice: "Bill, you've got to come out of them 'ere boots if you value your life. I'm called to a fire!"

Her First Night at the Theater.

A lady who resides at Streatham Hill, according to an English exchange, has a girl in her service fresh from some region far removed from the theater. Thinking to give the girl a treat, and knowing that she had never been to a theater, the lady purchased a ticket for a play at Balham Theater. The girl went, and returned before nine o'clock.

"What is the matter? Did you not like it?" asked the mistress.

"Oh, I liked it, mum, it was fine."

"But," enquired her mistress, "why have you returned so soon? Surely you didn't see it all."

"Yes, mum, I did. I went in, sat down and looked at the large picter hanging up in front. People kept a-comin' in, and pretty soon there was quite a crowd all looking at the picter. Then they took it away and some men and women begun a-talkin' up there about somethin' that didn't concern me, so I got up and come away. But I enjoyed the picter."

Up to Date.

Great Publisher—Mr. Quill, your novel is a very good one.

Mr. Quill—Then you are going to publish it?

Great Publisher—Yes, if you will only make a few slight changes. Just change the marriage of your heroine to her death on the eve of the bridal; kill your hero in a railroad accident; and close the book with the funny man standing between two graves in the twilight, and it's a go.

The Use of Logic.

A great deal is said in these days about the value or valuelessness of logic. In the main, indeed, logic is not a productive tool so much as a weapon of defence. A man building up an intellectual system has to build like Nehemiah, with the sword in one hand and the trowel in the other. The imagination, the constructive quality, is the trowel, and argument is the sword. A wide experience of actual intellectual affairs will lead most people to the conclusion that logic is mainly valuable as a weapon wherewith to exterminate logicians.

A PATHETIC PLEA

Was Sentenced to Six Months for Shooting a Man—Fainted in Court

Newark, N.J., April 6—Annie M Hildebrandt, the young trained nurse of Orange, who was recently convicted of having shot and severely wounded Bernard J. McCallam at Orange was to-day sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the county jail. When arraigned for sentence she asked that she be sent to prison for life, saying her life had been ruined, and she might as well spend what remained of it in jail. She fainted after sentence had been pronounced.

THE 20TH OF THIS MONTH

Alleged Date of the Macedonian Revolution

London, April 6—According to an agency despatch from Constantinople, advices have been received there from Monastir that the Macedonian Revolutionary Committee intends to proclaim a general insurrection in the European provinces of Turkey about April 20. It is claimed there will then be more than 100,000 men armed with rifles in the field.

Mythical French Politeness.

"One hears so much about French politeness and sees so little of it that I was a good deal struck by two good specimens of it which have recently come under my notice," writes a correspondent. "The first was at Avignon, where we were waiting for the train to Tarascon, famous for the adventures of Tartarin. The guard put his head into the [illegible] and called out, 'Ladies and gentlemen for the Tarascon line, take your seats please.' He went on to the second-class where he exclaimed, 'Passengers for Tarascon, take your seats.' At the third class he contented himself with remarking, 'Tarascon; take your seats.' It is easy to imagine how he would have proceeded if there had been a fourth class.

"The second instance was on a steamer on the Lake of Geneva. A well-dressed Frenchwoman had secured a good seat in the bow of the vessel, from which she was admiring the view between Evian and Geneva. Presently she went below to have some coffee. As she had left nothing on the seat to mark it as hers, she very naturally found it occupied on her return by a fat Frenchman, whose dress betokened that he belonged to the upper class. On her representing that it was her seat he absolutely declined to move, and sat stolidly there while she stormed and raved like an angry fishwife. Very soon, however, his Latin nature prevailed over his assumed calm, and he began to rave and gesticulate with as much vigor and emphasis as the lady. So far there was nothing at all unusual about the scene, but at the end of a few minutes, during which they had both become white with rage, the lady actually struck him in the face with her delicately-gloved hand. I thought that this was going rather far, even for a specimen of 'la politesse Francaise,' but the spectators did not seem particularly astonished. They had been there before."

Money in Capons.

They who wish to make money in poultry should turn their attention to caponizing. Any one with steady nerves and fair eyesight can do the work, and it is very remunerative. Begin by getting a book of instructions and a set of tools; then, after becoming acquainted with the directions, practice on dead chickens until you are expert. Learn to be quick and thorough. Chickens should be kept on short rations one whole day before the operation. It may be performed at any time after the chickens are old enough so that one may distinguish between pullets and cockerels. It does not make much difference as to the season, but I think fall is preferable. When you have learned to do the work well, you will find that you can make considerable by doing it for your neighbor, especially when they see how much more you get for capons than they can get for fowls that have not been caponized. One usually charges ten cents per fowl for caponizing.—Emma Clearwater, in Housekeeper.

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspaper to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured, but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured. I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER,
Miami, Man.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the (fill in name of paper.) To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $000 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

BUY COLUMBUS CONSOLIDATED

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at 50c. per share. The Company controls 645 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 80 tones of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $19.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 20 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 645 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. NICK TREWEEK, WHO FOR 21 YEARS WAS UNDERGROUND FOREMAN FOR THE HOMESTAKE COMPANY. SHOULD NOT COLUMBUS DO AS WELL IF NOT BETTER THAN THE HOMESTAKE? Homestake stock started at $1.00 per share, sold up to $115.00 per share, and has not missed a dividend in over 22 years. For a cheaper stock, of stock prices at present makes the New York Stock Market unusually attractive at this time. The decline of from 10 to 40 points in the prices of standard shares brings them below actual bargain prices. Some issues are cheaper and better to buy than some others. We will be pleased to advise with you, pointing out the most favorable stocks to purchase at present.

LOW LEVEL

STOCK MARKETS

CHEAP STANDARD INVESTMENTS

New York, April 8.—There are at present offering upon the exchanges specially good standard, gilt edged investments, at prices considerably below the average. They are stocks also that represent an absolute certainty of dividend return and have a past dividend record in both good and bad times. That insures the solidarity and safety of the investment, as they are at the time considerably below average prices and far below their high prices they are excellent speculative purchases also. We here enumerate them: St. Paul, this is one of the gilt edged granger shares, earns as much money per share as does Chicago and North Western, and is consequently as valuable, though selling many points below the later. Last fall it sold as high as 198 3-4, is now an immense bargain near 160, pays 7 per cent., earns considerably in excess, has spent nearly $40,000,000 on its road in past five years, charging same to operating expenses, is dominated by Rockfeller interests and will ultimately sell above 200 like D. L. & W., and North Western. It is also an international, with splendid trading market at all times. Pennsylvania, the model railway of the world and one of the best railway investments pays 6 per cent. and down from 170. This system is expanding enormously, and has secured control of many miles of valuable roads, which requires large capital increase; hence its present low price. It is well to remember this vast capital increase represents simply an issue of Pennsylvania stock, practically against against B. & O., Norfolk and C. & O., etc., which has been absolutely retired from the market through purchase by Pennsylvania. Holding these shares will prove most valuable to Pennsylvania. It increases the company's business and makes it impregnable as far as competition is concerned. Bear in mind it is always good business to issue one's six per cent. obligations if you can; through so doing secure property returning you 8 per cent. or more in addition to increasing your own business. Pennsylvania below 140 is unusually cheap and will pay well to buy and hold. Illinois Central, this good old southern issue, the best road in the south below 140, and down from 170, is awfully cheap at present, paying six per cent., the same only as it did in the depressed times of 1893, when the majority of the railway mileage of the United States was in the hands of receivers, makes it specially attractive. It earns over 12 per cent. upon its entire stock issue. It appeals to investor and speculator alike at going prices. The two great transportation companies of the metropolis, Manhattan and Metropolitan, both guarantee seven per cent., stocks selling below 140 are on the bargain counter. Metropolitan sold at 175 within twelve months and above 250 in 99. Manhattan sold 158 less than six months ago. Buy them for speculation or for investment. New York Central, the monarch of New York State, always the representative of safe investments, the roads whose equities in other lines alone more than suffices to pay its current dividends. This stock is a great bargain also below 140.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
130 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me, God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 2 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.25
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	20,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,712 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.00
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,687.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	126,000 00

The total capital invested is $77,306.12. The business has paid 6 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this pioneer work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of this Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and prosperous Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 100 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada.

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of the machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 25 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 20,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view the Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 7 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 12 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 6 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

Creeps Like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh and prevents the disease from spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently erradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a common-sense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession and all intelligent pharmacists.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone. The complete outfit costs only $1.00. Trial size, 25 cts. Sold by Druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

SMILES

Good Cheer and Good Food Go Together

Improper feeding is the source of most human ails. Sick people don't laugh much. It is the healthy and strong who see the funny side of everything. Pure, scientific food will correct most ailments and bring laughter and good cheer in place of sickness and gloom.

The wife of a physician of Dayton, O., says: "Before I had finished the first package of Grape-Nuts, which I got at the urgent request of a friend of mine several months ago, I was astonished to find I was less nervous over small matters and worried less over large ones, laughed more readily and was at all times more calm and contented than I had ever been in my life. I found also that the hollow places in my neck and shoulders were filling out and that astonished me as I had always been very thin, as women with starved nerves are apt to be.

"After a time I discontinued the use of Grape-Nuts for two months and found the old symptoms return at once. I went back to the use of the food again and feel well and strong. I can increase my weight at will from five to ten pounds a month by using more or less of the food. Before I was married I was for five years a trained nurse and I [illegible] Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Street Lighting

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—A report is being persistently circulated to the effect that the Otonabee Power Company are simply putting in their tender to do the street lighting of the Town as a "bluff" and for the purpose of compelling the Peterborough Light & Power Company and the Cereal Company to buy them out, and that the Otonabee Power Company has offered to sell out to them. We wish to give every statement in this report the most unqualified denial. No member of the Otonabee Power Company has ever at any time discussed any such proposition with the Peterborough Light and Power Company or with the Cereal Company, or with any person in any way connected with either of these companies. This report is being circulated by interested parties for the purpose of prejudicing the ratepayers against the proposition which the Otonabee Power Co. made to the Town and for the purpose of drawing away the attention of the ratepayers from the fact that the proposal to start up the street railway is going to cost the ratepayers between $30,000.00 and $40,000.00 in ten years. This is a very large bonus to ask for such a purpose.

The Otonabee Power Company has broken up the monopoly in light and power in Peterborough, and has been the means of saving thousands of dollars per year to the consumers of light and power. Our Company is prepared to carry out the offer made to the Council, if it is given the opportunity to do so, and if it is, it will mean a saving of from $30,000.00 to $40,000.00 in street lighting in ten years and will guarantee to the citizens that a light will be supplied at a reasonable price in the future.

At the Police Court

Yesterday morning a case was heard at the Police Court in which a local hotel keeper was charged with selling liquor during prohibited hours on Saturday night. Three Frenchmen had been found by Mr. Cochrane, license inspector, at a table on which were glasses and both empty and full bottles. The only one of them who could speak English said that the bottles were purchased in the afternoon during lawful hours. No evidence was found to convict defendant and the case was dismissed. Mr. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown, and Mr. Jas. Haverson, solicitor for the License Victualler's Association for the defence.

A Great Calf

Mr. H. P. Kennedy will have on view this evening in his shop one of the finest, if not the very finest, veal calf ever offered for Peterborough. This aristocratic young monster tips the scales at 425 lbs. and it costs nothing to see this fine creature this evening.

Old Age IS MADE Vigorous BY THE USE OF Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I suffered for six years with constipation and indigestion, during which time I employed several physicians, but they could not reach my case," writes Mr. G. Popplewell, of Eureka Springs, Carroll Co., Ark. "I felt that there was no help for me, could not retain food on my stomach; had vertigo and would fall helpless to the floor. Two years ago I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and little 'Pellets,' and improved from the start. After taking twelve bottles of the 'Discovery' I was able to do light work, and have been improving ever since. I am now in good health for one of my age—60 years. I owe it all to Doctor Pierce's medicines."

CARE TO BE TAKEN OF OUR NEW PEOPLE

Elaborate Arrangements Made---Statement Issued in England to Remove Fears of Hardships to Immigrants

London, April 8—An emphatic canadian official statement is published in the English papers today, designed to remove fears that congestion and distress will result from the sudden accesion of large numbers of British settlers. The amplest official assurances are given that the Minister of the Interior had made most elaborate arrangements with the aid of a very large staff of responsible officials to deal satisfactorily with all immigrant arrivals in Canada this year even if the numbers exceed many times the arrivals of previous years.

NO CHANCE FOR CANADIAN BEEF.

London, April 8—The protectionis policy of the British Ministry against Canadian cattle is now openly avowed. Mr. Brodrick, replying to a query in the Commons last night, said the question of allowing the meat of Canadian-bred cattle to be included in the army contract had been carefully considered. The arrangement whereby home-bred beef only could be accepted for home army supplies could only be distributed to the detriment of home producers.

TERROR REIGNS IN THE HOLY CITY

Militia Charge the Rioters and Wound Many, Troops Guard the Vatican Pilgrims in a Plight

Rome, April 9.—The aspect of Rome was completely changed early to-day. The gay, crowded city of yesterday seemed dead. No cabs passed through the streets, and even the street cars, which ran at long intervals, were escorted by police, and were almost empty, as the people feared to ride on them on account of the threats of the strikers. The overcast sky added melancholy to the scene. The shops were open, but the shutters were up, as the proprietors intended to be ready for any eventuality. They were apprehensive of rioting and feared, as on other occasions, that their windows would be smashed. The whole city was occupied by troops. Detachments of cavalry were posted on the squares and special details of soldiers and police were stationed around the vatican, so as to prevent any attempts against the Papal palace. Foreigners continue to fly from Rome, but many of them cannot get away, as they are far from the railroad stations, no cabs are obtainable and the hotel omnibuses can carry only a limited number of passengers. If the strike continued, and all the foreigners leave the city, it is said that the boarding-house keepers alone will lose on an average of $16,000 daily.

Unimportant encounters between the strikers and troops took place during the morning, the former wishing to hold meetings, which were forbidden or reach the centre of the city; but the strikers were easily dispersed by cavalry charges. During the morning an attempt was made by strikers to over throw a street car, but it failed.

Pilgrims in a Plight.

Five hundred French pilgrims arrived here this morning and had some startling experiences. They got off at a station on the outskirts of Rome, so as to avoid going through the city, kinds of wagons and carts were hired to take the pilgrims' baggage. The men and women of the party arrived at the Garibaldi Bridge, just as a detachment of cavalry charged a mob, and a scene of indescribable confusion ensued. With screams and shouts the pilgrims, in their efforts to escape, were scattered in all directions, and some of them have not yet been found.

About the middle of the day the strikers succeeded in gathering in threatening numbers on the Corso Vittorio Emanuele, almost in the centre of the city, and detachments of troops charged, fired three volleys, and dispersed them. About a dozen men were reported to have been wounded. The officials reported that order had been completely re-established since noon, but Rome was still occupied by the military forces and the general strike continued. Many strikers were arrested during the day.

The Government has determined to gave a sufficient force of troops on hand to maintain order under any circumstances, and has issued instructions to send ten more batallions of troops to Rome.

CANADIAN IN THE BRITISH CABINET

Mr. A. Bonar Law M.P. Suggested as Secretary of the Treasury

HE WOULD BE FIRST CANADIAN

Mr. Law is Wealthy and Young—He was Born and Educated in New Brunswick

London, April 9.—The name of Mr. Bonar Law, M.P., a Canadian member of the Imperial House, has been suggested to fill the vacant post of Secretary of the Treasury, from which Mr. Hayes-Fisher resigned.

Andrew Bonar Law has represented the Blackfriars' division of Glasgow in the Imperial House of Commons since 1900. He was appointed Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade in 1902. He is the owner of large iron works in the city of Glasgow, and in politics is a Conservative. Mr. Law's father was Rev. Jas. M. Law, of New Brunswick, Canada. Bonar Law was born at Rexton, New Brunswick, in 1858. He was educated in Rexton, New Brunswick, and in Glasgow.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERVICE

Holland May Lose Permanent Trade Through the Strike

London, April 9.—The Dutch railway strike has stopped German goods traffic with Holland, but it is not anticipated that what is termed "The international passenger train service" will be suspended. One effect of the strike will probably be an increase of trade with German ports. It is rumored in Berlin that several of the great Dutch exporters will, in future, use Emden in preference to Dutch ports, to avoid such a state of affairs as at present exists.

THIRTY KILLED IN A LABOR RIOT

Troops Ordered to Fire Into the Mob, Unable to Restore Order

Berlin, April 9—A despatch to the Lockal Anzeiger from St. Petersburg dated yesterday, says thirty persons have been killed, and that one hundred were injured during labor disturbances near Nishni-Novgorod.

The disturbance occurred at large factories near Nishni-Novgorod. As the local civil authorities were unable to restore order the troops were called out and artillery was brought up. The latter was fired point blank into the midst of the rioters, killing thirty men and wounding a hundred.

St. Petersburg, April 9—The Russian Foreign Office denies the report from Yokohama, April 8, that there has been a large concentration of Russian troops at Fen-Twang, which commands the approaches of the Yalu River, in Northern Frontier Corea. The officials say only a few small detachments of soldiers are there, and that no military concentration has been planned.

Pekin, April 9—Advices received here from Port Arthur say no trouble is expected as a result of the Yalu River affair. Only a few Russian troops were sent there to dispose as the Japanese, who had trespassed on a concession of timber lands granted to a former Russian financial agent in Corea.

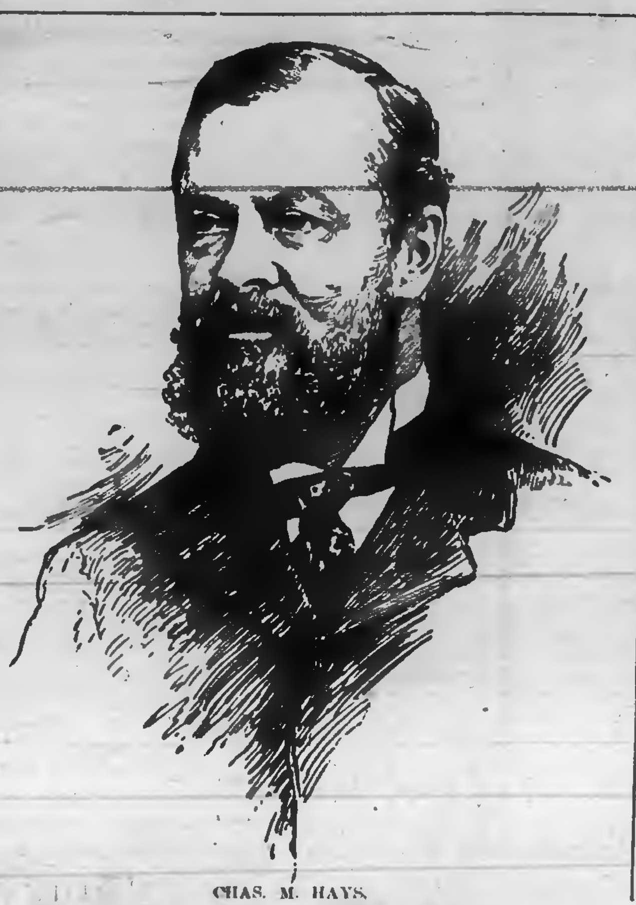
THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY TO BE DOUBLE TRACKED.

Between Peterborough and the Port of Midland

MR. HAYS' VISIT TO MIDLAND HARBOR

The Road Has Been Greatly Improved and Levelled



CHAS. M. HAYS.
Second Vice-President and General Manager.

Some months ago The Times stated tht the Grand Trunk line between Peterborough and Midland would be double-tracked at an early date—in fact the company would be forced to do this in order to handle the rapidly increasing grain trade. It now seems that this work is soon to be proceeded with. Mr. Chas. M. Hays, the General Manager of the Railway, passed through town this week on his return from an inspection of the road between Belleville and Midland. To a Times representative the General Manager stated that he was greatly impressed with the preparations that were being made at Midland, and the prospect was the Grand Trunk would do a much larger business from the lake points than ever before. The grades along the lines have been considerably reduced, and the locomotives were hauling much longer trains. On an average an engine could now haul fifty cars. The grain business is so rapidly developing that additional facilities in the shape of double tracking would have to be afforded at an early date.

The line between Belleville and Midland is now the leading grain route of the Grand Trunk system. The great influx of settlers into the North-West, with the consequent enormous increase of grain output, will tax to the utmost all the transportation facilities of the country.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Mr. W. H. Gordon and Mrs. Edward Campbell

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. E. H. Mann on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Edward Campbell, second daughter of Mrs. Beavis, of Douro was united in marriage to Mr Wm. H. Gordon, of town. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Torrance in the presence of the intimate friends of the contracting parties.

REV. MR. KENNEDY'S SUCCESS

The Evangelistic Work During the Winter has Flourished

Rev. H. D. Kennedy, the well-known evangelist, will spend Good Friday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, Otonabee. [illegible] assisted by Rev. Mr. White, has conducted very successful evangelistic services in Toronto, where he remained four weeks at the Crawford street Methodist church; Deseronto a month, and Napanee five weeks. Mr. Kennedy will open a months' engagement on Sunday at Streetsville.

Mr. Kennedy is a fluent speaker, and his great success is due to his strong personality and earnestness.

RESIGNATION OF MISS AGAR

The Organist of Murray Street Baptist Church—Much Regret Expressed

On Wednesday night at a quarterly business meeting of the Murray street Baptist church, the resignation of Miss Agar was received as organist of the church. The resignation of Miss Agar was received with very much regret, and the following resolution was adopted.

"That the report of the Music Committee be received, and that the resignation of our organist, Miss Agar, be accepted, the same to take effect and her duties as organist to cease on July 1st, next.

"That we sincerely regret having to accept the resignation, and thereby lose the services of one who has been so devoted to her duties as Miss Agar has been and we desire to place on record our appreciation of the efficient and painstaking services she has so cheerfully and faithfully rendered during the four years she has filled the important and difficult position of organist so acceptably."

OVER 100,000 DIE OF PLAGUE IN INDIA

Enormous Mortality in the Punjaub and Other Indian Provinces

Calcutta, April 8— Throughout India there were over a hundred thousand deaths from the plague during the past month. The Punjaub, Bombay, and the United Provinces were the worst affected. The disease is everywhere confined to the natives, whose attitude is admirably stoical.

Preventive measures have failed, but it is hoped that the approaching fierce heat will, as usual, reduce the mortality.

ROME AND THE TIBER RIVER

The Bed Supposed to Contain Many Valuable Treasures

London, April 10.—The stupendous triumph of English engineering in Egypt at Assiout and Assouan suggests that work far less difficult in diverting the waters of the Tiber within the territory of the eternal city might lead to the disclosure of treasures of ancient art over which every civilized nation would rejoice. It is the generally accepted belief of archaeologists, historians and artists that whenever Rome was besieged and captured many notable works in marble and bronze and precious metals, and no small number of the other achievements of cunning artificers, were cast into the yellow stream which was breasted so gallantly by brave Horatius, the captain of the gate. If the bed of Father Tiber is ever thoroughly explored, as it should be, the discoveries may rank in value and significance within some comparative approach to the ever memorable "finds" in the last century in the Troad, in Mycenae, in the Nile valley, in storied Crete, and in Cyprus.

SYMPATHY FOR THE EDITOR

How a Country Subscriber Regards This Great Family Journal

W-a-al, b'gosh, here I be. Aron Bowen o' Otonabee, who hits th' head on th' nail purty nigh ev'ry time, see that th' man who subscribes for the Weekly Times an' then don't pay fer it is wosser'n a bottle o' campher and Loren Bosworth's wild cattle and stray sheep. Gee-haw, there, old woman. Git th' gray mare hitched up, and let us start for Peterborough and pay what we owe. Jest reckon a minute. Over fifteen hundred dollars trusted out to people like us in a dollar or two dollars to a family. Heow on arth can the editor get fat? No wonder so many of them are skinny an' thin. Tell yer what, he's got my dollar at once to help him pay his bills. Don't you know, woman, heow th' cranberry medder fills up by th' little brooks down thar? W-a-al, b'gosh, I reckon that's just heow the poor editor's till might be filled up, a little here an' a little there, and a big lump when all's put together.

Say, neighbors, see if you ain't owin' for the Weekly Times, and if you be, send the money along. Let's all git money in at once. The editor can't pay for paper, ink, typesetting, presses an' so forth unless we pay him.

An' this reminds me. Aaron Bowen once spoke to a crowd in Harry Le Brun's clothing store on [illegible]. Sed he:

"A kiss is a regular proposition. Of no use to one, yet absolute bliss for two. The small boy gets it for nothing, the young man has to steal it, and the o'd man has to buy it. The baby's right, the lover's privilege, the hypocrite's mask. To a young girl, faith; to a married woman, hope, and to an old maid, charity."

Now I ain't no filosyfer, but I ken bet that all holler; A kiss is all right, an' good an' lovely, but it don't make your skull half so good as to read the Daily or Weekly Times after you've paid for it.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Emma Gunn and Mr. J. P. Peace

The home of Mr. Thos. Gunn was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, when his daughter, Miss Emma Maud was united in marriage to Mr. J. D. Peace, of Sault Ste. Marie, formerly of town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Jessie, while Mr. D. H. Hatton supported the groom. The happy young couple left for a short honeymoon trip to Toronto and other western points. Mr. and Mrs. Peace will reside in Sault Ste. Marie. Their many friends in town wish them much happiness.

242 New Steel Bridges Ordered by the C.P.R

In order that all the wooden bridges along the Canadian Pacific Railway line to the Pacific Coast may be replaced by steel bridges as soon as possible, the management, through Mr. E. H. McHenry, chief engineer, has contracted for the construction of two hundred and forty-two steel bridges, all of which are to be delivered during the present year.

Montreal, April 10.—While a large number of bridges will be placed along the main line, west of Ottawa, in the Chalk River district, quite a few will be in the Toronto division and at other points west of Winnipeg. The bridges will vary in length from twenty to a hundred feet.

The companies that have secured contracts are the following: Canada Foundry Company, sixty-nine; Dominion Bridge Company, one hundred and sixty; Hamilton Bridge Company, eleven; and the King Bridge Company, two bridges.

The Canada Foundry Company will start deliveries at the end of June, and will continue them till the end of November. The plans for the bridges were prepared by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's staff, under the direction of Mr. C. U. Monserrat.

REVISED VERSION OF GAMEY CHARGES

Sweeping Statement Accusing the Government of Trying to Buy Mr. Gamey

The revised charges of Mr. Gamey as formulated by Mr. S. H. Blake and the other counsel acting in his behalf, after reciting the circumstances of Mr Gamey's election and the events following the general elections of May last, reads as follows:

For the purpose of carrying the elections in favor of the Government and procuring the continuance in office of the then Executive Council, a large fund amounting to many thousand dollars, the exact amount of which is unknown to me, was contributed by supporters of the Government and others, and paid over to the nominees of the Government, to be by them expended under the direction of the members of the Government, or some or one of them, and others in procuring the defeat of Conservative candidates, or the unseating of Conservative candidates elected and the election of Government supporters in their stead, and to be used if necessary in bribery and obtaining members who had been elected as supporters of the Conservative party to change their allegiance and support the Government.

The fund in the preceding paragraph mentioned was collected, paid over, held and disbursed for the purposes aforesaid with the full knowledge of every member of the Government, and was utilized for the illegal purposes aforesaid or some of them with the knowledge of every member of the Government, and in order to maintain themselves in office.

That between the said 20th day of May and the date of the opening of the present session of the said Legislative Assembly, to wit, the 10th day of March 1903, and at sundry times and places, the Honorable James Robert Stratton Provincial Secretary; the Honorable George W. Ross, Premier and Provincial Treasurer; the Honorable John Morrison Gibson, Attorney-General; the Honorable Frank R. Latchford, Commissioner of Public Works; the Honorable Richard Harcourt, Minister of Education; the Honorable Elihu J. GERMANY BECOMING INVOLVED IN STRIKE

The Outlook for Little Holland is Ominous on Account of the Labor Troubles

Berlin, April 10.—Germany is on the eve of being involved in the Dutch strike, through the sympathetic action of the dock laborers and harbor workmen of the great German ports. The Social-Democratic leaders in this city say that there is every likelihood that such a step will be taken the moment the Netherland Government attempts to divert the shipping traffic belonging to the ports of Holland over the Hamburg-Bremen-Emden route. Ignatz Auer, a member of the Reichstag, and secretary of the Social-Democratic party, said to a newspaper correspondent to-day: "We consider the general strike project of our Dutch brethren untimely. The Socialists in Germany are not in a position, as a party, to lend them aid. Anything in that direction will have to come from the individual trades unions. Conditions in Germany are not ripe for a general strike. The energies and funds of the Socialists are needed for the coming Reichstag campaign. German railway workers, beyond refusing to enter the employment of the Dutch companies, will be unable to help the strikers."

Both the Government authorities and Socialist leaders deny that Germany is exercising any pressure on the Dutch Government. They say that such interference would not only be unnecessary but would provoke rightful resentment. The prolongation of the strike is a serious matter for German commerce.

PREPARING FOR THE WORST.

London, April 10.—A despatch from Amsterdam says the government of the Netherlands have ordered the mobilization of all the marines within twenty four hours, and that three warships at Den Helder have been ordered to be in readiness for immediate service.

About 10,000 men are idle in Amsterdam says that the dwellings of the employes of the Government railway who have not struck, are guarded by troops as a protection for the menn's wives and children. The bakers' shops and carts are similarly protected.

Employes of the river and canal navigation companies have decided to strike in sympathy with the railway men.

More trains are running to-day than yesterday. The pupils of the locomotive engineers' institute have unanimously tendered their services to the railways, and a number are being employed as stokers.

The workmen's defence committee is anxiously awaiting reports from the delegates who were sent to Germany, France and England to appeal for the support of the trades unions of those countries.

A Wonderful Tonic and Strengthener

Said a druggist to-day, "No doubt about it, the tonic that gives best results is the biggest seller, and that is Ferrozone. It enriches and purifies the blood, restores strength and energy to the feeble, and is a reconstructor that was always popular. In Chlorosis, Anaemia, Tiredness, Langour, Brain Fag, Indigestion and Dyspepsia its action is prompt, and satisfactory cures always follow. Yes, I recommend Ferrozone to my customers because I believe it is the best tonic and strengthening medicine that money can buy." Large boxes cost 50c.

A RRETTY APRIL WEDDING

The Bride was Miss I. Parnell and the Groom Mr. Wm. King

On Wednesday afternoon a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. John Parnell, 783 George street, when his daughter, Ipso, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wm. King, formerly of Manilla, now residing in town. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson, of George street Methodist church in the presence of about forty guests. The bride was becomingly gowned in crepe de chene with medallion trimmings and chiffon and velvet. She was attended by her sister, Miss Bertha Parnell, who was attired in a dress of organdie, trimmed with lace and ribbon. Mr. George K. Burnham, of Millbrook, assisted the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a dainty wedding dejeuner was served after which the happy young couple left on the 5.20 G.T.R. train for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside in town.

PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 10, 1903.

A LABOR DECISION

The hardest blow that labor unionism has received in years was the Taff-Vale decision in England. That decision limits the rights of unions to striking, but forbids them endeavoring to enforce their demands upon employers by interfering in any way with non-strikers or by boycotting, inducing others to boycott or in any way injuring employers or adversely affecting their interests otherwise than by withdrawing their services. In a word, workmen who go on strike can do nothing but withdraw from employment and take the chance of their late employers being able to fill their places without being allowed to interfere in any way with the measures taken to accomplish that. The decision has been followed in the United States in half a dozen notable cases, and now we have the decision of Judge Meredith at the instance of the Krug Furniture Company, of Berlin, who imposes a fine of $100 and costs on the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union and granted an injunction against boycotting and interference with non-strikers. In his judgment he characterized the conduct of the strikers as offensive and highly reprehensible. The case may be appealed.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Gamey investigation will be begun on Monday, the 13th. Now whose unlucky 13th will it be?

Sixteen hundred homestead entries made in the North-West by the Doukhobors indicate forcibly that they are becoming pleased with the customs of the country.

Britain at one time lost a good deal of commercial ground through great strikes, particularly that in the engineering trades; but the pendulum of time evens most things. The anthracite strike in America and now the great transportation strike in Holland tell the other way.

Delegates of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada yesterday among other things protested to the Dominion government against increase of the tariff. They represent workingmen who pay a couple of dollars more for every suit of clothes they buy than they would need to under a low tariff; and they now object to have another dollar stuck on. And so on with all things that Canadian citizens of households need. The workingmen have as good reason to kick as the farmers have.

No doubt Canada's participation in the South African war was an advertisement for Canada in England which is contributing something to the present influx of British immigrants. The great trouble has been that the average Englishman regarded Canada as an arctic country, a delusion to which the outpouring of several thousands of mounted troops who failed to appear in furs gave probably something of a shock. The popular imagination can be affected materially by seeming trifles.

Womanly Troubles

SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO UNDERMINE HEALTH AND BEAUTY, BUT SHOULD BE TREATED AT ONCE BY FERROZONE

It is impossible to go into details on this subject, but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she didn't use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

When the first stages of womanhood appear in a young girl, a great deal depends upon getting her over this critical stage, so that in years to come she will not develop green sickness or consumption.

As soon as she complains of flushed face, headache, bearing down feelings, give her at once a course of Ferrozone treatment which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occur, Ferrozone will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Ferrozone is the ideal regulator for the monthly period and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly, and at just the expected time.

It purifies the blood, tones up the nerves and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened, and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Ferrozone. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation, and piles, and replaces disease and decay by health and strength.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrozone. It removes the dark circles from under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives brightness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and develops a well rounded plump and handsome form.

Ferrozone is the ladies' favorite, and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, convenient and pleasant to take. Price per box 50c, or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all druggists, or by mail from N.C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

"DON'T CRY MAMMA; SEE, I'M NOT HURT"

Brave Words of a Little Sufferer Whose Lips Soon Closed in Death

New York, April 9.—"Don't cry mamma, because I'm not hurt. See I'm laughing mamma, and I could not laugh if I was hurt. Please laugh, mamma."

With his little legs crushed, 9-year-old Philip Pamphine, as he was lying on the operating table at the Bedford street hospital preparatory to having both legs cut off, felt no pain apparently, to-day at noon, his chief concern being for his mother.

His little laugh was forced through his tears, and he seemed to feel only the anguish caused by his mother's moans as she stood beside the table supported by attendants.

Three hours later the little lips that had uttered such encouraging words were cold and the mother was carried from the hospital ward in hysterics.

Gilded Gluttony.

Commenting on the tremendous amount of food consumed on the average Atlantic liner nowadays, a writer in the Springfield "Republican" says: "At eight comes the monumental breakfast; at eleven the deck steward fills up the comatose figures in the morgue with their beef-tea from those thick, obese English cups; at one, the magnanimous luncheon; at five, the sleepers assaulted by the deck steward again; at seven, the awesome English dinner; at nine-thirty, a trifling lunch to ballast you for bed. Besides this, barbaric mounds of sandwiches, olives, cheese, crackers, perpetually stare you in the face in the smoking-room. Food, food, food; the sight and smell of it pursue the unwilling stomach in every corner of the place; food, tasted, wasted, thrown away. There is one porthole on the steerage deck, from the galley, apparently, which belches it forth in a continuous stream—half-loaves of bread, great remnants of meat; we have left a trail of it across the Atlantic. If someone would only estimate the tons of wasted food which are annually thrown into the Atlantic, or could calculate how much cheaper these steamship companies could give us our travel, if they substituted plain, self-respecting fare for this gilded gluttony, it would certainly be interesting and worth while."

Giles—Take two letters from "money" and "one" will be left. Miles—Is that a joke? "Yes, verily." "Well, I know of a fellow who took money from two letters, and it was no joke, either. He got one year."

How to be Popular.

Appear happy even if you are not. Happiness is never out of place except at funerals. Even then it is better to check it with your coat at the door than to leave it at home.

If you have a stroke of luck see that an account of it is thoroughly circulated. The reputation of being lucky is a powerful magnet if you want a large following of friends.

Wear an air of prosperity at all times, even while availing yourself of the bankruptcy law. No one (except your creditors) will think less of you for looking prosperous at such a time.

One of the most important requisites to attain popularity is to dress well. Your jewels may be imitation, but you must have a good tailor. Few can tell the real from the false in the matter of gems, but even a "Buttons" will sneer at your back if your coat has not the proper cut.

When you converse let it be lightly about nothing in particular. Remarks that indicate deep thought, sincere sentiment or strong feeling are bad form and won't be tolerated by fashionable people. If you don't know how to talk without saying something, learn how to listen effectively. There are always plenty of people ready to be enrolled among the friends of a good listener.

In short, the happier and luckier and more prosperous you seem, the better dressed you are, and the less you say, the more friends you will have.—Francesca di Maria in "Life."

Not a Half-Way Girl.

He was in love with the girl, and wanted to marry her, but he was cautious, and didn't believe in the policy of putting all his fortunes to the touch, and then getting knocked out.

In other words, he didn't want to ask for what he wanted unless he saw some sign of its being in the shop. It's a wise thing to do, too, as some men have found out after they have asked. Thinking thus, he was talking to her.

"I'd like to know just what you think of me?" he said tentatively.

"Why?" she enquired with a rippling little laugh.

"Because it would help me in my business."

"Oh," she exclaimed.

"That's all right," he hastened to assure her. "I mean business."

"Really?" she twittered.

"Indeed, I do."

"What is your business?"

"To marry you if I can."

She was sitting in the window and he stood about four feet from her. She got up and looked him square in the face with a flash in her eye.

"Well," she said, half indignantly, "what do you expect me to do to help you?"

"I don't want you to encourage me only to turn me down," he said, hedging a bit. "In other words, I want you to meet me half way."

"Would that be of any assistance?" she asked wearily.

"I'd ask you on the spot," he responded with a great confidence.

"Well," she said, measuring the distance between them with her eye, "I am no half-way girl, I'd have you know, sir," and as his heart hope went down with a dull thud she cleared the intervening space and lit plump on his manly bosom.

Chicago's Most Spectacular Alderman.

Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin of Chicago, whose fame is nation-wide, has had a picturesque career. He sold newspapers and did "odd jobs" about town until he was old enough to become a "rubber" in a Turkish bath establishment. Thus he acquired his sobriquet. "Little did I t'ink," he says, recalling those days, "I wuz one day to be a alderman, an' specially of dis great ward, an' dat's de dreams of me yout'ful dreams of ambition. But dey say Grant worked in a tannery, and Garfield drove mules. Ev'ry young American is entitled to his ambition and I aint swelled." He saved his wages and tips, and one day bought a controlling interest in the establishment. He was now able to hire others to perform the onerous task of rubbing, and he devoted his leisure time to promenading the streets clad in wonderful sartorial outfits. His manner of dressing attracted attention, caused comment, and brought him that notoriety which later became the breath of his political life. In 1892 he was elected alderman of his ward, and since that time he has remained in the Council. To-day he possesses a fortune estimated at a quarter of a million dollars, resides in Michigan boulevard among the fashionable set, has banker and broker's offices in La Salle street, the Wall street of Chicago, and spends his summers at Saratoga and other watering-places, where society ignores but cannot suppress him.

Why London is Attractive.

The attraction of London to the annual visitor, writes Chauncey M. Depew in a recent magazine article, is the cordial and charming hospitality. It is at the dinner-table and in the drawing-room that London becomes the capital of the Old World. Social standing and place in precedence being so stable and known, hosts have no fear of impairing their position by having guests who are not in the smart set. In the season, the visitor well enough known to find hospitable doors opening to him every day, meets and talks with those who are famous in every field of human endeavor and distinction. This is possible in no other city or society. Statesmen, warriors, orators, writers, journalists, artists, actors, travelers, and representatives of other races and civilizations, all of whom for the time are in the eye or on the tongue of the world, pass in review. With many of them there is opportunity for conversation and that most fascinating of studies, the discovery or at least a suggestion of the secret of their success and power. I always return home feeling as if in the world's university I had met the workers who build and educate, and who are important factors in the culture, civilization and progress of their countries, or whose contributions to the thought or gaiety of nations make their acquaintance a valuable acquisition and enjoyable memory. It is delightful for a while to breathe an atmosphere where gigantic fortunes and titanic struggles to gain or enlarge them, which form so large a part of our daily reading and conversation, have no place in the programme.

A PATHETIC PLEA

Newark, N.J., April 8—Annie M. Hildebrandt, the young trained nurse of Orange, who was recently convicted of having shot and severely wounded Bernard J. McCallam at Orange was to-day sentenced to six months' imprisonment in the county jail. When arraigned for sentence she asked that she be sent to prison for life, saying her life had been ruined, and she might as well spend what remained of it in jail. She fainted after sentence had been pronounced.

The Sign of the Stork.

In a certain town in Norway the figure of a stork appears on the church and over many of the houses. Tourists who go there often find on sale on every hand images of the stork in silver and gilt, or carved in wood. The story of the origin of this sign of the stork is unusual and most interesting. The hero of the tale is Conrad Jonassen, whose name will be forever associated with the stork.

Many years ago, when Conrad was a boy, a stork built its nest on the roof of the house. Conrad and his mother fed the bird, and encouraged its return.

In time the boy went to sea. One day the ship fell into the hands of pirates, and Conrad, with his shipmates, was sold into slavery in Africa.

Hardships and indignities of all sorts were heaped upon them for three years. One day Conrad saw a stork flying about overhead, and was filled with homesick longings. He whistled to the bird as he used to do at home, and to his delight the stork came near, and finally alighted, as if expecting to be fed.

He had nothing to give the bird then, but the next day he saved a part of his breakfast, hoping that the stork would come again. It did, and for several days continued to come.

At length it occurred to the homesick slave that the stork would soon be flying north again, and like an inspiration came the thought that by means of the bird he could send a message which might possibly fall into the hands of friends.

He wrote a few lines on a bit of tough paper and bound it fast to the stork's leg. A few days later the bird disappeared.

One day Mrs. Jonassen noticed the stork, which had returned again to its nest on the roof, picking at something on its leg. She fed the bird, caught it and removed the bit of paper. Fancy the mother's feelings when she found it to be a message from her own son, long since given up for lost!

It would be too long a story to tell of the interest of the parish, of the money raised, the expedition sent to rescue Conrad and his mates. All this took place, however, and Conrad Jonassen came home. In after years he became a rich man, and did much for the welfare of his native town. The stork was never forgotten, and it is small wonder that it became the emblem of the Norwegian town.

Immoral Plays.

Commenting on the immorality of Pinero's new play, "Iris," which has just been produced in New York by Virginia Harned, William Winter says:

"It is always said in extenuation of the offence of dramas of this kind, that they teach 'a lesson.' Perhaps they do. But it is invariably a trite and trivial lesson' and completely superfluous. Fire will burn. Be virtuous and you will be happy. Twice two is four. That is the substance of the 'lesson.' 'In the name of the Prophet—Figs!' Neither man nor woman needs to be warned against a life of vice and shame. Neither man nor woman not naturally unchaste, needs any enlightenment as to the importance of chastity. And, as a matter of fact, dramas of the kind are not presented from any moral impulse or with any ethical purpose. They can easily be made, for the reason that illicit 'love'—which is their invariable theme—in its action and reaction upon human character, in the existing social environment, readily operates so as to create effective dramatic situations; and these dramas are made and presented, because these situations commonly impress the amiable multitude, and are, therefore, remunerative in money.

"No spectator ever profited by any one of them, or ever will. Their only practical effect is to fill the mind of the observer with images of immoral character and pictures of licentious life; to set the imagination brooding upon iniquities, and to sadden the heart with an almost despairing sense of human frailty and wickedness. Audiences who witness life and sin on the stage are always tremendously moved by them, declaring them to be 'strong.' So, in a certain sense, they are; but so is an onion, or a pole-cat. 'Let us,' said Dr. Johnson, 'free our minds from cant.' The true motive of all such plays as 'Iris' is sordid, shop-keeping craft, and the actual influence of all of them is the sophistication of reason, the defilement of morality, and the perversion of taste. They operate upon the mind very much as bad water operates upon the body; in both cases the result is disease."

The Motors' Defence Union.

A Pedestrians' Protection League is being formed to uphold the rights of foot-passengers on the highways. As no bane is without its antidote, an opposition union is to be organized, having in view the adoption of the following regulations:

1. Every pedestrian must carry on his front and back a large and conspicuous number, as a means of easy and rapid identification.

2. No foot-passenger shall quit the sidewalk except at certain authorized crossings. In country lanes and places where there is no sidewalk the ditch shall be considered equivalent to the same.

3. Each foot-passenger about to make use of such authorized crossings shall thrice sound a danger-signal on a hooter, fog-horn or megaphone; and after due warning has thus been given, shall traverse the road at a speed of not less than twelve miles an hour. The penalty for infringement to be forty shillings or one month.

4. Any pedestrian obstructing a motor by being run over, causing a motor to slow down or stop, or otherwise deranging the traffic, shall be summarily dealt with: the punishment for this offence to be five years' penal servitude, dating from arrest or release from hospital, as the case may be.

5. Should the pedestrian thus trespassing on the highway lose his life in an encounter with a motor car, he shall not be liable to penal servitude; compensation for shock and loss of time, however, shall be paid from his estate to the driver of the car, such amount being taxed by the coroner.

6. All cattle, sheep, pigs, swine, hares, rabbits, conies, and other ground game, and every goose, duck, fowl, or any animal whatsoever with which the motor shall collide shall, ipso facto, be confiscated to the owner of the motor.

7. Any comment, remark, reflection, sneer or innuendo concerning the shape, speed, appearance, noise, smell, or other attribute of a motor car, or of its occupants, shall be actionable; and every foot-passenger thus offending shall be bound over in the sum of £500 to keep the peace.—"Punch."

Another Industry for Peterborough

Yesterday His Worship Mayor Roger received a letter from a gentleman in London, England, who proposes to establish an industry in Peterborough. The gentleman, whose name we withhold for the present, visited Peterborough some two months ago, and was so pleased with our advantages in the way of cheap power and transportation facilities that he has decided to locate here, provided suitable inducements are offered by the town.

Bliss Carman's View of the Function of the Poet.

"What do you understand by a poet? What is his office and business in life? What part does he play in the world?" Mr. Bliss Carman propounds these questions in the literary supplement of the Chicago "Tribune," and endeavors to answer them. He writes:

"First, and speaking most roughly, the poet is a person who has something important to say about life, and has the special gift of saying it supremely well. He must be one (I think we will all admit) who has thought profoundly about existence. And yet that is not enough to make him a poet, for that is the accomplishment of a philosopher or a scientist. He must also feel deeply and strongly about life. And yet that is not enough to make him a poet, either, for many of us feel much more deeply and sincerely than we can say. No, he must not only be able to speak from a great fund of thought and knowledge and from a great fund of sympathy and emotion; he must be able to speak with the wonderful power of charm as well.

"The poet must delight our senses with the inevitable beauty of his cadences, his diction, his rhythms—with what is often called technique; he must enlist our sympathy through his own strong and generous emotional nature; he must convince our minds by his own reasonableness. He appeals to our sense of beauty, but not to that sense alone; he appeals to our sense of goodness, but not to that sense alone; he appeals to our sense of truth, but not to that sense alone. His appeal is to all three, and to all three equally."

Furthermore, the poet "ought to be and must be a normal man—not an average man, but a normal man, with all the best powers and capacities of manhood in him." He must be "capable of thought, capable of passion, capable of manual labor." He must have "shared our common life in the world." Says Mr. Carman:

"How can I talk to you with any hope of a common understanding, when I only know the facts at second hand, while you have actually experienced them, and when I have no caring about them one way or the other, while to you they are matters of life and death? The idea that a poet can ever be a mere bystander, an onlooker at life, seems to me too palpably impossible to need refutation. And I cannot believe that any great prophet or poet ever trod the earth who did not know the pinch of life at first hand, its actual bleak necessity, its terrible pathos and tremendous joy, its wonderful yet elusive significance. Nor do I believe that one for whom all the necessities and comforts and luxuries of life are provided, from the cradle to the grave, ever can know these things.

"If a man has never driven a nail in his life, nor built a fire, nor turned a furrow, nor picked a barrel of apples, nor fetched home the cows, nor pulled an oar, nor reefed a sail, nor saddled a horse, nor carried home a bag of apples from town by six-fifteen, nor weeded the garden, nor been lost in the woods, nor nursed a friend, nor barked his shin, nor been thankful for a free lunch, do you think it is likely he will have anything to say to you and me that will be worth listening to?"

In the last resort, continues the writer, the whole question of poetic feeling and of art rests on social conditions:

"The fine arts are nearly related to the industrial arts. And at present we can have no widespread national interest in the fine arts, because we have no national industrial arts. The industrial arts of a people, like the fine arts, can only be carried on by men who are free and honest and intelligent, and therefore happy. For it is quite true, as William Morris said, that art is the expression of man's pleasure in his work. But the men who engage in our industries today cannot be happy. For our industrial arts—or, rather, our industries and manufactures which ought to be industrial arts—are carried on by two classes of people, the workmen and the capitalists. Now, all workmen, under modern industrial conditions, are the slaves of their employers; while capitalists, however generous their impulses, are of necessity partakers of dishonest gain."

But while it is true that art and poetry can only come to their full development under social conditions that encourage their production, it is also true that great art has been created even under the most hostile environment. Art, declares Mr. Carman, "is not an idle amusement; it is a natural phenomenon, as significant as war, as beautiful as the Northern lights, and as useful as electricity." He says further:

"Of all forms of human activity it is the most exacting, as it is perhaps the most delightful. And the demand which creative output makes on all the energies is just as great and just as exhausting as that made by any other worthy occupation worthily followed. If poetry were a purely artificial pastime, fit only to engage the minds of college youths and schoolgirls, certainly it would not be worth our serious discussion. But if it is what history declares it to be, the voice of revelation, the finest utterance of human wisdom, the basis of religion, and the solace of sorrowing mortals, if it teaches us how to live, how to be happy, how to love the right and appreciate the beautiful and perceive the true, if it illumines the dark problems of existence and heartens us upon the difficult path to perfection, then surely we may well consider how best to encourage it and preserve it, and make its influence prevail in the commonwealth."

THEY PROCLAIM THE MERITS

To the World of Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills,

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—That the world may know of the merits of Dr. Clarke's wonderful Little Red Pills, I ask the newspapers to publish the following: I was, for years, a martyr to stomach trouble, and had no hope whatever of being cured; but on seeing a testimonial from a friend in Ontario, in one of the Toronto papers, I resolved to write to her and found that she had actually been cured of the same trouble by Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills. I at once bought three boxes and took them according to directions, and they almost cured me. I purchased three more boxes, and am thankful to say that I am entirely cured, I have no splitting headaches now, no burning pain in my stomach; in fact, have a new lease of life.

MRS. JAMES HUNTER,
Miami, Man.

A Remarkable Offer.

Sir,—We make the following proposal to the readers of the (fill in name of paper.) To any one who is a subject of rheumatism, (no matter how long standing), or any blood disease, enumerated below, and will give Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills a fair trial, and are not fully and completely cured, we will refund the money paid for the pills. If no good results follow we will forfeit $10 cash.

We have yet to know of a single case where this wonderful medicine has not been almost entirely successful in its work of relieving suffering humanity.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

BUY COLUMBUS CONSOLIDATED

Gold Mining Company's stock of Lead, S. D., at 30c. per share. The Company controls 445 acres of ground immediately adjoining the famous Homestake and having the extension of its ore deposits. Mill in operation and now treating 50 tones of ore per day, running from $7.00 to $19.00 per ton. From $12,000.00 to $15,000.00 per month being spent in development work. As soon as a new 1,000 ton mill is erected the Company will go upon a large and permanent dividend paying basis. The Homestake started with 30 acres of ground, had to haul in its machinery by ox teams from the Missouri River, and only had the stamp mill to save values from the ore. The Columbus Company started with 445 acres of ground, two lines of railway to the boundary lines of its property, has the amalgamation and cyanide processes to save the values from the ore, and has the advantage of the 25 years' experience of the Homestake Company, as it HAS IN ITS EMPLOY MR. NICK TREWEEK, WHO FOR 21 YEARS WAS UNDERGROUND FOREMAN FOR THE HOMESTAKE COMPANY. SHOULD NOT COLUMBUS DO AS WELL IF NOT BETTER THAN THE HOMESTAKE? Homestake stock started at $1.00 per share sold up to $115.00 per share, and has not missed a dividend in over 23 years. For a cheaper stock,

By Florence Warden.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

"Clever! I'll be bound he is!" said Mrs. Giles, portentously. "But I don't altogether hold with the doctor and his cleverness. I know they say there ain't nobody like him for operations and such like; but he hangs a deal too much round the houses where the flirty sort of ladies live, and thinks as much of a bright eye as he does of a broken leg. However, it's none of my business, if Raggett don't mind, that the doctor comes to yon cottage oftener than there's any sickness there. And, of course, they do say as there may be another reason."

"Oh, people shouldn't be so ill-natured," said Norma.

"My lady, isn't it human nature for to want to know the meaning of strange things? And there's no denying it's a strange thing that since the murder in the wood yonder the Wharleses seem to be swimming in money as they never were afore? Of course, I don't say the doctor would help himself from a dead man's pockets——"

"Oh," cried Norma, starting up aghast.

"Well, well, my lady, 'tisn't what I say, you know, I only repeat what other folks say. And perhaps it's as well you should know how folks will put two and two together. They say, some of 'em, my lady, as, if this man Rogerson boasted he would be richer after seeing Sir Astley than he was before, maybe the doctor wasn't above taking what he found in the man's pockets when he was examining the poor dead body, and putting it into his own."

Norma trembled with indignant excitement.

"But Sir Astley never saw the man, never spoke to him," she said, sharply. "Nothing is more certain than that. He wanted to see him, but he never did, until the poor fellow was dead."

Mrs. Giles listened to this in discreet silence. Respectful as her manner was, it was evident that Sir Astley's word went less far with her than the conjectures of her over-acute neighbors.

This difference of opinion having caused some slight embarrassment between Norma and her landlady, the former was glad to bring the interview to an end. But when she sat by herself over her lonely tea, she began in her turn to put two and two together, and to wonder whether there was any connection between Astley's munificence to Lottie at Leamington, and the sudden prosperity in the household of Dr. and Mrs. Wharles at Blackdale.

She was wondering whether it were worth while to communicate with Mr. Capper on this subject, and on the morning after her talk with Mrs. Giles she had begun a letter to him, when she was startled by the entrance of her landlady with a piece of news—the doctor had taken Ned Raggett into his employment.

"And what can he want of such a gowk as him, and that awkward he could never carry a case of medicines without breaking some, and that stupid he could never answer a question rightly at t'door, why, the doctor himself only knows!" added Mrs. Giles.

Norma affected to treat the matter as unimportant, but she was really by no means of that opinion. Putting two and two together again, it seemed strange that the doctor's assiduity in visiting the Raggetts' cottage should have resulted in his engagement in his service of such an unornamental youth as Ned.

Norma had not known the lad previous to her meeting with him after the murder; but it was the common opinion of the neighbors, as she knew, that the occurrence of that evening had addled what little brains he had, and it was observed that he had become more taciturn and morose than ever.

It was some days later when Norma, returning from her afternoon walk by way of the wide path that led through the plantation from the house to the gate in the lane, was startled to find herself suddenly confronted with the lad, Ned Raggett, who started up at her approach from a fallen tree, on the trunk of which he had been sitting.

Each uttered an exclamation at sight of the other. Norma's first impulse was to ask him some questions, now that she met him alone, about the murder; but a second glance at him showed her that the lad looked too ill to be worried.

"Why," cried she, "what's the matter with you? You look as if you ought to be in bed, and under the doctor's care."

Ned shivered.

"I doan't want to have nowt to do wi' t'doctor," he said, shortly. "I've had enough of him and of t'missis, and I've left their place and I woan't go back, I say I woan't, I woan't, I woan't!"

"But why not?" asked Norma, doing her best to suppress all the excitement she felt at this information. "Weren't they kind to you?"

The lad looked at her suspiciously out of the corners of his eyes.

"Oh, ay, kind enough; I doan't say as how they weren't kind. But—they do quarrel terr'ble, they do! Nag, nag, nag; I could hear 'em oop in my room o' neghts, and I couldn't sleep for it! No, no, I loike my work i' t' fields best, and so I off wi' my fine clothes all over buttons, and I run away."

"Well, you would have done better to let him prescribe for you before you came away," said Norma. "You look quite ill."

Ned shook his head.

"I'll go round to my grandmother's," said he. "She'll give me summat to make me reght. I'd sooner take her stuff than any of t' doctor's," he added, with a shuddery look round.

Suppressing as well as she could the intensity of the interest she felt in these words, Norma asked: "And what made you come here, of all places, instead of going to your grandmother's?"

The boy shot at her a sidelong, suspicious glance.

"Oh, t'wood's a fine place," said he, cautiously. "It's quiet, quieter nor it is at home. Father and mother, they quarrels too."

"I should have thought," said Norma, "that after what you saw here that night——"

The boy turned upon her savagely.

"I tell ye I see nowt, nowt," he said, angrily. "And whatever they says to me,—and whatever they does to me, t'ain't no good; I see nowt."

"Who's been asking you about it, then?" asked Norma, gently.

But Ned looked at her sullenly, and moved away with a slouching step in the direction of the lane. As he went he cast uneasy glances round him, and shivered and shook, and staggered in his walk.

"Never mind who arsted me," he answered roughly. Then, with a cry, he stopped and stared in front of him.

They were by this time close to the edge of the plantation, and Norma had her key ready to unlock the gate. Even as she walked on towards it, she saw, peering over the wall, the face of Dr Wharles.

Although it was not very late in the afternoon it was already somewhat misty under the trees, and neither she nor Ned could see more of the doctor than the fact that it was he who was looking over at them. After a moment's stupefied pause Ned ran forward a step and said hurriedly to the doctor:

"Hoo's been arsting me questions, but I've not towd her nowt. Hoo's been arsting about the murder; but I can't tell her nowt, and I've said so."

"Well, well," said Dr. Wharles, in his resonant tones, "there's nothing to shake and shiver about. What's wrong with you, my boy? And why aren't you back in my house by this time?"

"I doan't want to go back," said the boy in a low, frightened voice. "I'm not smart enough for your work, doctor; I'd rather not go back, sir; I'd rather go back home."

"Eh? What? Aren't you comfortable in my house? Aren't they kind to you, my boy?" asked the doctor, in a voice full of concern. By this time Norma had unlocked the gate and let Ned through it, locking it after her, and responding by a very cold bow to the doctor's salutation. As soon as the lad was outside in the lane Dr. Wharles, with professional eye, saw that all was not right with him. "Homesick, eh?" said he, "or got something the matter with your liver?"

And he kept his hand on the lad's shoulder, and looked at his tongue. But even as he turned to the lady to remark that there was not much wrong that a day or two in bed would not put right, Ned took advantage of the opportunity, and wrenching himself away from the doctor, was over the wall again and running along in the wood like a hare.

The doctor did not attempt to give chase.

"A singular lad that, Lady Darwen," said he, "sullen and taciturn, but good-hearted at bottom, I believe."

"I have no doubt of it," said Norma, with another very cold inclination of the head she turned away in the direction of Mrs. Giles' cottage.

But Dr. Wharles went after her.

"One moment, Lady Darwen," said he, intercepting her at the very door. "I do hope you'll allow me to express the very great regret I feel that any action or word of mine should have caused you pain." She moved restlessly, but he would not let her go. "You remember the sympathy I felt for you from the very first moment I met you at The Haigh. I'm sure you'll make allowances for the difficult position in which I am placed——"

"I not only make every allowance, Dr. Wharles, but I beg that you will not give yourself the trouble of expressing sympathy for me again."

There was nothing for it but for him to draw back and allow her to go in. But into his eyes as she passed him there came the very same look of cold hatred which had appeared in them when Astley had struck him with his whip.

Norma went indoors trembling very much. It was the first time she had spoken to the doctor since the inquest, and she would have avoided the meeting if she could. But once face to face with the man, listening to words which she knew to be hypocritical, to sympathy which she was certain was feigned, her repugnance had got the better of her prudence, and she felt, with a certain qualm of uneasiness, that she had made an enemy of him for life.

The next moment she started up from the chair on which she had sunk. She would follow Ned Raggett into the wood; she had noted the direction taken by him, skirting the wall in the direction of the high road—and try to extract from him some information concerning the murder she felt sure he had witnessed. She did not feel very hopeful about making him speak, but there was nothing to be lost, while something might be gained, by the attempt.

So, first looking out to be sure that Dr. Wharles was safely inside the Raggetts' cottage, she ran across the road again, let herself through the gate, and turned to the left under the wall.

As she went along she heard footsteps in the lane outside, going in the direction of the cottages; not the heavy footsteps of one of the laborers or their wives, but the light footfall of a woman of a different class.

Norma wondered whether it might be Lady Myfanwy or Miss Brown come to see her, as they sometimes did in the evening; but before she could call out or climb up to look over the high wall, she heard the sound of Dr. Wharles's laugh as he came out of the cottage, and instantly checked herself in the act of moving forward.

The next moment she was startled to hear a sharp exclamation in the doctor's voice while he was yet some distance away; and then the voice of Mrs. Wharles, on the other side of the wall from where Norma stood, uttered an angry cry.

"So I've caught you at last, have I?" cried the jealous wife, her voice, which she did not raise very high, trembling with passion. "I know very well that there was something more than illness that brought you always up this lane, day after day, and evening after evening; I knew very well it was some woman. It's that bold-eyed, horrible Nance Raggett! I saw you with her. I saw you——"

"If you would condescend to be reasonable," replied the doctor, also in a low voice, but with clenched teeth and sullen, angry tones, "you would know why I visit the Raggetts' house so often."

"Oh, yes, of course, you'll say it's to stop young Raggett's mouth——"

At these words Norma, who had been moving away to be out of earshot of a conversation which was not intended for her, threw aside her scruples and waited, crouching against the wall, breathless, for the next words.

"Well, if you know that, can't you have the sense to be quiet about it?" growled the doctor.

"No, I sha'n't, because I know it's only an excuse, a blind. The boy will hold his tongue, you know that; you've cowed him too much for him ever to dare to speak. Besides, isn't he under your own eye now? Isn't he——"

"You fool!" retorted the doctor. "Don't you know he's run away? Come back here this evening? I caught him in the wood just now."

There was a pause. Mrs. Wharles seemed astonished at the information.

"Now get home as fast as you can, and for goodness' sake, if you must give me these scenes, let's have them indoors," said the doctor, sharply. "I don't know what more you want than you've got. You've got jewelry, clothes, everything you want; nearly every penny goes on you, and yet you're forever dissatisfied, forever wrangling and nagging! I've no patience with you!"

"No patience with me, after what I've done for you! Didn't I save your neck?"

Whether Norma cracked a broken branch under her feet in her startled amazement she never knew. But the doctor suddenly cried in a low voice:

"There's someone there listening, by Jove!"

Helter-skelter, as if flying for her life, Norma turned and fled into the recesses of the wood.

LOOKS TO BRITAIN AND ITALY

Paris, April 9 Nothing has ever brought out the gradual weakening of French enthusiasm for the Franco-Russian alliance so strongly as the present situation. Statesmen from the Tribune, in the Chamber, and also inspired journalists give utterance to slighting views regarding Russia with a ready carelessness that would have shocked the whole nation two years ago. This feeling seems to be spreading throughout the most thoughtful political quarters that the dual alliance does not represent the best interests either of France, Russia or the rest of Europe.

At a political dinner given lately by a former foreign minister at his home on the Boulevard St. Germain, the guests, most of whom were men of first rank in public life, discussed at length the greater advantage of an Anglo-Franco Italian alliance. This would have been sufficient to have ruined their careers six years ago.

Germany's joining the Austro-Russian policy, taken in connection with certain unequivocal editorials in several Russian papers, not only hurts the strong Russophile party, but further familiarizes the public with the idea of weakening the alliance. A correspondent has authority for saying that several of the most clear minded men in the van guard of French public life do not believe that the alliance will be in existence two years hence.

THE FROST & WOODS STRIKE.

Smith's Falls, April 9— The strike among the metal workers at the Frost & Wood Co., of Smith's Falls has gradually spread and at present there are over 450 laborers on strike. The first action was taken on March 9th, when the Metal Workers' Union sent a letter to the Frost & Wood Co., making demands regarding wages and unionism. The firm refused to grant these demands and the men went out, one section after another. At present the outlook is very blue for a settlement. The Malleable works are about shut down and there are a little over a hundred working in the Frost & Wood Co.'s shops. The town people are discouraged over the prospect and unless a settlement is reached shortly, the outlook for the summer is very blue.

FOR THREE MURDERS

Klosowski Pays the Penalty for Killing Three Wives

London, April 7—Klosowski, alias Chapman, the Southwark saloon-keeper who was found guilty March 19 at the Old Bailey of the murder of the murder by poison of three women who lived with him as his wives in different parts of London, and who was sentenced to death the same day, was hanged this morning in Wandsworth jail.

He was in a state of complete collapse, and had to be supported by warders. He protested his innocence to the end, declared his real name was Chapman, and said he was an American by birth.

STOCK MARKETS

TIME TO BUY B.R.T.

New York, April 9—This is the season of the year when more or less bullish activity usually occurs in B.R.T. Stock Prospects for its summer business, which is its best season, are reviewed and the insiders make their regular annual turn in the shares. Have you noticed how strong this stock has been for the past two weeks, frequently actually advancing in an adverse market. It is because some one has been buying it, and doing so freely all winter long. Immense improvements have been under way and the company is on the verge of its prosperous period, better equipped to handle a large business profitably than ever before. Many additional attractions, costing a great deal of money, have been added to the seaside aggregation for this year. They are already being largely advertised in the elevated railway and surface cars, and a most prosperous season is anticipated. Improvements have been made in the B.R.T. system which will minimize cost of operation materially. Earnings are greatly on the increase, net results being favorable. The new bridges will also greatly increase the local travel, while the City of Brooklyn is increasing in population by leaps and bounds. The late Gov. Flower always maintained that the future value of B. R. T. stock would be principally due to the growth of the City of Brooklyn. The contemplated tunnels and the improvements planned by the great Penna railway system, which controls the Long Island railroad will be bound to have a most beneficial effect. Outside of, to some extent, discounting these facts however, this will prove to be a bullish argument later on. The market action of the stock, the past two weeks strongly indicates something doing. In the shares, the stock should certainly be good for 75, if not for 80. When under the hammer, it becomes intensely dull, but with little stock offering the demand causes immediate buoyancy. It is quite clear that the floating supply is comparatively limited at the present time. The old flower bull part have recently been good buyers and speak in the most bullish strain as to the immediate future of the shares. It looks to us to be good to buy at present and we believe a very moderate margin will be all that is necessary to hold stock purchased at current prices.

Summary—The market opened up this morning on average about 1-2 points all round, following London's lead. St. Paul, copper, and sugar [illegible] leaders in advance. Prices improved still further to extent of a point and a quarter on the average. In the afternoon there was a drive against prices, the medium priced shares being attacked as well as the best issues. At the decline buying orders appeared in goodly quantities. An announcement of adverse decision in the Northern Securities matter was the cause of reaction. The comparatively little figure it cut was surprising, and indicates a willingness of public to buy at present prices, also makes quite plain the fact that prices are pounding on bottom figures right now. Money 8 per cent. Sales 742,500.

An Organ Out of Order.

The manner in which a gang of forgers in Warsaw have been discovered and broken up makes curious reading. A domiciliary visit had to be paid by the police to a house, and on the arrival of the officers no opposition was offered to their entry. Inside one of the rooms, however, they found a man playing a cabinet organ, and all the time the visit lasted the man remained at the organ. As they were about to leave the house the officer in charge of the police, being something of a musician himself, asked the performer to play the Russian National Hymn before they left. This the man did, but the officer was not pleased with the performance, and complained that the player did not put enough expression into the melody. The man explained that he was unable to do so, as the loud pedal arrangement of the organ was out of order. The officer at once volunteered to repair it, and, in spite of the protests of the performer, set to work to do so. Great was his surprise on opening the instrument to discover that the pedal would not work because bundles of forged notes had been stuffed into the instrument. Arresting everyone in the house, the police carefully examined the organ, and found, besides the notes, documents which revealed the membership of the gang of forgers.

"Get" or "Gotten?"

[illegible] letter to the New York "Saturday Review" Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson speaks of the recrudescent use of "gotten" instead of "got" for the perfect participle of "get," as a Southern custom which has been making its way in the North since the civil war. Before that he cannot remember to have heard it, and he says that he heard it first in the South. He thinks that in the North it was so obsolescent as almost to be obsolete; and though we should doubt the entire exactness of his observation, we agree with him that it is a form which even the sweet voices of Southern women cannot render pleasing. When it reaches the ear through the noses of their Northern sisters it is of an insufferableness which even its prevalence in lady-journalism cannot atone for. Probably it has always been in use wherever English is spoken, surviving in a merited obscurity under the frown of polite learning, but not leading a life of final outlawry. Your perfect participle, however, is at best an uncertain part of speech and perilously misleading. In Addison's time it was quite proper for Sir Richard Steele to write "had wrote" for "had written;" and people who do not look carefully to their steps still say they "had went," while some of the over-anxious try to secure themselves against a fall by saying "had have gone," in certain contingencies. These are the pseudo-purists who note the vulgarity of saying "I done it," and shun it as widely as possible by saying "I have did it."

Weary Willie—Please, mum, can't you give a poor man some breakfast? Mrs. Givemuch—Certainly. After you saw that wood you may eat the sawdust. It makes a fine breakfast food.—Ex.

"How would you define 'exercise,' as distinguished from 'work'?" asked the teacher.

"Exercise," answered Johnny, "is work you like to do, and work is exercise you don't like to do."—Chicago Tribune.

A MAGNIFICENT INVESTMENT

THE GOLD TUNNEL COMPANY,
PRESCOTT, ARIZONA.

The Company owns in SIX PARALLEL VEINS of GIGANTIC SIZE, one of the largest GOLD PROPOSITIONS in the country. Each of these six veins would make a mine by itself.

The Company, by purchase and consolidation, has succeeded in acquiring the entire length of these great GOLD BEARING ledges; covering an area six thousand feet in length and about two thousand feet wide. The Company owns this valuable property free of any incumbrance.

The ground included in this group of mines gives ample evidence of tremendous natural disturbances, and shows plainly on the surface the acid and mineral stains characteristic of a heavy mineralized gold lead of gigantic proportions.

Six Miles of Gold Bearing Veins

Through the length of four of the mining claims; forming a continuous line 6,000 feet long run THREE LEDGES so close together as to be economically worked from one opening; they aggregate from 85 to 300 feet in width.

The adjoining line of three mining claims show ledge 4,500 feet in length, varying in width from 7 to 200 feet, with the same character of ore.

Beginning at the south end of the "Eighty-Four" mining claim, is a fifth large ledge carrying good values in GOLD, and running in a northerly direction for a distance of fully forty five hundred feet.

Two mining claims on the east side show GOLD BEARING CROPPINGS 40 to 50 feet wide through their entire length, a distance of three thousand feet.

All of the ledges are well mineralized, carrying at grass root values in gold running from about $2 00 to $6 00 per ton.

TWO-TEN OIL CO.

of Boulder, Colorado.

Capital Stock, 1,500,000 shares. In Treasury, 500,000 shares

TRANSFER OFFICE; BRISTOL, CONN.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in, in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock at 15 cents per share, for that purpose.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by, the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 81 years old and for 9 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
179 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema, same price. $500 will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Objects of the Company

UNITED TYPEWRITER COMPANY, LIMITED, has taken over the business of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company, with head office in Toronto, and branches in Montreal, Hamilton and London, together with good will, book accounts, contracts, patents, etc., including sole right for the Dominion to manufacture and deal in Rotary and Hand Neostyle Duplicating Machines and Supplies; a ten year exclusive selling right for the Underwood Typewriter in Canada; a five-year exclusive contract for Webster's Star Brand Ribbons and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper and renewable contract for the Empire Typewriter for Ontario, the only satisfactory low-priced typewriter now on the market. Another object of the Company is to unite more closely the typewriter interests with the educational forces of our country, and every legitimate effort will be made to accomplish this result.

A Synopsis

Of the business of Creelman Bros, Typewriter Company for the past six years and eight months is as follows:

From MAY 1st, 1896, to JAN. 1st, 1897	$15,969.35
From JAN. 1st, 1897 to JAN. 1st, 1898	26,916.54
From JAN. 1st, 1898, to JAN. 1st, 1899	46,712 32
From JAN. 1st, 1899, to JAN. 1st, 1900	72,443.00
From JAN. 1st, 1900, to JAN. 1st, 1901	81,882.60
From JAN. 1st, 1901, to JAN. 1st, 1902	96,687.00
From JAN. 1st, 1902, to JAN. 1st, 1903	125,000 00

The total capital invested is $71,366.12. The business has paid 8 per cent on investment and $14,917.72 has been carried to Rest Account, after liberal deduction for depreciation, so that if all profits had been divided the result would have averaged over 15 per cent. during the entire period above stated.

Success—Past and Future

The typewriter business in Canada has developed in a remarkable manner within the past few years, and the success and history of Creelman Bros. Typewriter Company is strong evidence of this fact. As the most progressive Typewriter institution in Canada, this Company has achieved a position of undisputed supremacy, and has, by a large expenditure of time and money, laid a foundation for a solid, permanent and successful business. The great benefit of this point of work must become a very valuable asset to the new Company. It augurs well for the prosperity of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, that the Directorate includes all the members of the old firm under whose control and management the business has grown to its present proportions and consequent success.

Investment and Profit

The profits of the old firm, even under the conditions of a difficult and expensive career in establishing a new business, have been most encouraging and satisfactory. This fact warrants a reasonable expectation for excellent profits in the future, so that subscribers may rely upon the stock of the Company as a perfectly safe investment, more particularly as the typewriter business is but in its infancy in our rapidly growing and progressive Dominion, while the possibilities of an ever-expanding foreign and export trade are very bright indeed.

The Underwood Typewriter

Has been sold in Canada for four years, and over 3,000 have been placed in commercial, railroad, Government, banking and other offices. One of the leading banking institutions alone is now using over 100 of these machines. It is the only high-grade writing machine on which the writing is visible from commencement to finish and also the only one combining a Tabulator for invoicing, without attachments and additional cost. Over 500 Underwood machines are used by leading Educational Institutions in Canada.

Customs returns show that more Underwoods were imported into Canada during the last fiscal year than all other makes combined.

The Empire Typewriter

is not unlike the Underwood in regard to visible writing, as this essential feature is one of the good points of this machine. It is durable and portable, and retails at $60.00 net. Over 1,000 are in use in Ontario. There is no competition as far as price is concerned, all other reliable machines being listed at from $100 to $125.

Star Brand Ribbons

and Multi-Kopy Carbon Paper are famous all over the world, Canada being no exception. This Company controls the selling agency for the Dominion.

The Rotary Neostyle

is the latest and most up-to-date Duplicating machine. This Company owns the patents and all other rights for Canada for the machine and requisite supplies, and intends to manufacture these articles at an early date.

Typewriter Ribbons

and Carbon Paper are in great demand in Canada, the importations during 1901 amounting to about $75,000, on which 35 per cent. duty was paid. This Company intends to pursue a progressive policy in this connection, and will at once investigate carefully and judiciously all necessary details with a view to manufacturing these goods.

Typewriter Machines

have found their way into the leading business offices of the Dominion, and, in fact, are now largely used by clergymen and teachers and occupy a place in the homes of many professional and business men. It is estimated that over 50,000 are now in use in Canada. There are no standard machines manufactured in Canada. It is the intention of this Company to make arrangements for manufacturing a high-grade machine for the Canadian market as soon as conditions warrant it.

Policy and Management

The policy of the late Creelman Bros.' Typewriter Company will be closely followed as to the sale of Typewriters and the general conduct of the business. Mr. J. J. Seitz, General Manager of that Company from its inception, will be the Managing Director of the new Company. Mr. Seitz is well and favorably known in connection with the typewriter business throughout the Dominion, and under the new conditions his many years of experience in organizing, etc, will be of particular value to the new Company.

Educational Policy

It is an admitted fact that Business Colleges and other Educational Institutions are strong factors in controlling the adoption and use of Typewriting machines in general. It is desired to systematize as far as possible the general instruction in typewriting given in all Canadian schools, by confining such instruction to standard machines only, and it will be the policy of this Company to pursue such definite plans as will tend to popularize the art of typewriting in all such schools, and through them to support the general use of such standard machine or machines, as it may control. With this end in view this Company will arrange to co-operate with leading Commercial Schools throughout the Dominion.

(Extract Globe, March 18th, 1903.)

A STRONG COMBINATION

BUSINESS COLLEGES AND TYPEWRITER COMPANY UNITE

A union of the interests of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, which was organized a few months ago with a capital of $250,000, to take over the old and well established business of the Creelman Bros. Typewriter Co., with those of that educational organization known as the Federated Business Colleges of Ontario, Limited, which includes eleven prominent Business Colleges, also the Central Business College, of Toronto, was consummated last week. Mr. W. H. Shaw, the well known Principal of the Central Business College, of Toronto, and who is also the President of the United Typewriter Company, becomes the General Manager of the Federated Business Colleges. Under his direction a high standard of efficiency in the work of all these schools is guaranteed and a policy of expansion will be carried out, by which a considerable number of well equipped and thoroughly reliable business schools will be established throughout the Dominion.

Canada will thus have one of the strongest combinations of business schools under one management to be found anywhere, and her sons and daughters will enjoy the best possible opportunities for obtaining that practical education, which in this age is so necessary for their success.

The Federated Schools comprise the following:

British American Business College, Toronto.
Canada Business College, Hamilton.
Hamilton Business College, Hamilton.
Forest City Business College, London.
Ottawa Business College, Ottawa.
Metropolitan Business College, Ottawa.
St. Catharines Business College, St. Catharines.
Brantford Business College, Brantford.
Galt Business College, Galt.
Berlin Business College, Berlin.
Sarnia Business College, Sarnia.

The first year of federation a cash dividend of 3 1-2 per cent. was paid, and the second year, not yet completed, an interim dividend of 13 1-2 per cent. has already been declared, with a prospect of 6 per cent. additional.

The Central Business College, Toronto, is not only one of the best known, but also one of the best paying institutions in the Dominion. A combination of these schools with United Typewriter Co., Limited, is bound to become a first-class investment.

The Directors of the United Typewriter Company, Limited, offer $50,000 of stock to the public at par, (subject to previous sale). This stock will increase rapidly in value on account of its great earning power and future stock will undoubtedly be held at a considerable premium.

THE CENTRAL FAIR

A Splendid Exhibition Assured for Next Autumn

The outlook for the approaching agricultural and arts exhibition next autumn is growing brighter every day. Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, the energetic president, is determined to make the show a credit to Peterborough and his efforts, we are pleased to say, are meeting with a fair measure of success. Not only has the business men of the town responded cheerfully to the call for financial assistance, but there is every prospect that the Council of the town and county will deal liberally with the reorganized association.

The dissolution of the Peterborough Poultry Association, which did such good work under such adverse circumstances for so many years, has had a depressing effect on all lovers of fancy birds. The liberal prizes which will doubtless be offered by the Central Exhibition Association under the poultry class, will do much to revive the waning interest.

This great family journal is of the opinion that chicken fanciers in Peterborough will have something to crow about next fall.

MR. ROY'S STUDIO

The Premises Have Been Completely Overhauled and Improved

Mr. R. M. Roy now possesses one of the most charming and best equipped photograph studios in the Dominion of Canada. New rooms have been secured on the first flat, including a large reception room, which is really beautiful in its adornment and complete in every appointment, splendid large photographs of children, interspersed with smaller pictures tastefully arranged, adding very materially to the scene. The office is conveniently situated beside the waiting room, while to the rear is located the lavatory and dressing rooms, containing every convenience desired. The bright cheery atmosphere of the operating room, takes away every awkward feeling and dispels the gloom of ordinary "picture taking." The equipment is new and up-to-date in every respect, including all modern instruments, new backgrounds, and splendid accessories. But all this would be of no avail if it were not for the fact that an artist of splendid parts and extended experience superintends every detail. Not only is the comfort and pleasure of the patrons provided for, but every piece of work turned out goes forth as a standing advertisement of the very superior work done in this magnificent studio. We believe that we do not flatter Mr. Roy when we say that his work is equal to the best in any city, or any country.

An Interesting Wedding

On Wednesday evening the wedding of Miss Rachael, daughter if Mr. Thos. Bradshaw, of South Monaghan, and Mr. Henry Rose, of Otonabee was solemnized at the George street Methodist church parsonage by Rev. J. P. Wilson. The bride was assisted by Miss Minnie E. Fair, of South Monaghan and Mr. Joseph Welsh of Otonabee, performed the duties of groomsman.

The Late Mrs. Doris

We regret to record the death of Mrs. Bernard Doris, who for the past fifteen years has been a resident of town. The late Mrs. Doris resided at No. 589 Gilchrist street and for the past two years has been ill with heart trouble. She was born in Asphodel 64 years ago and resided for some time in Hastings. Some fifteen years ago the family moved to Peterborough. Her husband predeceased her about one year ago. Deceased leaves a family of seven sons and four daughters.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, 589 Gilchrist st., to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

EASTER VACATIONS

For the Easter Vacation the Canadian Pacific announce return tickets will be issued the general public at single fare, good going April 9th to 13th, inclusive; valid for return until April 14th. On surrender of standard form of school vacation railway certificate, teachers and students will be issued return tickets at single fare and one third, good going April 4th to 11th, good for return until April 21st, 1903.

The Easter Vacations are always looked forward to with considerable anticipation after the winter season, and the favorable limit will no doubt induce many to avail themselves of the opportunity for visiting friends at this season.

Tickets will be issued between all stations in Ontario, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Detroit, Mich. and East. Ask your Canadian Pacific Agent for copy of leaflet giving full particulars.

"Shut your eyes, open your mouth and see what luck will bring you."

The mother smiles at the childish game, and doesn't realize that it is a game she as a woman has perhaps played for a great many years.

Many a woman is weak and sick, nervous and discouraged. She suffers from headache, backache and other ills. She wants to be well, but all she does is to shut her eyes and open her mouth for medicine and trust to luck for results. She "doctors" month after month, often year after year, in this same blind, hap-hazard fashion, and receives no permanent benefit.

Women take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription with their eyes open to the fact that it cures womanly ills. It cures irregularity. It dries debilitating drains. It heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. There is no trusting to luck by those who use "Favorite Prescription."

"My disease was displacement and ulceration of the uterus, and I was in a terrible condition with pain and weakness and had given up all hopes of ever being well again," writes Mrs. Harry A. Brown, of Orono, Penobscot Co., Me. "Had doctored with four different doctors within four months, and instead of getting better was growing weaker all the time. I decided to try your 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' as I had heard of the many cures resulting from their use. I bought five bottles and felt so much better after taking them that I kept on until I am as well as ever in my life, and to Dr. Pierce all the praise is due. I cannot say enough in favor of his medicines. Before I began taking your medicines I only weighed one hundred and twenty pounds. I now weigh one hundred and sixty pounds. I gained forty pounds in six months. I shall doctor no more with home doctors, as it is only waste of money. I am now in perfect health, thanks to Dr. Pierce."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the muddy complexion.

AMERICAN RAILWAY'S DESPERATE MEASURES

To Stem the Tide of Immigration Towards This Country---Military Tents for the Settlers

Winnipeg, Man., April 11.—Yesterday was an off day for arriving immigrants. The regular train brought a couple of car loads of people of mixed nationalities. The officials, however, brought up thirty car loads of Galicians and Germans from the East Selkirk sheds, and, splitting them up, forwarded them to the West to the different settlements of their own nationalities.

To prevent any hardships three hundred military tents were sent on to Saskatoon, Rosthern, Regina, Red Deer, and places where accomodation is said to be insufficient. Stories of hardships owing to lack of shelter at Saskatoon are denied.

L. L. Kleinefetter, agent at Iowa River, says the railways there are booming the South-Western States and libelling the Canadian North-West most unscrupulously. To offset this rabid attack, Kleinefetter is getting statements from Iowans who settled thirteen sections near Bates settlement last year, and says he will fight the railroads to a finish.

A PRO-BOER WINS BY BIG MAJORITY

And in Spite of the Emphasis of This Issue by the Colonial Secretary

London, April 9.—The Parliamentary vacancy in the Camborne division of Cornwall, due to the death of W. S. Caine (Progressive Liberal) was filled today by the return of Sir Wilfrid Lawson with an increased Liberal majority. The figures were: Sir Wilfrid Lawson (Liberal), 3,788; Arthur Strauss (Liberal Unionist), 2,869. Considerable rowdyism marked the canvassing. The students of a local mining college had frequent encounters with the villagers.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson's increased majority was not expected, as he was bitterly assailed for his so-called "little Englisher" attitude. Sir Wilfrid openly declared the Government ought to give back the Transvaal and Orange Free State to the Boers, and otherwise identified himself with the ardent pro-Boer party. Mr. Strauss, who had already represented Camborne for five years, was considered to be a strong local candidate. The Liberal success probably was due to the dissatisfaction of the nonconformist Cornishmen at the Government's educational measures. Sir Wilfrid Lawson's election brings back to Westminster a picturesque figure, long known for his vehement enthusiasm in the cause of temperance.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain sent a telegram to the electors, pointing out that throughout the war Sir Wilfrid had "invariably sympathized with the enemies of his country."

NEW LINE TO TORONTO

Canadian Pacific Railway Reported to Back a Scheme

For Building from North Bay in Order to Obviate the Use of the G.T.R. Northern Division

The C.P.R. has never been entirely satisfied with its arrangements with the G.T.R. for reaching Toronto from the north-west over the north- [illegible] fact, a few years ago, during the war of rates, threatened to build a connecting line of its own. An application just made to Parliament looks as if the project was revived. Mr. L. T. Barclay, of Whitby, and others are applying for authority to construct and operate a railway or tramway from a point at South Bay, on Lake Nipissing, in a general southwesterly and southerly direction, to some point or points on the Georgian Bay; thence to Lake Simcoe, and a point on the C.P.R. in the Counties of Dufferin, Peel or York; or points on the C.P.R. between Myrtle and Peterboro; also from South Bay via Callendar to North Bay. A glance at the map shows that the plan is really to connect the C.P.R. main line at North Bay with the Ontario & Quebec division near Peterboro, by which easy access would be had to Toronto. It is reported at Ottawa that the C.P.R. is behind the application of Mr. Barclay. He also gives notice that application will be made at the present session of parliament for an act to incorporate a lumber, power and navigation company, from carrying on in Parry Sound district, and also throughout Canada and elsewhere the business of lumberers and manufacturers of all timber and pulp products, operating and dealing in mines and minerals, and also generating electricity for light and power purposes.

HOTEL MEN HAMPERED

Local Bonifices Want More Freedom

They Say the Local Regulations are Too Severe—Comparison with Other Lines of Business—Views on the Question

"I think it is about time that we hotel keepers took a firm stand on the question of our rights," remarked a local licensed victualler last evening while discussing the cases re- [illegible]

"We have never received fair treatment from the authorities, but have been hounded from one year's end to another. First of all, we have to pay a high license to do a legitimate business, and we are heavily taxed besides. The places in which we do business are subjected to exacting restrictions. The hours in which we are allowed to do business are defined and an inspector is appointed to see to it that we respect the law in all its exactings.

"Now, I claim that our business is just as legitimate as that of the butcher, the baker or any other line of commerce, yet those merchants are not subjected to the restrictions which are put upon us. By-laws have been passed by the council restricting merchants in certain lines of business to definite hours, in which they may sell goods, but these by-laws were petitioned for by the merchants. Why should not we hotel men have the same privilege?

"Here is another point I wish to bring to your attention: If we keep open five minutes after the hour prescribed for our closing, we are summoned before the magistrate and fined, but merchants in other lines of business, whose hours for keeping open are named by by-law, may violate the law night after night, but you never hear of one of them being arraigned before the magistrate and fined. I maintain that we are not getting a square deal.

"Then, again, we would not object to the provisions of the Ontario license law is all right, but what we all 'kick' against are the regulations tacked on by the commissioners; they are unfair, unjust and unreasonable. For instance: The Ontario license law says that liquor must not be sold after eleven o'clock. That would give us time to clean out our bars and shut up, but the regulations say we must not have anybody in the bar after eleven o'clock. Supposing three or four comes in at five minutes to eleven. It is impossible to serve them, get them out and lock up before the clock strikes. If we were given ten or fifteen minutes' grace we would not mind so much. These are only a few grievances. I could go on enumerating them all night."

With that the clock struck eleven, the "glims were doused," the reporter for this g.f.j. unceremoniously hustled out into the cold, wet world, and the door locked behind him.

RIOTS AND BLOOD

At Walkerville—Strike Breakers Attacked at Canadian Bridge Company's Works

Windsor, April 11.—The riots which grew out of the strike of the employes of the Canadian Bridge Company at Walkerville on Thursday assumed for a time a serious aspect. The trouble is quieting down, but not before Michael J. Sullivan, an employe of the Windsor Salt Works, who lived at the Crown Inn, Walkerville, was dangerously wounded by a revolver shot, and half a dozen others severely hurt in the melee.

The arrival of 50 policemen prevented a serious conflict in Detroit. As the 20 or 25 non-union workmen were on their way home after 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, upon leaving the company's building in Walkerville they were greeted by a crowd with a storm of hisses and taunts. These men who had taken the strikers' places were mostly residents of Detroit, and as they moved down Second avenue to the ferry dock, surrounded by special policemen, the crowd became more and more aggressive, and stones and eggs were hurled at them. The special police remained on the Canadian side. The disturbance did not become dangerously aggressive until the arrival of the boat with the non-strikers at her dock on the United States side of the river. A crowd of about 300 men and boys at the foot of Campau street, Detroit, greeted the non-strikers with bricks, stones and other weapons as the men left the boat. After proceeding a few hundred yards the crowd began to close in on them, there being only one policeman to afford protection. A hurry call for all the available policemen in Western Detroit was sent. Even after their arrival it was only by hard work and the free use of their clubs that the officers were able to disperse the mob.

THE FIRST BLOW.

During the disturbance, in Walkerville, Mayor Swift, Chief Griffiths, and several special policemen arrived, and a man named Bignorth was arrested as the one who had struck the first blow. He was sentenced by Magistrate Bartlett at Windsor, on Thursday to six months' imprisonment without the option of a fine, although a considerable sum of money had been subscribed by his fellows to effect his release.

As a result of the attack upon their workmen at the foot of Campau street, Detroit, the Canadian Bridge Company have closed their plant at Walkerville, and the management will not say whether they will resume operations on Monday or not. Numbers of orders are booked ahead and, if the labor troubles continued their fulfilment would be difficult.

C. F. Doherty of Detroit, a member of the office staff, said: "The company is going to stand by George Kennedy, the shipping clerk, who shot in self-defence. I believe if he had not fired the shots several of our employes would have been killed before the police arrived. He was perfectly justified in shooting to save his life. I believe that the trouble was pre-arranged, for as soon as the boat arrived a large crowd were waiting. No one has as yet made any move to reach a compromise since the fight last night. I would not be surprised if this trouble should hasten matters, and that before long a committee of the strikers should meet the officials of the company. I believe nearly all the men would be taken back, notwithstanding the trouble. In a mix-up like that it is hard to determine who is really responsible. The company employs about 300 men, 75 per cent. of whom at least are laborers."

A DETROIT COMPANY.

An extra force of police is patrolling Walkerville, but no further violence, it is believed, will occur.

The Canadian Bridge Company is controlled almost entirely by Americans who live in Detroit. The officers are: President, F. C. McMath; vice-president, Williard Pope; secretary and treasurer, B. S. Colborn, all of Detroit.

RIOT IN RUSSIA'S CAPITAL CITY

Two Thousands Persons Without Passport Arrested

London, April 11.—A Central News despatch from St. Petersburg says serious disturbances occurred in various districts of the city Thursday night, and nearly 2,000 individuals, who were not provided with passports as required by the law, were arrested.

OFFICIALS REINSTALLED.

St. Petersburg, April 11.—Prince Peter D. Dolgoroukov, who was dismissed from his position as Marshal of Nobility of Soudzla in Koursk for his activity in the local Agricultural committee, and was placed under police supervision for five years, has been reinstalled in his position and all his political rights by the Czar.

Mr. Mouklanov, Marshal of Nobility for Chernigov, whose re-election was not confirmed for the same reason, also has been promised confirmation.

Many revolutionary proclamations recently have been circulating in the military academies and cadet schools. This led to the arrest of two officers of the Artillery Academy and their incarceration in the fortress of Peter and Paul. Searches at their homes incriminated a number of officers at Kiev, and they also were arrested. One of these prisoners is said to have primed the revolver of Balmashev, the assassin of Minister Sipiaguine. The circulars introduced into the military schools demand a constitution.

MARTIAL LAW FOR HOLLAND.

The Hague, April 11.—At an urgent of the First Chamber of the Netherlands Parliament to-day the anti-strike bills, previously adopted by the Second Chamber, were passed unanimously.

Queen Wilhelmina immediately sanctioned the anti-strike bills, which, forthwith, became effective. The militia remains under arms and is guarding the railroads.

Amsterdam, April 11.—The disagreement between the strikers and the Workmen's Defence committee has resulted in the situation of affairs becoming more threatening. Further and more stringent military precautions have been taken. Extra troops have been summoned here, and martial law will be proclaimed.

FATHER FOUGHT A DUEL.

Halifax, N.S., April 11.—Robert H. Martin, one of the few remaining pioneers of Sydney, died this morning. Deceased was widely known. He was married to Kate, daughter of the late Lawrence Kavanagh, of St. Peter's, the first Catholic member returned to the local Legislature of Nova Scotia. His grandfather was a captain in the Royal Navy, and his father fought a duel with a brother of the present Judge Dodd, of Sydney, killing him. The jury brought in a verdict of "Not guilty."

NAPOLEON'S DEATH BED

Relic of the St. Helena Exile Offered for Sale

Paris, April 11.—The bed in which Napoleon the Great died at St. Helena is now offered for sale here for $20,000. It is made of brass and is in excellent condition. Students of Napoleonic relics admit that this is one of the best finds in connection with the great Emperor, and that it is the most interesting Napoleonic relic to be had. It has been preserved in the family of Count de Montholon, who shared Napoleon's exile in St. Helena. The present Countess de Montholon is a venerable lady of eighty, and as she is the last of the line there are no family considerations to prevent her from selling the relic. The bed is mounted same as it was in Napoleon's room at St. Helena. The Countess also owns a dinner service of sixty-four pieces which was once the property of Napoleon.

BARONESS TAKES HER LIFE

Wife of an Austrian Nobleman Faces Before Mirror and Fires Through Her Brain

New York, April 12.—The body of Mrs. Louise Ames Van Weik, also known as Baroness Van Weik, was discovered in the Washington Hotel, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, seated in a rocking chair in front of a large mirror that reflected her lifeless features. A pistol still grasped in her right hand lay in her lap. She was 37 years old and has but recently returned from Sioux Falls, S.D., where, it is said, she had procured a divorce from Baron Wolfbauer.

The dead woman was the daughter of Captain Ames of the United States army, and a granddaughter of Bishop Ames of the Methodist Episcopal church, once president of De Pauw university, from which college she graduated in 1888.

The life of the dead woman was eventful. She married Otto Van Weik, a wealthy merchant of Baltimore, who died several years ago. Two years ago she married Baron Wolbauer, an Austrian nobleman, in Paris, from whom it is said she had secured a divorce. She is survived by a 10-year-old daughter by her first husband.

IN PERIL OF TYPHOID

Old London Said to be in Grave Danger of Disease

THE THAMES FISHERIES

Nature Inflicting Penalties for Over-Crowding

Deaths Traced to Oysters from Whitstable—The Question a Most Serious One

London, April [illegible]—What is bound to become one of the greatest problems of the twentieth century has suddenly confronted London in a rather peculiar form. It consists of one of Nature's warnings that the limit has been reached beyond which it is impossible to crowd a greater population than is now comprised in the world's metropolis.

Dr. Collingridge, the chief medical officer of London, has issued a report in which he announces that all of the Thames fisheries, including the estuary, and contaminated with the bacilli of typhoid fever. His condemnation includes the famous Whitstable oyster beds, where 20 per cent. of the oysters examined were found to be infected. A ban has also been pronounced against whitebait, shrimps, smelts, and cockles.

Contamination by sewage was found fifty miles away from London, while an even worse state of affairs exists at other points on the English coast from which shell fish, etc., are supplied to the markets. The infection in these cases is due altogether to bad local sewage.

There have been other fatal warnings since the terrible Winchester banquet, where the eating of oysters, it was said, spread death in the neighborhood. These include three deaths from enteric in one London family, due to the eating of cockles.

It is not going too far to say that the shellfish trade has already been seriously crippled by the effect of these fatalities, and it will probably be practically destroyed by Dr. Collingridge's report. The whole matter will have a prominent place in the attention of Parliament when it meets next month, but it is difficult to discover any possible escape from the danger.

Meantime, London continues to grow. Nature has already begun to inflict her penalties and it will be one of the most interesting features of human history in the next few decades to watch on the banks of the Thames one of the greatest struggles that civilization has ever undertaken.

AT HYMEN'S ALTAR

Mr. Frederick P. Champion, of Toronto, Weds Miss Hettie H. Crowe, of Ashburnham

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mr. Chas. Crowe, Sophia street, Ashburnham, when his third daughter, Miss Hettie H., was united in marriage to Mr. Frederic P. Champion, of Toronto [illegible]

Rev. Judson McIntosh, brother-in-law of the groom, performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride, who wore a most becoming costume of fawn-colored crepe de chene over pink silk trimmed with silk applique, was attended by her sister, Miss Bessie, who was becomingly gowned in pale blue organdie. Both bride and bridesmaid carried exquisite bouquets of roses, the former white and the latter yellow. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Louis Champion.

A sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served at the conclusion of the ceremony, after which the happy young couple left on the evening train for their future home in Toronto. The Times unites with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Champion many years of happiness and prosperity.

EASTER VACATIONS

For the Easter Vacation the Canadian Pacific announce return tickets will be issued the general public at single fare, good going April 9th to 13th, inclusive; valid for return until April 14th. On surrender of standard form of school vacation railway certificate, teachers and students will be issued return tickets at single fare and one third, good going April 4th to 11th, good for return until April 21st, 1903.

The Easter Vacations are always looked forward to with considerable anticipation after the winter season, and the favorable limit will no doubt induce many to avail themselves of the opportunity for visiting friends at this season.

Tickets will be issued between all stations in Ontario, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Detroit, Mich., and East. Ask your Canadian Pacific Agent for copy of leaflet giving full particulars.

HAS A SURPRISE IN STORE FOR GAMEY

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston Says He Has Evidence That will Astonish the Conservatives---Will They Burk Inquiry?

Toronto, April 11.—The Gamey investigation opens in City Hall at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, and today finds counsel on both sides with their briefs well in hand. The witnesses for the prosecution from Manitoulin are expected to arrive on Monday. Their number will, it is said, be large. Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, for Mr. Stratton, sent to-day for his witnesses from the island. He also had a number of subpoenas issued for a number of other witnesses, and will be ready to proceed with evidence-giving as soon as it is his turn.

A SURPRISE IN STORE.

"I may say," said Mr. Johnston this morning, "that I will produce evidence which I have no doubt will come as a surprise to the public. There has been a good deal of wind exploded by our opponents. I prefer to wait for facts, and I propose to establish some that will give them ample food for reflection. The case being practically before a court, I do not desire to discuss the merits one way or the other. I think the publications made so far savor more of the zeal of a political campaign than of a wish to get at the real truth. We are, however, content. We have no favors to ask—and none to give. When the case presented by the commission is ready for trial, we shall be there to deal with it.

"The campaign speech," went on Mr. Johnston, "which is dignified by the name of formulated charges will no doubt be the subject of some discussion when the court reopens.

"The scheme is evidently to make charges so broad that they are clearly beyond the scope of the commission, and if the commissioners should hold that such charges are not within the scope of the commission, the prosecution would possibly pretend that they had ample reason for retiring from the investigation, and perhaps they will take that course."

SULLIVAN TO TESTIFY.

Frank Sullivan, it is understood, has been subpoenaed by the prosecution, and the papers were served on him at Sudbury.

"Cap." Sullivan, it is reported, has forwarded a subscription to Mr. Gamey for the fund which is being established, the appeal published in the press having struck a responsive chord in his bosom.

It is hard to tell what the procedure in court will be on Monday. Mr. McPherson to-day declined to give any inkling of what witnesses would be called first. It may be that Mr. Gamey will be put in the box at the outset, or it may be that the prosecution will ask the different Cabinet Ministers to appear.

MATTERS IN THE TURBULENT EAST

Turkish Authorities Fear Complications with Russia, Fifty Christians Killed.

Constantinople, April 11.—News of the death of M. Stcherbina, Russian Consul at Mitrovitsa, European Turkey, who was shot by an Albanian sentinel recently at that place, has greatly alarmed the authorities here, who, as a result, anticipate complications with Russia.

Consular reports from Monastir show that the anarchial conditions prevailing there are becoming more acute. Assassinations of both Christians and Mussulmans are increasing. In the district of Prilep, during the past week, no less than fifty Christians were killed by Mussulmans.

RESENTED BY CHINESE.

London, April 11.—The Times correspondent at Pekin telegraphs that the evacuation by Russia of Niu-Chwang and the second section of Manchuria is delayed, according to the Russian version, because the Chinese Taotai has not yet arrived and formal restoration is therefore, impossible. The Chinese, however, declare that the Russian authorities are detaining the Taotai at Mukden, and the failure to restore Niu-Chwang argues in favor of Russia's intention to exercise pressure in respect of her forestry rights on the Chinese side of the Yalu Valley, and of Russia's [illegible] to establish [illegible] customs at Dalny.

Reports from Szechuan says the Times correspondent, indicate that order has been restored, that trade is not molested, and that the anti-taxation riots in Ho-Nan have been suppressed.

Presentation to Arthur White

Thursday morning at the general offices of the Grand Trunk Railway, Montreal, the chief officials of the freight department of that company presented Mr. Arthur White, late division freight agent, with a magnificently illuminated address in consideration of his long and faithful service. During the day the address was also presented to Mr. White at the meeting of the General Freight Agents at the Windsor Hotel, a very ornate and handsome album, containing photographs of each member of the association. This presentation was accompanied by a most eloquent and kindly address on the part of Mr. John Dullen, President of the association. Mr. George M. Bosworth, Fourth Vice-President, C.P.R., gave a very hearty and kindly expression of the good feeling of the members and his former fellow-workers towards Mr. White. Mr. White was formerly a resident of Peterborough.

The Champions

The photograph of the T.A.S. hockey team, winners of the Trent Valley Hockey League championship, which adorns the window of Messrs. Tully and Morrill, reflects great credit on Mr. White, the artist who executed this fine piece of workmanship. Hundreds of spectators viewed the pictures of our favorites as they appeared on the ice in the Brock street rink. This fine piece of art was the subject of much favorable comment.

LOCAL LEGAL

Webb vs. Canadian General Electric Company.—This case was tried before Meredith J., at the last assizes here, when judgment of non-suit was entered. From that the plaintiff appealed to the full court in Toronto. After reserving judgment, the court to-day set aside the trial judge's finding with costs and granted a new trial and ordered the defendants to pay costs of former trial. J. Green, counsel for plaintiff; R. M. Dennistoun, counsel for defendants.

A Large Tent

A large sized isolation tent, made by Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons, has been placed on the grounds of the Nicholls Hospital by the Board of Trustees. This tent is intended solely for the treatment of diphtheria, scarlet fever, and other contagious diseases, and is 15 by 30 feet in size.

Weather Notes

Fair and warm.

Peterborough is Booming

Campbellford Herald: Mr. C. Webster, of Kingston, who lately returned to his home in that city, says Peterborough can now be ranked as one of the booming towns in the west. The electric works is flourishing and now employ 1000 men. Other important industries are that of the cereal and coal company. A short distance from the town the Government is expending $1,000,000 in improving the river, and there is plenty of employment for men. There are no houses to rent, and more will be built. The cause of the town's success is the splendid water power, and the enterprise of its citizens, who are willing to invest their money in industries. A street railway system on up-to-date principles will be constructed.

Generosity in the Churches.

Those who believe, or affect to believe, that religion is declining throughout the countries of Christendom will find no support for their pessimistic notions in the figures showing the amounts already collected for the "twentieth century" funds started by various denominations in this country and Europe. These funds have already reached a total of $40,000,000, and the promoters of these enterprises are confident that they will have the balance of $10,000,000 more. Of the amount raised, more than one-half is credited to the churches of the United States, the Methodists being far in the lead in liberality. The Canadian Methodists started in to raise $1,000,000, and have already secured that and $250,000 besides. The Presbyterians of Canada set out for the same million-dollar goal, and have already gone nearly a half million beyond it.

It is especially gratifying to note that all these enormous sums have been collected at an expense of less than one per cent. of the total, and also that in spite of this generous giving it has in no way interfered with the regular contributions to missionary societies and to the support of churches. On the contrary, all religious societies show an increase in receipts, and there is hardly one that is not out of debt, a condition that has not existed in years. The funds collected are to be used largely in the payment of church debts, and after that for the endowment of colleges, missionary societies, and other religious institutions.

As giving and love are always closely related, it is unbelievable that this outpouring of millions for the extension of religion at home and abroad will not be speedily followed by a corresponding development and increase in the spiritual life and activities of the churches. The free hand and the open heart generally go together.

Kidneys and Bladder

Don't neglect these most important organs of the body, as you will regret it. Have you pain in the back, a dull feeling in the region of the kidneys? PETERBOROUGH, APRIL 13, 1903.

LIFE INSURANCE

The Canadian public now carries $508,794,371 life insurance, as against $463,769,034 in 1901, an increase during the year of $45,025,337, or close upon 10 per cent. To keep this in force it paid $17,143,561, as against $15,189,854 the previous year, or $1,953,707 increase. The value of the new policies written during the year was $61,591,910, or $7,602,562 more than in 1901. The gain of the Canadian companies alone was more than this, being $8,446,915, while the insurance written by the British companies increased $255,274, the difference being accounted for by the failure of the American companies to meet their activity of the year previous by $1,109,607. Altogether, the total amount of claims paid during the year, including matured endowments, was $7,062,360, or $216,419 more than was paid in 1901. Of this the Canadian companies paid out $3,556,281, the British companies $803,498, and the American companies $2,686,309. The total assets of the Canadian companies increased from $66,182,116 to $73,565,205 while the total assets of the Canadian or British companies increased from $24,148,367 to $24,257,906, and of the American companies from $29,835,015 to $32,127,738.

EMPLOYER'S ASSOCIATION

The first annual meeting of the Employers' Association of Toronto was held a few days ago, Mr. A. F. Rutter, second vice-president, in the chair. Mr. E. W. Day, the secretary, spoke of the highly satisfactory growth of the association, which, he stated, was twice as large in membership at the age of three months as the splendid association of Dayton, O., was at the end of its first year. And this, he explained, was due more to the popularity of the movement than to any extraordinary efforts on the part of the officers of the association. It is expected that at the end of two years, practically every town and city in Canada will have an Employers' Association, all of which will in time, no doubt, be federated. The necessity for some such organization was becoming increasingly evident, in face of the rapid development of organized labor, and of its attitude towards the social fabric. That the object of the association is not to rough-ride over the rights and purposes of employees may be gathered from the following declaration by its secretary:

"The public may be assured that we do not believe in low wages, excessive hours, or oppressive shop rules. We do, however, believe that capital is entitled to protection and fair dividends, and that labor is entitled to favorable working conditions and fair wages. We seek to accomplish through the agency of this association the prevention of strikes, lock-outs and friction generally, and, as far as possible, promote harmony in our part of the industrial world. This can only be accomplished by organizations of about equal strength so that one body cannot presume upon the weakness of another."

The following officers were elected for 1903: Mr. F. B. Polson, president; Mr. A. F. Rutter, first vice-president; Mr. D. H. McKay, second vice-president; Mr. A. D. Harris, treasurer; Mr. E. W. Day, secretary.

THE MISSING LINK

A chimpanzee brought to England lately from the United States is said to be on the point of talking. It already makes guttural sounds which its attendants can understand. But a dog can do as much as that. When it was shown at the Buffalo exposition a German doctor who had to do with deaf mutes said that a slight operation upon one of the ligaments of the tongue would enable the animal to speak. At that time the chimpanzee was under contract. But it will probably now be taken to Germany for the operation. It can even now use a typewriter and play the piano. But these professions are overcrowded. A talking chimpanzee would make an excellent living, even though, like many other talkers, it said nothing worth hearing.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The growth of the rural delivery service in the United States may be judged from the fact that Congress appropriated $12,500,000 for the rural delivery service during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, and the department will establish 15,000 new routes on the money. On March 15 there were 14,095 routes already in operation, and by July 1 this number will be increased by the natural growth of the service to 15,000 routes. Thus it is expected by the end of the next fiscal year, which will be June 30, 1904, to have 30,000 rural carriers in motion, and 15,000,000 people living outside of towns and cities will have their letters and newspapers delivered daily at their doors.

Constipation

Causes Headache, Abdominal, Pains, Piles and in Severe Cases Insanity and Apoplexy

It is a common mistake to conclude that Constipation is not a dangerous condition. Although at first it is only accompanied by slight inconvenience and pain, yet if not corrected, it will inevitably lead to very dire results.

Great care should be used in selecting a remedy for constipation because if a violent purgative is employed, it is sure to set up pain, irritation and congestion, and result finally in piles.

The experience of those who have tested all the cures for constipation, seems to prove that Ferrozone is the most agreeable and satisfactory treatment. It makes the bowels so well ordered that natural and unassisted action is established. Nothing can equal the immediate sense of comfort it produces, and pains in the head, and stomach, and in the intestines, disappear almost at once.

Ferrozone is very mild and certain in its action, and never causes inconvenience or distress. Ferrozone can be taken early as long as required and in no way interferes with business or pleasure, and nothing may be feared from its use, however prolonged it may be.

For Constipation, Piles and Sick Headache, Ferrozone stands unrivalled. The driver of the City Express Company, who suffered from piles, says: — "Constant sitting on the wagon seat, produced a rectal irritation, which combined with constipated condition of the bowels, brought on a severe attack of piles. I used without benefit, different ointments, and other remedies; but got quick relief and most satisfactory results from Ferrozone. I can recommend Ferrozone to all who suffer from piles."

Ferrozone always cures, and can be purchased at any reliable drug store for 50 cts. a box or three boxes for $1.25. Sent to your address by mail if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

CHAPTER XXI.

Norma heard the voices of the doctor and his wife, as she fled through the wood. She gathered that the former wanted to get over the wall to investigate, but that Mrs. Wharles clung to him and would not let him go.

She was, therefore, soon able to stop and consider what she had better do: the suspicions she had somewhat vaguely entertained until now as to the doctor's share in the tragedy which had so recently taken place, had now become certainties; and she felt the need of some counsel and advice.

The words which she had overheard, while not evidence in themselves, pointed very clearly to the fact that everything depended upon the boy, Ned Raggett; and she knew that he must, by one means or another, be made to speak out and tell the truth.

And if he did? What would result? An incrimination of the doctor, without doubt, though to what extent it was impossible to say: and the consequent removal of all suspicion from Astley. But what else? Now that Rogerson was dead, the one witness who might have obtained Astley's freedom from the worthless woman who had deceived and wronged him, was out of the question. And that this was so, to Norma's mind, was indisputably proved by the fact that it had been necessary to get rid of him in order to secure the woman's claim upon Astley.

And then again came that puzzling question: how was it that Dr. Wharles and his wife had grown rich so suddenly? If it was with the money Astley had sent to Leamington, how was it that, out of a comparatively small sum like five hundred pounds, so much must have gone into the pockets of the doctor and his wife?

Norma felt that the solution of the whole mystery was as far off as ever.

By the time she had come to this conclusion she found herself close to the private road that led up to The Haigh; and, deciding that she could not sleep until she had confided her anxieties to someone, she waited just inside the lodge gates until an omnibus came in sight coming from Blackdale, and, getting inside it—for she was too nervous to trust herself alone along the high road—she proceeded as far as the gates of The Hall, where she got down, and went through the dark to the great house.

Norma had never been there before: the circumstances of her stay in the neighborhood had prevented her from returning the call made upon her by Lady Myfanwy and her companions: so that when she was shown into the long, cosy room, warm, comfortable, full of luxurious nooks, of flowers, of laughing, happy people, Norma felt that the contrast between this ideal English home and the desolation of The Haigh was strong indeed.

It was not yet six o'clock, but it was nearly dark outside. The blinds, however, had not been drawn down yet, and the only light in the big room came from a glowing, flaming fire which crackled and blazed at one end. The tongues of flame threw strange lights and shadows on deep saddle-bag chairs and settees, on richly colored and harmonious curtains and draperies, on warm terra-cotta walls, on graceful groups of plants and palms seen through the glass-door at the other end of the room, in the domed conservatory outside.

The whole impression the room and its merry, laughing occupants gave Norma was one of pleasure and luxury and charm; and when Sadie Brown rose from a corner and ran forward to meet her, she felt a thrill of transient delight that she had come into a corner of the world where all was not gray desolation and heart-breaking misery.

The next moment her joy was dashed to the ground. A voice she knew struck upon her ear and made her start: and looking quickly in the direction whence it came, Norma saw, to her bewilderment and despair, that the man in the deep low chair near the fire, to whom handsome Lady Myfanwy was talking earnestly, was no other than Astley!

She felt that the room swam round her. She, who had been spending her hours in sorrow and loneliness, pitying him, devising schemes for his release from the suspicion which lay upon him, found that her sympathy had been thrown away: he had been enjoying himself in the charming society of the woman who had so gracefully thrown herself into his arms for him to console her for the death of his cousin!

Sadie Brown on one side of her, and Jack on the other, were by this time drawing Norma forward to the hearth. There was no Lady Wyersdale, the Earl having been a widower for years; but there was a colorless aunt, over whom Lady Myfanwy and her two young sisters domineered with impunity.

The aunt came forward in her turn, and at the same time Lady Myfanwy rose languidly and apparently with some reluctance, and held out a rather chilly hand to the shy new comer.

Astley had already risen in amazement.

"Norma!" cried he.

"Astley!"

She fought down her feelings of distress, and gave him a wan smile as she took his hand and let him place her in the chair in which he had been sitting.

"We didn't expect to see you," said Lady Myfanwy, with what Norma could not help feeling was a slightly resentful tone.

"No. But I think—when you know—what I've just heard," faltered Norma in a low voice, "you will forgive me for disturbing you all. I've heard something too dreadful to bear alone: I wanted advice: and I didn't know where else to go. You see, I have no friends here except—"

And she turned with a grateful look at the American girl.

Jack broke out into indignant protests.

"What! And leave me out! Oh, how can you?" said he, as he insisted upon her giving him a look, too.

"And you; I didn't mean to leave you out; I should be very ungrateful if I did," said Norma.

"And what's the news?" asked Jack eagerly. "Something good, I hope. Something that will help to bring the thieves and murderers to justice."

All except Lady Myfanwy, who took a chair a little way from the rest, as if

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock at 15 cents per share, for that purpose.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

of stock prices at present makes the New York Stock Market unusually attractive at this time. The decline of from 10 to 40 points in the prices of standard shares brings them below actual bargain prices. Some issues are cheaper and better to buy than some others. ANTI-STRIKE BILL WAS ADOPTED

The Netherlands Parliament Passes Measure

SETTLEMENT WAS REFUSED

Negotiations With This End in View Have Failed—Rioters Killed

The Hague, April 9—The second chamber of the Netherlands Parliament to-day adopted the anti-strike bill by 81 to 14 votes. The Socialists and Liberal Democrats voted with the minority.

The punishment clause of the anti-strike bill was adopted by 78 to 15 votes.

To Settle Dispute.

The Hague, April 9—According to the Vaderland, the Railroad Employes Union has asked the State railroad companies to agree to negotiations for a settlement of the dispute, and the reinstatement of the men.

One Striker Killed.

Rotterdam, April 9—A sentinel on the railroad fired today at four railroad men who refused to leave the track after having been warned. One of the men was killed.

Proposal Refused.

The officials of the State railroads, it was announced later, refused the proposal of the railroad employes union to enter into negotiations for a settlement of the dispute.

Only A Partial Strike.

Amsterdam, April 9— The strike of the municipal employes, like others, is only partial. About one-third of the gas workers are idle. The authorities have appealed to the public to restrict the consumption of gas.

The majority of the diamond cutters and men employed in the building trades are idle.

ROME AND THE TIBER RIVER

The Bed Supposed to Contain Many Valuable Treasures

London, April 10.—The stupendous triumphs of English engineering in Egypt at Assiout and Assouan suggests that work far less difficult in diverting the waters of the Tiber within the territory of the eternal city might lead to the disclosure of treasures of ancient art over which every civilized nation would rejoice. It is the generally accepted belief of archaeologists, historians and artists that whenever Rome was besieged and captured many notable works in marble and bronze and precious metals, and no small number of the other achievements of cunning artificers, were cast into the yellow stream which was breasted so gallantly by brave Horatius, the captain of the gate. If the bed of Father Tiber is ever thoroughly explored, as it should be, the discoveries may rank in value and significance within some comparative approach to the ever memorable "finds" in the last century in the Troad, in Mycenae, in the Nile valley, in storied Crete, and in Cyprus.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times-

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 8 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
720 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills,

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, lumbago, paralysis, sciatica, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25.

Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Catarrh and Dr. Clarke's Sure Cure for Eczema. [illegible] will be paid for any case that it will not permanently cure.

Mrs. Pat's Costly Mistake.

In a recent interview Mrs. Patrick Campbell, says "Leslie's Weekly," tells of a mistake she made and how she got herself disliked simply through lack of understanding. "There is a critic on one of the big newspapers in New York who really dislikes me and will say nothing good of me, and I don't blame him either, but it was all through a mistake on my part. You see, it is customary in England to give on a first night, after the performance, a supper on the stage to one's friends and associates. Over there we never think of inviting the representatives of the press. It would be positive bad form—like catering, you know, for favorable criticism. Well, it never occurred to me when I came over here that the same rule did not apply on this side, also, so on my opening night last season I planned the usual little celebration and told my business manager I should be pleased to receive any friends whom he might wish to invite. Well, of course, I thought nothing more about it. The opening came and the performance passed off very satisfactorily, and our friends began to come in for the little party. We were just sitting down to supper when a card was sent in to me. 'Mr. —— ——, New York.' Well, being hostess, I was very busy just then, and, seeing the name of the newspaper, I supposed, of course, it was a reporter, and I sent word back that I couldn't see him. Well, it turned out that he was my business manager's friend, whom he had invited to supper at my request. Dear! dear! it makes my head ache to think of it! Such a rude thing to do; but I was hardly to blame under the circumstances. I just thought it would be bad form to receive a newspaper man at such a time. It would have been in England."

A placer and two quartz claims;

Two partially developed quartz claims;

One-quarter section patented land adjoining above;

All located in the Susanville Mining District, Eastern Oregon. Will be sold together or separately. Total price, $9,000.

We consider this group of properties to be unusually promising as a heavy producing mine joins a portion of the land, and near-by placer grounds are showing up very rich.

THE GOLD TUNNEL COMPANY.

PRESCOTT, ARIZONA

The Company owns is SIX PARALLEL VEINS of GIGANTIC SIZE, one of the largest GOLD PROPOSITIONS in the country. Each of these six veins would make a mine by itself.

The Company, by purchase and consolidation, has succeeded in acquiring the entire length of these great GOLD BEARING ledges; covering an area six thousand feet in length and about two thousand feet wide. The Company owns this valuable property free of any incumbrance.

The ground included in this group of mines gives ample evidence of tremendous natural disturbances, and shows plainly on the surface the acid and mineral stains characteristic of a heavy mineralized gold lead of gigantic proportions.

Six Miles of Gold Bearing Veins

Through the length of four of the mining claims; forming a continuous line 6,000 feet long run THREE LEDGES so close together as to be economically worked from one opening; they aggregate from 85 to 200 feet in width.

The adjoining line of three mining claims shows a ledge 4,500 feet in length, varying in width from 7 to 200 feet, with the same character of ore.

Beginning at the south end of the "Eighty-Four" mining claim, is a fifth large ledge carrying good values in GOLD, and running in a northerly direction for a distance of fully forty-five hundred feet.

Two mining claims on the east side show GOLD BEARING CROPPINGS 40 to 50 feet wide through their entire length, a distance of three thousand feet.

All of the ledges are well mineralized, carrying at grass root values in gold running from about $2.00 to $6.00 per ton.

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that has been sown, brings forth a dangerous harvest,—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhozone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and, after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhozone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few moments by the penetrating vapor from the Inhaler. Ferrozone, taken in conjunction with Catarrhozone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhozone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Trouble, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhozone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

Two months' treatment, consisting of a beautiful polished hard rubber Inhaler and large bottle of liquid for recharging, together with a box of Ferrozone Tablets costs but $1; trial size, 25c. Sold by all druggists and N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont. Buy it to-day.

EASTER CHURCH SERVICES

SPECIAL SERVICES WERE HELD IN MANY OF THE CHURCHES

Large Congregations and Special Music—Eloquent and Impressive Sermons Dealing with the Great Commemorative Event

The attendance yesterday at the churches was large, the occasion being the special Easter services. Special music was provided by the choirs, which proved an interesting feature.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Large congregations assembled at both morning and evening services. Holy Communion was celebrated at 8 a.m. and 12.15. The Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, was assisted at all services by Rev. R. A. Bilkey, of Toronto, who in the evening preached an eloquent and convincing sermon on "Christ Resurrected." The choral portion of the 11 and 7 o'clock services were beautifully rendered by the excellent choir, supported by an orchestra, both under the direction of Mr. Gliddon. The offerings on this occasion will go toward the rectory fund; that of both morning services amounted to $462, and that in the evening to $72.

ALL SAINTS CHURCH.

The services in All Saints' were largely attended, at which special music was provided. In the morning the music was as follows: "Jubilate," Schilling; Anthem, "Come and See the Place where Jesus Lay," and in the evening the music included the "Magnificat, and "Nunc Dimittis," by Elsdon. There was also three anthems, "Come, See the Place," "Oh, Christ, Thy Love," and "King of Kings."

Mr. J. Firth of Toronto, sang a solo entitled "On the Cross," while the male quartette gave some selections. Rev. W. L. Armitage preached in the morning on "Christ, Our Passover," and in the evening on "Where is the Lamb?"

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered at 8 a.m., and at noon. The Rector preached in the morning on "Jesus saith unto him, 'Rise,'" and in the evening "Faithful unto death." Special music was provided.

CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH.

In the morning the pastor, Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, took for his subject "The Resurrection of Christ." In the evening, "Gold and Godliness," was the topic, being the third of the series of special sermons. Easter music by the choir, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Killen-Kavagh of New York City.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The music at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday morning was as follows: Haec Dies, Lambilotte; Tozell's second mass; offertory, Regina Coeli, J. Wiegand; Vestara, Tedesco's Musical Vespers; O Salutaris, St. Saens, solo, Mr. J. Gillegley; Trio, "Jesus Dei Vivi-Verdi," Misses A. Simons and L. Hallahan and Mr. J. Gillogley; Tantum Ergo, Lambilotte.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor, preached at both services to large congregations. At 11 a.m. Communion Service, with appropriate music, including a carol, "Joy of Easter Morn." 7 p.m., Easter Praise Service, with special music.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

George street Methodist church Easter services were largely attended. Special music was rendered by the choir, assisted by the Sunday school orchestra. Sermons appropriate to the day were preached by the [illegible]

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

The sacrament was dispensed at the conclusion of the morning service, which was conducted by Rev. Dr. Torrance, pastor. In the evening Rev. J. A. Wilson preached.

—The Easter Term at the Peterborough Business College begins today.

HOW ALICE DID IT

Learned to Follow Instructions

"I puzzled mother mightily one morning after a return from visiting some friends. She had suffered terribly from sleeplessness caused by coffee drinking, and of course general nervousness and stomach trouble followed.

"Some one told her to quit coffee and use Postum Food Coffee, but the first morning it was served to her it was so insipid and weak that she gave it up and went to drinking hot water for she did not care for tea or cocoa.

"About this time I went visiting, and during the conversation in reply to an inquiry about mother's health I told of her sleepless nights and general condition, and of the failure of the new drink that we tried.

"I observed that my friend looked rather knowing and wise at this statement, but thought nothing more of it at the time.

"In the morning at breakfast I was served with a most delicious cup of coffee which I drank with great pleasure, but I noticed my hostess watching me carefully. Finally I asked for a second cup and she burst out laughing and remarked 'So you folks don't like Postum.' I was astonished, and said 'This is not Postum, is it?' She sent for the package in order to satisfy me, and it was exactly like the one mother had. Then I learned that our failure was caused from not boiling it long enough, so when I reached home I told mother I had found a new drink for her and I went into the kitchen and made it from her old package of Postum. She was so delighted with the new drink that I told her it was Postum, and it was amusing to see her perplexity. She looked at the package and read it over. At last she said 'Alice how did you ever do it?' I said 'By simply following the directions.' She exclaimed 'Why I did not know there were any directions. It seems the cook had not looked at the package but just brewed it with a little hot water like she would tea, and that will not make good Postum. It must be boiled just as the directions say, then the flavor is delicious.

"The next day mother was to give a little coffee party and we served Postum instead of coffee. The ladies were all delighted with it, and we now have 'Postum' instead of 'coffee,' and it would astonish anyone to hear the experience of the different ladies as to how well they feel and how soundly they sleep at night since they have adopted Postum instead of the old fashioned coffee, and particularly since they have followed directions." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Died in Rochester

Mr. Edward Clarke received the sad news yesterday of the death of his son, William, which occurred in Rochester. The deceased was well known and highly respected in Peterborough. The remains will arrive on the 6.25 G.T.R. train this evening. Nothing definite has yet been arranged for the burial, and the funeral notice will appear later.

Death from Scarlet Fever

Scarlet fever laid claim to another victim at St. Joseph's Hospital last night in the person of the 12-year-old son of Mr. Richard Sheehy, Rubidge street. The deceased was a bright little lad and his death will cause a shadow of gloom in the home and amongst his little playmates. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing friends. The funeral will take place this morning to the Roman Catholic cemetery, and will be private.

PATRIOTISM

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier, and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.

"After I received the advice which you gave me in regard to my treatment," writes Geo. Dorner, Esq., of 1915 Pulaski Street, Baltimore, Maryland, "I used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' according to directions. After using four bottles I considered myself cured, as I have not felt any symptoms since. Had tried almost all remedies that I heard of that were good for dyspepsia, but without relief. Finally, I became discouraged, and wrote to you for advice, with the above result."

The dealer who offers a substitute for the "Discovery" is only seeking to make the little more profit realized on the sale of less meritorious preparations.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MR. GAMEY RECITES HIS TALE OF BRIBERY, THE CASE PROMISES TO BE A BATTLE ROYAL

Member for Manitoulin Opens the Evidence for the Prosecution at the Beginning of the Investigation—The Dealings with the Sullivans Explained

Describes the Manner in which Bribes were Offered Him, Was Offered $5,000 in Cash in Two Instalments, Proved to be a Very Talkative Witness

SEVERAL MANITOULINEERS IN HIS CONFIDENCE.

Judges Agree to Admit the Formulated Charges,

What Mr. Stratton Promised the Member for Manitoulin

The Letters and Documents Produced and Read.

Mr. Gamey Tells of the Crossin Piano Factory Incident, the Conversation

Toronto, April 13—The commissioners appointed to investigate the Gamey charges lost no time in getting down to work to-day. Promptly at 10 o'clock they ascended the bench asked counsel on both sides if they were ready to proceed, and within 10 minutes they had Mr. Gamey himself in the box and the serious business of evidence-taking was under way.

There were a great number of witnesses present—perhaps 150—most of them from Manitoulin, but a large number, too, from Toronto.

FEW LEGISLATORS THERE.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was the only member of the Government present. He sat at the same table with his solicitors and followed the evidence intently. Only two other members of the Legislature were in attendance. They were Mr. Joseph Downey,, who was doing some newspaper work,, and Mr. J. W. St. John

Mr. R. A. Grant, was the first witness called, and he walked into the box with several large volumes under his arm. He was merely asked if he was willing to produce all documents in his possession revelant to the case. "Cap" Sullivan was asked a similar question. Frank Sullivan was called, but did not answer, and Mr. Gamey was immediately called to the box. His examination by Mr. Blake was not concluded when the court rose at 1 o'clock for luncheon.

The story told by Mr. Gamey did not differ materially from the one he told in the House when he first made his charge. One or two interesting points were inserted. He affirmed that the lawyer who came to "Cap" Sullivan's room in the Walker House to discuss a stock deal was Mr. R. A. Grant. The prominent lawyer to whom he has referred as drawing up the letter which was addressed to Hon Geo. W. Ross, in which Mr. Gamey promises to support the Ross Government was, he swore, Mr. A. B Aylesworth. Another interesting addition to Mr. Gamey's statement was made in connection with the alleged payment of $1,000 said to have taken place when he accorded the Globe interview. He said that Mr. Stratton could not get the full $1,000 in his department, and that $250 was got in the Attorney-General's department, and the remaining $750 in the Provincial Secretary's.

It will be noticed by comparing Mr. Gamey's evidence with his previous statement that there are one or two discrepancies as to dates

Mr. Gamey's bank pass-book from the Sudbury branch of the Trader's Bank, was filed with Registrar Grant this morning. It shows, it is said, that $1,500 was transferred from Toronto to Sudbury on the 12th day of September, the day after he says he received the money from Mr. Stratton.

THE COURT OPENS.

Punctually at 10 o'clock the commissioners, Chancellor Boyd, and Chief Justice Falconbridge took their places on the bench, and the court was formally opened by the crier in the usual manner. Messrs. E. H Blake, K.C.; W. D D McPherson, C H Ritchie, K.C.; Sam Price, St. Thomas and J. A. Macdonald, were counsel for Mr. Gamey, while E. F. B Johnston, K C., W. R. Riddell, K.C.; and J M McEvoy, of London, appeared fo Hon. Mr. Stratton, who occupied a seat at their table. Mr. Gamey sat behind the table at which his lawyers were stationed.

MR. GAMEY IN THE BOX.

Mr. Gamey was asked to take the stand.

"What is your complete name?" asked the court crier.

"Robert Roswell Gamey."

"How do you pronounce your surname?" queried Chief Justice Falconbridge.

"Gay-me, your Lordship," replied the witness.

You were the Conservative candidate for Manitoulin at the last election for the Legislative Assembly?

Yes, sir.

You were elected for that electoral district at the last election by 340 votes?

Yes, sir.

The result of the declaration of the electors when given left the Conservatives and Liberals in what proportion?

50-47 .

There was a change by the recount in the County of Lennox?

Yes, that gave the Government 49, the Opposition 48. and one seat vacant.

That was the position in the month of June, as soon as the Lennox count was made known.

Yes, sir.

When was the protest entered about your election ?

It was served about the 14th of July.

When was it you interviewed Captain Sullivan?

About the 7th of August.

Where did you meet Sullivan?

Allandale.

How long had you known Sullivan?

About 15 years.

What had been his occupation so far as known to you?

So far as I can remember he worked for a lumber company, and was later in the employe of the Ontario Government as a timber scaler, inspector, or forest ranger. I saw him a great many times in connection with political campaigns or the preparation of voters' lists.

I see. Now what was his politics?

Liberal.

How long, Mr. Gamey, has he been acting for the Government?

I think it must be quite ten years since he first went into the employ of the Government.

CONFERS WITH SULLIVAN.

"When did you next see the Sullivans?" asked Mr. Blake.

I saw both of them the day I arrived in Toronto, about 25th of August, in fact I had several interviews with them that day, both together and separately. Two agreements were drawn up by Frank Sullivan in Capt. Sullivan's room at the Walker House. These were afterwards destroyed. They were signed by Frank Sullivan and myself."

"What were the conditions of these agreements" asked Mr. Blake.

Mr. Gamey—One agreement was that I should support the Government and that I should not resign during the session. The agreement that Frank Sullivan signed was to the effect that I was to get $3,000 in cash some time early in September, and a further sum during the session. The protest against my election was to be withdrawn, and I was to have the patronage and direct the expenditure of all money in the riding.

"What was the reason, Mr. Gamey, that Frank Sullivan gave for getting this paper from you?"

He told me he wanted the agreement so that he could show it to some members of the Government to convince them that I intended to support them.

"Did Frank Sullivan take away both of the agreements with him?

"No, I held the one signed by Frank Sullivan."

"These agreements were destroyed," said Mr. Blake. "Then what reason was given you by the Sullivans at the time they were destroyed?"

Mr. Gamey—They said they had showed them to some members of the Government, and convinced them that that I was in earnest in regard to supporting them.

What further talk had you with Cap Sullivan?

Met him every day after that.

A "CONSIDERATION."

When did you meet Mr. Stratton?

About the 10th in Stratton's office. Frank Sullivan took me there. The first day I saw him I was introduced in the usual way.

What did Stratton say?

He [illegible] support the Government and that I was to get the patronage of the riding, and the election protest against me was to be withdrawn. Furthermore, I was to receive a consideration. It was mentioned like that. The $3,000 was what was meant. Stratton wondered who would carry the parcel. He spoke as if Vance was to be the go-between, but he thought he was out of town.

The Chancellor—Who is Vance?

Mr. Gamey —Confidential man for the Government, I think.

Messrs. Johnston and Riddell, objected, but Gamey rattled on, and said that it was common rumor that Vance was on "the inside" in Government secrets.

Mr. Blake—What else did you say to Stratton.

Mr. Gamey— We had a discussion as to the appointments. I said we'd have to have a new License Board in our riding. He said I might make some appointments to satisfy my friends. They would have to be placated in some way to reconcile them to my supposed change of party allegiance.

What were you to do?

Sign a letter agreeing to support the Government.

Mr. Blake produced the typewritten letter to Premier Ross, in which Gamey declares that he will support the Government. The witness said he didn't sign it in the morning because he hadn't received the payment of $3,000. It was part of the deal to sign the letter, another part to get the money. He signed in the afternoon.

Where did you first see this letter? continued Mr. Blake.

I saw it in Mr. Stratton's office.

Who showed it to you?

Mr. Stratton.

Had you ever seen the letter before?

No, sir.

You were taken down to a lawyer's office.

Yes, sir.

Mr. Gamey then went on to tell all that transpired from that time until the present, including his visit to Mr. Stratton and the obtaining of the money and all that took place to the present time.

THE CROSS-EXAMINATION

At three o'clock Mr. Johnston took the witness in hand to cross-examine him. The cross-examination was severe. Mr. Johnston scarcely once looked at the witness. He spoke his questions in thundering tones, and occasionally the witness' face changed color.

Mr. Johnston's first question was: Were your relations with the Sullivans prior to this time intimate or not?

I knew them well.

Friends of yours?

Acquaintances.

Friends of yours?

I don't call them friends.

Know them well enough, I suppose, to have them take a meal at your house?

No.

At the closing of this court the cross-examination of Mr. Gamey was

The Stenographers

Mr. Gamey then told of the Crossin piano factory incident. He said that the stenographers who stayed behind the piano were Messrs. W. H. Price. Percy Price and Arthur Kinney who boarded at 404 Church street. Mr. Blake examined him as to the conversation that took place there, and Mr. Gamey's answer agreed with the memorandum already filed. He and Sullivan discussed further profits that they would divide. There was some timber north-west of Sudbury, some mining properties, near Webbwood, and Clapperton and Bedford Islands, on which there was valuable timber.

How long was Sullivan there altogether? asked Mr Blake. About half or three-quarters of an hour.

Mr. Blake referred to his letter of November 5, 1902, in which he recommended Flesher as J. P, Was that appointment made? Yes.

Mr. Blake repeated some of the questions several times, and finally said he had finished. His examination had lasted about three hours and three-quarters.

ENGLAND'S KING LEADS THE WAY

His Visits Paving the Way for Nation's Work

FIRST VISIT TO FRENCH PRESIDENT

The International Outlook for Britain Has Been Greatly Improved

London, April 14.—Once again the English sovereign is acting as the advance agent of the English statesmen. He first visits Portugal and cordially acclaims her as England's ally, because British statesmen deem it timely to remind Europe of England's foothold at her vital southwest corner, because also, a friendly Portugal holding the side doors of South Africa means so much to England's newest colony during the next decade.

His visit to the King of Italy at Rome is accepted as an indication of England's desire to close the chapter of half estrangement which marked so much of Lord Salisbury's diplomacy, while even the nonconformist Daily News finds no objection to the King's visit to the Pope which, it declares, will be as readily understood in Italy as in England.

But most importance is attached to the King's official visit to Paris, which will be the first formal interchange of courtesies between an English monarch and a French president since the advent of the Republic. It is even expected that President Loubet may pay a return visit to London late in the summer. All this coincides with that undefined, yet undoubted, Anglo-French national rapprochement which the statesmen at Paris and London will hardly fail to utilize. There are diplomatic disputes awaiting settlement in North America, North Africa, and the Far East, but above all there is the question of dubious increase of armament which England, France, and Italy, in agreement, and with the assurance of the Czar's personal sympathy, could induce all Europe to consider seriously.

France now is engaged in cutting down her naval estimates and reducing the period of service in her army, while under a monarch, who is free from the desire of military aggrandizement Italy is also rigorously pruning down the expenditure. The Czar, animated by his Hague ideals, would gladly join, while King Edward must realize that there is a strong English national revolt against the maintenance of taxation at a war level in a time of peace, and, with no enemy in sight.

An American politician is quoted as saying in the Paris correspondence of the Times to-day; "The world would like a little rest," but, he adds, as many Englishmen would at this moment: add, "it will get none, so long as the German weltpolitik is not kept within its legitimate bounds."

WATER COMMISSIONERS MEET

Are Kept Busy Dealing with Proposed Extensions Etc.

The Board of Water Commissioners met yesterday afternoon and considered a number of applications for water and extensions of mains.

The Board has resolved to live up to their agreement not to extend the mains where revenue to pay expenses is not to be had.

There is some slight dissatisfaction regarding the new rates, but on the whole they are satisfactory. It would be impossible to please everybody in a matter of this kind, especially those who have not been paying sufficiently, and have had their rates increased under the new tariff.

The Commissioners are doing thorough work and are deserving of every encouragement.

ST. JOHN'S VESTRY

Wardens for Current Year Appointed—A Very Satisfactory Financial Statement

St. John's Vestry met in the School House last night. The Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, in opening the meeting, expressed his very great pleasure at the pleasant church year just ended, and the highly satisfactory work accomplished during that time.

Mr. H. Long, the People's Warden for 1902, submitted a highly satisfactory financial statement, showing the total revenue to have been $3,750 and the total expenditure, $3,468.33. The rector's Warden, Mr. Conway, in commenting on the statement, paid a high tribute to the choir for its very efficient services. He also reported the Rectory Fund to date to stand as follows:

On Hand. April 1902...	$ 672 77
Easter offering, 1903	549 79
	$1222 56
Promised......	1100 00
	$2322 56

The Rector complimented the retiring wardens on the progress of St. John's under their administration and the splendid manner in which they have borne the banner of the church. He also presented them with kind remembrances in the shape of a handsome flower vase to Mr. Long, who has served as Warden for five years, and one of the latest photographs of St. John's to Mr. Conway.

Dr. Boucher is the rector's choice as Warden for the current year, and Mr. Wm. Howden the people's choice. Mr. Conway was offered another term, but declined. The election of sidesmen was left over till the adjourned meeting.

The outgoing and incoming Wardens the Rector, and Vestry Clerk, Mr. Walker, were appointed a Standing Finance Committee

The retiring and new Wardens, Dr. Geo. Burnham, and Messrs. H. Rush, Fair, Belcher and Dennistoun were appointed a Committee to select different sites for the new rectory and report at the adjourned meeting if possible.

The Rector paid a high tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Beck for her remarkable career of unselfishness in the work of the church, after which the vestry adjourned to meet in two weeks.

At the Congregational meeting Messrs. Dennistoun, Rush and W. C. Morris were appointed Lay Delegates to the Synod for the ensuing year.

REID VS. MIDDLETON

Judge Ketcham Dismisses the Action with Costs

Judge Ketcham has delivered his judgment in Reid vs. Middleton, dismissing the action with costs. This case was brought by Arthur Reid of Peterborough, agent, against James Middleton, of Smith, farmer, for damages for infringement of a patent known as "The Wartman Surface Square Braced Fence Post" and for an injunction to prevent its further use by the defendant. The defence was that the plaintiff had not a proper title to the patent, and that the patent was void in that it overlapped and itself infringed some prior patents, and especially the patents for the "Shed" and "Russel" fences. The case was tried before Judge Ketcham of Cobourg [illegible] sions of the County Court here in June last. It was a case of considerable interest to the farming community in this neighborhood for the reason that the fence is in very general use by them, and that many of them are placed in the same position that Mr. Middleton was.

A Prominent American Bishop Writes For The Benefit of Canadian Sufferers

He Strongly Recommends

Paine's Celery Compound

The Health Giving Spring Medicine

Thousands of prominent clergymen in Canada and other lands through the use of Paine's Celery Compound are happily pursuing their pastoral duties and ministering with success to their congregations. Heart trouble sleeplessness, nervousness, sluggish and impure blood, weak digestion, constipation and headache, are the troubles that drag clergymen down to deeper sufferings and perils. To-day, Paine's Celery Compound is the chosen home medicine of all wise and prudent ministers and priests. A vast number of them owe their lives and present good health to Dr. Phelps' world renowned prescription that "makes sick people well." Rev. John S. Michaud, Bishop of Burlington, Vt., writes as follows:

"I have been asked why I recommended Paine's Celery Compound, and I desire to put on record frankly my reasons for this endorsement, hoping that my words may inspire those readers who need health and strength with faith to try Paine's Celery Compound and prove to them its worth.

"At the Fanny Allen Hospital, an institution in which I am deeply interested, Paine's Celery Compound has been used successfully. The sisters of Mercy at Mount St. Mary's Academy on Mansfield Avenue, rely upon Paine's Celery Compound as a tonic and strengthener. In my own household one of the domestics has taken Paine's Celery Compound for liver trouble of long standing, and says, "It has done more good than any other medicine.' Several priests have spoken to me in praise of this remedy, and I believe it has the confidence of my associates. Even did I not know from personal observation of the worth of Paine's Celery Compound I should feel like praising it for the simple reason that it is prepared by Wells & Richardson Co., a firm whose members I have known for nearly a quarter of a century, and in whom I have perfect confidence."

SULTAN'S DUPLICITY IS CAUSING TROUBLE

The Condition of Affairs in the Far East Becoming Intolerable

London, April 14—The Daily Chronicle says: The Sultan of Turkey is not very anxious to carry out his promises regarding reforms in Macedonia Under existing conditions Abul Hamid secures a fair amount of taxes from Salonika and the valley of the Vardar, while the Albanian mountains to the west are exempt from interference. Bulgarian villages to the east suffer whenever the Turkish troops appear for the purpose of collecting the tithe or produce which fails to come in promptly. By inaugurating reforms the Sultan would lose control over the taxes. The Bulgarian populations on the uplands might secure quiet, but the Turkish government is not deeply interested in matters appertaining to the safety or the peace of mind of subjects in the disaffected districts.

The Albanians in the mountain fastnesses are not hankering after the reforms demanded by the powers. For centuries they have enjoyed a sort of independence which appears to satisfy their pugnacious nature. The recent rising of the Albanians at Mitrovitza and Priestina may have been inspired by the Sultan for the purpose of notifying the powers that reforms can not be instituted in one place without stirring up a hornet's nest in another place.

A Constantinople despatch declares that the latest trouble has caused intense concern at the palace among the ministers. Abul Hamid would have Austria and Russia believe that he is sitting in the Yildiz Kiosk to-day, the picture of dejection over the wicked conduct of those scrappy Albanians. In order to create the impression that he is very anxious to discipline the offenders, he has announced that he will send sixteen batalions of Anatolian soldiers to Albania, in addition to the sixteen batalions already on the way there, to occupy the disaffected country. The Sultan has also sent a pacificatory mission to the Albanian chiefs for the purpose of conveying the soothing information that the proposed reforms will in no way injure their rights or liberties.

Although the Sultan has received intimation that Austrians will occupy Mitrovitza unless the Albanians are promptly suppressed, the prospects are that the Turkish troops will not make any serious demonstration in Albania. The powers are growing impatient over Abul Hamid's duplicity. Austria may not be prepared to adopt extreme measures, but a continuation of the Sultan's policy will surely precipitate the inevitable conflict.

LOVE OF COUNTRY

Canada is more Scotch than the Real Scotch man

At the banquet given in honor of the Scotch curlers who visited this country last winter, including Peterborough, the Rev. Mr. Kerr said that he was proud of the success of the team socially, and he acknowledged with gratitude the honors paid to them by Mayors, Judges, members of Parliament, by Masonic lodges and St Andrew's associations. The churches, too, received them. (Dr. Barclay, formerly of Edinburgh, gave the team a nice address; the Presbytery of Toronto gave them not an address, but a "dressing." (Laughter.) He had sent to the Presbytery Clerk for an extract of the Presbytery records to be preserved as relics in the Royal Caledonian Club's archives. (Laughter.) The first thing that impressed the visitors about their opponents was their love of country. There was none there "patriot of the world alone, the friend of every country but his own." (Applause.) But with that love was joined a deep, intense love for Scotland; the Canadians were more Scottish in many of their habits and customs than the people at home. Above all, the visitors found great love for the Empire. (Applause.) The most interesting curlers the team met were those who described themselves as "old-timers," men who had gone to Canada many years ago, and to whom it was like a visit to the old country before they died to grasp the Scottish visitors by the hand. By the visit of the team the spirit of the "old-timers" had been imparted to the young men, and thus the visit had bound closer together Canada and the old country. (Applause.)

TO DEAL IN WESTERN LANDS

Prospectus of the Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Ltd.

In another part of to-day's issue appears the prospectus of the Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited formed for, the purpose of dealing in lands in Manitoba and the West. The names appearing upon the Board of Directors shows the strength of this company and the immense immigration into Canada at the present time, and the practically assured future of the country should make its operations very profitable, and the stock of the company a practically attractive one from an investor's standpoint. The board, with the exception of the addition of Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., and Mr D McGregor, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Galt., Ont., is the same as that of the Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, which was so successfully floated about three months ago, and whose operations have already made the stock of that company a valuable asset. The Union Trust Company, of Toronto are authorized to issue $500,000 of the stock of the Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited, at par, and application may be made either to that company or at any branch of the Merchants' Bank of Canada or of the Union Bank of Canada.

THE EMPRESS OF CHINA HATES THE FOREIGNERS

Her Recent Move to Drive Them Out

London, April. 14—The doings of the Empress Regent of China continue to excite the gravest suspicions. Her removal of the court to Paotingfu, her promotion of Boxer leaders to command provinces where a revival of anti-foreign feelings will be the most patent, the unceasing manufacture of arms in the country and the purchase of arms from Germany, all encourage the belief that her friendliness to the legations is a hypocritical pretence designed to cover plans for a fresh effort to sweep the foreigners from China. These fears, no doubt, animate the Times when it devotes its first editorial today to regret, that the United States seems to encourage China to continue to flaunt her profligacy and fanaticism in the eyes of the world.

AN EXPENSIVE EXPERIMENT

The report of the commission appointed by President Roosevelt to arbitrate the differences between the coal operators and their employes has been pretty generally read and digested by the American public, and the consensus of opinion seems to incline to the belief that as an experiment in industrial economics, the anthracite coal strike of 1902 was the most gigantic blunder of which we have record. The workmen and the operators both claim a victory in the award of the commission. As a matter of fact each side is seeking to discover in the report an excuse for the strike and its consequences. The miners, to the unbiased mind, have the best of the argument, taking the official report as a basis, but there are many paragraphs in the document which might well be expunged to their benefit. The operators also, while they can point to sections of the report as showing justification for their cause, do not appear in a flattering light before the public. The strike is over, and there will be no repetition of its disastrous history for several years, at least, and perhaps never, but in final analysis the verdict of the thinking people of the country will be that the strike was a needless blunder—one that cost the country at least a hundred million dollars directly and indirectly a great deal more.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL RESERVE

The question of an efficient naval reserve is one that is causing continually increasing anxiety to the British Admiralty. The report of the expert committee, which was appointed a year ago to investigate the whole subject, has just been published in a Blue Book. This points out that while in 1859 there was a total efficient reserve of 30,000, with an active service vote of 73,104, at the present time the efficient reserves corresponding to those recommended by the Royal Commissioners in 1859 number 34,000 with an active service vote for 1902-3 of 122,500. It is therefore obvious that large additions to the reserves are imperative. The report says that in considering the extent to which the navy ought to depend upon the mercantile marine, it should be borne in mind that it is undesirable to draw too largely upon the latter for a reserve. One of the objects of a strong navy is to enable merchant ships to keep the sea in time of war, and this object would be defeated if so many seamen and firemen were suddenly withdrawn from the mercantile marine as to paralyse a great part of it.

HIS OVERNEAT WIFE

Published by request.

The neatest woman in town
  Folks say I've got for a wife;
And what folks say is Gospel truth
  This time, you bet your life,
Keturah Brown she beats the world
  On bakin' bread and pies;
But her best holt is fightin' dirt
  And circumventin' flies.

Her temper's like her pie crust, which
  They're both uncommon short.
An' tho' I am free-and-easy like
  Sometimes she makes me snort.
There ain't no sense in havin' things
  So dum'd all-fired neat,
Nor sayin' ev'ry time I step,
  "Now, Zek'l, wipe your feet!"

I can't set down in our best room,
  It is so slick and spruce;
Fact is, 'most everything we've got's
  Too good for common use.
Though next to godliness the Book
  Puts cleanliness, I am bound
To say Keturah's mighty apt
  To run it in the ground.

There ain't no use in kickin'; I'm Prepared to bear my cross.
Some day, perhaps, I'll wear my crown;
  Keturah she can't boss
Things round in heaven. An' since we're told
  That there is no moth nor rust
Comes to corrupt, I guess it's safe
  To say there ain't no dust.

But, oh, what will Keturah do
  Within those pearly gates,
If she no longer finds the dirt
  That she so dearly hates?
O'ershadowed heaven itself will be,
  Engulfed in awful gloom,
When my Keturah enters in
  And cannot use a broom.

Billious Dyspepsia

A DREADFUL COMPLAINT ACCOMPANIED BY HEADACHE, SICKNESS OF THE STOMACH, VOMITING THAT CAN BE PERMANENTLY AND QUICKLY CURED BY FERROZONE

Some persons have attacks of Billious Dyspepsia very frequently, and feel as if they were about to die.

The whole system seems to collapse. The tongue becomes coated, the face a sallow pallor, and a bitter taste is always noticeable in the mouth. At times the bowels are very constipated [illegible] occasional acute diarrhoea is caused by the accumulation of bile in the system.

It is highly dangerous to allow such a condition to imperil your life. It must be cured and the simplest and surest remedy is Ferrozone. It digests every particle of food eaten, and prevents the waste products from clogging up the system.

Ferrozone restores all deranged organs to a healthy, vigorous condition. It keeps the bowels well regulated, makes the kidneys eliminate all poisons from the blood, and supplies the necessary elements to build up and strengthen the entire body.

Mr. Louis Moolan, one of Peterborough's most enterprising and well known business men, during the past three years was an unceasing sufferer from Bilious Dyspepsia. He was cured permanently by Ferrozone and is so anxious that all others may profit by his experience that he gives the following testimonial.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Moolan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me, and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured by of Dyspepsia and Billiousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone is capable of digesting all classes of food, and contains in a highly concentrated form the elements necessary for strengthening and reconstructing, and nourishing the stomach and other digestive organs. It is a builder of blood, muscle and fat, and makes sickly, weak, disheartened people strong and well. Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim and spirit and cures every time. Sold by all druggists. Price 50c. per box or three boxes for $1.25. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

Our Language.

Yet another humorous story anent the idiosyncrasies of the English language is current. A Frenchman came to England with the object of making himself master of the tongue, and the following sentence was given him:

"The rough cough and hiccough plough me through." The teacher told him the first word was pronounced "ruff." He thereupon said this: "The ruff cuff and hiccuff pluff me thruff."

"No, no—the second word is pronounced 'koff'!"

"Then," said the Frenchman, "it must be the roff coff and hiccoff ploff me throff."

The third, fourth and fifth words were explained with the same result, which the reader may repeat for himself.

"Colonel," asked the Northern [illegible], "do you people of the South believe in cremation?" "Sometimes, sah," replied the colonel, "when we think plain hangin' wouldn't begin to fit the crime, sah!"—Catholic Standard and Times."

To Set Her Free

(Copyrighted

By Florence Warden.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

as matter had no interest for her, clamored to hear more. Norma felt a little natural diffidence about repeating, especially to such a large audience, a conversation which had not been meant for her ears.

"I'd rather not say whom I heard talking," she said, "nor to whom. But I heard—overheard, I must confess, some talk which proved what we have all suspected, that the boy Ned Raggett did see the murder committed, and that he is being made to keep silence."

"Well! then we know who did it!" cried Jack loudly. "Of course it was that bounder of a doctor! I knew he was a scoundrel. I always felt he was. And now we must make the boy speak, and get the doctor hanged."

This speech naturally caused a good deal of commotion. Lady Myfanwy was angry.

"It's a shocking thing, Jack, for a boy like you to dare to accuse a man in the doctor's position of murder," said she. "As if the gossip overheard by people it was not intended for was to be taken as gospel!"

There was a moment's dead silence after this disagreeable speech. Astley, to Norma's great relief, took up her cause at once.

"I'm quite sure," said he, "that Norma would not have mentioned words that were not intended for her to hear except in a matter of great moment. And a wife may be excused, surely," he went on, "if she feels that to clear her husband of even the faintest suspicion of being concerned in a murder, is a matter of moment."

Norma was so grateful, so deeply touched by these words and the tone in which they were uttered, that it was with difficulty she kept back the tears. Lady Myfanwy answered him at once, rather impatiently.

"If there were any serious idea of connecting you with this dreadful thing," she said, "it would be different. But there isn't. We all know you to be incapable of anything but the most honorable and chivalrous conduct. When there are real suspicions about, it will be time to talk about exonerating you."

"The suspicions are real enough, unfortunately," said Astley. "I've already heard a good many things said about me, by people who didn't know who I was, which were not pleasant hearing for any man. The question is, if the boy's mouth is being kept shut, who's to get him to speak?"

"The police, if anybody," said Lady Myfanwy.

"They've tried, I happen to know," said he, "and to no purpose. The very name of police is alarming to a lad, especially to one who has been 'got at,' as he apparently has been."

"We could listen with more interest, you know, to your account of your experiences," went on Lady Myfanwy to Norma, not using any name in addressing her, "if you would be a little more outspoken. Surely, if it is a secret, we might be trusted with it. When you appear to have come here for our advice, too."

Norma hesitated, and Astley, who began to be indignant at the tone Lady Myfanwy was taking, turned to Norma.

"Come," he said, "you will be able to talk more freely to me than you dare do here. Lady Myfanwy and Lady Violet will excuse us both, I'm sure. We may have to wire up to town for some help, and to consider what is best to be done."

"But you will come back to dinner, won't you?" said Lady Myfanwy in a [illegible] go. "You promised, you know!"

"Even a promise is subject to revision in a case of emergency," he said, courteously, but rather coolly; "I'm very grateful for your kindness to me, Lady Myfanwy, but I must show some regard to the wishes of my wife."

When they were outside in the dark and the cold again, Norma's spirits fell still lower than before. The belief that she was losing whatever hold she had upon Astley, and that Lady Myfanwy had succeeded in supplanting her in his regard, weighed upon her like lead. At the same time she tried to bear up under this new blow, and told herself that, since happiness with herself was out of the question, she ought to be glad that he had found, in the earl's daughter, a powerful friend. These feelings and thoughts made her silent, and it was Astley who spoke first. Following her down the drive, after he had been detained a few moments by the imperious Lady Myfanwy, he drew her reluctant hand through his arm and said:

"My dear, you look unhappy, horribly unhappy! What is it? Something worse than anything you have told us of?"

At the kind words, Norma felt her courage and her stoicism giving way; the next moment her tears were falling.

"Yes, there is something worse," she said. "There's—there's—Lady Myfanwy!"

Her tone told him more than her words. With an imperious action which there was no resisting, he threw his arm round her. They were by this time far away from the great house, the lights of which shone out faintly in the distance between the trees of the park.

"Silly, silly child, to be jealous!" said he.

Again the tone was more eloquent than the speech. Norma felt a little comfort steal into her heart.

"I know, oh, I know that I'm nothing to you now, that it seems impossible to hope that we can ever be happy, and—and I know I don't deserve to be!" she almost sobbed. "But—oh, to find you there, with that woman leaning over you, and talking to you in that charming, caressing way she has with the people she likes—oh, don't you see how hard it seemed? When I'd thought you were miles and miles away!"

"The reason why I was not miles away was that there was an attraction that drew me back here," said Astley gently, keeping her hand tucked under his arm. "I came back only this afternoon—a flying visit to hear whether the police had found out anything, and to learn how you were. I had scarcely got out of the station when some of the Hall people drove up, and insisted on my going back with them instead of going to an hotel, as I had intended to do. There! Are you satisfied now?"

Norma drew a shivering sigh.

"Satisfied! No," said she. "It would take more than that to make me feel anything so acute as satisfaction. I shall feel that when—when you are perfectly happy, no matter what becomes of me!"

"Would you be satisfied to see me happy with Lady Myfanwy?" he asked playfully.

But the shiver which passed through her made him grave again. She, however, tried to smile, as she said gently: "Yes, yes. If you could be happy with her, then I should be content. Really, really."

PROSPECTUS

THIS Corporation has been formed for the purpose of dealing in lands in Manitoba and the North-West Territories of Canada.

Up to a few months ago practically the whole profit from dealing in the lands in the Great Western portion of the country had been reaped by shrewd American investors, who realized the immense possibilities and the certain future of Western Canada before we Canadians realized the immense heritage which lay within the boundaries of our own country. In the last months of the year 1902, however, the promoters of this Corporation having, through the different financial institutions with which they are connected, been obliged to make a careful study of the Western situation, became so thoroughly satisfied of the certain future of the Great West, and of the practically assured profits from an investment in Western lands, that they decided to form a company to deal in land in the Canadian West. With that end in view a block of something over 125,000 acres was secured in the Big Quill Plains, in the District of Saskatchewan, and a company known as The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, was formed for the purpose of acquiring and handling this block. The stock of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, was placed upon the market and offered to the public for subscription in January of the present year, and so prompt was the response that within one month it was necessary to close the stock books, and even then applications for a large quantity of stock were refused. But from a Shareholder's standpoint the best part remains to be told. Before the sales of stock were stopped, arrangements had been made with a large American Land Company for the sale of the whole of Company's lands at a price so largely in excess of the purchase price that the stock of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, is already a very profitable one, and is held very firmly by its present holders; and all this was done in less than one month. Can any better proof be given of the wisdom of an investment in Western lands.

At the time The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, were dealing with the Quill Plains lands the Directors had in view several other available blocks of land, and were having the same carefully examined, but waited until of the one operation proved to the Canadian public the safety and profit of an investment of this kind. This has now been abundantly shown by the success of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, and we have therefore no hesitation in placing before the public the stock of The Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited.

It is only within the last year or two that Canadians have come to realize that Canada's future in a great measure lies in the West, a country immeasurably larger than the East and capable of supporting in comfort millions of people. Few in Eastern Canada realize the great progress this Western country is now making, and that before many years the West will surpass the East in point of population. Immigrants are pouring in, and the people of the United States especially are investing immense sums in land and [illegible], for the rise which they know is sure to come. Lands in the West are increasing rapidly in value. Investments in them now are bound to realize handsome profits. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company in 1902 sold 2,420,440 acres against 830,522 acres for the previous year. The Canada North-West Land Company sold 516,000 acres, as against 120,000 acres the previous year. The Saskatchewan Valley Land Company, of St. Paul, Minn., sold over one million acres of land in 1902 at a profit of some millions of dollars. The Haslam Land and Investment Company, of St. Paul, Minn., sold 300,000 acres in one year. The North-West Colonization Company, of St. Paul, disposed of over 500,000 acres, and if to these be added the lands sold by the Dominion and Manitoba Governments, the Canadian Northern Railway and other companies, syndicates and individuals an opinion may be formed of the immense advances this Western country has made in one year.

The Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited, has purchased a large tract of land in what is known as the Vermillion River District in Western Saskatchewan. It has been a tradition for years in the West that the most fertile belt of land in Canada, and therefore in the [illegible] between the Battle River to the south and the Saskatchewan on the north. In this fertile country we have the right to select 300,000 acres of specially chosen lands, and our selectors are now in the district carefully examining the land section. This land will lie along and between the Edmonton extension of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Transcontinental Line of the Canadian Northern Railway, thus assuring to settlers the immense advantages of two competing lines of railway, each within easy access to their farms and to markets. For soil, water, timber, fuel, grass and hay this land is unsurpassed in the world, and these points are what determine the settler in choosing land. Our land immediately adjoins the Barr Settlement of British settlers, and also Dr. Adams' colony of Nestorians, and the placing of over 20,000 settlers by these organizations in this district within the next year practically assures a rapid increase in the value of our lands.

No lands are purchased by this Corporation except after a careful and capable report by the most experienced land selectors in the West, and thus practically every element of the risk eliminated from an investment in the shares of the Company.

This is an investment which should especially appeal to the Canadian public, as it gives a practical certainty of profitable returns without the risk so often run in investing in companies doing a business of a hazardous nature, and it is an investment which Canadians, believing in their own country and its future, may make feeling that in so doing they are helping to develop their own land.

The Union Trust Company, Limited, now offers $800,000 of the capital stock of this corporation, divided into 8,000 shares of $100 each, for subscription at par, 25 per cent. to be paid in on application, 10 per cent. in 30 days thereafter, and 10 per cent. further in 60 days and the balance, as called by the directors, if deemed necessary. Applications for stock will be accepted only in order of their receipt by the Trustees and should be addressed to The Union Trust Company, Limited, Toronto. Applications and also the large Prospectus of the Company may be obtained from The Union Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, or from any branch of the Merchants Bank of Canada or of the Union Bank of Canada, through whom applications and payments may be forwarded.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 [illegible] pumping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock at 15 cents per share, for that purpose.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

LOW LEVEL

of stock prices at present makes the New York Stock Market unusually attractive at this time. The decline of from 10 to 40 points in the prices of standard shares, brings them below actual bargain prices. Some issues are cheaper and better to buy than some others. STOCK MARKETS

BRIGHTER TIMES AHEAD.

New York, April 13.—The week just opened promises a better range of values. In the past 60 days the market has been continuously and most unmercifully hammered, and stocks have been sold to a standstill. The market has now reached the point where the bears can sell one or two stocks down at a time, and that only by preconcerted and united efforts. When doing so balance of market fails to follow, generally becoming sluggish and quiet. This is the best possible indication that liquidation has about ceased and that the bear campaign has practically run its course. Prices are low enough. Take some of the very best stocks, such as Illinois Central. It would be impossible to purchase at going prices any quantity of this stock. It is not offering in the market. L. N. is in a similar condition. The demand for Pennsylvania and N. Y. C. by investors has greatly increased, also for Manhattan and Metropolitan. Fully one month ago Metropolitan was two or three points lower than it is at present. In the meantime the press has been full of various literature appertaining to this security, while we have also been in the midst of a supposedly bear market, yet this stock has actually reported a gain. There are numberless instances of like character that could be pointed out at present. A careful analysis of such facts would indicate the market to be practically at the turning point. We doubt if any mistake will be made in buying immediately such stocks as N. Y. C., Metropolitan, Manhattan, Missouri Pacific, L. N., Pennsylvania, Illinois Central, Atchison, R. I., the Readings and Eries, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, the Wabashes, T. C. I., Steels, etc. They can now be secured at remarkable concessions from the prices ruling sixty or even thirty days ago. Also at prices which are below the average for these securities. If one will buy a good stock when it is obtainable below its average market price, and hold it, he is absolutely certain to have the opportunity to sell it again at a profit. In Wall street as elsewhere it is wise to make haste slowly, also to have a reasonable supply of patience. The latter qualification is oft times more essential than margin. There are times when the two can be utilized, with certainty of gain. It is such a time at present. We strongly recommend the immediate purchase of any of the stocks we have enumerated in to-day's letter. Back your purchase by a liberal margin and we are confident you will win out in so doing.

Summary—Liquidation has been incessant during the day that we feel justified in writing as we do. The atmosphere has been thoroughly clarified, and the price level too tempting to be overlooked. The western element sold a large part of the stock offered to-day, thereby uncovering many stop loss orders, and the bears threw out large new lines for their future undoing. Declines were uniform throughout the list, and were so general that it becomes unnecessary to refer to any particular feature. Money closed 3 1-2 per cent. Sales 1,299,700.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 31 years old and for 8 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) S. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. A MAGNIFICENT INVESTMENT

THE GOLD TUNNEL COMPANY.
PRESCOTT, ARIZONA

The Company owns in SIX PARALLEL VEINS of GIGANTIC SIZE, one of the largest GOLD PROPOSITIONS in the country. Each of these six veins would make a mine by itself.

The Company, by purchase and consolidation, has succeeded in acquiring the entire length of these great GOLD BEARING ledges; covering an area six thousand feet in length and about two thousand feet wide. The Company owns this valuable property free of any incumbrance.

The ground included in this group of mines gives ample evidence of tremendous natural disturbances, and shows plainly on the surface the acid and mineral stains characteristic of a heavy mineralized gold lead of gigantic proportions.

Six Miles of Gold Bearing Veins

Through the length of four of the mining claims; forming a continuous line 6,000 feet long run THREE LEDGES so close together as to be economically worked from one opening; they aggregate from 85 to 200 feet in width.

The adjoining line of three mining claims shows a ledge 4,500 feet in length, varying in width from 7 to 200 feet, with the same character of ore.

Beginning at the south end of the "Eighty-Four" mining claim, is a fifth large ledge carrying good values in GOLD, and running in a northerly direction for a distance of fully forty-five hundred feet.

Two mining claims on the east side show GOLD BEARING CROPPINGS 40 to 50 feet wide through their entire length, a distance of three thousand feet.

All of the ledges are well mineralized, carrying at grass root values in gold running from about $2.00 to $6.00 per ton.

THE STREET RAILWAY

Matter to be Discussed at the Board of Trade To-night

The Board of Trade meets this evening for the purpose of discussing the street railway franchise and electric light for the town. The Cereal Company has made a proposition to the town to build, equip and run, an electric railway on certain streets in town and Ashburnham, on condition that they receive the contract for street lighting at a certain price for a term of years. The Otonabee Power Company has also submitted a proposition for street lighting at a figure which appears to be very favorably received by many. These franchises are to extend over a term of many years, and should be carefully considered and discussed, not only by the Board of Trade and Town Council, but by every ratepayer. One and all have an interest in this matter which so materially affects the welfare and touches the pockets of freeholders and tenants alike. There is therefore likely to be a very interesting discussion at the Board meeting this evening, and we hope that everything of a personal character may be eliminated and that only which affects the public good may find place in the arguments presented.

SECURED 100 ACRES

In Port Hope District for the Big Berlin Sugar Factory

Farmers interested in the Peterborough Sugar Company will be interested in the following, taken from the Galt Reporter:

Mr. James Wallace has returned after a three or four weeks' stay in Port Hope and Bowmanville district where he worked in the interests of the Ontario Beet Sugar Co., of Berlin. Mr. Wallace was very successful, securing nearly 1000 acres. He held a number of meetings and conducted a private canvass. Incidentally he ran against the Peterborough men who are putting every effort to get a factory started this year.

Mr. Wallace was very pleased with what he saw in the Bowmanville districts. He found the farms as good if not superior to those here and the farmers proved of a high order. He stated, however, that there were not so many evidences of comfort on the farms there as here.

Mr. Wallace, it will be remembered, was appointed by the Galt Board of Trade to go to Ottawa with the Beet Sugar delegation. He was unable to keep the engagement, however. Though an old free trader he supports the application for a bounty, on the plea, that when favors are going round the farmer should get his share.

Lightning Remedy for Cramps

Some people have cramps pretty often, others only now and again. But when you do have them it is a mighty quick relief you want. Polson's Nerviline is as sure as death to relieve cramps in five seconds—it's instantaneous, just a few drops in sweetened water and the pain is gone. Buy a bottle of Nerviline to-day, and keep it handy. Nerviline is a common household necessity and only costs 25 cents.

A Dusty Atmosphere

Numerous complaints were heard yesterday with regard to the dust which was flying in all directions, and causing pedestrians to wipe their eyes and shed briny tears over the absence of the watering cart. The reason given for its absence was that owing to the recent frosts it had been thought advisable to keep the valves of the stand-pipes, from which the water for the carts is obtained, turned off. It was not until a late hour that the water was turned on, and then the carts made a triumphant march through the town and mended matters somewhat.

Arbor Day

The Education Department has issued a circular to school inspectors asking that Arbor Day and Empire Day be properly observed in every school. This year the former falls on Friday, May 1, and the latter on Friday, May 22. Mr. Harcourt remarks: "Let Arbor Day be a bright, joyous holiday devoted to the pleasure of making beautiful what should be beautiful, and developing in the young minds a keen appreciation of nature. Let Empire Day be also a day which will foster a healthy national patriotism, and awaken all the pleasurable emotions which the love of our country and empire should inspire."

HERE'S A POINT

In the manufacture of Malt Breakfast Food, the starch of the wheat is changed into digestible, delicate and health-giving nutriment. In oatmeal and other cereal foods the starch and other indigestible elements hamper and retard digestion, and cause stomach troubles that seriously affect general health. Malt Breakfast Food is the only form of nutriment that is always tolerated by weak stomachs. It pleases the whole family, old and young, strong and weak, athlete and invalid. The children love Malt Breakfast Food and thrive on it. Have your grocer send you a package; you'll like it.

He expects to return to Canada in about a year and a half.

Fishery Laws

As the close season for game fish is approaching it may not be out of place to remind the public of the period when catching is prohibited. It is as follows: Bass from the 15th day of April to the 15th day of June. Maskinonge from 15th of April to 15th of June; Pickerel from 15th April to 15th May; Speckled trout from 15th September to the 1st of May. It must be remembered that both days above named are inclusive. The season for maskinonge in Rice Lake ends on the 1st of June. The same restrictions on netting and the use of explosives which governed fishing in the past are in force this year.

The Day of Miracles not Past

A Toronto "Star" reporter investigated the case of Mr. Geo. Warner, and found that after thirteen years of almost total deafness, he had been cured by inhaling Catarrhozone.

This proves that where Catarrhozone treatment is employed, impaired hearing and deafness can be cured. Catarrhozone always brings quick relief, and is warranted to give lasting satisfaction. All sufferers from Impaired Hearing, Deafness, Head Noises and Ringing in the Ears are advised to inhale Catarrhozone and derive the great benefit it is capable of affording. Sleeplessness

Is akin to insanity. Many a woman realizes this as she lies awake hour by hour, peopling the darkness with phantoms, starting at the creaking of the bed or the rustle of the bedclothes.

Such symptoms in general point to disease of the delicate womanly organs, and a constant drain of the vital and nervous forces. This condition cannot be overcome by sleeping powders. The diseased condition must be cured before the consequences of disease are removed.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the womanly diseases which cause nervousness and sleeplessness. It is the best of tonics and invigorants, nourishing the nerves, encouraging the appetite and inducing refreshing sleep. Irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness are perfectly cured by "Favorite Prescription."

"My wife was sick for over eight years," writes Albert H. Fulte, Esq., of Altamont, Grundy Co., Tenn. "She had uterine disease and was treated by two physicians and got no relief. At last I read about Dr. Pierce's medicines and we decided to try his 'Favorite Prescription.' I sent to the drug store and got one bottle and the first dose gave ease and sleep. She had not slept any for three nights. Being sure that it would cure her I sent for five more bottles and when she had taken the sixth bottle she was sound and well."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

GAMEY-STRATTON BRIBERY CASE.

Member for Manitoulin Tells of His First Interview with Mr. Stratton At the Parliament Buildings in Toronto

To what extent Mr. Gamey controlled the patronage of Manitoulin Island was brought out in the cross-examination of the member for Manitoulin at yesterday morning's session of the Royal Commission. Mr. Gamey gave his evidence in a cool and collected manner. He was still in the witness box when the court adjourned at 1 p.m.

Not quite so many auditors were in the court room when the Gamey investigation re-opened yesterday morning but the interest in the proceedings did not wane one jot or one tittle. Mr. Johnston continued his cross-examination of Mr. Gamey the first question being in regard to the first day the witness had been in Mr. Stratton's office. The witness thought it was on the 10th of September.

"The day you were introduced to him?"

"Most likely."

"Don't guess, please," said the lawyer, we want facts. Was that the day?"

Mr. Gamey said it was the day. "I was there about three-quarters of an hour," continued the witness, in answer to Mr. Johnston's varied and at times sarcastic questions. "Of course it might be more, but I should say we were there from three-quarters of an hour to an hour. We went into the office at 10 a.m., but Mr. Stratton was not in at the time. Sullivan and I walked about the offices for a time and we met Mr. Stratton about 10.20 or perhaps 10.30."

"Oh, yes," said Mr. Johnston, "ten minutes, more or less, is neither here nor there with a man like you."

Mr. Gamey said to the best of his recollection he had met Mr. Stratton at 10.30. He continued, "I likely stayed until 11.30 and it might have been 12 o'clock. I left the office and did not see Mr. Stratton again that day. On the next day I went up again, about 10.30. Frank Sullivan was with me. I could not say where I met Sullivan—perhaps at the Walker House."

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Johnston "you don't know where you met him. Perhaps you did not meet him at all?"

"Yes, I did meet him, but I could not say the exact place," replied Mr. Gamey.

"Well now," said Mr. Johnston "you were dealing with a great national question. I do not suppose you were doing this great work for reward?"

"That is my business," said Mr. Gamey.

"Will you swear that you had no reason to expect any reward?"

"Yes, and I never said to anyone that I expected a seat in the Government."

On Thursday, Sept. 11, Mr. Gamey said he went to the Parliament Building a little after 10 o'clock. They waited about an hour before seeing Stratton. It was after 11 when they saw Stratton, and left about 12.

Mr Johnston—Nothing to bring back a recollection of any other hour?

Mr. Gamey—I say I left about that time.

Mr. Johnston then read from Mr. Gamey's statement to the effect that he went to Stratton's office about 10 a.m., and it was 12 or 12.30 before Stratton was ready.

Mr. Gamey would not change his statement as to the time.

Mr. Gamey said he had left for home on Thursday, September 11, but that he had been under the impression that he received the money on the previous day.

To Mr. Johnston's question, "is that statement then true or false?" Mr. Gamey answered, "I said about the 9th or 10th."

"Then it is not true that you received the money on Wednesday?"

"I am prepared to swear I received it on the 11th."

"I am not quarrelling with your capacity to swear. You are prepared to swear quite a bit. This was an important incident in your life, yet you could not remember the day this payment was made. Were you ever bought before?"

"I was not bought then."

"You told half a dozen people about the offers made you?"

"I told four or five."

"When did you change your mind as to telling more than McGregor?"

"I didn't change my mind.

WANTED BROTHER APPOINTED.

"Your statement says that you and McGregor came to the conclusion that you should go on and get evidence, and your story would be told on the floor of the House, and absolutely no one would know before."

"I meant that in a general way."

"Does 'absolutely' mean in a general way?"

"That is a wrong phrase."

"Then you didn't mean what you said?"

"I meant that McGregor was the only one of the association who should know."

"Didn't you tell Turner, the president of the association?"

"No, he didn't live in Gore Bay."

"Did you tell everybody in Gore Bay?"

"No"

"Didn't it get in the Manitoulin papers last fall that you were deserting your party?"

"It went in after the Globe interview."

"No, but it was talked about."

"Your statement says that after you got the money you told one Toronto Conservative and agreed with him that you would tell no one else?"

"I wrote that as reasonably correct as I could at the time. I was not on oath then."

"Did you talk to the Ministers about any of your family?"

"No."

"Didn't you talk to Mr. Stratton about getting your brother in the Crown Lands Department?"

"Yes."

"Before you got any money?"

"No, in January."

"You asked Mr. Stratton to have your brother appointed?"

"I told him I might ask him later on."

"Was your asking to depend on the Government being in power?

"Depended on how I felt. It depended on whether I wanted to talk to Stratton and get more evidence."

"I saw Stratton about the appointment of my brother on January 13th.

APPOINTMENTS MADE.

The question of the patronage of the riding was then brought up.

"You claim," said Mr. Johnston, "to have got certain patronage. What did you get?"

"I had certain appointments."

"But what did you get?"

"I got the sheriff appointed returning officer for the referendum. He was a Liberal in politics, but the Liberals did not want him appointed. Mr. Thos. Flesher was also appointed, and so far as I know I was the means of getting him the appointment.

"Did you appoint any others?"

"No."

"I suppose you could have appointed dozens?"

"Not at all. I could have appointed others, and was asked repeatedly to do so by both Stratton and Sullivan. I would not appoint a Tory or it would injure the scheme. I got a petition for the appointment of Flesher from Flesher himself on the 20th of September, 1902."

"Was it known to the people in the riding that you were to support the Government?"

"Perhaps so; some might have thought so, but I do not think Flesher did. He came to me and asked if he could be appointed, as the Liberal candidate of the riding would not recommend him."

Judge Falconbridge — What was Flesher's politics?

"I don't know that he has any. He is a Customs house officer, a good man, and he handles the business well."

"You applied also to have John McEachren appointed as provincial constable. Was he appointed?"

No."

"Not with Mr. Gamey's recommendation."

No."

When the Court rose in the afternoon the cross-examination was still unfinished.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATION

Into the Labour Troubles on the Pacific Coast

Ottawa, April 15.—The two gentlemen who will enquire into the labor troubles in British Columbia will be Chief Justice Gordon Hunter, of the Supreme Court of the province, and Rev. Dr. Rowe, of the Methodist church of Victoria. Senator Templeman has asked them to act, and they have consented to do so. They will enquire into the strikes in the coal industry and on the railways, and especially to what extent labor troubles are fomented in British Columbia by walking delegates from the United States.

KING LEAVES FOR MALTA

Battleships Despatched to Greet French President

Gibraltar, April 15.—According to King Edward's direction, the battleships Magnificent, Prince George, Jupiter, and Mars, left here to-day for Algiers, where they will help to receive the French president on his arrival. The King, who is delighted by his hearty welcome at "The Rock," left to-day for Malta, escorted by six cruisers of the Mediterranean fleet.

TO SAVE DYNASTY

The Crown Prince of Saxony will Remarry the Errant Princess

Berlin, April 15.—The news that Crown Princess Louise of Saxony who eloped on December 11 with Andre Giron, the tutor of her children, and her husband, the Crown Prince of Saxony, are to be reunited next week, is confirmed here.

The reconciliation is to be effected for the sake of the dynasty and their children. It is announced that the Crown Prince will visit the Crown Princess at Salzburg next week, and that they will immediately be remarried. It is reported they have agreed to this course, and have pledged each other not to refer to the past.

A despatch from Salzburg confirms the above, stating the reconciliation is complete.

BOARD OF TRADE AND THE STREET RY.

Feeling Strong in Favor of the Cereal Company

HOW MUCH WOULD THE BONUS BE

THE STREET RAILWAY.

Mr. D. W. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. R. E. Wood, That the early reconstruction and operation of the street railway is desired by the people of Peterborough, and that the council will be supported in any fair and reasonable action they may adopt to secure its early operation. —Carried.

The above resolution was the outcome of a big meeting of the Board of Trade and representative citizens last night to discuss the street railway question, coupled with the proposition of Mr. Stuart and Senator Cox, correctly speaking, the American Cereal Co., to operate the railway, providing they are awarded the contract for street lighting, at $60 per lamp per year for a period of 10 years.

In opposition to this comes a counter tender for street lighting from the Otonabee Power Co., at $35 a lamp per year for 10 years. Both prices are "net."

There was also read a resolution adopted by the Federal Union No. 9240, Inside Workers, saying that they are favorably impressed with the offering of the Cereal Company, and recommending the acceptance as calculated to promote the present and future welfare of the town.

President Hughes-Charles laid the matter before the Board for their discussion, and expressed his opinion that if the railway were extended on the radial plan, reaching outside points, with Peterborough its centre no one can estimate the benefits which would result therefrom to the town.

Mr. Dumble said the question is an intricate one, and he did not wonder at the Town Council hesitating in dealing with it. He finds there is a strong desire in town for a street railway; whether it will pay or not is a question for its operators to go into. We need not, however, consider the value of the franchise in any sense; the question before us is how much are we prepared to pay to have the railway in operation on a sound basis. As to light, he is not in favor of paying $60 a lamp; that is too much even in the shape of a bonus for railway facilities. He thought if the Cereal Co.'s price per lamp were so adjusted as to leave a net gain to them of say $1,000 a year, that would be a fair arrangement to enter into with them.

Mr. R. E. Wood thought the Board was not in a position to advise the Council as to any specific action. They should secure experts' opinion on the light question first. He had the authority of experts that such arc lights as we have at present cannot be maintained at less than $40 a lamp [illegible] this the cost of power at $10 per horse power an actual cost per lamp of $50 a year. He apprehended that a dividend is provided for in this estimate. If these figures are correct then the acceptance of the Cereal Co.'s tender at $60 per lamp, would only mean a bonus of a thousand dollars a year, or an actual cash bonus of $7,000 in ten years, after deducting all expenses. He considered this a very satisfactory arrangement to enter into. Whether the closed lamps proposed by the Otonabee Power Co. are as good as the arc lights now in use, he was not prepared to say; some say they are and some say they are not. He would be willing to pay double his share of the outlay for the convenience of a street railway, the operation of which would also impress on visitors the importance of Peterborough as a busy centre.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum said he, with others would like to see the railway in operation; but there are many property owners who don't appear to have a strong feeling in its favor; some do not approve of even a $1000 or $2000 bonus, while others think a 13 years' franchise would be too much. One thing is certain; we must have a better system than the other proved to be; we don't want to see two railway burials in town. If we are to have a railway, let it be taken separately from the light contract, and a by-law submitted to the people for a straight cash bonus — that's business. As to the lights we purpose to use, Hamilton is throwing out their arc lights and putting in 420 of these closed ones. The city of Detroit also has 2,000 of them in use. The Otonabee Power Co. have the assurance that the Canadian General Electric Co. will stand behind their lamps every time; they are prepared to back up his figures, at which they say the street lighting can be done.

Mr. Dumble here remarked that he thought the offer of the Otonabee Power Co. too small and that of the Cereal Co. too large.

Ald. Morrison said that the Committee of the Council having the contracts under consideration (of which he is chairman) are gleaning all the information possible in the matter so as to compare notes properly. He finds that experts differ considerably on the quality of lamps; some favor arc lamps and some the closed ones. The Mayor and he were recently at Toronto Junction, where they saw the closed lamps in operation; they throw a nice light, but he noticed that they are very close together, only 100 yards apart. In the city itself the arc, or open, lamps are 130 yards apart; and those in Peterborough are fully that distance from each other. The reason for this difference in distance he is not prepared to give; but if the fact developed in this town that by using closed lamps we have to pay for one-third more lights than at present, it would be a serious matter. While in Toronto he ascertained that it costs more in carbon and in energy to operate the arc than it does the closed lamp; but why they continue to use the former light he does not know. Many smaller towns are putting in the closed lamp.

Mr. Meldrum explained that the lamps at Toronto Junction have only a power of 6.6 while those he proposes to put in here are 7.6.

Mr. Toker said he finds a strong opinion in town in favor of the railway if it can be secured on reasonable terms. The Cereal company would not be at as much loss as most people, because they can operate it in conjunction with their other departments. They would give a good service, make it a success and at the same time assist in building up the town. If the difference we have to pay for lighting by awarding them the contract is not more than a fair bonus for the street railway, then the Town should accept their proposition. It is not so much a year multiplied by ten, which constitutes the actual cash bonus, as the present value of the railway enters into the question. He thought the Board should advise the Town Council to consider the offer favorably and accept it if possible.

Mayor G. M. Roger replied that the Council are much embarrassed in the position in which they are placed owing to the contingent questions which have arisen, and they are naturally anxious to do justice to both tendering parties and the town. We are not going to get much benefit from experts as to the value of any particular lamp, unless they see them in operation; so much depends on conditions existing at that time, such as the service behind them, amount of electricity, and so on. What we want to arrive at is at what cost the Town can furnish its own lights, so as to fix a basis upon which to judge of the relative value of the tenders profered. Many towns are putting in closed lamps because they are cheaper. Our present lamps burn one carbon every day, the closed lamps one in five days; then it takes less power to run the former than the latter.

Mr. T. F. Matthews thought the Council should decide what lamps we are to have, and then ask for contracts for lighting. As a citizen and a ratepayer, he would vote for a straight bonus for the street railway, but he did not know that he would support a joint contract. The street lighting and the railway are two different propositions, and should be taken separately.

GENERAL BUSINESS

The Board convened at 8.15. Among those present were President D. Hughes-Charles in the chair, R. E. Wood, D. W. Dumble, C. Fessenden, W. H. Moore, John Carnegie, T. E. Bradburn, T. A. S. Hay, Ald. Rush, Mayor G. M. Roger, E. J. Toker, Thos Barrie, Wm. Davidson, Ald. Edge[illegible], Adam Hall, W. G. [illegible] T. F. Matthews, W. H. Bradburn, V. Eastwood, F. Adams, A. Stevenson, Ald. Morrison, Ald. McWhinnie, J. Craig, Alex. Gibson, R. Fair, A. Stratton, R. M. Dennistoun, W. H. Meldrum, W. H. Robertson.

Secretary Quartermaine gave a short synopsis of the preceding meetings, which were signed by the President and adopted.

A big batch of correspondence was referred to a Committee composed of the President and Vice-President, and Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, E. A. Peck, and Peter Campbell to take action thereon.

At the suggestion of the President Messrs. P. Campbell, R. Fair, T. E. Bradburn and E. A. Peck were appointed a committee to consider the advisability of reducing the membership fee from $2 to $1.

Mr. D. W. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. T. F. Matthews, that — the Minister of Customs be requested to make Peterborough a point to which baggage can be checked through in bond.—Carried.

A copy of the above resolution will be forwarded to the member for West Peterborough.

Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. H. Meldrum, R. Fair and Jno. Carnegie were appointed a Committee to consider the question of insurance rates and report to the Board.

This action was deemed necessary through the big increase in the fire insurance rates, which increase the Board thought uncalled for.

Mr. Dumble said that as the Insurance Companies had had an exceedingly prosperous year all over the Dominion, he could see no reason why they should raise the rates 30, 40 and even 50 per cent.

Mr. W. H. Robertson pointed out that any action taken by the Board of Trade would be futile; we should follow the precedent set by Montreal and organize an opposition company of our own.

Mr. Adam Hall remarked that if Peterborough supported a paid Fire Brigade, the town would be raised from class B to class A.

BRITAIN UPHOLDS PRESENT STATUS

Will Not Permit Pewers to Grab Constantinople

Turkish Official Says the Sultan Will Welcome British Officers as Observers

Constantinople, April 15. — Great Britain's vigorous stand against any and every suggestion for altering the political map of South-eastern Europe has restored confidence to Ottoman Government circles, and perceptibly improved the prospects of peace. The representations of Sir N. R. O'Connor, the British ambassador, have been especially weighty, because they have been cordially indorsed by the whole of Western Europe.

It is believed by many observers, including high Turkish officials, and probably the Sultan himself, that the combined action of Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy in supporting with particular energy the Austro-Russian reform scheme came in the nick of time to dissuade Austria and Russia from deciding that Turkey could not pacify the Balkans, and that the task would have to be assumed by the Great Powers more directly concerned. Whether Austria and Russia actually contemplated such a course is uncertain, but there is not the slightest doubt that Western Europe became fearful that events were moving in that direction.

This action of the powers has im- [illegible] ernment, which has entered on the work of restoring order and enforcing reforms with a better heart and with more determination. Said Pasha, the Grand Vizier, refused to make any statement to a newspaper correspondent, but an official, who is usually well informed declared that the free hand now given Turkey to use all proper means for the suppression of disorder would lead in the course of a reasonable time to the success of a reformed administration. He added that Turkish officers would welcome the companionship of British officers as witnesses of the methods of the Ottoman troops.

THE ABSENCE OF NEWS.

London, April 14.—Beyond reports of further small conflicts between Turkish troops and insurgent bands in Macedonia, and a few inconsequent trivialities, there is again a complete absence of news concerning the Balkan situation. There is a similar dearth of news at all the European capitals.

GREECE WILL BE NEUTRAL.

Paris, April 14.—A dispatch to the Temps from Constantinople says that Greece and Turkey are negotiating a secret convention, according to the provisions of which Greece under certain conditions Greece undertakes to maintain neutrality in the event of a war in the Balkans, and under other conditions to assist Turkey. The latter country reciprocates by withdrawing further opposition to the annexation of the Island of Crete by Greece.

English Lecturer Says They are Becoming Drunkards

St. Joseph, Mo., April 15—"American women are rapidly following in the footsteps of their English sisters and are becoming drunkards," said Miss Christina Tinling, English representative of the Woman's Christian union, in an address delivered at Mitchell Park Christian church last night. She asserted that the women of the United States had their liquor delivered secretly at their homes.

EMPRESS EUGENIE

Looks Youthful Beside the Surviving Couple of Her Wedding Day

Paris, April 15—Of the 28 young and beautiful couples married 50 years ago and dowered by Napoleon III. up- [illegible] the Empress Eugenie, only three have lived to celebrate their golden wedding. These are so decrepit that the venerable Empress looks youthful by comparison.

The grandchildren of the 28 young couples whom Napoleon made happy are legion. One of their chief pleasures is to visit the Cathedral of Notre Dame and to point out that the marriage of their grandparents was blessed there half a century ago by the Archbishop of Paris at the direction of Napoleon III. Holy week has witnessed many such visits.

THE UNITED STATES WARNED MUST FIGHT GERMANY

The Monroe Doctrine May Bring on a War

GERMANY MUST KEEP HANDS OFF

Will not Be Allowed to Get a Foothold

Washington, April 14.—The present strike in Holland has called attention to the possibility of Germany interfering in such a manner as to bring about the peaceful annexation of the Baltic Kingdom and the Low Countries to the Empire. If Emperor William could find a pretext for the employment of German troops in Holland, he would not withdraw those troops until after Queen Wilhelmina had acknowledged allegiance to the Kaiser.

The Washington authorities should manifest interest in the agitation of the German propagandists who are clamoring for the annexation of Denmark, Holland, and Belgium. If Holland should become German territory, the little kingdom's vast possessions in different parts of the world would make Germany a greater empire than it could hope to become during a century of colonization. Holland owns Dutch Guiana, in South America. Guiana extends for upwards of 250 miles to the mouth of the Maroni, which forms the boundary toward French Guiana. The Dutch claim possession of 46,530 square miles, or an area four times greater than that of Holland. While Guiana, under the Dutch is not a delectable land it might furnish Germany another opportunity to test the strength of the Monroe Doctrine. Of course, if Germany annexed Holland, her first contention would be that Dutch Guiana had passed into the empire. But the United States surely reiterate the principle which is opposed to further extension of old world authority in the new world.

Albany, April 14.—In reference to this subject the Albany Free Press says:

Now that we are eternally pledged to the Monroe Doctrine and are building up a mighty navy for the purpose of upholding that doctrine, let us see that Germany never finds an opportunity to claim Dutch Guiana. Every effort should be made by the Washington Government to secure for the United States Denmark's possessions in the West Indies and Holland's territory in South America.

FIFTEEN DEATHS

Scarlet Fever Outbreak in The Minden District

The Lindsay Post says that Dr. Shier spent Friday and Saturday at Minden in consultation with Dr. Curry on several patients suffering from scarlet fever. He states that the reports as to the number of deaths daily have been very much exaggerated, but that the type is a severe anginoid form, the throat being the seat of greatest danger. There have been several cases of the malignant form, where the patient took sick suddenly and died within twenty-four hours. Deaths have occurred at different ages from two years to thirty; within a radius of seven miles about fifteen deaths have occurred. As many as five in one family of the name of Harrison, near Gelert, have died. The difficulty in procuring nurses to carry out the treatment of the doctors has been the cause of some deaths. The doctor thinks that the Provincial Board of Health should take a hand in the matter and try to stop the ravages of the disease.

THE WEST ASKS FOR MORE TENTS

They are to Accomodate the incoming Rush

FORMER DELRGATES REPORT

Many Hundreds in England Would Come to Canada If They Had the Money

Winnipeg, April 14.—The tremendous rush of immigration from the States, Europe, and Eastern Canada to the Canadian North-West has taken the Dominion immigration authorities by surprise. Preparations had been made to meet what was considered a large increase, but these were not by any means sufficient to meet the demands. As a result, at many points in the Territories and Manitoba, the accommodation is entirely inadequate. Neither immigration buildings, nor hotels, nor private houses, can in any way furnish shelter for the numerous arrivals.

To meet the difficulty the military authorities, who have thousands of tents in stock, were appealed to. The Minister of Militia at once agreed to furnish all the tents necessary, and wired the district officer in command at Winnipeg to hand over all the tents that could be spared from the local headquarters to commissioner Smith. Some 270 were found available and were handed over and distributed.

This number, however, does not begin to meet the demands, and the Militia Department has been asked to furnish not less than 2,000 more tents, which will be at once forwarded from Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto, Quebec and Halifax and distributed to the points where they are likely to be most needed. The Immigration Department has rented a large building at Leduc and have taken possession of the skating rink at Rosthern which will accommodate 2,000 people.

REPORT OF FARMERS' DELEGATES

Among those who returned on the steamer Tunisian, which reached Halifax yesterday, were eighteen of the Canadian farmer delegates, who were sent by the Government to Great Britain two months ago to tell the people there of the opportunities for farming in the Dominion. In all 20 farmers went over, and they were distributed throughout the British Isles. Some of them remained in England, while others went to Ireland and Scotland, and everywhere they received a warm welcome. They held public meetings in nearly all of the big farming centres, talking morning, noon and night. The meetings were all largely attended, people coming from a distance to hear the addresses. The delegates speak enthusiastically of their tour, and think that it will be productive of good results. The rich farmers and landlords, they say, are opposed to the people coming to Canada, but the middle class are anxious to come and try their luck here. There are hundreds of stalwart young men there who would come to Canada if they had the money.

THE HOLLAND STRIKERS HAVE NO GOOC LEADERS

That is Held to be the Cause of Its Apparent Failure

The Hague, April 15.—"No more strikes without bold and able leaders," is the motto of the rank and file of the Dutch workers in view of last week's mix-up. It appears that the triumph of the Government is temporarily complete, although the workmen declare that a victory, based solely on despotic force, cannot endure. Meanwhile, the energy recently directed toward the prosecution of the strike will be employed in striving to retrieve the position of the dismissed strikers.

Among the most intelligent trades unionists, it is realized that what the Dutch workers need above everything else is a campaign of education. They see that great strikes cannot be won in haphazard fashion, and that organized labor is helpless without skilled and courageous leadership. Furthermore the political side of the labor movement has been brought home to the workers, who purpose attempting to send more friends of labor to the Chamber. The Anarchists and Socialists, who competed for the leadership of the strikers when the labor leaders struck their colors, are engaged in a bitter quarrel, but are unable to secure a following.

G W Melchers, the social Democratic leader and Deputy, said to a newspaper correspondent to-day that Premier Kuyper contemplates striking a blow at the electorate rights of the Dutch people for the purpose of preventing the ascendancy of popular ideas in Parliament. This suggestion is stiffening the determination of the workers to prepare effective measures of offense and defense.

Turning Down the Doctors

The marvelous cures of Catarrhozone are being much talked about. Thousands are daily recognizing the exceptional merit of this simple inhaler treatment, and instead of running to the doctor with their winter ills they protect themselves by Catarrhozone; it kills colds in the head in ten minutes, quickly relieves Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, Lung Troubles, and cures even though all other remedies have failed. Catarrhozone is very pleasant, safe and convenient to use. Its best recommendation is its enormous sale; try it to-day. Price $1.00, small size 25c. at Druggists.

Victory For Joe Martin

Vancouver, B.C., April 15.—At a meeting of the executive of the British Columbia Liberal Association it was decided that it was advisable to hold a convention to discuss the question of party lines in provincial politics at the present time. This is looked upon as a victory for Joseph Martin, as he has strenuously opposed the holding of the convention, the idea of which originated with Vancouver Liberals. The executive endorsed the silver-lead mine owners in their claim for a protective duty.

RADIUM

M Curie, the distinguished French physicist, has just announced to the Academy of Sciences the marvelous fact that radium continuously emits heat without combustion, without chemical change of any kind, and without change in its molecular structure, which remains spectroscopically identical after many months of this apparently uncompensated emission energy. What is equally remarkable radium maintains its own temperature at a point 2.7 degrees Fahrenheit above its surroundings. The quantity of heat evolved is such that a pure radium salt evolves every hour heat enough to melt more than its own weight of ice. To put it differently, half a pound of the radium salt would evolve as much heat as would be produced by the burning of one-third of a cubic foot of hydrogen. And this output of heat goes on continuously for an indefinite period, leaving the salt at the end of months of the same weight and power as at the beginning.

It used to be believed that the sinner would burn forever without being burned up, and if radium can heat forever without losing weight and power it is truly wonderful. When it can be cheaply produced it will be a good thing to have in the house during a coal strike.

THE DOCTORS

The recent meeting of Peterborough [illegible] reminds us of the ills and pills of every day life. Do we realise that we are dependent upon medical skill for our lives? Is there a man in town who would know that he had smallpox if his physician did not tell him so? It is the same with all the more serious diseases. At present, when a man dies his sorrowing relatives have at least the satisfaction of knowing what he died of. But competition, as in every walk of life, has laid its destroying hand on one of the most ancient and honorable of the professions. There are doctors and doctors in these days. Some practise with all the old glamour of the doctor surrounding them, others put methods of business into it and have taken away much of the old time glory, although the public still believes in the real "professional gentleman."

CANADIAN COMMERCE

Every day Canada is being better recognized by the United States as a serious rival for European trade and particularly British trade. Our export trade with Great Britain is just about one-sixth of that of the United States but in the lines where it does compete it is competing successfully and growing relatively faster. Letters from American trade agents say that Canada is a dangerous rival, and that the energy and enterprise of our merchants are capturing a larger share of British trade every year. From a commercial standpoint Canada was never more in evidence in Britain than at the present time. The trade statistics of Britain have been more deceptive than the general aspect of trade, for while the reports that a comparatively small amount of British trade can be credited to Canada, they also contain warnings as to Canadian aggressiveness. There are errors in the British trade returns due to the habit of classing goods from American ports as products of the United States. As a consequence the great volume of Canadian products reaching the Atlantic through American territory is credited to our neighbors. But while it is desirable that full credit should be accorded the Dominion for her contribution to Britain's food supply, we can afford to tolerate erroneous statistics, if they are accompanied by impressive words as to the seriousness of Canadian competition. Canada has the resources to produce just as effectively and more cheaply than the United States, and an impetus has been recently given to Canadian production which will render Canada from now on a still more important factor in international commerce.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The credit for making the most interesting archaeological discovery in Egypt last season is given to an American. Theodore M. Davis, whose work resulted in the discovery of the tomb of the Pharaohs of the eighteenth dynasty. In the tomb was the chariot in which the pharaoh rode to Thebes.

A French writer reports the result of an inquiry into the desertion from the German army corps at Metz. Last year they numbered over 1,000 including a large proportion of Alsatians and Lorrainers. The deserters complained chiefly of ill-usage and insufficient food. The deserters are all eager to enter the French army, but the military authorities are not very fond of these recruits, refuse to employ them in the frontier departments and pack them off to Algeria as often as possible.

Splitting Headaches

CAN BE STOPPED AND THE CONDITIONS WHICH CAUSE THEM CURED BY FERROZONE

Poisons accumulate in the blood and spread with it every movement to all parts of the body. The brain becomes congested, the nerves irritated and the result is that awful headache so well known to the female sex.

Most of these poisons are absorbed into the blood from the waste matter that has accumulated in the intestines resulting from indigestion. Matter which should be promptly passed from the system through natural channels.

Ferrozone cleanses the entire intestinal tract, and the liver and kidneys as well. It cures constipation and its many attendant evils. It makes the body strong and the blood pure, induces natural sleep and enables one to eat and drink anything at any time without risk of headache, nervousness or skin eruptions.

Ferrozone is nature's own remedy for headaches. It is a lasting potent tonic and the greatest health maker the world has ever seen. It masters all female derangements and restores weak, sickly women to a healthy vigorous condition of mind and body.

No other remedy so effectually meets the requirements of a health giving tonic and regulator as Ferrozone. Every woman and growing girl can derive marvellous benefit from its regular use, and if you suffer from Chlorosis, Anaemia, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Poor Appetite, Nervousness or female disorders of any kind, you can make no mistake in selecting Ferrozone for a cure.

Every reliable druggist recommends and sells Ferrozone for 50 cents a box. Be sure you get the genuine article, and refuse a substitute. Remember the name and insist on only Ferrozone. Sent to your address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

To Set Her Free

(COPYRIGHTED

By FLORENCE WARDEN.

Author of "The House in the Marsh," "A Prince of Darkness," etc.

"Well, I could not," said Astley decidedly. "There's only one woman who could make me happy, and that's the wife who shall be my wife yet in the eyes of all the world!"

And he pressed upon her lips a comforting kiss of love and tenderness, which, all unreasonable as it was, gave her a little fresh hope, fresh courage.

And when he left her at the end of the lane, by her own wish, that they might not set the cottagers chattering, she walked with a lighter step and a lighter heart than when she went forth that afternoon on her errand of discovery.

In the darkness, when she came to the first cottage, she saw Nance Raggett in her doorway. After a moment's hesitation, Norma stopped to ask her how Ned was. She fancied from the woman's manner that she was uneasy about something.

"It's about him I'm worriting," answered Nance civilly enough. "The lad coom home this afternoon, and he's been greeting about t' cold, and I'm nigh sure he's downright ill. Maybe he's caught cold wearing these fine new claes of t' doctor's."

"I thought he was ill when I met him in the wood this afternoon," said Norma.

"Ay, so he is too, and me wi' nobody to go and fetch t' doctor."

Norma said eagerly: "Let me watch him while you go."

"Oh, I doan't like for to trouble your ladyship," said Nance, looking, however, as if she felt rather grateful.

But Norma persisted in her offer, and Nance, apologetically saying she had tried to get someone from the neighboring cottages, but they were all out marketing for the next day, which was Sunday, at length availed herself of the offer, and ran in to put on her shawl, while Norma went back to her own lodging to leave her muff and gloves.

At the door of Nance's cottage they parted, Nance speeding away to the town, with her basket on her arm, after learning that Norma was quite ready to stay for a couple of hours if necessary, in charge of the invalid.

"He's lying quiet enough," said Nance, "as if he was asleep. He'll not take no notice of you, most like, your ladyship, nor so much as open his eyes. I didn't tell him as how you was so good as to coom to him."

"All right. I'll take great care of him," said Norma, as she went into the cottage.

Nance had made the sick lad a bed in the little parlor into which the front door of the cottage opened; and there he lay in the corner, just as she had said, with his eyes closed, and a dusky flush on his face.

Norma sat down without making the least noise, in a chair which was just out of his sight if he should open his eyes. She thought that the sight of her might disturb him, so that if he would sleep on quietly without knowing she was there, it would be better for him than if she were to have to soothe him by assurances that she had nothing to worry him about while he was ill.

As she sat there, recalling vividly the scene which had been enacted in that very room only a short time before, the group of startled faces, the wondering women, all crowding round the figures of Astley, the doctor and the boy, with the very same smoky little lamp, smelling strongly [illegible]ffin, burning on the corner of the [illegible]piece, Norma noticed that the la[illegible] beginning to grow restless, and [illegible]utter and to turn in his uneasy sleep.

Presently he woke with a start, and looked at her, apparently without knowing who she was.

Norma offered him some water, as he was moving his lips as if thirsty; he drank a little, and then turned his head away and was quiet for a space.

Before long, however, he began to mutter, and presently Norma caught a few words of such serious import that she listened with straining ears and wild eyes.

"No, no, I swear, I swear I'll say nowt, not if they flays me, I woan't!" muttered the boy brokenly.

Then after a pause he repeated the same words, varied by the repetition of a word here and there, and then again he fell into silence.

Suddenly he sat up in bed, and stared before him with blazing eyes:

"Doan't do it, doan't do it, doctor, doan't, doan't! It's murder, murder! Murder!"

He almost shrieked the last word, and then, after a moment's silence, during which he drew his breath hard, with clenched teeth and deep moans, he fell back on the pillow with a shudder and a low cry.

Norma shook with horror. Here then was the truth, the ghastly horrible truth, wrung in his delirium from the unfortunate boy. Before she could move from where she sat, the lad began again.

"Doctor, doctor, it's murder! You poor chap's dead, and yo're killed him! No, no, I woan't say nowt. I woan't say nowt!"

Always the same words, varied ever so little; always the same grim horror dictating it all.

And while Norma, with her face turned to the bed, listened, terror-struck, still as a statue, something made her look up and turn to the middle of the room.

There, listening also to the boy's ravings, and witness of her presence there, was Dr. Wharles, white-faced, grim of aspect, desperate.

Norma leaped up from her seat: but, with a hand of iron, he forced her down.

THE TWENTY-FIRST ANNUAL MEETING of the Shareholders of the Western Bank of Canada
Held at the Head Office of the Bank, OSHAWA, ONTARIO, on WEDNESDAY, APRIL the 8th, 1903

The following Shareholders were present: W. F. Allen Esq.; Dr. McIntosh, Thos Miller, Esq.; John McLaughlin, Esq.; C. W. Scott, Esq.; W. F. Cowan, Esq.; T. H. McMillan, Esq.; R. Dillon, Esq.; and others.

Owing to the illness of the President, W. F. Allen, Esq.; was appointed chairman, and Mr. T. H. McMillan, acted as Secretary to the meeting.

REPORT

The Directors have pleasure in submitting the twenty-first Annual Report for the year ending February 28th, 1903.

The business of the Bank has been active and progressive. The net profits of the year have amounted to $65,121 66 or about 15 1-4 per cent upon the average paid up capital of the Bank, which, added to the balance carried forward from the previous year $4078 21, amounts to $69 199 87.

Out of this sum two half yearly dividends of 3 1-2 per cent each have been paid, absorbing $29,785.26, $25,000 carried to the Rest Account, and $14,414.61 has been carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss.

The Deposits of the Bank have increased $525,939.56 and the circulation $28,310, and the gross assets $607,148.51 over the previous year. The losses of the year have been small.

The Rest Account of the Bank now stands at $175,000 or about equal to 40 1-4 per cent of the paid up capital.

The Agencies of the Bank, when last inspected, were found in a satisfactory condition.

JOHN COWAN, President.

Oshawa, 8th of April, 1903.

T. H. McMILLAN, Cashier.

Moved by the Chairman, and seconded by Mr. McLaughlin, that the Report as read be adopted, printed and circulated among the Shareholders.—Carried.

Mr. Miller, seconded by Mr. Dillon, moved that the thanks of the Shareholders are due and hereby tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors of the Bank for the manner in which they have conducted the affairs of the Bank during the past year.—Carried.

Mr. F. W. Cowan, seconded by Mr. Scott, moved that the thanks of the Shareholders be given to the Cashier and other officers of the Bank for their attention to the interests of the Bank.—Carried.

Dr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Gibson, moved that this meeting do now proceed to elect, by ballot, 7 Directors to fill the place of those retiring, and that Messrs. C. W. Scott and John McLaughlin be scrutineers for said election, and that the poll remain open for one hour to receive the votes of the Shareholders, but that should five minutes elapse at any time without a vote being taken the poll shall be declared closed, and that the Scrutineers be paid $4 each for their services.—Carried.

The Scrutineers reported the following seven gentlemen as having received the unanimous vote of the Shareholders, viz: John Cowan, Esq.; R. S. Hamlin, Esq.; W. F. Cowan, Esq.; Dr. McIntosh; W. F. Allen, Esq.; T. Patterson, Esq.; and J. A. Gibson, Esq., who were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year. A vote of thanks was then tendered to the Chairman for his conduct in the chair, and the meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the new Board, John Cowan, Esq., was unanimously elected President, and R. S. Hamlin, Esq., Vice-President.

This Company has a perpetual lease on 20 acres of proven oil land in SECTION NINE (9) of the Boulder district, and this section and the immediate vicinity have the best and largest number of producing wells in the entire district.

Our Well No. 1 came in in January and is now pumping and shipping Oil regularly to the Refinery.

The Directors have decided to put down well No. 2 at once, and they now offer a block of the Treasury stock at 15 cents per share, for that purpose.

It is a well known fact that a 15 barrel well will pay over 100 per cent. profit upon its cost.

This is no longer a speculation for we have proved that oil is on our ground, and we now have oil in paying quantities, with two wells pumping we can soon pay dividends, and every well we put down increases our earning capacity.

This is a business proposition, managed by business men.

STOCK VALUES

Have been continually unmercifully hammered for the past 10 days, prices have been driven below normal average figures.

Natural demand under adverse local temporary conditions has sustained values generally around going prices for two weeks past. Clique support is plainly discernable; insiders have been steady buyers. The average of values is no lower than two weeks ago, yet we have been flooded with "Bearish" predictions, and the market has been the consistent object of Bear attack. Stocks are now a good purchase; we will be pleased to tell you the stocks likely to show the best profit if purchased immediately and will send you gratis, upon request, both our 100-page 1903 "GUIDE TO INVESTORS." and our "DAILY MARKET LETTER." one posts you in detail regarding Wall Street, its methods, securities, etc., the other informs you daily as to the probable immediate movement of the market.

STOCK MARKETS

Price Readjustment Favors Active Trading Market

New York, April 14.—Though conservative expression seems to be the order of the day, among a majority of the financial writers a hopeful undertone is more apparent. Stress is laid upon the fact that liquidation has been drastic, but the bulk of the securities of the country are now in the possession of monied interests, and there is no danger of the markets being flooded with stocks, as would be the case if the public were largely involved. This practically eliminates the possibilities of a panic, and will bring support to the market if any further bearish demonstration should be made at the present quotation level. Concerning the general situation, we cannot do better than quote from Mr. Kellog's article in to-day's Sun. He says in part; Opinion as to the immediate future of the market at the weeks end was confused, the prevailing view, although it was a hesitating one, was that prices would be sustained by the genuinely favorably factors in the general situation that are entirely unaffected by the Northern Securities decision. Those factors are the prolonged liquidation and cleaning out process to which the market has been subjected. The bettered conditions of affairs abroad, the magnificent crop outlook, the government estimate published on Friday indicating a record in yield of winter wheat, and the continued prosperity of general business, the larger returns recently of railway net earnings, the easier feeling regarding the outcome of the disputes over the paying of laboring men, the evidence that the manufacture of new securities has stopped, and most imporant of all, the growing conviction that the stock markets money difficulties are over, if anything like moderation is displayed by speculators, in their operations. It is assured now that a good trading market will be created, in which a restoration of values will be gradual, but certain. Regardless of what may be the final outcome of the Northern Securities litigation, stock business will be conducted on a stronger basis and the readjustment of values will give confidence to both speculator and investor. While the decision has upset the plans of the financial powers, good fruit has been borne through the fact that the army of ordinary, every day shareholders will no longer be overshadowed by the big men, and the minority will not have their securities divided, reclassified and reaffered valueless, as has happened more than once in the past. The experienced trader welcomes present quotations as the keystone to making money, and needs no urging to purchase. Those who find speculation a new field to them should buy the list as it stands to-day.

Summary—Conditions are now all for the better. Prices opened on a parity with last night's closing, and then gained steadily throughout the day, final quotations being near the highest. A good proportion of the transactions were evidently from investment sources, and of a character certain to give the market permanent strength. Money closed last loan 3 per cent. Total sales 873,000.

SOME STARTLING FACTS

Regarding a Wonderful Discovery by the Famous Dr. Clarke.

To the Editor of The Times—

Sir,—With a view to afford relief to the afflicted, I ask you to publish the following: I am 81 years old and for 3 years have done absolutely nothing, owing to rheumatism; my hands, feet and heart being affected. I was induced by my cousin to take Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills, and before I had taken 4 boxes I could go upstairs without help, and can now go up the stairs as well as I ever could. Two doctors told me that I never would be well again; but I have neither ache nor pain and am in perfect health.

GEORGE M. DUNCAN,
120 Albert St., London.

—John Williams, of the C.P.R. Works, Toronto, was cured of chronic rheumatism, after taking 10 boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills.

—I was troubled with rheumatism for 22 years, and could get absolutely no relief from the doctors. Six boxes Dr. Clarke's Wonderful Little Red Pills entirely cured me. God bless Dr. Clarke. (REV.) J. HUMMITT, Winnipeg, Man.

Dr. Clarke's Little Red Pills are a positive and certain cure for rheumatism, asthma, paralysis, coughs, lame back, indigestion, all stomach and liver troubles, female complaints, even when the diseases have been standing for many years; the most stubborn cases will yield. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Peterborough. Price 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.00.

For a short time only,
Then it goes to 50.
Don't class us with "we will companies, who never intend to."
For we have the goods, and will deliver part of them in 1903,
And continue to deliver for years to come.

A MAGNIFICENT INVESTMENT

THE GOLD TUNNEL COMPANY.

PRESCOTT, ARIZONA

The Company owns in SIX PARALLEL VEINS of GIGANTIC SIZE, one of the largest GOLD-PROPOSITIONS in the country. Each of these six veins would make a mine by itself.

The Company, by purchase and consolidation, has succeeded in acquiring the entire length of these great GOLD BEARING ledges; covering an area six thousand feet in length and about two thousand feet wide. The Company owns this valuable property free of any incumbrance.

The ground included in this group of mines gives ample evidence of tremendous natural disturbances, and shows plainly on the surface the acid and mineral stains characteristic of a heavy mineralised gold lead of gigantic proportions.

Six Miles of Gold Bearing Veins

Through the length of four of the mining claims; forming a continuous line 6,000 feet long run THREE LEDGES so close together as to be economically worked from one opening; they aggregate from 85 to 200 feet in width.

The adjoining line of three mining claims shows a ledge 4,500 feet in length, varying in width from 7 to 200 feet, with the same character of ore.
